MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

Preparing Cabbage for Fowls.

A correspondent of the Poultry Journal and Record gives the following mode of saving and preparing green food, especially cabbage leaves, for fowls in winter:

It seems necessary for and beneficial to chickens to feed at all times on some green food. During summer it is quite easy to supply their wants, and our pets can get all they require if they are allowed free range, but it is necessary for us to provide for the hard winter months. A cheap and practical way to obtain green food during winter is in the following method:

Take all the outside leaves of cabbage, which are generally thrown away as useless, and put them in layers with common rock salt, in either, for that purpose, earthen pits or clean barrels; stamp as solid as possible, cover it up well and let it ferment. In a very short time a veritable sour cabbage is obtained, which will keep through winter, and will prove, as an addition to their regular food, very valuable to our pets. The cabbage can be given raw, but it is preferable to feed it cooked, in a lukewarm condition. The chickens eat it with great relish and thrive wonderfully, as it does not only add to their good condition during the hard and cold winter months, but induces them to commence laying early and continue diligently. Experience has shown in Germany the merits of feeding sour cabbage, and I can only advise the readers of your valuable journal to give it a fair trial, as it is not connected with any great outlay of either labor or expense, and I am certain that it will give satisfaction to all.

Winter Care of Stock.

The most important department of farm work at the present time is the care of farm stock. Dairy cows and store sheep require a great deal of attention. The old worn out and unprofitable cows should be sent to the shambles or disposed of to drovers for whatever they will fetch. There is no economy, but rather actual loss, in feeding such cows a single day after they can be sold. The cows which are to be kept as the source of next year's income should be provided with warm shelter, and be fed, not merely enough to keep them alive, but more than that. They should be fed all the most nutritious fodder they will consume. If less than this is done, the feeder's principal object is not accomplished. Care should be exercised daily that no animal is allowed to injure another. Some animals are slow eaters, and others are very fast, and in these circumstances, by a little negligence on the part of the attendant, some animals will thrive and others will be starved, and to the unobservant attendant the cause will be unaccounted for.

Some men, too, are naturally successful cattle feeders, while others are deplorably unsuccessful. I have known men who were so careless of the safety and comfort of their stock that they would allow ice to accumulate on the approach to the stable door until, perhaps, their attention would be called to the danger by a broken leg. Watchfulness and care in small things is one great secret of the farmer's success. Sheep should not be allowed to run in the same yard with cattle or horses on account of liability to accident. They should be fed plenty of good hay, with a little grain, daily. The object with sheep is not to keep them fat, for this is apt to impair their success in breeding, but rather to keep them in vigorous condition. Sheep do not require a warm shelter so much as a protection from the storm.—F. K. Moreland in Country Gentleman.

Is the Creamery all Gain?

Dairymen have been used to claim that one great advantage of the creamery system was that it relieved the women from the care of the dairy and from the labor of attending to the cream and making the butter. This claim is undoubtedly well founded, but it may be questioned if this relief is all gain or if it is not accompanied by a serious loss to the dairymen and farmers without any adequate advantage. Now, we completely abjure the theory or belief that freedom from such labor or care as may be well and easily undertaken by women is an unmixed benefit. There is a good deal of nonsense and foolish gush about this business, and sensible, practical women have no desire to abandon all employment of such light kinds as will not overtax their strength or interfere with household and family affairs, and their opportunities for study and intellectual pursuits and other recreations. The dairy is especially well suited to the feminine disposition and capability. A man may manage the cream and make butter as well as a woman can—sometimes; but he rarely possesses those instincts of neatness, order, regularity, deftness, cleanliness in details, and those other little niceties which go to make up the best quality of butter, and which are the especial characteristics of the feminine mind and hand. And it is a question if the women who are still burdened with the drudgery of butter making; the slopping over pans, pails, and utensils, have not more abundant work laid upon them in this way through the want of neatness common to the men.

We have observed much of this, and especially how a man will not hesitate to plump down the milk pail in his off-hand manner, quite neglectful of the fact that it may rest upon a quantity of filth; while a woman will carefully gather a handful or two of clean litter to protect the bottom of the pail. In the after washing of the milk pails this difference is a serious item in the labor of cleansing the utensils, in that it brings into the sink the foulest and most penetrating odors of the stable. But market reports tell the tale in the most convincing manner, and just now we find that creamery, June packed butter is quoted at 18 cents per pound—while the top of the market is over 40 cents. When the woman was queen of the dairy, June packed butter brought the highest prices; then the butter buyer, thrusting his tryer into the firkins and tubs, fetched up a sample of butter, not "gilt edged" only, but golden all through, and of that delicious, nutty flavor which told of the fresh June grass, "the sweet breath of the heifers" and the perfect manipulation of the neat and skilful dairy woman. What a falling off is there when June creamery is only four cents above the value of "all sorts," grease included. If this is all the creamery has done or can do for June butter, it is a pertinent question to ask "is the creamery all gain?"—Rural New Yorker.

Cattle Tortured in Stanchions.

I presume that the "cattle fastener" referred to by your correspondent is an improved method of fastening stanchions, as there are several devices for holding them in place and one for shutting and fastening a whole row simultaneously. Stanchions are generally used by farmers because cattle, when confined in them, can be placed closer together, and they are, perhaps, less trouble than other fastenings. Universal custom, also, has a great deal to do with their use, but this does not lessen their torture to cattle. Any one who has seen the repeated struggles and efforts of a cow trying to get up when fastened in stanchions ought to be convinced against their use; besides, they keep the muscles and cords of the neck in a fixed position, and prevent the animal from licking itself, which is unnatural, and from moving about in the stable, which must be a decided relief. The most comfortable fastening is a chain about the neck, with a ring attached to a post, so that it can slide up and down. This will allow the animal to raise and lower its head and to lick its body and to get up and down with ease. I consider the cow stable at Kirby Homestead as nearly perfect as any I ever saw. Each cow is allotted a space of three feet in width for standing room. The platform on which they stand is four feet six inches in length, with a half inch inclination toward the gutter, which is located at the rear of the platform for the droppings, and is six inches deep by fourteen inches wide. In the rear of the gutter is a passage-way three feet six inches wide. The feeding-rack in front of the cows is two feet six inches wide and boarded up next to the cattle two feet high, being cut down in front of each cow one foot, to allow them to lower their heads and necks on a line with their bodies when lying down. There are no partitions between the cows, and they can readily turn their heads out of the feed-rack around to their bodies, or they can lie down lengthwise of the rack if they choose. The cows soon learn their position in the stable, and march up to their posts to receive the chain around their necks. I have never had any cattle injured in the stable nor any abortions, which often occur as a result of stanchion torture and straining.—F. D. Curtis.

College-Bred Cattle.

Under the direction of Professor Morrow, of the Illinois Industrial University, as previously reported in the Tribune, eight steers of different breeds (two Ayrshires, two seven-eighths Devons, two one-half Herefords, and one Short-horn and one three-fourths Short-horn) were, in the spring of 1880, set apart for a comparison of the qualites of such breeds for making meat under ordinary treatment. In spring and summer they were kept in pastures, which were badly affected by the droughts of 1880 and 1881, and they were wintered in open yard on damaged, unthreshed oats, threshed timothy straw, cornstalks, and toward the end of the season, a very little corn. From May 1 of the second season, all were in pasture and were supplied with a full feed of shelled corn. From a single experiment with only two animals of each breed no very decisive conclusions can be drawn as to the comparative fitness of one breed or another for fattening, but some points are brought out on a general view of all the results. It is interesting to notice that a comparatively small difference in the feeding of the first year appeared to affect the condition of the animals at the end, eighteen months later, one animal of each breed was kept on fair pasture during the first summer, and the other on poor pasture with a feed of corn every day, and in every case the former when butchered gave the greater weight of carcas. The moderately fat carcasses of these animals from the University farm were in all cases noted by the committee of judges at the Chicago Fat Stock Show as being more profitable for consumption than the very fat animals slaughtered at the same time; and of these college-bred steers the one with the largest per cent. of tallow was ranked lowest in respect to merit of carcase; the carcase which took the first premium had the largest proportion of lean meat to gross weight as compared to any carcase in the show. This judgement of experienced butchers may serve to enforce the lesson taught by the results of careful German experiments, showing that in feeding for the stalls there is a point when the animal is about half fattened beyond which further feeding adds but a small quantity of meat to the carcase, and reall does little else than to load it down with fat.—G. C. Caldwell in New York Tribune.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JAN. 6.

Wheat Growing in Ontario.

The Mail publishes, in a recent issue, an interesting and suggestive table prepared by Mr. Rollo, Secretary of the Toronto Board of Trade, showing the yield of fall wheat and of spring wheat in the Province. The average yield of fall wheat is therein shown to be 18¾ bushels per acre, and of spring wheat 11⅓ bushels per acre. On this important subject our contemporary remarks:

The cost per acre of cultivating spring wheat as averaged from six different estimates would be $13.52. The average production in thirty-five districts is eleven and a half bushels. This at a price of $1.25 per bushel, would leave a profit per acre of eighty-five and a half cents. The average thus shown by the table is exceedingly low, and it will be seen that the cultivation of wheat is not remunerative. Why this average is so low, and why the cultivation should not pay, can only be answered by looking at the manner in which the land has been and is cultivated. Instead of adopting a regular system of cropping, draining, and manuring, the farmers have with very few exceptions contented themselves with ploughing the seed in and letting it take its chances. They have gone on year after year sowing the same seed in the same ground. They have made no attempt to enrich the ground with manure or to drain. In consequence, the result as shown above is a poor yield and no remuneration for the work. The quality of the wheat is also damaged by the abiding system of cultivation. Many prominent millers have asserted, and with very good foundation for their assertions, that the quality of wheat grown in Canada is far inferior to that grown in the United States. Evidences of this are given every day, and it is but lately that the flour standards made at a recent meeting in Montreal have been found to be too high, and that it would be necessary to lower them. As a remedy it will be necessary to thoroughly renovate the system of cultivation, and to regenerate the land by a proper method of tillage

Every word of the above is unfortunately true, and there seems to be little hope of reform. The Agricultural College, the educational institutions of the Province, the press, all work to the end of securing an improvement in the system of farming, but with very little success, farmers in general being content to follow the methods of their forefathers, whose rude cultivation of the virgin soil yielded them a rich return for their labor. The chief ground for hope of an improvement lies in the probable advent of the older districts of farmers from the old country who possess capital, and will not be afraid to invest it in manures, underdraining, and the labor necessary to till the land thoroughly. With the success of new methods exemplified, the Canadian husbandman will be led to follow the example thus set, and with but a little leaven of this sort, the fertility and productiveness of many worn out farms in Ontario will be restored.

Editorial Brevities.

Charges against Dr. May, of the Education Department, are being investigated at Toronto, but with closed doors. It is alleged by the party who prefers the charges, and who desired the investigation to be open, that Dr. May was interested in contracts for supplies to the Department. This star-chamber sort of procedure is neither right nor proper. It may not be just to Dr. May, and it certainly is not fair to the public. Dr. May is the servant of the public—not that of the Government, though our autocratic rulers seem unable to make that distinction—and as such the people have the right to know, through the press, in what manner the investigation is conducted. Thoroughly imbued with the insolence of office, the Ontario Government seem to forget that they are the servants, not the masters of the people.

Some of the transformations attempted by the Grits are happily hit off by the Hamilton Spectator. 1st. The tariff is a monstrous robbery; put us in office and we will retain the tariff substantially as it is. 2nd. The sugar duties are making millionaires of the refiners; in consequence of the unhealthy competition induced by the tariff, our sugar refineries are failing. 3rd. A surplus is a robbery of the people; the Ontario Government has a surplus, therefore it deserves popular support. 4th. The contract with the syndicate is infamous, because the terms are so much better for the country than those offered by Mr. Mackenzie. 5th. The farmers are not sufficiently protected; put us in office and we will repeal the duties on agricultural products. Our contemporary, says the Mail, ought to have added. 6th. It was a patriotic resolve on the part of Mr. Mackenzie to refuse to allow a North-West charter to go into operation as a rival to the Canadian Pacific railway; Sir John, it is stated, is going to follow the precedent, thus providing; this is foisting an infamous monopoly upon the country, and he ought to be turned out of office instanter for thinking of putting such a restriction upon trade.

The Oshawa Vindicator rates soundly the Globe and other advocates of incidental protection, who declare that free trade is the correct thing, but that "we cannot have pure free trade in Canada. We require a large revenue and that revenue must be raised by duties, and these duties must be a protection to our manufacturers." The Vindicator points out that this is incidental protection, and says with a truth which cannot be gainsaid: "It is untrue that we cannot have free trade as it is known in England. If necessary the revenue can be raised by direct taxation, just as the revenue is now raised for municipal purposes. It can be raised by a duty on articles we cannot produce, and will import such as tea, coffee, sugar, &c. It can be raised by excise duties on spirits, tobacco and articles of luxury, or it can be obtained from all three as is done in England. When the Globe therefore asserts there must be a duty on manufactured goods in order to provide a revenue it states what it knows to be untrue. Incidental Protection might be endured before the tariff discussions of the past ten years enlightened the people; but now it is considered by two classes, knaves and fools, and the former use it to deceive the latter."

The Guelph Herald informs us that Mr. James Goldie, of that city, has imported from Nova Scotia several car loads of bituminous coal at a price considerably lower than that asked by the dealers in American coal. The Nova Scotia coal has been used in the mill and in grates, and gives the best satisfaction. Several citizens who have used it prefer it to the American coal, as it burns brighter and gives a more steady heat. When the prejudice created by the Grits and by the agents of the United States coal ring against the Nova Scotia coal has been overcome, there will be an immense development of interprovincial trade, as foreseen by the Government.

Another case, showing the necessity of the law of evidence being amended so as to admit of the testimony of unbelievers being received on their making affirmation, has occurred at Hamilton, where a prosecution against a woman charged with raising the denominations of bank bills has failed, because an agnostic refused to take the oath.

The Toronto World says:—"The Minister of Customs may count on the support of public opinion in his attempt to compel the Pullman car company to pay duty on their cars and the furnishings thereof. As long as taxes are imposed, corporations as well as individuals should be compelled to pay their proportion."

COUNTY COURT.

McRAE vs. CHISHOLM.—Action of covenant and lease. Plff. leased to deft. the east half of Lot 13, 1st con. Sidney, for 3 years at $299 per year, together with a number of cows and farming implements. Deft. alleges in defence that there was not as much land in the farm as mentioned in the lease, and did not get from plff. as many cows as mentioned in lease, and he claims damages for the lack of land and cows and to offset it against the plff.'s suit. Deft. paid into court $150 as a tender in full satisfaction of plff.'s claim. The case was tried before the Judge without jury. Judge allowed deft. $67 for his counter-claim for lack of land and cows, and gave verdict for plff. for $83 over and above money paid into court and counter-claim allowed.

A LARGE BRIDGE.—One of the largest bridges in the country is now in process of construction for the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad, over Murderer's creek, south of Newburgh. It will be 1,200 feet long and 150 feet high. The bridge will be built of iron, and will be about 680 feet longer than the great Suspension bridge at Niagara, and about 25 feet higher than High bridge over the Harlem river, though 206 feet shorter. It will be a few feet higher than the New York and Brooklyn bridge, and also 232 feet longer than the famous new London Bridge over the Thames. As yet only one abutment is completed; the other requires fifteen feet more of masonary, and the piers are just begun. The work will continue through the winter.

Wedding Bells.

MARRIAGE OF MR. BELL AND MISS YEOMANS.

(From the Winnipeg Times.)

'Tis Christmas tide,
The belle's a bride;
An hour is passed; ah well,
The bride's a Bell.
—S. C. BIGGS.

A very interesting ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. J. N. Yeomans, Garry street, on Monday evening, viz., the marriage of his daughter, Miss Eliza Yeomans, and Mr. Donald Bell, of the firm of Bell Brothers of this city. There were present the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Arnett, Mr. and Mrs. Monkman, Mr. and Mrs. McCrossan, Mrs. Whitla, Mr. and Mrs. Biggs, Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Sifton, Miss Arnett, Mrs. A. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mr. Bell, the brother of the lucky man, Mr. Halstead, of Mount Forest, Ont., and the family of Mr. Yeomans.

The knot was tied in good old Methodistic fashion by the Rev. Dr. Rice, Mr. George Yeomans acting as groomsman and Miss Arnett as bridesmaid. The contract was performed at precisely nine o'clock, and an hour later, after the usual congratulations and friendly intercourse, the company sat down to a magnificent marriage supper. The six story wedding cake, beautiful in an elaborate dress of artistic ornamentation, rose high in the centre of the heavily laden table. At the close of the feast the health of the bride was proposed by Mr. Biggs, from whose impromptu poetry we give a quotation at the commencement of this notice. The toast was ably supported by Messrs. Sifton and Monkman and fittingly responded to by the bridegroom.

A delightful part of the evening's entertainment was spent in the examination of nearly a hundred beautiful and costly presents which had been sent in by many friends of the bride. Among those were many articles of silver-ware—some exceedingly beautiful—and a purse of gold from the bride's father.

The bride was beautifully and tastefully dressed in a corn-colored silk, trimmed with Spanish lace; and a head-dress of orange blossoms, and of course she looked charming. Miss Arnett the bridesmaid, was beautiful in a dress of white tarletan trimmed with Spanish lace. The toilettes of the ladies present were new and pretty.

Terrible Tragedy.

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE FROM PRISON — THREE MURDERERS AND A DEPUTY SHERIFF KILLED.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 3.—Advices from Graham, Texas, report that the three McDonald boys, the murderers of a man named Martin Belknap, made a desperate effort to escape from jail yesterday which resulted in their death and the death of a deputy sheriff, besides the serious wounding of several other people. About ten o'clock in the morning the McDonald boys were led from the steel cage to the calaboose and, with Jim Boone and Jack Baldwin, two other prisoners, were given their breakfast by two deputies. One deputy was testing the cage while it was empty, and the other deputy, Davis Melton, stood in the doorway of a wooden cell opening from the calaboose to the steel cage. He had a pistol in each hand keeping watch, and presently put both revolvers in one hand to get a match from his pocket, when the McDonalds sprang upon him suddenly and disarmed him. In the struggle, Melton was shot in the hand. His cries brought Murfee, the other deputy, from the cage, but on entering the calaboose he was shot and instantly killed by the prisoners. The prisoners then made a hole through the floor to the room below, and taking Melton with them began their escape. A bloodhound watches the jail, but by a detour they avoided the dog and took their flight in a southerly direction. By this time the whole city was excited and the citizens had gathered together and followed the fleeing prisoners. The latter placed their hostage, Melton, behind them and threatened to shoot him dead if they were fired on. Thus the murderers proceeded some 300 yards, when one citizen deliberately took aim, and, firing, mortally wounded one of the fugitives, who fell. Deputy Melton seized the opportunity, broke loose and ran. A general fusilade was now exchanged between the citizens and the escaping prisoners. The latter entrenched themselves in the weeds and stumps, and the battle raged for some time. When the shooting ceased, the three McDonalds were dead. Melton was shot three times, an old man named Wood wounded in the thigh, and a waiter named Joy had a bone of his leg shattered. Baldwin and Boone took no part in the shooting, and were recaptured. Graham was a scene of terrible excitement during the bloody affray.

Abandonment of the Tay Bridge.

THE "FLYING" BRITISH TRAINS.

The abandonment of the Tay Bridge now seems exceedingly probable. The company is promoting a line by Glenfarg, and the supposition is they will carry it over the Tay by a bridge at Newburgh, reaching Dundee through the Carse o' Gowrie at Newburg. The river there is narrow, and as it is divided in mid-channel by an island, a cheaper and much more substantial bridge could be built than at Dundee.

The following statement shows what time the British "flyers" make on regular trips: The famous "Flying Dutchman" on the Great Western Railroad makes the run from London to Exeter, 194 miles, in four hours and fourteen minutes. With four stops, it attains a speed of almost forty-six miles an hour. A train on the Great Northern road, the "Leeds express," does better. It makes the distance from London to Leeds, 187 miles, in four hours—almost forty seven miles an hour, with four stops. The train carrying the Irish mail to Holyhead over the London & Northwestern line, and dubbed years ago "The Wild Irishman," has now sunk into comparative obscurity with its rate of a little less than forty miles an hour. The competition over several of the great lines to the populous Scotch cities leads to some fast schedules. The morning express on the Great Northern Road makes only four stops along the line from London to Edinburgh, 395 miles, and flies over the whole distance in nine hours, with an average rate of almost forty-four miles an hour; and on the Midland Line the night Scotch express runs the 425 miles to Glasgow with a speed of forty and one-half miles an hour. These are the four swiftest trains in England, and, as will be seen, the Leeds express, with its rate of forty-seven miles an hour, is the fleetest of them all. Three out of the four trains probably beat the running time for the same distance on any other roads in the world. They are all far outstripped for a shorter distance by the train on the Pennsylvania Railroad which leaves Jersey City at 4.10 p.m., and makes the run of about eighty-eight miles to Philadelphia in one hundred minutes, with one stop, at Trenton. The fifty-two and eight-tenths mile an hour made by this American train is probably without parallel in the schedule time of any railroad company on the globe.

IMPUDENT WASPS.—A postal pillar letter box was chosen last spring, in the Alsatian village of Schwarzbach, by a swarm of wasps as their summer residence. The wasps built their nests inside the metal case in such sort that their domicile in no way interfered with the depositing or removal of letters. Throughout the hot summer months they were observed, day after day, flying in and out of the aperture through which the villagers dropped their letters into the pillar box. As soon as cool weather set in, a few weeks ago, the wasps evacuated their summer quarters and settled themselves underground for the winter months in a field hard by.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so." They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. The Doctor is now out of danger. Dugan is in gaol.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JAN. 6.

City and Vicinity.

THERE was but one inmate of the cells last night—a tramp.

A LARGE number of dog cases were disposed of at the Police Court—"still, there's more to follow."

THE Directors of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association met at the Dafoe House this afternoon.

SEVENTEEN of Mr. Severn's sheep which were worried by dogs have died, and the remaining ones—five in number—are in a very bad state.

WE have received from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Assistant Traffic Agent at Winnipeg a small sample of Manitoba wheat, which can be seen at the business office of the INTELLIGENCER.

THE officers of No. 3 Quinte Hook & Ladder Co., elected for the ensuing year, are as follows:—H. C. Thompson, Foreman; Thos. Pasons, 1st assistant; Wm. Seeds, 2nd asst.; Robt. Tuite, President; Jos. Boselly, Vice-President; A. Paterson, Treasurer; Jas. Hall, Secretary.

THE concert which was to have been held next Wednesday evening under the auspices of Belleville Lodge No. 81 I.O.O.F., to celebrate the re-opening of the new Lodge Room, has been indefinitely postponed on account of the non-completion of the new furniture for the Lodge Room, which is being manufactured by Mr. J. G. Frost.

REV. D. MITCHELL lectured in the Presbyterian Church at Brighton on the 29th ult. on the subject of "How to get on in the world." The Ensign says that the subject was dealt with in a masterly manner, "the reverend gentleman being in his happiest mood and fairly overflowing with information and instruction of the richest kind."

A DARING burglary took place in Brighton last Saturday night. The house of a widow lady named Mrs. Ashton was entered by way of the cellar, and a trunk containing one fine gold watch, three silver watches, a quantity of plated ware, and $2 in cash—the whole valued at between $150 and $200—was stolen. No trace of the thieves has yet been discovered.

THE joint Ferry Committee met in the City Hall this morning. Mr. Wm. Anderson in the chair. The other members present were—Messrs. Roblin, Peck, Dunnet, Stafford, J. P. Anderson, J. N. Peck, and J. B. Morden. In the absence of Ald. Dickson, and in view of the fact that the City Council will shortly appoint their standing Ferry Committee for 1882, it was considered advisable to adjourn, which was accordingly done.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 6.—Lakes, fresh to strong southeasterly to southwesterly winds, cloudy mild weather, with areas of snow or rain.

MILITARY INSPECTION.—The long-deferred inspection of the 15th Battalion took place to day. The Inspecting Officers, Col. Villiers, D. A. G., and Major King, Paymaster, arrived this morning and proceeded with the official inspection at the battalion headquarters. The company inspection took place this morning, and that of the battalion this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITION.—Prof. Buell's stereopticon exhibition in St. Michael's Church last night was well attended, and proved to be one of the most pleasing exhibitions of the kind ever held here. The scenes were thrown on an immense canvas, and were often as much as eighteen feet square. They consisted chiefly of public buildings in the chief cities of Canada, the United States and Europe, interiors of celebrated cathedrals, churches, &c., the leading American prelates of the R. C. Church, statesmen and other public men, statuary, &c. The scenes were singularly clear, life-like and natural, and were viewed with delight by the audience. An immense portrait of Mgr. Farrelly was somewhat of a surprise to the assemblage, and was enthusiastically received. Appropriate music was furnished by the choir of ...

GAY, the poet laureate, who has for some months past flaunted his laurels in the Royal City of Guelph, continues to produce those masterpieces which astonish the world of letters and make the spirits of all previously departed rhymsters green with envy. That he kindly remembers his appreciative critics of the INTELLIGENCER is shown by the receipt from him this morning of the latest effort of his muse, which is, as he styles it, "the greatest poem of the day," and is entitled "The Elephant and the Flay." As a sample of this brilliant production, we quote the first verse:

Between the elephant and the flay there is a great contrast—
The elephant is slow, the flay is very fast;
You can make friends with the elephant and gain his good will,
But if you have a flay in bed you cannot keep still.

THE FEAST OF EPIPHANY.—To-day is the feast of the Epiphany. Epiphany (appearance), denoted, among the heathen Greeks, a festival held in commemoration of the appearance of a God in any particular place. The word subsequently passed into the usuage of the Christian Church, and was used to designate the manifestation or appearance of Christ upon the earth to the Gentiles, with especial reference to the day on which He was seen and worshipped by the wise men who came from the east. The occasion is commemorated in the church on the 6th of January, the 12th day after Christmas, hence it is also called the Twelfth Day. The Epiphany, which is said not to have been observed as a separate festival, but to have been included in the feast of the Nativity till 813, is observed as a "Scarlet Day" at Oxford and Cambridge. The testival is observed both in the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches. Services were held to-day in St. Michael's and St. Thomas' Churches.

Police Court.

FRIDAY, Jan. 6, 1882.

DOGS AND PUPS.

Thirty-two cases of neglect to register dogs were brought before the Police Magistrate this morning. Nineteen of these parties either acknowledged the offence or were convicted, and were fined each $1.00 and $2,00 costs or 10 days in gaol. Thos. Cheevers and Mark Mundy owned up and were fined. Thos. Wheeler and Dr. Allen declared they never owned a dog, and were dismissed. B. M. Wolever declared that he did not own a dog, but there was one he used to own, (which he had given away some months ago) which hung about the house. The Magistrate imposed the fine on the ground that the dog had been harbored. Wm. Harding had "a little wee pup" that had been given to the baby as a present; but both law and precedent recognize that a pup is a dog, and the fine was levied. M. Cody and P. Feary paid up like men, but Geo. Clapper demurred on the ground that his dog was only two months old. The protest was of no avail. J. B. Patterson cheerfully acknowledged the offence and paid in the necessary funds. Daniel Chrysler stated that he did not feel able to pay for the registration fee, but was informed that if he could not pay for legistration the fine should not trouble him, and it was imposed without any unnecessary delay. George Maxon, Alexander Reed, William Crossley, and Jas. Carling were each fined one after the other. Mr. Reed was represented by his wife, who declared that she had been informed by the assessors that it would not be necessary to register the dog until this year. Thos. Watkins and John Durand both asserted that they did not own, feed or harbor a dog of any kind, and were dismissed. Mr. Lynch readily admitted the offence and was fined. Jos. Benson was dismissed, and J. C. Overell fined. Geo. Boulter asserted repeatedly that his dog was a little beauty—an English terrier; but the Magistrate declared that English terriers should be registered as well as Scotch terriers (he did not believe in Scotch ascendancy), and the fine was imposed. Robt. Weese owned no dog and was discharged. John Bowen had his dog registered yesterday, but this did not save him from being fined. John Butler was fined, and Hugh Handyside, Sylvester Sidley, John Martin and David Knox were all dismissed in succession, each one declaring that he neither owned nor harbored a dog. Ralph Gibson was fined, and Fred Archer (who was most energetic and indignant in his denials) and S. S. Wallbridge were dismissed.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT DESERONTO.

Conductor Killed on the Bay of Quinte Railway.

Whilst Thomas McConnell, Conductor and Brakesman on the Bay of Quinte Railway, was coupling cars at Deseronto this morning, he was caught between two cars and crushed so severely that death resulted in a few minutes after the injuries were received. Deceased was a man of excellent character and had been in Messrs. Rathbun's employment for fifteen years. During the past season he commanded the steamer Pilgrim, plying between Napanee and Deseronto, and on the opening of the railway from the latter place to the Grand Trunk, he was appointed Conductor and Brakesman. He was 32 years of age, and leaves a widow and two children, and his mother and several brothers live in Thurlow, near this city. Deceased was a member of the Deseronto Lodge of Oddfellows.

MORNING DESPATCHES AMERICAN.

FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION.

THREE BOYS KILLED.

MANY HOUSES WRECKED.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., Jan. 5.—This afternoon John Phillips, the mayor's son, Gerald Joyce, and John Stedman were practising shooting with breech-loading rifles. They used a wooden building, in which was stored five hundred kegs of powder, as a target. The whole magazine exploded with a terrific shock, and all the boys were instantly killed. They were carried from fifty to two hundred yards, and mutilated and burned almost beyond recognition. The explosion caused great damage to windows, nearly all the plate glass fronts in the business quarters of the city being wrecked, while many houses in the south part of the city suffered severely, the damage aggregating twenty thousand dollars. Many persons were injured by falling glass and debris. The shock was felt at a distance of three miles.

OSKALOOSA, Iowa, Jan. 6.—The boys killed at the powder explosion yesterday were all of prominent families. They were seen to shoot at the building from a short distance and then go up to see the result. Afterwards they fired another shot. Then came the explosion. The body of Phillips was found fifty yards down the hill, his clothing nearly all gone, the back portion of the head carried away, and the body otherwise horribly mangled. Stedman was blown through a wire fence a hundred yards away and fearfully torn. Joyce was found in a creek 150 yards away, with his head almost completely gone. The boys had been warned to quit.

The damage to the city was very great. Most of the houses of the north half of Oskaloosa were badly wrecked. Doors, windows and woodwork were broken, stables were completely wrecked, chimneys toppled and flues cracked from top to bottom. The wreck of plate glass on the principal streets was nearly complete and cannot be covered by $30,000.

NEW YORK MISCELLANY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The steamers arriving some weeks past from Germany and Denmark have been bringing cabbages; one vessel carried 40,000 heads. It is said that another vessel will shortly bring a still larger supply.

Arrived, City of London from London, Lake Huron from Liverpool, Cornwall from Bristol.

Belden's furniture store, Williamsburg, was burned last night. Loss $45,000.

Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, in a lecture here yesterday, expressed the opinion that while Guiteau was a lunatic, he knew fully the nature of his act and its consequence, and this knowledge was sufficient to make him practically responsible before the law.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The Herald says that Scoville and his client received five thousand letters since last July, and the daily mail is not decreasing. Scoville congratulates himself upon having almost ended his severe labors and says that he maintains strong hope in the prisoner being adjudged insane.

Delegate Maginnes, of Montana, proposes that Congress divide Utah, incorporating the western part with Nevada, and the southeastern part with Colorado, and the small northern part with Idaho and Wyoming. Congress has abundant power to do this, and the main portion of the Mormon population would thus become citizens of States which have already established constitutions and laws, to which Mormons would be amenable. Maginnes remarks that in such a division of Utah the new boundaries would be of a natural instead of an artificial nature. It is probable that before another Congress is elected the movement to make the House committees elective, as in the Senate, will make headway.

THE CANAL QUESTION.

The Herald's Albany special says that Jacobs believes that the free canal resolution will pass both Houses this session and thus go to the people next year. It seems evident that the former opposition to the measure has been in a large degree modified during the past 8 months.

The Times Albany special says that according to the opinion of Senators from the country districts the free canal amendment will be rejected by a large majority.

DAKOTA AS A STATE.

FARGO, Dakota, Dec. 6.—The Convention here yesterday, representing every county but two, in Northern Dakota, adopted resolutions in favor of the division and admission of Dakota as a State. Delegates were chosen to go to Washington to further the object.

EARTHQUAKE IN IOWA.

KNOXVILLE, Iowa, Jan. 6.—Yesterday a violent shock of earthquake took place here, The people ran out of the houses wild with excitement. The shook was felt in many of the adjacent towns.

MET THEIR FATE.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 6.—It is thought that the City Island convict found dead off Branford, in a sloop stolen from the former place, had three companions, who also met their death.

ANOTHER BANK DEFICIT.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Another deficit of $250,000 has been discovered in the Pacific Bank, which increases the liabilities of Weeks, stock broker, to $1,500,000.

MURDERED IN A DRUNKEN AFFRAY.

WESTPORT LA., Jan. 6.—In a drunken affray at a store here on Christmas Eve, Robert Perkins, James Dykes, and Simon Mericle, shot Hiram Mericle, probably fatally. Two others were slightly wounded.

ESCAPE OF PRISONERS.

HILLSBORO, N. C., Jan. 6.—Ten prisoners in the jail here desperately assaulted the jailor, and eight escaped, including some notorious criminals.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

DISCUSSING BLAINE'S CIRCULAR.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The Daily News, discussing Blaine's circular to the Republics of South and Central America proposing a conference at Washington, says:—"The meaning of the project is the establishment of an American protectorate over both Central and South America, Blaine's pretensions are novel and extravagant. They were never contemplated by the originator of the Monroe doctrine, under which an attempt will probably be made to shelter them. Now that Frelinghuysen has succeed Blaine there is at least hope that some rational basis of negotiation can be arrived at. That the American interest on the Pacific seaboard has greatly increased since the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was signed admits of no doubt, but it is quite open to question whether England is not interested in the Panama Canal yet more deeply. That England, with her vast American possessions and carrying trade, should become a party to any agreement yielding the Canal into American hands and acknowledging suzerainty to the United States of the entire western hemisphere, is a dream beyond the domain of practical politics.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Arrived, the Victoria from London.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 6.—Arrived, Bothnia.

FIRE AND EXPLOSION.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6.—A fire occurred in the lard-rendering department of F. W. Whittaker & Sons pork packing establishment this morning. Five large tanks exploded, shattering the building, loss $40,000.

MURDERER HANGED.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 6.—Martin Kankawki was executed at 10 o'clock this morning for the murder of Mira Muller, near Guttenburg in May last.

MARRIED.

On the 4th inst., at the parsonage of the Rev. Dr. Jeffers, JOHN J. POST, of Wellington, to HATTY SPROULE, youngest daughter of William Sproule of Belleville. No cards.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

A Mile a Minute.

COASTING WITH DOUBLE RIPPERS IN NEW ENGLAND.

Norwich, says a correspondent, is the coasting paradise of New England. It has more hills than old Rome, and most of them as twice as steep. It is impossible to go twenty rods in almost any direction in the old town without climbing. Since the snowfall of Christmas week the city has been surrendered on every evening soon after nightfall to the coasters. After dark it has been perilous to walk the streets, and there have been accidents to men, women, boys, and horses without number. On the various hills around Norwich a spectator counted one evening last week nearly one thousand sleds of every description, from the long pickerel double ripper to the small boy's tip-up and the homemade miniature ripper. At the foot of Broadway hill is a large square, flanked by public buildings. Six streets open upon this square, and three of the streets are precipitous hills. Down these descents dashed for hours from one to two hundred sleds. All passed across the square at lightning speed, and few pedestrians were bold enough to face them, taking roundabout avenues to reach their homes. On Boswell avenue, a famous hill on the east of the town, the double rippers covered a mile before coming to a halt. In these sliding matches, young and old, male and female, participated. Aged men and grey-haired matrons were often seen careering at railroad speed on the oak plank of the ripper, or the resplendent upholstered cushion of the expensive double sled.

The double-ripper is a late invention of Young America, but is familiar to country people. Its relation to the ordinary sled is that of the ice boat to the skate in point of speed. It is formed by yoking up two large sleds tandem, and joining them with a narrow oaken plank. The pilot sits on the prow of the plank, and steers the front sled with a foot tiller. The ripper is made large or small to suit the plan of its proprietor. Norwich and New London have long vied in the development of double-ripper architecture, and they look upon the coasting men of the west of New England as simply amateurs. In the course of the past five winters they have developed coasting into a sport as distinctive as yachting or horse racing. They have their peculiar modes for building and their peculiar terms to describe features of the sport. They have undoubtedly attained rates of speed unequalled anywhere else, and fearlessly take risks that would appal tyros.

Each winter New London sends her liveliest double ripper and her favorite riders to Norwich on a January evening to compete for the championship of the season. The sleds that are used in these matches are great structures, that will seat eighteen to thirty men. The place chosen for the contest is Fox's Hill, in Preston, a populous suburban village just across the Shetucket river. It is the highest point of land, with the exception of Taunton Hill, along the Connecticut seaboard. It is a Titan among the other eminences around Norwich. It is called Fox's Hill because the old tavern of Mrs. Fox, who, fifty years ago, entertained charcoal burners from Voluntown, still stands on its brow. From the summit the valley of Preston is seen far below, and in the distance the eye looks down on the housetops and steeples of Norwich. The summit is in the country. The tavern is the only structure near. A gnarled oak, that throws its branches half across the road, is the starting point for the contestants. The slide is three-quarters of a mile long, and when the icy track is unusually smooth and solid the best double rippers have gone across the bridge into the city. The usual stopping point is an old watering trough, a quarter of a mile from the bridge.

Fox's hill has been thronged with coasters all this season, and some fair time has been made. On last Wednesday evening Charles S. Fiske's double ripper, which for three years has been accounted the fastest sled in Connecticut, was timed by two timekeepers, one at the foot and the other at the top of the hill, with accurate chronometers. The track was by no means in first-class condition. The sled bore twelve men with Mr. Fiske, who is the most expert steerer in eastern Connecticut, at the front. The descent to the watering trough, three-quarters of a mile, was made in a fraction less than 45 seconds. On the double ripper no one is allowed to move his feet from the foot supports along the plank; he is enjoined to keep perfectly still, as the slightest movement of a passenger when a sled is making such fearful speed is likely to result in disaster. Disaster means mutilation, and perhaps death. So perfect is Mr. Fiske in the art of steering that he can run his sled within a hair's breadth of a line, and he avows that with a single movement he can upset the sled in an instant if it is necessary to avoid collision. As every passanger is in danger of being killed in case Mr. Fiske upsets his sled when going at breakneck speed, he has not been able to carry his theory into practice. One of the passengers on the trial trip, on Wednesday evening, said to the writer that it was his first experience, and it would be his last. "It was a perfectly still night," said he. "The hill descends steep, you know, at first for about fifteen rods. As we began to descend that pitch we seemed to be floating in the air. There was no sound we moved so softly. I didn't think that we were going fast. But in an instant a perfect gale was blowing; the road was a white mist; there was a constant buzz in my ears. I couldn't breathe; I knew when we reached the Preston village, which begins at the foot of the first descent, by the wall that was on one side of the road. That was all I could see; the rest was all a blank, a white mist. I never expected to reach the foot of the hill alive. In a second, almost, we began to slow up, and in another I got off the sled for the last time."

Mr. Fiske is about 25 years of age, slight and athletic, and is the son of a well-known physician here. His sled was made in Providence, and he brought it with him when he moved here three or four years ago. Its great speed was never developed until a few years ago. It is called the Queen of Norwich. The connecting plank is of three inch seasoned white oak. It is strong enough to support five tons. It is shod with fine half round silver steel. Its cost was about $50. It is the sled which was used in a disastrous contest with the double ripper of New London about this time of the month in 1877. Mr. Fiske steered his sled at that time and won the race without accident. The New London party, piloted by Mr. Fred. Allen, were unlucky. From the start nearly to the silk mill, which is about half way down the course, the Norwich sled, which had started behind, steadily gained. At the mill the sleds were neck-and-neck, and here Mr. Allen, confused by the terrific speed or on account of his unfamiliarity with the way, made a wrong movement with his foot, and the next instant the sled and its occupants were hurled against a lamp-post and over the ground. All were picked up unconscious. Some of them lay at the point of death for days. Some were crippled for life. One man was partially disemboweled and the leg of another was broken in two places.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

It is only since Souvielle's invention that lung diseases are no longer feared until their very last stage. Write for particulars to M. Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Post Mortem Examintions have, in some instances, led to the discovery of the scars of completely healed abscesses or sores upon the lung. This of itself shows that the lung tissue when diseased is susceptible of restoration to a sound and healthy condition. Persons afflicted with lung disease may reasonably hope to recover health by the use of well chosen remedies. Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of interna medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

POWER IN SILENCE.

In silence mighty things are wrought—
Silently builded, thought on thought,
Truth's temple greets the sky;
And like a citadel with towers,
The soul, with her subservient powers,
Is strengthening silently.

Soundless as chariots on the snow,
The saplings of the forest grow
To trees of mighty growth
Each nightly star in silence burns,
And every day in silence turns
The axle of the earth.

The silent frost, with mighty hand,
Fetters the rivers and the land
With universal chain;
And smitten by the silent sun,
The chain is loosened, the rivers run,
The lands are free again.

O source unseen of life and light,
Thy secrecy of silent might
If we in bondage know,
Our hearts like seeds beneath the ground,
By silent force of life unbound,
Move upward from below.

THE WALLS OF LONDONDERRY.

How softly smiles the moon to-night,
Along the walls of Londonderry!
Her silver lamp is weirdly bright,
And flings a flame of gold and white
All over the town of Londonderry.
A robe of gleam and shadow trails
Through all the city hills and vales;
From roof to roof and spire to spire,
It clambers, like the ghost of Fire
Outside a steel-hued river cleaves
The meadows, fresh of summer leaves;
And thrusts, with motion wide and free,
A flashing sabre at the sea
Above white-figured cloudlets play
The short-lived song of night away;
Oh, all as sweet and still has grown
As if red blood had never flown
Beneath the walls of Londonderry.

Ghosts walk in troops with me to night,
Upon the walls of Londonderry;
They mingle in the ghastly light,
And turn their proud but weary sight
Back to the siege of Londonderry.
Two thousand famished, whose heart-cries
Went unavailing to the skies;
Men, fed with courage day by day,
While still their bodies shrunk away;
Women, whose eyes grew sternly bright,
Though yet their sweet cheeks paled with fright;
Wan children—hunger choked their cry—
Who lived and died—they knew not why
These all, with sorrow laden breath,
Fasted to serve the feast of Death;
These all, whose bones are clasped by thee,
Look up with pain-ploughed face at me,
O blood-bought walls of Londonderry!

A column rises proud and high,
Above the walls of Londonderry;
It brings each day the past more nigh—
It speaks of men who ne'er shall die—
Because they died for Londonderry.
It tells the story Time has taught,
That future fame is dearly bought;
That he who after death would live,
His earth-life to the world must give;
That he whose memory from afar
Would pierce death's darkness like a star,
Must rear aloft, for human needs,
A telescope of glorious deeds!
It bids all nobleness rejoice
That bravery, dead, yet hath a voice;
It lights up many an honored name,
This exclamation-point of fame,—
This blood-built shaft of Londonderry!

But look! What feebles comes this way,
Along the walls of Londonderry?
It is no ghost that bids me stay—
It is a woman old and gray
From out the town of Londonderry!
Rags fringe that form—the feet are bare,
And snow-flakes drift across her hair;
The cheek is sewed with sorrow-seams—
The eye with Hunger's watchfire gleams.
She creeps to me, with halting tread,
And humbly begs a bit of bread!
She tells, with crushed and patient face,
The woe-tales of a conquered race,
Oh, not alone on bristling wall,
The shock and surge of sledges fall!
Here moans a starving wretch unfed,
As sure as did thy honored dead,
Grim, heartless walls of Londonderry!

How softly smiles the moon to-night
Along the walls of Londonderry!
War is not here in savage might,
But hunger casts his murder-bright
Within the walls of Londonderry!
Though tranquil floats the flag of peace,
War's silent work will never cease.
Where'er a bright hearthstone is lit,
With roofs of home to shelter it,
Wherever sweet domestic grace
Has found a fair abiding place,
That castle fierce destruction storms
In all his varied vengeful forms;
And he whose peaceful flight has made,
From those who lean on him for aid,
As bright as men more earth renowned,
In God's unerring eye is crowned;
Thou teachest this, O Londonderry!

TABERNACLE SERMONS.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

THE SKY CHORUS.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.—LUKE II. 14.

Bethlehem sits on a ridge of rocks six miles from Jerusalem. The region is famous in Bible story. Here were the waving harvests of Boaz, in which Ruth gleaned for herself and weeping Naomi. Here David the warrior was thirsty, and three men with unheard-of self-denial broke through the Philistine army to get him a drink. It was to this region that Joseph and Mary came to have their names enrolled in the census. That is what the Scripture means when it says they came "to be taxed," for people did not in those days rush after the assessors of tax any more than they now do.

The village inn was crowded with the strangers who had come up by the command of the government to have their names in the census; so that Joseph and Mary were obliged to lodge in the stables. These were large stone buildings, in the centre of which the camels were kept, while running out from this centre in all directions there were rooms, in one of which Jesus was born. Had his parents been more showily appareled I have no doubt they would have found more comfortable entertainment. That night, in the fields, the shepherds with crook and kindled fires were watching their flocks, when hark! to the sound of voices strangely sweet. Can it be that the maidens of Bethlehem have come out to serenade the weary shepherds? But now a light stoops upon them like the morning, so that the flocks arise, shaking their snowy fleece and bleating to their drowsy young. The heavens are filled with armies of light, and the earth quakes under the harmony as echoed back from cloud to cloud, it rings over the midnight hills,—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men!" It seems that the crown of royalty and dominion and power which Christ left behind him was hung on the sky in sight of Bethlehem. Who knows but that that crown may have been mistaken by the wise men for the star running and pointing downward?

I. My subject, in the first place, impresses me with the fact that indigence is not always significance of degradation. When princes are born heralds announce it, and cannon thunder it, and flags wave it, and illuminations set cities on fire with the tidings. The older people in the house can remember the time of rejoicing in England when the Prince of Wales was born. You can all remember the gladness throughout Christendom at the nativity in the palace at Madrid. But when our glorious Prince was born there was no rejoicing on earth. Poor and growing poorer, yet the heavenly recognition that Christmas night shows the truth of the proposition that indigence is not always significant of degradation.

In all ages there have been great hearts throbbing under rags, tender sympathies under rough exterior, gold in the quartz, Parian marble in the quarry, and in every stable or privation wonders of excellence that have been the joy of the heavenly host. All the great deliverers of literature and of nations were born in homes without affluence, and from their own privation learned to speak and fight for the oppressed. Many a man has held up his pine-knot light from the wilderness until all nations and generations have seen it, and off of his hard crust of penury has broken the bread of knowledge and religion for the starving millions of the race.

Poetry, and science, and literature, and commerce, and laws, and constitutions, and liberty, like Christ, were born in a manger. All the great thoughts which have decided the destiny of nations started in obscure corners, and had Herods who wanted to slay them, and Iscariots who betrayed them, and rabbies that crucified them, and sepulchres that confined them until they burst forth in glorious resurrection.

Strong character, like the rhododendron, is an Alpine plant that grows fastest in the storm. Men are like wheat, worth all the more for being flailed. Some of you would never have come to your positions of usefulness had you not been ground and pounded and hammered in the foundry of disaster. When I see Moses coming up from the ark of bulrushes to be the greatest lawgiver of the ages, and Amos from tending the herds to make Israel tremble with his prophecies, and David from the sheepcote to sway the poet's pen and the king's sceptre, and Peter from the fishing net to be the great preacher at the Pentecost, I find proof of the truth of my proposition that indigence is not always significant of degradation.

II. My subject also impresses me with the thought that it is while at our useful occupations that we have the divine manifestations. Had those shepherds gone that night into Bethlehem, and risked their flocks among the wolves, they would not have heard the songs of the angels. In other words, that man sees most of God and heaven who minds his own business. We all have our posts of duty, and, standing there, God appears to us. We are all shepherds or shepherdesses, and we have our flocks of cares and annoyances and anxieties, and we must tend them.

We sometimes hear very good people say, "If I had a month or a year or two to do nothing but attend to religious things, I would be a great deal better than I am now." You are mistaken. Generally the best people are the busy people. Elisha was ploughing in the field when the prophetic mantle fell on him. Matthew was attending to his custom-house duties when Christ commanded him to follow. James and John were mending their nets when Christ called them to be fishers of men. Had they been snoring in the sun, Christ would not have called their indolence into the apostleship. Gideon was at work with the flail on the threshing floor when he saw the angel. Saul was with great fatigue hunting up the lost asses when he found the crown of Israel. The prodigal son would never have reformed and wanted to return to his father's house if he had not first gone into business, though it was swine feeding.

Not once out of a hundred times will a lazy man become a Christian. Those who have nothing to do are in very unfavorable circumstances for the receiving of divine manifestations. It is not when you are in idleness, but when you are, like the Bethlehem shepherds, watching your flocks, that the glory descends and there is joy among the angels of God over your soul penitent and forgiven.

III. My subject also strikes at the delusion that the religion of Christ is dolorous and grief-infusing. The music that broke through the midnight heavens was not a dirge, but an anthem. It shook joy over the hills. It not only dropped upon the sheperds, but it sprang upward among the thrones. The robe of a Saviour's righteousness is not black. The Christian life is not made up of weeping and cross-bearing and war-waging. Through the revelations of that Christmas night I find that religion is not a groan, but a song.

In a world of sin and sick beds and sepulchres, we must have trouble; but in the darkest night the heavens part with angelic song. You may, like Paul, be shipwrecked, but I exhort you to be of good cheer, for you shall all escape safe to land. Religion does not show itself in the elongation of the face and the cut of the garb. The Pharisee who puts his religion into his phylactery has none left for his heart.

Fretfulness and complaining do not belong to the family of Christian graces, which move into the heart when the devil moves out. Christianity does not frown upon amusements and recreations. It is not a cynic, it is not a shrew, it chokes no laughter, it quenches no light, it defaces no art. Among the happy, it is the happiest It is just as much at home on the playground as it is in the church. It is just as graceful in the charade as it is in the psalm-book. It sings just as well in Surrey gardens as it prays in St. Paul's. Christ died that we might live. Christ walked that we might ride. Christ wept that we might laugh.

IV. Again, my subject impresses me with the fact that glorious endings sometimes have very humble beginnings. A straw pallet was the starting point, but the shout in the midnight sky revealed what would be the glorious consummation. Christ on Mary's lap—Christ on the throne of universal dominion—what an humble starting! What a glorious ending!

Grace begins on a small scale in the heart. You see only men as trees walking. The grace of God in the heart is a feeble spark, and Christ has to keep both hands over it lest it be blown out. What an humble beginning! But look at the same man when he has entered heaven. No crown able to express his royalty. No place able to express his wealth. No sceptre able to express his power and his dominion. Drinking from the fountain that drips from the everlasting rock. Among the harpers harping with their harps. On a sea of glass mingled with fire. Before the throne of God to go no more out forever. The spark of grace, that Christ had to keep both hands over lest it come to extinction, having flamed up into honor and glory and immortality. What humble starting! What glorious consummation!

The New Testament church was on a small scale. Fishermen watched it. Against the uprising walls crashed infernal enginery. The world said anathema. Ten thousand people rejoiced at every seeming defeat, and said: "Aha! aha! so would we have it." Martyrs on fire cried, "How long, O Lord, how long!" Very humble starting, but see the difference at the consummation when Christ with His almighty arm has struck off the last chain of human bondage, and Himalaya shall be Mount Zion, and Pyrenees Moriah, and oceans the walking place of Him who trod the wave cliffs of stormed Tiberius, and island shall call to island, sea to sea, continent to continent, and the song of the world's redemption rising, the heavens like a great sounding-board shall strike back the shout of salvation to the earth until it rebounds again to the throne of God, and all heaven, rising on their thrones, beat time with their sceptres. Oh, what an humble beginning! what a glorious ending! Throne linked to a manger—heavenly mansions to a stable!

V. My subject also impresses me with the effect of Christ's mission upward and downward.

Glory to God, peace to man. When God sent His Son into the world, angels discovered something new in God, something they had never seen before. Not power, not wisdom, not love, They knew all that before. But when God sent His Son into this world, then the angels saw the spirit of self-denial in God, the spirit of self-sacrifice in God.

It is easier to worship an angel on his throne than a thief on the cross, a seraph in his worship than an adulteress in her crime. When the angels saw God, the God who would not allow the most insignificant angel in heaven to be hurt, give up His Son, His Son. His only, only Son, they saw something they never thought of before, and I do not wonder that when Christ started out on that pilgrimage, the angels in heaven clapped their wings in triumph and called on all the hosts of heaven to help them celebrate it, and sang so long that the Bethlehem shepherds heard it: "Glory to God in the highest."

But it was also to be a mission of peace to man. Infinite holiness—accumulated depravity. How could they ever come together? The Gospel bridges over the distance. It brings God to us. It takes us to God. God in us and we in God. Atonement! Atonement! Justice satisfied, sins forgiven, eternal life secured, heaven built on a manger.

But it was also to be the pacification of all individual and international animosities. What a sound this word of peace, in that Roman empire that boasted of the number of people it had massacred, that prided itself on the number of the slain, that rejoiced at the trembling provinces—Sicily, and Corsica, and Sardinia, and Macedonia, and Egypt—had bowed to her sword, and crouched at the cry of her war eagles. She gave her chief honor to Scipio and Fabius and Cæsar—all men of blood. What contempt they must have had there for the penniless, unarmed Christ, in the garb of a Nazarene, starting out to conquer all nations!

There never was a place on earth where that word peace sounded so offensively to the ears of the multitude as in the Roman empire. They did not want peace. The greatest music they ever heard was the clanking chains of their captives. If all the blood that has been shed in battle could be gathered together it would upbear a navy. The club that struck Abel to the earth has its echo in the butcheries of all ages. Edmund Burke, who gave no wild statistics, said that there had been spent in slaughter thirty-five thousand millions of dollars, or what would be equal to that, but he had not seen into our times, when in our own day, in this country, we expended three thousand millions of dollars in civil war.

Oh! if we could this morning take our position on some high point and see the world's armies march past. What a spectacle it would be! There go the hosts of Israel through a score of Red Seas—one of water, the rest of blood. There goes Cyrus and his army, with infuriate yell rejoicing over the fall of the gates of Babylon. There goes Alexander, leading forth his hosts and conquering all the world but himself—the earth reeling with the battle-gash of Cheronia and Persepolis. There goes Ferdidand Cortez, leaving his butchered armies on the table-lands once fragrant with vanilla and covered over with groves of flowering cacoo. There goes the great Frenchman, leading his army down through Egypt like one of its plagues, and up through Russia like one of its own icy blasts. Yonder is the grave trench under the shadow of Sebastopol. There are the ruins of Delhi and Allahabad, and yonder are the inhuman Sepoys and the brave regiments under Havelock avenging the insulted flag of Britain; while cut right through the heart of this continent is a trench in which there lay one million Northern and Southern dead.

Oh, the tears! Oh, the blood! Oh, the long marches! Oh, the hosptial wounds! Oh, the martyrdom! Oh, the death! But brighter than the light which flashed on all these swords and shields and musketry is the light that fell on Bethlehem, and louder than the bray of the trumpets, and the neighing of the chargers, and the crash of the walls, and the groaning of the dying armies is the song that unrolls this morning from the sky, sweet as though all the bells of heaven rung a jubilee, "Peace on earth, good will to men." Oh, when will the day come—God hasten it!—when the swords shall be turned into ploughshares, and the fortresses shall be remodelled into churches, and the men of blood battling for renown shall become good soldiers of Jesus Christ, and the cannon striking down whole columns of death shall thunder the victories of truth.

When we think of the whole world saved, we are apt to think of the few people that now inhabit it. Only a very few compared with the populations to come. And what a small part cultivated. Do you know it has been authentically estimated that three-fourths of Europe is yet all barrenness, and that nine hundred and ninety-nine one-thousandths of the entire globe is uncultivated. This is all to be cultivated, all inhabited, and all Gospelized. Oh, what tears of repentance when nations begin to weep! Oh, what supplications when continents begin to pray! Oh, what rejoicing when hemispheres begin to sing! Churches will worship on the places where this very morning smokes the blood of human sacrifice, and wandering through the snake-infested jungles of Africa, Christ's heel will bruise the serpent's head. Oh, when the trumpet of salvation shall be sounded everywhere and the nations are redeemed, a light will fall upon every town brighter than that which fell upon Bethlehem, and more overwhelming than the song that fell on the pasture fields where the flocks fed, there will be a song louder than the voice of the storm-lifted oceans, "Glory to God in the highest," and from all nations and kindred and people and tongues will come the response, "Peace, good will to men!"

I bring you "glad tidings of great joy." Pardon for all sin, comfort for all trouble, and life for the dead. Shall we this morning have Christ in our soul? Our time is going by rapidly. We are near the close of the year. How swiftly the days speed by! Put your hand on your heart—one, two, three. Three times less it will beat. Life is passing like gazelles over the plain. Sorrows hover like petrels over the sea. Death swoops like a vulture from the mountains. Misery rolls up to our ears like waves. Heavenly songs fall to us like stars.

I wish you all a merry Christmas, not with worldly dissipations, but merry with Gospel gladness, merry with pardoned sin, merry with hope of reunion in the skies with all your loved ones who have preceded you. In that grandest and best sense, a merry Christmas. I may not take you all by the hand this morning, but my heart speaks to your heart in this devout wish to heaven that you may all be blessed, comforted, sustained, cheered, helped all the way through.

And God grant that in our final moment we may have as bright a vision as did the dying girl when she said, "Mother,"—pointing with her thin white hand through the window—"Mother, what is that beautiful land out yonder beyond the mountains, the high mountains?" "Oh," saidthe mother, "my darling, there are no mountains within sight of our home." "Oh, yes," she said, "don't you see them—that beatiful land beyond the mountains out there, just beyond the high mountains?"

The mother looked down into the face of her dying child and said, "My dear, I think that must be heaven that you see." "Well, then," she said, "father, you come, and with your strong arms carrry me over those mountains, into that beautiful land beyond the high mountains." "No" said the weeping father, "my darling, I can't go with you." "Well, she said, clapping her hands, "never mind, never mind; I see yonder a shining One coming; He is coming now in His strong arms to carry me over the mountains to the beautiful land—over the mountains, over the high mountains!"

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland, July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Brotherly Love.

Those dear brethren and co-laborers in the cause of Gritism, the Montreal Herald and Witness—morning and evening organs respectively of the moribund "Liberal" party of the Province of Quebec—do not, like many of their confreres in Ontario, live together in that harmony in which it is so sweet for brethren to dwell. The evening organ lately expressed a sort of mournful satisfaction at the defeat of its party in the Provincial elections, to which the Herald replies with that acrimony which is peculiar to family quarrels :

We have lost no jot of heart nor hope and are ready and willing to fight the good fight over again, assured of success in the end. When that time arrives, we expect that the Witness will once more encumber the Liberals with its help. In the meantime the advice given by the Toronto Globe to certain professing Liberals throughout Ontario is not inapplicable to our respectable contemporary. Let him join the Conservatives and do his worst ; we wish them joy of their bargain. Indeed, the Witness has never been more than a bogus Liberal. Among its many other cants, it took up the cant of Liberalism, but never its true principles. It was a sort of Liberal Pecksniff, always on the fence and ready to alight on either side, as the interests of inclinations of its conductors for the time being might dictate. Within the Liberal camp, it was often an independent and a nuisance.

To which the Witness replies in an equally acrimonious manner :

"Our neighbor the Herald, after three weeks of incubation, has worked off its feelings with regard to an article in the Witness on the hopes of the Liberal party. We congratulated the Liberal party on its total defeat at the polls on the ground that so long as it was encumbered with a host of trucklers for place it would be unable to call its soul its own, and would be found bowing to the most reactionary tendencies of the day. This suppleness of the back has, however become an unconquerable habit with many members of the Liberal party who are no more Liberals than Judge Routhier. The Herald in this article shows its painful clinging to the moribund section of the party whose passing bell we have been not mournfully tolling. It says Mr. Joly failed at some at some elections to carry the country because he was everywhere spoken of as the Witness premier, or in other words, because he was associated with the idea of emancipation from ecclesiastical domination. The Liberal party which does not carry this standard had better be defeated till it is ready to take up its cross. Trimmers and worshippers of expediency are just the men to carry on a successful party of place, but a party of principle must not be afraid to utter its sentiments. There will be small praise to the Liberals of Quebec if at the end of the nineteenth century they are still afraid to commit themselves to the principle of religious liberty, and they can look for little help from us till they do."

From which candid statements of those who ought to know themselves and their party best the reader can form his own conclusions. For the Witness, however, it can be said that it does not, as a Grit propogandist, deserve the Herald's abuse, for it has done far better and more efficient party service than has the Herald. Professing political independence, the evening organ acquired a large circulation throughout the country, and its teachings, until the true character of the paper as an unswerving partizan of the Grit party became known, in this vicinity at least, made many converts to its party amongst those who believed in its professions of independence. The Herald may have pursued a more straightforward course, but certainly its influence has not been so great. The dispute between these papers as to their party service reminds us of that between the border rivers Tweed and Till, which is thus commemorated in rude verse by a bard of that country :

Tweed says to Till :
" What gars ye rin sae still While I rin wi' speed ?"
Till says to Tweed :
" While ye rin wi speed
And I rin sae slaw
Where ye droon ae man
I droon twa."

Take the Tweed—shallow and brawling—as the Herald, and the Till—slow, deep and abounding in treacherous holes—as the Witness, and the analogy is complete—where the former made one pervert the latter made two. We have to thank the Witness, however, for the statement evoked by its dear brother's sharp words, that the Grit party of Quebec is to a considerable extent composed of "trucklers for place," and of men afraid to commit themselves to the principle of religious liberty. And yet these are the men who accuse the Conservatives of being precisely what one of their organs say they themselves are in reality. If only some of the Ontario organs would follow so good an example and speak with equal candor of their party in this Province, the country would be the gainer thereby. May their brotherly love continue until they are led to speak out as the organs in Quebec are doing !

Iron Making in Canada.

Under this heading the Monetary Times published in its last issue an encouraging article, from which we quote the following paragraphs :

"The activity in the building trade and in every department of the hardware and metals trade has been very marked in Canada during the past two years. Imports of pig iron, bar iron and steel have increased largely over those of previous years, and values have been steadily rising for months. It has been found impossible, so great has been the demand for steam engines, boilers, shafting, car wheels, and various kinds of machinery, for the foundries and machine shops to fill all orders, even by working overtime. The additional demand for pigs may well impel Canadians to look about them and see what further can be done towards developing our own iron deposits and adding to the production of pig iron in Canada.

We have an important industry in the Londonderry Iron & Steel works in Nova Scotia, which give employment to some two thousand pairs of hands. And the Shawenegan or other forges in the Province of Quebec, long in a die-away condition, are now producing more largely than before. The manufacture of pig iron from the valuable deposits in the Marmora district, of which so many thousand tons of ore are annually shipped to the States, has been long upon the tapis, but we are not aware that definite steps have yet been taken for the erection of the projected works at Belleville or elsewhere. The real difficulty there probably is, the distance from whence we should have to bring Canadian coal, the duty on British or American coal operating as a decided discouragement to such an industry. It is contended that pig and bar iron standing in the place of the raw material of iron manufactures, the latter must suffer if the price of the raw material be raised by protective duties. But it is said in reply that without protective duties the production of pig iron and the making of bars would never have begun."

There is no doubt that the duty on foreign coal, which can be procured much nearer the mines than can the Canadian article, might under certain circumstances prove disadvantageous, if, for instance, anthracite coal—which is not produced in Canada—were used in smelting ; but if bituminous or soft coal were used, the duty would be felt but slightly, as Nova Scotia coal can during the summer months be laid down here at least as cheaply as can the American article, provided there were no duty. But assuming that the fuel were anthracite coal and that the consumer paid the full amount of the duty—which, however, it has been proved is not the case—there would still remain a protection of about $1.25 on every ton of pig iron, as against free coal and free iron, or, in other words, no protection at all, under the late Government. We are thoroughly convinced that, if the Government are properly approached and shown beyond dispute that the manufacture of pig iron will be inaugurated, provided they grant a further reasonable degree of protection, they will grant the request, either by increasing the rate of duty on the foreign article, by granting remission of the duty on the coal, or otherwise. Doubtless the subject will be agitated at an early day by those interested in the iron trade and a request made to the Government to take action in the premises.

The Muskoka Sufferers.

Some months since, whilst contributions for the relief of the sufferers by the terrible bush fires were being solicited in Canada, we urged that the Ontario Government should take measures to relieve those in this Province whose property had been destroyed by the forest fires. This appeal was joined in by several of our contemporaries, but without any result further than that the Government despatched one of their officials to examine the burnt-over districts. That officer reported that there was no necessity for aiding the settlers, but it turns out that in Muskoka there is urgent need of assistance, some of the people having lost their crops and being in a state of starvation. The Provincial Government have been asked to make an appropriation to aid these poor people, but Mr. Mowat replies that he has no funds for such a purpose. The London Free Press takes up the subject, and thus forcibly pleads the cause of the suffering people in Muskoka :

"The Local Government derives a large revenue from the District of Muskoka, where there is now so much suffering from starvation, but, as yet, has done nothing to relieve the distress. The Little Premier contends that he has no means for such a purpose, but where is the Fund for Contingencies, which may amount all the way up from $50,000 to $100,000 ? Can he not spare a dole from that, or is it to be kept for such objects as will prove useful in 1883 ? Mr. Mowat boasted three years ago that there were $5,000,000 in the Treasury, and yet when asked to send a few loaves of bread to the starving settlers of the timber regions from which so large a revenue is derived, he whines that there is "no appropriation.' But that won't do. He has always at hand a legitimate appropriation from which to make special calls of this nature, namely "Unforeseen Expenses." Is the Little Premier to stand by and see people perishing, and show no more will or capacity in the premises than a "fly on the wheel ?" If so, it is high time he gave place to a man with warm blood in his veins, with some kind of a soul to inspire him, and some idea of what is due to humanity. The Premier has been called "a Christian Politician ;" but what sort of Christian can he be who shuts up his bowels of compassion within hearing of the cry of misery ?"

Without wishing to be uncharitable towards Mr. Mowat, whose stolid inaction in so grave a crisis is deserving of the strongest censure, we would remind him that, when it was desired to get rid of an official who threatened troublesome revelations, there was no difficulty in procuring funds to furnish a gratuity in order to keep the gentleman's mouth closed. "Nice customs must curtsey to great kings." Red tape must be broken when crisis requires it. Now is the hour of dire necessity. Let Mr. Mowat and his colleagues in this crisis act as decisively as in that other matter to which reference is above made, and we venture to say that, in the session of the Legislature which is soon to be convened, the Opposition will unanimously approve of the expenditure necessary to put an end to the sufferings of the destitute ones in Muskoka.

Editorial Brevities.

An exchange broaches another matter of municipal reform, namely that the Councils of Cities, Towns and Villages should hold their meetings in the afternoon, instead of at night, as is the present custom. In support of this proposition it is urged that the personnel of the municipal bodies would be improved, as many of the best citizens who probably have objections to midnight sessions would be willing to attend meetings held during the day. In some of the English municipalities day sessions are held and the result is that business is just as well conducted as where night sessions are in vogue.

From the annual circular issued by Messrs. Dun, Wiman & Co.'s mercantile agency the following figures, showing the business transactions in Canada during the past year, are gathered :—Out of 59,116 persons engaged in business in the Dominion 637 failed. The total amount of liabilities was $5,770,717. The average of failures was one in ninety-three, and the average liabilities $9,059. Judging from this statement, the commercial condition of the country can only be styled as prosperous. The losses by bad debts were comparatively meagre in proportion to the legitimate profits. The prospects for a continuation of this commercial prosperity during the year just commenced are in the main highly reassuring. The following table will show the comparison with the figures given in former years, and will prove interesting :—

Year.	Failures.	Amount.
1876	1,728	$25,517,991
1877	1,892	25,523,903
1878	1,697	23,908,677
1879	1,903	29,347,937
1880	902	7,988,077
1881	637	5,770,717

It is claimed by the advocates of the Bushy Island route for the ferry that the cost of the piers, roadway, &c., would not be more than $5,000. If that estimate be reliable, the objection on the ground of expense would be removed, but there still remains the very great distance from the market, which objection cannot be overcome. As a set-off to this, however, it is urged that the route being much shorter than any other, will enable the lessee to lower the rate for ferriage as well as to double the number of trips, and that the boat could be run later in the early winter and sooner in spring because of the straightness of the course and the smaller quantity of ice to break. It is to be hoped that, in view of the matter being brought before the City Council at an early day, Councillors will inform themselves on the subject and be prepared to come to an intelligent and unbiassed decision in the premises.

Hamilton, like Belleville, has a Mechanics' Institute which is in difficulties. Recently a By-law proposing to purchase the library, &c., for $5,000, was submitted to the people, but was defeated by a considerable majority.

At the recent municipal election the people of St. Thomas cast 547 ballots in favor of the frontage tax to 138 against it. The subject had been thoroughly discussed during several weeks preceding the election.

Within the fiscal year ended 30th June last, the Globe's Ottawa correspondent states, the balance at credit of depositors in the Government Savings Banks had increased from $7,107,287 to $9,620,229, an increase of $2,512,942 Sir Leonard Tilley claimed the increase of deposits in the banks as an indication of prosperity, but Sir Richard Cartwright held that increased deposits indicated lack of sure and profitable investments. The fact that even the most doleful of the Grit pessimists admit that the country is highly prosperous tells heavily against the argument of Mr. Mackenzie's blundering Finance Minister.

DAIRYMEN IN COUNCIL.

Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario.

The Board of Directors of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association met on the 6th inst., at the Dafoe House, at 2:30 p. m.—the President, Mr. K. Graham, in the chair. The other members present were—D. Derbyshire, 1st Vice President ; D. Vandewaters, 2nd Vice-President ; H. Ashley, Secretary ; D. M McPherson, Jas. Bissell, W. S. Yates, Platt Hinman.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A communication was read from Mr. U. E. Thompson, with reference to freight-rates on cheese.—Referred to the Finance Committe.

The Chairman announced that the main object of the meeting was to select a place for the holding of the next annual Convention, and select speakers for the occasion.

Mr. Derbyshire moved that the next annual Convention be held in Brockville.

Mr. Hinman moved in amendment that it be held at Cobourg.

Mr. Vandewaters moved in amendment to the amendment that the next convention be held in Belleville some time in the month of February.

Mr. McPherson said that the last convention, which was held in Brockville, was a great success in every way, and he was certain that such was the enthusiasm occasioned by the Convention in Brockville, that if it were held there again it would be even more successful than it was last year. Brockville was surrounded by large tracts of dairying land, and the farmers in the vicinity would be greatly benefitted by the Convention.

Mr. Derbyshire said there was no doubt that were the Convention to be held in Brockville this year it would be a greater success even than that of last year—he would guarantee that.

Mr. Vandewaters thought that, since the Convention had not been held in Belleville for three years, it was nothing more than justice to bring it back here.

The President said that the Convention should be held in the place where it would do the most good. Belleville was accessible from the north now, as well as from the east and west, and the advantages which were afforded in the city now were better than they were when the Convention was last held here. Whether the Convention was held in Belleville or Brockville, however, the Committee in that place would have to put their shoulders to the wheel in order to make the Convention a success.

Mr. McPherson wished the matter laid over until the evening session.

Mr. Yates thought it should be settled now and spoke in favor of having the Convention held in Belleville this year. It should be held in the place that needed it most—and Belleville and the adjacent country were greatly in need of further instructions in dairying.

The question of location was then voted on. It resulted in a tie, and the President decided in favor of having the convention held in Belleville.

Mr. Derbyshire promised that the delegates from the east would do their utmost to make the convention here a success. He stated that last year's convention had been of great benefit to the counties of Leeds and Grenville, a benefit that could be reckoned by thousands of dollars.

Mr. McPherson spoke in a similar strain.

The President said that if he was on the Board next year he would favor having the convention held at some eastern point. He anticipated that the convention this year would be a great success. The chief object of the convention was to discover how to produce milk of as good a quality, and as cheaply, as possible. It was for the milk producers rather than for the manufacturers that these conventions were held.

A telegram was received from C. E. Chadwick, Secretary of the Western Dairymen's Association, announcing that the annual convention of that association would be held on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of February, at Woodstock.

The President thought that the Convention of the Eastern Association should be held on the next week.

Mr. Yates moved, seconded by Mr. Hinman, that the Annual Convention of the Eastern Dairymen's Association be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 7th, 8th and 9th of February.—Carried.

The President nominated Messrs. McPherson, Derbyshire, Yates and the Secretary as a Committee to prepare a programme for the Convention. The Committee was approved of by the Board.

Mr. Yates, Mr. Hinman, Mr. Bissell, Mr. Vandewaters and the Secretary were appointed a Committee to select a local management Committee.

Mr. Derbyshire brought to the notice of the Board the death of one of the officers of the Board—Mr. Jas. E. Bates, Auditor. He moved that Mr. F. H McRae be appointed Auditor in his place.—Carried.

The President thought that more attention should be devoted to the manufacture of butter than is done at present. While Canadian cheese held a good reputation in the English markets, Canadian butter had a poor reputation there.

On motion, the Board adjourned till 6:30 p. m.

EVENING SESSION.

The Board resumed at 8 o'clock p. m.

The committee appointed to draft a programme for the Convention submitted the following topics for discussion :—

1. President's Address.
2. Stock Raising for the Dairy.
3. Milk Production.
4. Handling of Milk and Delivery to Factory.
5. Management of Cheese Factories
6. Manufacture of Cheese.
7. Marketing Cheese.
8. Management of Butter Factories.
9. Marketing of Butter, &c.
10. Manufacture of Butter.

Interspersed with free discussion.
Questions asked and answered.

The Committee also desire to impress on the Board the importance of obtaining practical and scientific men to give addresses on the above topics, and would also advise the securing of practical Canadian dairymen to give papers and addresses to encourage home talent.

The Committee appointed to draft a local management committee submitted the following list of names of persons to constitute such a committee :—

Daniel Vandewaters, P. Hinman, Jas. Bissell, W. S. Yates, Ira Morgan, Jno. R. Craig, F. M. McRae, 1st Deputy Reeve Elizabethtown ; H. Bissell, Augusta Township ; Thos. J. Smith, Belleville ; John Drydeo, M. P., Brooklin ; Andrew Broder, M.P.P., West Winchester.

The Committee appointed to act at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition reported as follows :—

Your Exhibition Committee beg leave to report, that we went to Toronto, and acted with the Western and Industrial Committees in getting the butter and cheese into position for judging, and did all we could to promote and bring to a successful issue our late Exhibition. We feel some pride in the position that Eastern Ontario won by carrying off several prizes in both butter and cheese, especially the Sweepstakes prize in cheese. Pressure of business in every department prevented a Board meeting, as we had formerly intended. (Signed) D. Derbyshire (Chairman), D. Vanderwaters, Ira Morgan.

The reports of these committees were adopted without discussion.

Mr. Derbyshire moved that the President and Secretary be a committee to manage the printing which will be necessary in connection with the Convention.—Carried.

Mr. Derbyshire spoke in favor of advertising in local papers at different points throughout the sections specially interested in the Convention.

The President suggested the advisability of sending a delegate to the New York State Convention to be held at Syracuse, and also one to the Convention of the Western Association to be held at Woodstock.

Mr. Hinman moved that Mr. McPherson and the Secretary (Mr. H. Ashley) be appointed to attend these two conventions, and that they be instructed to engage speakers for the Convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario.

The President threw out the suggestion that the delegates secure the services of a couple of sound practical farmers to give their views on matters connected with the dairy interest.

The Board adjourned for half an hour for the purpose of allowing the Finance Committee an opportunity to prepare their report —Mr. Ira Morgan, the Chairman, having just arrived by the evening express.

The Board having resumed, the Finance Committee submitted the following report :—

Your Committee beg leave to recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

INTELLIGENCER, printing	$ 5 65
T. S. Carman "	10.00
Expenses of Committee to Toronto Exhibition	43 00

Your Committee cannot recommend the payment of the Canadian Express charges for cheese sent to the Ottawa Dominion Exhibition in 1879, as this association did not authorize any exhibitors to forward their products by express. [The amount of charges was $10] Your Committee would recommend the payment to the Secretary of $100 on account.

IRA MORGAN, Chairman.
D. MCPHERSON,
D. DERBYSHIRE.

The report was adopted.

A discussion arose on the question of advertising the Convention, the result of which was that the matter was left wholly to the discretion of the Printing Committee already appointed.

On motion, the thanks of the Board were tendered to the local press for the interest which had been taken by it in the proceedings of the Board.

The following resolution was moved by Mr. Derbyshire, seconded by Mr. Bissell, and carried unanimously : "That we, the Board of Directors of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario, feel keenly the loss we have sustained since our last meeting by the death of one of our most energetic members—James E. Bates, Auditor. Resolved, that we deeply sympathize with his bereaved wife, father and friends, and that this resolution be entered in the minutes of this meeting, and that the Secretary send a copy of this resolution to Mrs Jas. E Bates, widow of the deceased."

Moved by Mr. Vandewaters, seconded by Mr. Morgan, that when the Board adjourn it adjourn until Monday evening, Feb. 6th.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

The Smallpox Scare.

RETURNS OF CASES FOR THE PAST WEEK—INSTRUCTIONS TO MAIL DIVISION SUPERINTENDENTS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Smallpox reports to the National Board of Health show fifteen cases at Buffalo, N. Y., one case at Milan, Tenn., one death at Lake, Ill., one at Kansas City, Mo., and 27 deaths at Chicago for the week ending 31st December.

The superintendent of the railway mail service has instructed division superintendents that in every case where a report is made to them regarding the prevalence of smallpox with a request that mail communication be suspended between the infected locality and others, they are to take the necessary action at once without waiting to consult his office. This he says is necessary in order that the department shall not be responsible for spreading a contagious disease.

LOSSES IN THE FRANCO-GERMAN WAR.—The concluding volume of the work, "The Franco-German War of 1870 71, by the staff of the German Army," has just been published. Nine years have passed since the appearance of the first volume. The new volume contains statistics from which we gather that the German army lost during the war 6,247 officers and 123,453 men. Of this number 40,081 fell either before the enemy or died of their wounds or illness ; the rest were wounded. The whole force of the German army during the war amounted to 44,420 officers and 1,451,944 men, of whom 38,101 officers and 1,113,244 men took part in the campaign. Within seven months 290,000 persons were nursed in the field hospitals, and 812,021 patients received in the reserve hospitals. The number of letters forwarded by the field post amounted to 101,267,500.

Almost young Again.
My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system ; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

Bishop Beveridge !
A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied ; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic ; if in English, so, so."
There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Our Ferry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—I am pleased to see that you have drawn attention to the matter of our ferry, the most important question to engage the attention of our City Farthers for this year and one that requires more than a passing glance to decide. Several schemes have been advanced for the purpose of improving upon our present system. What is of first importance is rapid transit, cheap rates and communication the year round. Two routes have been suggested, viz , one landing at the foot of Mill Island and the other at Bushy Island. Laying aside the cost of the two routes for the present, let us compare first the distances. The former lands the passenger at the south end of Mill Island, which, to do so, one of two routes the ferry boat would require to take—from Ferry Point east of the Light House, making a route of one mile to Mill Island, or going direct across, which would shorten the route one quarter of a mile. To do this would require a channel made across the bar which extends from the Light House westerly towards the marsh. The passenger landed at Mill Island, if on foot, would have to walk five-eighths of a mile to reach the market—now as to Bushy Island —the ferry boat would take a direct course to Bushy Island, half a mile. The passenger would then have to walk one mile to the market—a shorter water route by half a mile or so and a longer foot route by three-eighths of a mile than by Mill Island. Bear in mind the fact that the distance is only two hundred yards in favor of Mill Island from the Ferry Point to the market.

Now as to the difficulties : First the bridging from foot of Dundas St. to Mill Island would require a first rate bridge, wooden or iron, with long spans so as not to impede the course of the river. Once on Mill Island a road to make the greater part through sawdust without a substantial bottom to build on, then a difficult ferry slip, followed by the dredging of a channel across the bar, the difficulty of keeping that channel open—being composed chiefly of sawdust—and the further difficulty of keeping in the channel during a heavy wind. Compare the Bushy Island route with a more easily constructed slip—a road to build, not through a marsh as is generally supposed, but upon a hard bottom containing many large boulders. The only bridging would be a culvert about twenty feet wide.

Now Mr. Editor, I am pleased your contractor of large experience has stated the probable cost of above route $30,000. Your friend over the road states $40,000, if so I venture to say in the same proportion the Mill Island route would cost double, say $60,000. Well, for this large expenditure on Mill Island and the only advantage foot passengers would be landed nearer the market against the following advantages of the route viz., a more frequent transit from land to land—about half the distance—consequently cheaper rates of ferriage. A route more easily kept open in the fall—and the first to open in the spring. One boat would do the work of two at the former place.

Now Mr. Editor, I would suggest that for foot passengers a small steamer be run up to Dundas St, say every hour, with permission on certain days of taking occasional excursion parties. Thus will we be better served, and it will be found that double the number of teams will drive to the City—and more will be attracted from a distance when they know they will not have to wait from half to an hour for a boat.

The importance of the question will be my excuse for having occupied so much of your valuable space.

Yours very truly
MERCHANT.

The Electrical Girl Who Lives Again.
(London (Can.) Advertiser)

It is now about three years since the Advertiser published the story of the Electrical Girl in the township of Romney. The tale passed through nearly all our exchanges, and occasionally re-appears now. The story in brief was that the girl was so highly charged with electricity that she could not handle any article of steel. She was a veritable magnet, and needles, knives, etc., would cling to any part of her person. The publication excited a good deal of curiosity concerning the girl, and many people called upon her at her home. Recently she was taken ill, and the local physicians were called in. She described her peculiar sensations. In her knee joints severe pains were felt, shooting at intervals, as though a battery were at work and giving her intermittent shocks. The knee began to swell, and the pains spread to other parts of her body, generally becoming permanent in the joints. All the doctors could do was of very little avail. Occasionally slight relief would be obtained, but in wet or murky weather the pains would redouble in violence. Finally when the doctors had given up treating her and regarding her simply as a physiological wonder, a tramp called one day at the house. While he was being given a meal he was told about and asked permission to see the girl. He had been a soldier in the Crimean army, and while working in the trenches around St. Petersburg he contracted rheumatism in its most severe form, and noticing that the girl's symptoms agreed with his, he pronounced her to be suffering from rheumatism. The parents of the girl were overjoyed, but were again cast down as they recalled the fact that the doctors had said they could do nothing for her. "Why," said the tramp, "do you want to bother the doctors about rheumatism? Get a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. It cured me, and it will cure any case. I know plenty of old soldiers who have been cured of chronic rheumatism by the use of St. Jacobs Oil." The advice was taken, and the so called Electrical Girl is to-day prepared to add her testimony to the thousands of others who bear witness to the efficacy of the Great German Remedy.

To the Editor of the London (Can.) Advertiser.
DEAR SIR:—As you have given me a good deal of notoriety by writing of me as the Electrical Girl, I thought I would write to tell you of my condition. * * * (Here follows the recital which is summarized above.) My parents obtained a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil and to its effects I owe the fact that I am now able to walk without pain, and the swellings in the joints have all disappeared.
Yours very truly,
SUSAN J. HOFFMAN.

THE By-law providing for the sprinkling of ashes on the sidewalks should be repealed or amended. THE principal event of next week in the amusement line will be the elocutionary entertainment to be given in the City Hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Association, by M'me Eleanor Georgen. This talented lady has been received with the most flattering marks of favor by press and public wherever she has appeared, and bids fair to equal if not surpass in fame the celebrated Scott Siddons. The Toronto Telegram says of her:—"She is now entitled to be considered in the first rank of readers, and she may aspire without fear, if she have patience, to a height not yet reached by any reader whom the public honors."

An item having appeared in yesterday's issue to the effect that the concert to be given under the auspices of Belleville Lodge No. 81 had been postponed on account of the non-completion of the new furniture for the Lodge Room, it is but just to say in explanation that it is not Mr. Frost's fault that the furniture was not completed in time, as he was, he explains to us, informed by several of the members of the Committee that it would be unnecessary to complete the furniture as early as the date mentioned in the contract, for the rooms would not be ready to receive it. The furniture, we may further state, is now in the Lodge Room, ready for inspection.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 7.—Lakes, moderate to fresh winds, mostly between the south and east, cloudy mild weather, with areas of rain or snow to-night.

SONS OF ENGLAND.—This Society is growing in popularity with Englishmen in Belleville. A large number have been already initiated. The Society is purely a benefit one. At the last meeting of Oxford Lodge, the Rev. Dr. Clarke and Mr. J. W. London were elected delegates to the Grand Lodge, which meets in Oshawa early in February.

THE 15TH BATT. INSPECTION.—After a thorough inspection of the different companies of the 15th Battalion had been made yesterday by Col. Villiers, D. A. G., and some time spent in company drill in the armory, the Inspecting Officer desired that the general salute be given. To do this properly it was necessary to take the battalion outside, as there was not sufficient room in the armory. The battalion was accordingly paraded on the market square, where the general salute was given and one or two battalion movements executed. On account of the heavy snow-storm that was prevailing at the time, however, the battalion did not remain outside longer than half an hour. After marching back to the armory, the roll was called by Major King, Paymaster, after which the different companies were allowed to disband. One or two of the companies had almost their full complement of men, but others had not many more than half the full number—the reason being that many of the men who who had performed the full amount of drill required of them had left town. As a matter of course, the battalion did not perform their drill yesterday in a manner that would be looked for in trained soldiers; but, considering that the official inspection was fixed for some date in September and a large number of the men had completed their annual drill by that time, and that it is fully six weeks since any of the men have been drilled, the companies did as well as could be expected of them. This is, in effect, what Col. Villiers himself said. All the men who were present yesterday will be paid off in proportion to the drill they have put in; but Major King declared his inability to pay those who performed their drill but were not present yesterday. This is manifestly unjust, as the men were here when the official inspection should have taken place, and they could not be expected to wait here several weeks until it should please the authorities to order an inspection. The matter was discussed last night by the inspecting officers and the officers of the battalion, and the probability is that it will be happily arranged.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

The City Gas.

We are indebted to the Inspector of Gas for the following statement of the illuminating power and purity of gas supplied to the citizens by the Gas Company since the opening of the Gas Inspection Office in April, 1881:—

ILLUMINATING POWER.

	Highest.	Lowest.	Average.
April	18.22	16.08	17.01
May	17.06	15.62	16.32
June	16.77	15.60	16.09
July	17.76	16.11	16.70
August	17.11	13.98	16.15
September	12.98	12.98	12.98
October	16.47	15.12	15.74
November	16.48	15.65	16.09
December	18.15	15.25	16.61

As to purity, the Inspector reports that sulphuretted hydrogen was absent in April, present once in May; absent once in June, July and August; present in September; absent in October; and present every day in November and December.

Lowest illuminating power during nine months equal to 12.98 candles.

Highest illuminating power during nine months equal to 18.22 candles.

Average illuminating power during nine months equal to 15.96 candles.

During the months of November and December daily tests of the purity of the gas were made, and at each test sulphuretted hydrogen was present. Since the new ... at the gas works has been in operation the gas is very much improved.

Fotunes for Farmers and Mechanics.

Thousands of dollars can be saved by using proper judgment in taking care of the health of yourself and family. If you are bilious, have sallow complexion, poor appetite, low and depressed spirits, and generally debilitated, do not delay a moment, but go at once and procure a bottle of those wonderful Electric Bitters, which never fail to cure, and that for the trifling sum of fifty cents.—Tribune. Sold by James Clarke & Co., druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

"I can highly recommend the well known German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, to all afflicted with either rheumatism or neuralgia. It has never failed to cure," writes Mr. F. Hoh..., 803 H street, N. E., Washington, D. C.

EXTRAORDINARY DEATH OF A LADY IN THE OPERATING ROOM OF A CLEVELAND DENTIST.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan 6.—A special despatch from Cleveland, Ohio, says:—Yesterday afternoon news reached this city of a singular death which occurred at Olmstead Falls yesterday. A middle-aged lady, named Mrs. Horace Fitch, called at the office of Dr. Rose, an experienced physician in good standing, and had some teeth extracted. The physician put her under the influence of chloroform, and her husband, who accompanied her, watched the operation. When the teeth had been pulled she recovered from the effects of the anæsthetic, got out of the operating chair, rinsed out her mouth, and expressed relief that the dreaded experience was over. The doctor was arranging his instruments when she fell to the floor dead.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers.

The Syndicate's New Land Regulations.

The Terms Entitling to a Rebate.

Compensation for Improvements on Forfeited Lands.

The Pacific Railway Syndicate have issued a new set of land regulations, particulars of which may be given as follows. The price is left at $2.50 an acre, one-sixth payable in cash, and the balance in five annual instalments, with interest at six per cent., a rebate for actual cultivation being made, as stated in the conditions, which are as follows:—

"1.—That all improvements placed upon land purchased shall remain thereon until final payment for the land has been made.

"2.—That all taxes and assessments lawfully imposed upon the land or improvements shall be paid by the purchaser.

"3.—The company reserve all mineral, coal, or wood-lands, lands with water power thereon, or tracts for town sites and railway purposes; but as regards woodlands, the purchaser will be permitted to cut a sufficient quantity for fuel, fencing, and for the erection of buildings on his land.

"4.—The purchaser will be required within four years from the date of the contract for the purchase of the land to bring under cultivation, and sow and reap a crop on, one-half of the said land. Dairy farming, or mixed grain and dairy farming, to an extent to be agreed upon, will be accepted as the equivalent of cultivation, entitling the settler to rebate.

"5.—A credit of $1 25 per acre will be allowed for all lands so cultivated during four years.

"6.—A reservation of 100 feet in width tor right of way or other railroad purposes will be made in all cases.

"7.—If the purchaser fails to carry out strictly the conditions of his contract within the specified time, the company reserve the right to cancel the same, whereupon the lands would become forfeited and re vested in the company; but in such case the purchaser would be allowed the value of his permanent improvements, apart from cultivation, to the extent that such improvements had increased the value of the land for agricultural purposes.

"The object of the forfeiture clause is to prevent the company's funds from falling into the hands of speculators, to the disadvantage of the actual settler; but as respects bona fide settlers the purpose and aim of the company is to afford them every possible consideration and facility.

"8.—Special contracts will be made with companies for large tracts of lands for settlement purposes or for cattle-raising.

"9.—Liberal rates for settlers and their effects will be granted by the company over its railways."

"There's no mistake that it is a grand remedy for rheumatism," said Mr. Mackenzie Davis, of 1903 Brandywine street, Philadelphia, Pa. "I suffered terribly for three years with inflammatory rheumatism, and St. Jacobs Oil alone cured me, after everything else had utterly failed." It's the way of the Oil.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR!

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable, the discovery of which was the result of many years' close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms and the cure—viz.:

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Influenza, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—Consumption at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the lungs; then an inflammation, when the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then becomes local fever and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflammation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration,

CONSUMPTION

IT HEALS THE ULCERATED SURFACES

and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, generally destroys the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases. Price 25cts. and $1 per bottle. Sold everywhere.

TOBY TYLER; OR, TEN WEEKS WITH A CIRCUS

BY JAMES OTIS.

MR. STUBBS AND ROBY'S MONEY.

CHAPTER XII.

TOBY'S GREAT MISFORTUNE.

The town in which the circus remained over Sunday was a small one, and a brisk walk of ten minutes sufficed to take Toby into a secluded portion of a very thickly grown wood, where he could lie upon the mossy ground, and fairly revel in freedom.

As he lay upon his back, his hands under his head, and his eyes directed to the branches of the trees above, where the birds twittered and sang, and the squirrels played in fearless sport, the monkey enjoyed himself, in his way, by playing all the monkey antics he knew of. He scrambled from tree to tree, swung himself from one branch to the other by the aid of his tail, and amused both himself and his master, until, tired by his exertion, he crept down by Toby's side, and lay there in quiet, restful content.

One of Toby's reasons for wishing to be by himself that afternoon was that he wanted to think over some plan of escape, for he believed that he had nearly money enough to enable him to make a bold stroke for freedom and Uncle Daniel's. Therefore, when the monkey nestled down by his side, he was all ready to confide in him that which had been occupying his busy little brain for the past three days.

'Mr. Stubbs,' he said to the monkey, in a solemn tone, 'we're goin' to run away in a day or two.'

Mr. Stubbs did not seem to be moved in the least at this very startling piece of intelligence, but winked his bright eyes in unconcern, and Toby, seeming to think that everything which he said had been understood by the monkey, continued: 'I've got a good deal of money now, an' I guess there's enough for us to start out on. We'll get away some night, and stay in the woods till they get through hunting for us and then we'll go back to Guilford, an' tell Uncle Dan'l if he'll only take us back, we'll never go to sleep in meetin' any more, an' we'll be as good as we know how. Now let's see how much money we've got.'

Toby drew from a pocket, which he had been to a great deal of trouble to make in his shirt, a small bag of silver and spread it upon the ground where he could count it at his leisure.

The glittering coin instantly attracted the monkey's attention, and he tried by every means to thrust his little black paw into the pile; but Toby would allow nothing of that sort, and pushed him away quite roughly. Then he grew excited, and danced and scolded around Toby's treasure until the boy had hard work to count it.

He did succeed, however, and as he carefully replaced it in the bag, he said to the monkey: 'There's seven dollars an thirty cents in that bag, an' every cent of it is mine. That ought to take care of us for us for a good while, Mr. Stubbs, an' by the time we get home we shall be rich men.'

The monkey showed his pleasure at this intelligence by putting his hands inside Toby's clothes to find the bag of treasure that he had seen secreted there, and two or three times, to the great delight of both himself and the boy, he drew forth the bag, which was immediately taken away from him.

The shadows were beginning to lengthen in the woods, and, heeding this warning of the coming night, Toby took the monkey on his arm and started for home, or for the tent, which was the only place he could call home.

As he walked along he tried to talk to his pet in a serious manner, but the monkey, remembering where he had seen the bright coins secreted, tried so hard to get at them, that finally Toby lost all patience, and gave him quite a hard cuff on the ear, which had the effect of keeping him quiet for a time.

That night Toby took supper with the skeleton and his wife, and he enjoyed the meal, even though it was made from what had been left of the turkey that served as the noonday feast, more than he did the state dinner, where he was obliged to pay for what he ate by the torture of making a speech.

There were no guests but Toby present, and Mr. and Mrs. Treat were not only very kind, but so attentive that he was actually afraid he should eat so much as to stand in need of some of the catnip tea which Mrs. Treat had said she gave to her husband when he had been equally foolish. The skeleton would pile his plate high with turkey bones from one side, and the fat lady would heap it up, whenever she could find the chance, with all sorts of food from the other, until Toby pushed back his chair, his appetite completely satisfied if it never had been before.

Toby had discussed the temper of his employer with his host and hostess, and, after some considerable conversation, had confided in them his determination to run away.

'I'd hate awfully to have you go,' said Mrs. Treat, reflectively; but it's a good deal better for you to get away from that Job Lord, if you can. It wouldn't do to let him know that you had any idea of goin', for he'd watch you as a cat watches a mouse, an' never let you go so long as he saw a chance to keep you.' I heard him tellin' one of the drivers the other day that you sold more goods than any other boy he ever had, an' he was going to keep you with him all summer.'

'Be careful in what you do, my boy,' said the skeleton, sagely, as he arranged a large cushion in an arm chair, and proceeded to make ready for his after dinner nap; 'be sure that you're all ready before you start, an' when you do go, get a good ways ahead of him; for if he should ever catch you, the trouncin' you'd get would be awful.'

Toby assured his friends that he would use every endeavor to make his escape successful when he did start, and Mrs. Treat, with an eye to the boy's comfort, said, 'Let me know the night you're goin' an' I'll fix you up something to eat, so's you won't be hungry before you come to a place where you can buy something.'

As these kind-hearted people talked with him, and were ready thus to aid him in every way that lay in their power, Toby thought that he had been very fortunate in thus having made so many kind friends in a place where he was having so much trouble.

It was not until he heard the sounds of preparation for departure that he left the skeleton's tent, and then, with Mr. Stubbs clasped tightly to his breast, he hurried over to the waggon where old Ben was nearly ready to start.

'All right, Toby,' said the old driver, as the boy came in sight; 'I was afraid you was going to keep me waitin' for the first time. Jump right up on the box, for there hain't no time to lose, an' I guess you'll have to carry the monkey in your arms, for I don't want to stop to open the cage now.'

'I'd just as soon carry him, an' a little rather,' said Toby, as he clambered up on the high seat, and arranged a comfortable place in his lap for his pet to sit.

In another moment the heavy team had started, and nearly the entire circus was on the move. 'Now tell me what you've been doin' since I left you,' said old Ben, after they were well clear of the town, and he could trust his horses to follow the team ahead. 'I s'pose you've been to see the skeleton an' his mountain of a wife?'

Toby gave a clear account of where he had been and what he had done, and when he concluded, he told old Ben of his determination to run away, and asked his advice on the matter.

'My advice,' said Ben, after he had waited some time to give due weight to his words, 'is that you clear out from this show just as soon as you can. This hain't no fit place for a boy of your age to be in, an' the sooner you get back where you started from, an' get to school the better. But Job Lord will do all he can to keep you from goin' if he thinks you have any idea of leavin' him.'

Toby assured Ben, as he had assured the skeleton and his wife, that he would be very careful in all he did, and lay his plans with the utmost secrecy; and then he asked whether Ben thought the amount of money which he had would be sufficient to carry him home.

'Wa'al, that depends,' said the driver, slowly; 'if you go to spreadin' yourself all over creation, as boys are very apt to do, your money won't go very far; but if you look at your money two or three times afore you spend it, you ought to get back and have a dollar or two left."

The two talked, and old Ben offered advice, until Toby could hardly keep his eyes open, and almost before the driver concluded his sage remarks, the boy had stretched himself on the top of the waggon, where he had learned to sleep without being shaken off, and was soon in dreamland.

The monkey, nestled down snug in Toby's bosom, did not appear to be as sleepy as was his master, but popped his head in and out from under the coat, as if watching whether the boy was asleep or not.

Toby was awakened by a scratching on his face, as if the monkey was dancing a hornpipe on that portion of his body, and by a shrill, quick chattering, which caused him to assume an upright position instantly.

He was frightened, although he knew not at what, and looked around quickly to discover the cause of the monkey's excitement.

Old Ben was asleep on his box, while the horses jogged along behind the other teams, and Toby failed to see anything whatever which should have caused his pet to become so excited.

'Lie down and behave yourself,' said Toby, as sternly as possible, and as he spoke he took his pet by the collar to oblige him to obey his command.

The moment that he did this, he saw the monkey throw something out into the road, and the next instant he also saw that he held something tightly clutched in his other paw.

It required some little exertion and active momements on Toby's part to enable him to get hold of that paw, in order to discover what it was which Mr. Stubbs had captured; but the instant he did succeed, there went up from his heart such a cry of sorrow as caused old Ben to start up in alarm, and the monkey to cower and whimper like a whipped dog.

'What is it, Toby? What's the matter?' asked the old driver, as he peered out into the darkness ahead, as if he feared some danger threatened them from that quarter. 'I don't see anything. What is it?'

'Mr. Stubbs has thrown all my money away,' cried Toby, holding up the almost empty bag, which a short time previous had been so well filled with silver.

'Stubbs—thrown—the—money away?' repeated Ben, with a pause between each word, as if he could not understand that which he himself was saying.

'Yes,' sobbed Toby, as he shook out the remaining contents of the bag; 'there's only half a dollar, an' all the rest is gone.'

'The rest gone?' again repeated Ben. 'But how come the monkey to have the money?'

'He tried to get at it out in the woods, an' I s'pose the moment I got asleep he felt for it in my pockets. This is all there is left, an' he threw away some just as I woke up.'

Again Toby held the bag up where Ben could see it, and again his grief broke out anew.

Ben could say nothing; he realized the whole situation: that the monkey had got at the money bag while Toby was sleeping, that in his play he had thrown it away piece by piece; and he knew that that small amount of silver represented liberty in the boy's eyes. He felt that there was nothing he could say which would assuage Toby's grief, and he remained silent.

'Don't you s'pose we could go back an' get it?' asked the boy, after the intensity of his grief had somewhat subsided.

'No, Toby, it's gone,' replied Ben, sorrowfully. 'You couldn't find it if it was daylight, an' you don't stand a ghost of a chance now in the dark. Don't take on so, my boy. I'll see if we can't make it up to you in some way.'

Toby gave no heed to this last remark of Ben's. He hugged the monkey convulsively to his breast, as if he would seek consolation from the very one who had wrought the ruin, and rocking himself to and fro, he said, in a voice full of tears and sorrow:

'Oh, Mr. Stubbs, why did you do it?—why did you do it? That money would have got us away from this hateful place, an' we'd gone back to Uncle Dan'l's, where we'd have been so happy, you an' me. An' now it's all gone—all gone. What made you, Mr. Stubbs, what made you do such a bad, cruel thing? Oh, what made you?'

'Don't, Toby—don't take on so,' said Ben, soothingly; 'there wasn't so very much money there, after all, an' you'll soon get as much more.'

'But it won't be for a good while, an' we could have been in the good old home long before I can get so much again.'

'That's true, my boy; but you must kinder brace up, an' not give way so about it. Perhaps I can fix it so that the fellers will make it up to you. Give Stubbs a good poundin', and perhaps that 'll make you feel better.

'That won't bring back my money, an' I don't want to whip him,' cried Toby, hugging his pet the closer because of this suggestion. 'I know what it is to get a whippin', an' I wouldn't whip a dog, much less Mr. Stubbs, who didn't know any better.'

'Then you must try to take it like a man,' said Ben, who could think of no other plan by which the boy might soothe his feelings. 'It hain't half so bad as it might be, an' you must try to keep a stiff upper lip, even if it does seem hard at first.'

This keeping a stiff upper lip in the face of all the trouble he was having was all well to talk about, but Toby could not reduce it to practice, or, at least, not so soon after he knew of his loss, and he continued to rock the monkey back and forth, to whisper in his ear now and then, and to cry as if his heart was breaking, for nearly an hour.

Ben tried, in his rough, honest way, to comfort him, but without success, and it was not until the boy's grief had spent itself that he would listen to any reasoning.

All this time the monkey had remained perfectly quiet, submitting to Toby's squeezing without making any effort to get away, and behaving as if he knew he had done wrong, and was trying to atone for it. He looked up into the boy's face every now and then with such a penitent expression, that Toby finally assured him of forgiveness, and begged him not to feel so badly.

Ah! how the sounds make our old hearts swell,
Send them again on an eager quest:
Bid the sweet winds of heaven tell
Those we have loved so long and well
Come again home to the dear old nest.

When the gray evening, cool and still,
Hushes the brain and heart to rest,
Memory comes with a joyous thrill,
Brings the young children back at will,
Calls them all home to the gray old nest.

Patient we wait till the golden morn
Rise on our weariness half-confessed;
Till, with the chill and darkness gone,
Hope shall arise with another dawn,
And a new day to the sad old nest.

Soon shall we see all the eager East
Bright with the Day-star, at heaven's behest;
Soon, from the bondage of clay released,
Rise to the Palace the King's own feast,
Birds of flight from the last year's nest.

PARTRIDGES.

Under the alders, along the brooks,
Under the hemlocks, along the hill,
Spreading their plumage with furtive looks,
Daintily pecking the leaves at will;
Whir! and they flit from the startled sight—
And the forest is silent, the air is still.

Crushing the leaves 'neath our careless feet,
Snapping the leaves with a heavy tread,
Dreamy October is late and sweet,
And stooping we gather a blossom dead;
Boom! and our heart has a thunderous beat
As the gray apparition flits overhead.

Up from the path with a thunderous roar
That startled the dreamer amid his dreams,
Till he peers into vistas that open before
For the flash of the plumage with silver gleams;
Why modest brown hermit thus fearful of him
Who would share in the secrets of forest and stream?

I lie on windrows of leaves and gaze
At the innocent preening of serrate wing,
Or watch where the last crimson colors blaze,
And the red Autumn leaves to the maple cling,
Too fond of this life myself to destroy
The motion and life I am worshipping,

A. T. Worden.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try its virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Fellows' Hypophosphities makes an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.

Important to Farmers, etc.

If you would keep your kine, cattle, hogs, horses, sheep and poultry in the most perfect health and remunerative condition, mix HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDERS occasionally with their feed. These great specifics are the wealth of the barn yard. See to it! Sold every where.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Post Mortem Examintions have, in some instances, led to the discovery of the scars of completely healed abscesses or sores upon the lung. This of itself shows that the lung tissue when diseased is susceptible of restoration to a sound and healthy condition. Persons afflicted with lung disease may reasonably hope to recover health by the use of well chosen remedies. Foremost among these is Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, a thoroughly tested and highly accredited specific for coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, spitting of blood and other affections of the Pulmonary irritation is promptly arrested by the Cod Liver Oil, and the hypophosphites, which are among the finest renovants used by physicians, reviving the flagging energies of the debilitated system.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.
MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

THE MUSKOKA FIRES.

The Number of Utterly Destitute Families.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF NEEDED.

(From the Globe's Special Correspondent.)

BRACEBRIDGE, Jan. 2, 1882.

Few beyond the limits of Muskoka have any idea of the degree of suffering resulting from the great bush fires of last August and September. In fact, few here outside of the leading members of the Central Relief Committee and a few others whom business has led to visit some of the burnt districts, know much about the numbers or condition of the sufferers. I have met many residents who can mention only two or three instances of actual suffering. Yet, from what I have seen and heard, I can form no other conclusion than that a degree of distress prevails which calls for immediate action on the part of the charitable all over the Province if instances of comparative starvation and illness resulting from lack of clothing and food are to be prevented during the present year.

The reason for the general lack of appreciation of the actual condition of things is very apparent. Few of the fires have covered more than 10,000 acres, and these have been scattered over a dozen townships. Communication is difficult. Farms are frequently far apart, and out of the way of travel; hence many suffer without any but their immediate neighbors often almost as poorly off as the sufferers, knowing anything of their condition. There are, too, many of the settlers too proud to complain. A majority of the people are English; not a few are gentlemen of reduced means, whom enterprise and hardihood have led to brave the discomforts of a backwoods life in this rocky country. It is no mere supposition that very many of these actually conceal great destitution, and are so exceedingly loth to appear as suppliants for charity that they will neither apply to the Relief Committee for aid nor let enquirers know about their present circumstances. This opinion is also that of the Chairman of the Central Relief Committee here, as well as numerous others who have seen evidences of great destitution, which the sufferers have made light of. So much does this feeling of independence appear to prevail that a Mr. Yearly, a returning-officer at the municipal elections held yesterday, whom I met on a trip to the northern part of the township of Macaulay, said it was almost impossible for me to ascertain the circumstances of the settlers unless I assumed the garb of a lumberman or laborer, and called at the houses of the burned out settlers on the pretext of securing a meal or a warming up by the shanty fire.

About ninety families, whose cases are supposed to be such as absolutely to call for assistance, are on the lists of the Central Relief Committee, but the Chairman informs me that he has every reason to think that there are almost as many more very needy sufferers who have not yet applied for aid.

The greatest suffering exists in the townships of McLean, Ridout, Stephenson, Muskoka, and Ryde, and a few other townships are but little better off.

EXTENT OF THE SUFFERING.

It may be imagined that as the number of great sufferers is limited to six or seven hundred persons the people of Muskoka may be able to provide nearly all the relief required In the fertile backwoods of some of our counties this relief would be afforded; here it is out of the question. Hundreds of dollars have been raised in money and in goods throughout the district, but that, with the aid already received from elsewhere, has barely sufficed to meet the most urgent necessities to prevent starvation. The majority of the settlers have no money, in fact are living from hand to mouth as it were, and the only advances made by them, so far as I can yet learn, are a few more acres cleared, little barns built or slightly enlarged, the rude little log shanties somewhat improved, a few sheep purchased, and a few articles of furniture added to what is even now a very rude stock. Many houses are worse off for furniture than the most miserable tenants in Toronto, where drink has done its worst in creating destitution.

With Mr. Reazin, Inspector of public Schools of Victoria and Muskoka, I traversed the country east of Bracebridge, seeing most of the burned district on the 2nd and 3rd concessions of Macaulay.

A DESOLATE REGION.

A more desolate region could scarcely exist in Ontario. It is a perfect wilderness of rocks, blackened trees, and prostrate and charred timbers (and coal and ashes. The road winds for a short distance along the deep and picturesque ravine of the north branch of the Muskoka, and then curving up the bank, with overhanging rocks on one side and a precipice, unguarded by railing or anything else, on the other, passes steeply up betwixt the rocks. Beyond, the country is a constant succession of rock ridges and narrow valleys. The ridges run north and south, exposing on their western side a wall of granite from twenty to sixty feet in height. Beyond the rock dips eastward to the little parallel valleys, which contain some excellent soil, broken, however, by huge masses of rock and loose boulders, so enormous that, as a visitor remarked, the presence of one of them on some of the western prairies would be a sufficient curiosity to warrant the erection of an hotel for tourists. In no part of the district seen on our trip did we find five acres of good land together in one patch. Generally the patches of soil are not more than a few yards in diameter. The plough used in cultivating it turns up like a sleigh runner, and slides over the rocks and boulders which are constantly in the way. The soil is often quite shallow; and these ploughs merely scratch it to a depth of two or three inches. In fact over half the land is uncultivable in Macaulay, but it is only just to say that this township is said to be one of the most inferior. Some idea of the rockiness of this section may be formed from the fact that our sleigh was constantly striking rocks as the old road was followed, and jumping over ridges often two feet high. Twice the chains forming part of the tugs, or some other part of the strong harness used, gave way, and travel was very slow. Travel after dark, even in light vehicles, is almost impossible on this and nearly all the roads, it is said, in Muskoka. Rough as the surface would be, even if all the land was cleared and settled, it is tenfold more so at present, although a covering of snow 10 or 12 inches deep fell on Friday night to cover much of the desolate surface. The clearings on our line of travel would probably average twenty or twenty five acres, and of such clearings not half an acre is free from numerous black stumps, except in a few places where the fire has consumed everything, or where solid rock prevents the growth of trees. Between rocks and stumps the clearings are rude in the extreme. The uncleared and vastly larger portion of the land is a wilderness of dead pines standing upright in their sparlike nakedness, whitened above, where the bark has long been absent, and blackened below, where the fire has left its marks. The ground is encumbered with countless charred trunks and the black stumps left by the lumberman. Where the fire was most intense the trees are tall pencils of charcoal from root to top, and the ground is of the same uniform black for miles, for even the rocks are blackened by the flames.

POVERTY OF THE HOUSES.

The farm houses are very little log shanties, roofed with shingles or split logs hollowed and laid on tile fashion. Most of them have only one or two rooms, narrow, low ceilings, unfurnished, and drearily lighted by a single window as small as the windows common in stables. The houses are far apart and often difficult of access over dangerous pathways, amongst gullies, shanties, and rocks.

It is not to be wondered at that the poor settlers who have lost all their property by the late fires had made only a bare living from their rocky acres, and find themselves now without the means to provide themselves with clothing or bedding for present use, and seed and implements for the spring work.

The immediate loss is not the only one, for the soil, converted into ashes, has become barren, except where it is deep.

On this line several farmers have been burned out entirely. A few have since erected shanties by the help of neighbors, but have scarcely bedding and clothes enough to keep out the cold. Others have saved their houses, but lost fences and crops, and every settler for a distance of four or five miles is in urgent need of assistance either immediately or before spring. Provisions and clothing have been furnished to a few by the Central Relief Committee, but unless further aid is rendered there will be much suffering before the winter closes.

—A Late judge was a noted wag. A young lawyer was once making his first effort before him, and had thrown himself on the wings of his imagination far into the upper regions, and was seemingly preparing for a higher ascent, when the judge exclaimed: "Hold on, hold on, my dear sir! Don't go any higher, for you are already out of the jurisdiction of the court."

—Notwithstanding the numerous disasters to Alpine tourists which have taken place of late, the ascent of Mont Blanc appears, according to statistics which have just been published, to be a more popular feat than ever. More ascents have, in fact, been made this season than in any previous year. From July to October seventy four tourists succeeded in gaining the summit, Of these, seventeen were of English nationality, one of them being a lady.

One of the most popular and clever letter-carriers of Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. J. H. Mattern, was cured by St. Jacobs Oil of a severely stubborn sprain that had afflicted him since the war. The Great German Remedy is very popular in the Indianapolis postoffice.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis They carry away the offal and renovate the system. ALEXANDER CLARKE, D. D., Amherst, N.S.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

An Atrocious Libel.

The extent to which some bitter partisans will go, in order to found an attack upon the Government, is aptly illustrated in the following, which is contained in the editorial columns of the Peterborough Examiner of the 5th inst. :

The Senior Judgeship of the County of Hastings, which has been vacant for some months, has just been filled by the promotion of Judge Lazier, the junior judge, to the position. From a party point of view, he fairly earned this promotion by counting out Mr. Aylsworth, the Liberal candidate, who defeated Mr. John White in East Hastings in 1878, dealing in the most extraordinary manner with the irregularly marked ballots in order to accomplish the feat. It is true that his decision was to some extent overruled by the Election Court, but only so far as to deprive Mr. White also of the seat, thus giving him the chance of contesting the constituency at a by election and with the Government influence in his favor.

This is an atrocious libel upon Judge Lazier, than whom a more honest, conscientious gentleman never sat on the judicial bench. So far from the statement of the Examiner being correct, the exact contrary is the truth. Judge Lazier, before whom the recounts was had, rejected sundry ballots, which had been improperly marked by a Deputy Returning Officer at the instance of a leading member of the Reform party in East Hastings. As it happened, a large majority of those ballots were evidently intended to be cast in favor of Mr. Aylsworth, and the result was that a majority of the legally recorded votes was found to be in favor of Mr. White, whom the judge, as was his duty, declared duly elected on the face of the returns. A petition was entered, and although Mr. White offered to resign and fight the battle over again, the petition went to trial. Judge Armour, who tried the case, expressly sustained Judge Lazier's judgment as to the ballots which he had declared to be illegal and censured the gentleman at whose instance the Deputy Returning officer had improperly marked them. Mr. White was unseated, but upon the ground that a minority candidate could not equitably be returned, and that the people could not be deprived of their votes by the blunder of an official This plain statement of facts shows how grossly the Examiner's compound of fact and fiction has libelled Judge Lazier. An apology is due that gentleman from the libeller, and if not tendered voluntarily the judge would be sustained by public opinion in instituting a prosecution for criminal libel. It is probable that His Honor may consider the Peterborough Grit organ too small game, but an example ought to be made of th ose reckless and unscrupulous writers who are ready to sacrifice any man's reputation when they can accomplish an object by doing so.

Live Stock and Dressed Meats,

The enormous extent to which the trade in live stock and dressed meats between England and the United S tates and Canada has grown, is one of the wonders of the age. The statistics of the trade for the past year show that the exports were as follows :

United States Ports.—From Portland—5,097 cattle, 8,464 sheep, 20,572 quarters of beef, and 704 carcases of mutton. From Boston—54,161 cattle, 30,464 sheep, 1,311 hogs, 130,017 quarters of beef, 8,944 car. cases of mutton, and 498 dressed hogs. From New York—40,071 cattle, 9,187 sheep, 275 hogs, 298,635 quarters of beef, 71,837 carcases of mutton, and 16,131 dressed hogs. From Baltimore—3,246 cattle. The total exports from United States ports thus amount to 102,573 cattle, 48,115 sheep, 1,586 hogs, 484,656 quarters of beef, 81,485 carcases of mutton, and 16,629 dressed hogs. Of the cattle, 7,955 were Canadian ; of the sheep 9,465 were from Canada ; and of the beef 35,432 quarters were shipped at Montreal.

Canadian Ports.—From Montreal and Quebec—42,397 cattle and 61,146 sheep. From Halifax 3,888 cattle and 1,676 sheep. Adding the live stock sent through the United States ports, Canada's export amounted to 54,240 cattle and 72 287 sheep, or very nearly one third as many cattle (including those slaughtered and dressed), and about three-fifths as many sheep as were sent by the United States. This is a highly creditable showing for the Dominion, and a very considerable improvement in the amount of the Canadian export may be looked for when the cattle ranches which have been started in the North-West are in full operation.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system ; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physician or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Editorial Brevities.

"It is a noteworthy fact," says the Globe, "that out of ten cities in this Province six have this year elected Liberal candidates to the office of Mayor by popular vote." Why is the fact noteworthy, we should like to know ! The Grits always claim that they do not introduce politics into municipal affairs, therefore they could have gained no party advantage, even were the Globe's alleged fact really a fact, which it is not. A few days before the election it abused Dr. St. Jean, the now Mayor of Ottawa, as a convert to Conservatism, but now, in order to make it appear that a majority of the cities of Ontario have elected Grits as Mayors, it coolly counts the gentleman named as a Liberal. Such tactics are characteristic of the Globe. Had Dominion politics been made a direct issue in the election of Mayors, we venture to say that not one of the ten cities of Ontario would have returned a supporter of Mr. Blake. What, then, does the "noteworthy fact" amount to ?

Mr. F. C. Capreol's wild project—the Huron and Ontario Ship Canal scheme—has been, by the Toronto Board of Trade, declared a thing of the past. The project will hardly be revived again.

The Globe has done a praiseworthy action in sending a correspondent to Muskoka to investigate the extent of the suffering from bush fires amongst the people of that district. The harrowing details of his narrative—which is given in condensed form in other columns—strengthen the reproaches cast upon the Ontario Government for their refusal to take extraordinary measures for the relief of the sufferers.

The Montreal Journal of Commerce says: "The 33,300 tons of pig iron imported by us from Great Britain in 1880 may be estimated worth about 7 millions of dollars. The greater part of this was undoubtedly made from ores of a quality far inferior to those of Hull, Madoc and other places in Canada which are anxiously waiting the establishment of local smelting furnaces, whether by the Duryee petroleum process or some other method. The great impetus given to railway enterprises of late should stimulate our people to renewed efforts at utilizing our own abundant and superior raw materials and thereby attracting to Canada that skilled labor which we now indirectly employ in other countries. The total imports of iron and steel of all kinds from Great Britain to Canada during the period aforementioned was nearly 200,000 tons. The highest in any previous year was 258,743 tons, viz., in 1872."

The Comte D'Eu.

ANOTHER TORY PROMISE REDEEMED.

The steamship Comte d'Eu, the first boat of the direct Royal Mail line between Canada and Brazil, sailing at the West Indies, arrived at this port on Saturday. The Comte d'Eu is a handsome brig rigged steamer of about 2,000 tons register. She brought a full cargo, comprising 7,800 bags of sugar, 1,400 bags of coffee, tapioca, hides, cocoa, etc., etc., the bulk of which is for transhipment over the Intercolonial. She commenced discharging at Richmond wharf at midnight. The sugar is for Montreal and the coffee for Chicago. She touched at Rio Janerio, Bahia, Pernambuco, Ceara, Maranham and Para ; also calling at St. Thomas, W. I. Quite a large portion of her cargo is on consignment, and is sent up for the purpose of opening up trade. Capt. Laperdrix reports having experienced a rough passage. This is his first trip to Halifax. He is enthusiastic about the large trade offering, says he was offered more cargo than he could bring and a large number of passengers, as well as a large local passenger and freight business, which he could not accept. He brought a large mail from St. Thomas, containing many orders for Halifax. He believes that within a year the trade will necessitate a fortnightly boat. The Comte d'Eu sails on her return trip on Thursday afternoon with the Canadian mails. Among her cargo will be fish, flour, grain, lumber and manufactures. A large quantity of samples of Upper Province goods are being sent. The Bahama, of the Cromwell line which arrived last night, brought 1,850 drums and 300 half drums of codfish on a through bill of lading for the Comte d'Eu, for Brazil. The shipment of flour will not be as large as was expected, owing to the fact that Canadian millers have not prepared in time the special kind of barrels required by the trade ; but a large shipment will go by the next steamer—the Tancarville. It is also probable that she will take out a party of Canadian business men and Newfoundland merchants.—Halifax Herald.

A Fish Present from the United States to Canada.

A consignment of German carp, a present from the United States to the Dominion, has arrived at the fish-breeding establishment at Newcastle, Ontario. Professor Baird, of the fish-breeding establishment at Washington, having signified an intention of presenting the Canadian Government with 2,000 carp, Mr. Wilmot proceeded last week to Washington to take charge of them. They were shipped in thirteen large cans, the United States Government paying the cost of shipment to Niagara Falls. Not a single fish out of the entire lot died on the way. There was an equal number of the two species of the German carp—viz.: leather and scale. The former has a smooth covering, very similar to that of the "catfish," while the latter resembles the rock bass. Both are very hardy fish, and it is expected will do well in Canadian waters.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Chatham, writes :—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—An article having appeared in Saturday's INTELLIGENCER referring to my petition now before the Council, I ask your kind permission to make a few remarks in explanation.

In the first place my stables were not entirely burned, the stone remains, so there is only a part of the building to be rebuilt with wood, and that part I promise to paint with fireproof as soon as possible. I think my building should be classed as repairs, but fearing any complication with the authorities I asked the gentlemen of the Council to grant my prayer. It appears by the first part of the article that the authorities are waiting for me to violate the law before prosecuting all others who put up wooden buildings or additions since 1876. In answer to the Police Magistrate's remarks, I would only say that he and I were in the Council when permission was granted to a gentleman to re-erect a wooden stable on his hotel property, Front Street.

Yours, &c.,

JOHN DOYLE.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—When out north of Madoc a month ago, visiting in an official capacity the Townships of Limerick and Cashel, I found that a very important work had been done under the leadership of W. G. Wilson, Methodist Missionary at St. Ola. This brother went there the latter part of July and in the month of August a revival of religion broke out. The work began in prayer meetings, and the result of it is that 100 persons have united with the church and 50 of them are heads of families. The two points favored were Limerick and Cashel, the work going on at both points at the same time, the people having gone into the matter so heartily. So great is the work that one old man said that he would either have to become a christian or leave the nighborhood. Quite a number of men who were very profane and very wicked, in whom the community had almost lost hope of their conversion, were awakened and brought to Christ. We pray that they may all endure unto to the end.

Brother Wilson is energetic, earnest, sociable and ready to put his hand to every good work so that God's work may progress. The work of the Methodist Church has been extended to Beaver Creek, Thanet and Wellaston. There has also been a good work done on the Bancroft mission under the supervision of Bro. W. B. Tucker, missionary at that place. May the work go on and be glorified.

JAMES MCFARLANE.

How the Church was Built.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—Believing that you take a deep interest in church matters, permit me through your valuable columns to give a short sketch of how our church was built. The church I speak of is the Church of England, built on the eighth line of Rawdon, a neighborhood where regular church services have been held for nearly thirty years. The first meeting held in connection with the building of this church was held a few days after Christmas, 1860. At that meeting a site was freely offered by Mr. Philip Brown, jr., and accepted by the meeting, and about five hundred dollars subscribed by those present. Upon the strength of this the committee went to work with a will, and in less than twelve months there was a neat, comfortable church erected and dedicated to the service of Almighty God. Size of main building 35x25 feet with extended chancel and vestry room, also a tower and spire about 50 feet high. There is also a shed 72 feet long. Mr. H. W. Smith, of Stirling, had the contract.

I might just add that it has been built purely by subscriptions. When all is completed it will cost about fifteen hundred dollars. Much credit is due to the Rev. Mr. Godden and the Building Committee for their unceasing efforts to accomplish the object they had in view—none other than the House of God to build. Permit me in behalf of the building Committee to tender their sincere thanks to all those who so liberally contributed towards the building fund, knowing that God loveth the cheerful giver.

ONE WHO HELPED TO BUILD THE CHURCH.

The Ferry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—People no doubt will honestly differ from the writer's view, that there can be no question whatever as to the superiority of the Bushy Island route. Take for the estimated cost of that route. Why it will fall short of $5,000, and the writer is prepared to back up his assertion.

Is it not admitted by all that a bridge would be of greater benefit than any ferry ? And why ? Simply because of the facility given for speedy passage. The nearer you can bring the two counties the greater will be the travel. In making the short trip to Bushy Island all the tedious delays of the longer route would be avoided.

In referring to the other route, Mr. Morden well said : "It is impossible for you to dredge through that bar and prevent the boat grounding in a westerly wind."

The representatives of Prince Edward are men who are directly interested in procuring the best and shortest route, and their views should be respected when they are wisely unanimous in favor of Bushy Island. Is the wisdom of these men and their practical experience to go for nought ? If they, crossing constantly by the ferry, do not know what is the best route, are there any men in Belleville who are in a position to exercise better judgement ? The street cars will gladly run on the west side, and connect with the ferry—if not the writer will undertake to have comfortable and suitable vehicles run from the ferry to the market, and be glad to have the privilege of running them. When the Chairman of Finance and the majority of the Committee chosen by the Council support the Bushy Island scheme, surely no attempt will be made upon such an important subject to get into an unseemly squabble with our Prince Edward friends and to treat their views with contempt.

I am, sir,

Yours very truly,

ELECTOR.

The Unloved Wife

In other columns will be found the first instalment of a new story by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, the famous American authoress. "The Unloved Wife," whilst abounding in exciting incidents, is pure in tone and contains a significant moral. Instalments of this fascinating story will be given daily, except on Saturdays.

MR. JOHN G. CROZIER left town this morning for Toronto. The position in the Crown Lands Department which he has been temporarily filling has been made permanent, and Toronto will consequently be the future home of Mr. Crozier and his family.

AN old shed attached to a house on Maria St. was burned early yesterday morning. The alarm was given and the engines turned out, but the shed was nearly consumed and had been pushed down by poles before they got to work. The loss was very slight.

THE petitions to the Dominion and Provincial Legislatures, praying that the law regarding oaths and affirmations be altered so as to allow infidels and agnostics to affirm in courts of law instead of making oath, which have been circulated in the city, have been largely signed by all classes.

ON Saturday evening Lucas Weese was standing in a saloon door as Policeman Hayes passed, and when the officer had got a few yards beyond the door Weese called out after him in insulting language. The officer turned back, but Weese had run inside. An hour or two afterwards, however, Hayes found him and escorted him down to the the police station, where he remained until this afternoon.

ANOTHER case of exposure of the person occurred last evening, about 7 o'clock near the corner of Bridge and John St. The culprit was a tall, thick-set man with a short sack coat and round felt hat, and with little or no hair on his face. This was the description given by the little girl to whom the scoundrel exposed himself. The police scoured the hill until a late hour last night, but no trace of a man answering the description could be found.

IT is to be hoped that the new School Trustees will be appointed at the Council meeting this evening, as the new Board will meet for organization to-morrow evening.

IT is probable that a large audience will greet M'me. Georgen this evening in the City Hall, and it is more than probable that a rich elocutionary treat awaits all those who will be present. Her programme of readings is well selected and no doubt will be as well delivered.

THE boy Murphy, of whom we gave a description a few days ago, was taken in charge by the Woman's Christian Association and provided with shelter at the Home for the Friendless. But the boy had too long drank the air of liberty to brook any confinement, even though accompanied by kindness, and on Friday last he gave his benefactresses the slip. During his short residence at the home he received kind treatment, good food, a warm bed, and a new suit of clothes.

THE charge of larceny brought by Mrs. Horne against Mrs. Mary Power was up for trial again this morning at the Police Court. A. R. Dougall, Q. C., appeared for the prosecutrix, Hon. L. Wallbridge, Q. C., for the prisoner, and C. L. Coleman for the Crown. The case, was further enlarged till to-morrow for further evidence for the defence, notwithstanding the protest of Mr. Dougall, who claimed that no further evidence could be brought forward after the case had been closed on both sides.

THE new Coleman Ward School was opened this morning. There were 112 scholars present—66 in the First Book, 24 in the Second, and 22 in the Third. It was decided to allow Mr. McKeown to go on with the First Book pupils and let the Second and Third Book pupils go back to the schools which they have been attending until after the meeting of the Board, when arrangements will probably be made for organizing another division in the new school.

THE final meeting of the series which were held in observance of the Week of Prayer, took place last evening in the City Hall. There was a good attendance. Mr. A. G. Northrup occupied the chair, and a number of clergymen of the city had seats on the platform. The exercises consisted of singing, led by Rev. A. Turnbull, prayer by the Rev. A. Campbell, the reading of a chapter from Scripture by the Chairman, and two excellent addresses by Rev. Dr. Jaques and Rev. S. J. Shorey, on the subject of "The Dawn of the Gospel Day."

THE promoters of the City Mission Sunday School are bothered not a little in securing a place in which to hold the school that will meet its requirements. The heating apparatus in the room given by Mr. Rathbun has failed, and the room now used is too small for the purpose. A lot on which to erect a building has been offered the City Missionary, and, if the people desire this work to be carried on energetically, an effort should be made to put up a building, which would serve for the school and other mission services. We would call the attention of those who sympathize with the work to this matter.

FOR several weeks past a series of larcenies have been perpetrated in the Dafoe House, and it was a mystery who the guilty party was. Several employees were discharged from the house, but still articles kept disappearing. A day or two ago, however, one of the employees had a pocket-book containing a sum of money stolen from him, and afterwards found it in the possession of one of the porters named Wm Deffiney, who was arrested yesterday and lodged in the cells. It is now suspected that he is responsible for the disappearance of the other articles. His case was brought before the Police Magistrate this afternoon.

PROF. MACOUN is engaged in writing a book on the North-West, which will be published by the World Publishing Company, Toronto. The work will be a very voluminous one—containing over 600 pages and giving a complete account of the great Canadian North-West; all its topographical, geological, botanical, mineralogical, meteorological, and agricultural features will be fully and accurately described. It is intended as a compendium of useful information of all kinds concerning the vast region of which it treats. No man in the world, probably, is so well qualified by practical and personal experience to write such a book, as Prof. Macoun.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 9.—Lakes, fresh to strong westerly winds, flurries of snow in some localities.

ONTARIO BUSINESS COLLEGE.—The year 1882 witnesses the largest attendance Ontario Business College has had in the 13 years of its existence. All parts of Canada, the United States, and the West Indies are represented.

CITY MISSION SERVICES THIS WEEK.—On Monday evening at Mr. J. Hannah's, Moira St.; Tuesday, at Mr. Cane's, Maria St. near Flint & Holton's mill; Thursday, at Mr. Maxom's, Pinnacle St.; Friday, at Mrs. Reid's, first house east of Mr. Powell's rag shop, Station road. All the services at 7½ o'clock.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECT. — Among the matters which were discussed on Friday evening by Col. Villiers, D.A.G., Major King, Paymaster, and the officers of the 15th Battalion, was the erection of a Drill shed. The lack of a good place for Battalion drill, and the advisability of having a commodious drill shed erected, was urged by the 15th Officers and readily admitted by the inspecting officers, and the latter promised to do all they could at headquarters to secure the end desired. It is not improbable that a drill shed large enough for all the purposes required will be erected during the coming summer. In other respects there are prospects of a bright future for the 15th Battalion. New uniforms have arrived for four companies, and this fact, proving that it is not the intention at head quarters to wholly neglect the battalion, will encourage the officers and men to renewed effort. It is possible that the Battalion will be reorganized, with only four or five companies, but with more men in each company.

Fighting With a Whale.

A SAILOR KILLED, FOUR BOATS SMASHED, AND TWO SHIP'S CREWS BAFFLED FOR HOURS.

(From the Poughkeepsie Eagle.)

Mr. Joseph W. Mead, of this city, is now on board the bark Hercules on a whaling voyage. His ship was off St. Helena on the 28th of October, 1881, from which place he sends an interesting letter to one of his relatives in Poughkeepsie. From it we make the following extracts:—

"On the 6th of June last we raised whales and got them all in favorable positions when we lowered our boats, and in a short time our second mate struck one. In a few minutes after the whale caught the boat about the quarter and completely chewed it up. Mr. Luce, the chief mate, when he saw our signal from the ship, sent a boat and had the crew picked up, took the line and had the whale fast. The third mate also came up and went on the whale three times. The fourth time the whale caught and smashed his boat into firewood. The steerer was killed, but the rest of the crew were saved. In the meantime the boats did not dare to go near the wounded whale, but fired at it from a distance with guns.

"About this time we received help from a ship called the Milton, which sent two boats to the rescue, for we were in a very weak condition. Before you could hardly think it possible, however, the Miton's boats were both smashed, and their crews swimming in the water. They were soon rescued by our boats. The boats hung about the whale until dark, when we cut the line and let the huge monster go. The next morning, however, we saw him again and took another hold of him, and about 5 o'clock in the afternoon we succeeded in despatching him. It was the largest whale taken in this sections for many years, and made us 150 barrels of oil. Its length was 60 feet, and jaws 19 feet."

Ball Lightning in Scotland.

Those on board the Campbelton steamer Kinloch, Capt. Kerr, which left Greenock on its usual run about 11.30 o'clock on Tuesday morning after the storm that raged during the night, had a somewhat extraordinary experience while passing down the Firth. The vessel was enveloped in a dense shower of hail, and for some time it was awfully dark and occasionally the vessel was lit up by vivid flashes of lightning. One of the flashes was very bright, and its shape was something like that of the arteries of the human body, with a central column all shattered and broken. About noon, while opposite the Cloch light-house, and not far from the shore, the Captain observed immediately over the ship what appeared to be a series of clear balls of lightning, and resembling a chain except that they were disconnected. This phenomenon was quickly succeeded by an explosion in the funnel of the steamer and several balls of fire upon the bridge running about and then bounding off into the water. The first impression of the spectators was that something had exploded on board, but on enquiry it was found that this was not the case. The mate stated, however, that a ball of lightning had almost struck him where he stood. A fireman rushed upon deck to see what had happened, as the engine-room was filled with smoke, and a choking sensation was experienced below. The explanation appears to be that a portion of the lightning had passed down the funnel until its force was spent by the fire, and the sudden recovery of the draught of the funnel afterwards accounted for the loud report that was heard. The Captain, in his long experience at sea, never encountered such a phenomenon before, and it may be taken as an indication of the extraordinary atmospheric forces which had been at work during the storm, and which seemed to centre in this locality.—Glasgow Evening Citizen.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

THE CANAL QUESTION.

The Herald's Albany special says that five Senators and twenty Assemblymen have expressed themselves positively in favor of the free canal proposition, and two Senators and eight Assemblymen have declared against it.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

The Times says that representative Belford will soon introduce a bill establishing a Bureau of Mines and Mining, and also a Bureau of Manufactures and a Bureau of Labor Statistics in the Interior Department.

It is said that many thousands of acres of public land in Minnesota have been located for purely speculative purposes under a law which allows claims to be taken only for actual settlement. It is said the provisions of the law have been utterly ignored.

It is reported that the crews of vessels landing at Duluth from the lake have been used to locate claims on which no improvements have been made and on the border adjoining the Dominion. The land is being taken by persons not citizens of the United States. A special agent will soon be sent to Minnesota to investigate. The working force of the land office is inadequate to prevent frauds.

The World says that a distinguished legal authority says there is a statute in the District directing that a sentence of death shall not be executed until thirty days after the beginning of the court succeeding that at which the sentence was pronounced. This would throw the hanging of Guiteau over till May, even if the jury this week find him guilty and the Judge sentence him to death.

Keifer states that the House Committees were constituted with a view to securing practical, useful legislation.

Representative Bayne states that a resolution to take the appointment of the Committees out of the hands of the Speaker and vest it in the House would be supported by the majority of the Republican members, and would be adopted if the Democrats did not vote solidly against it.

The Tribune says: A paper just filed with the President states that of 36 members of the General Assembly of Utah paid out of the treasury of the United States, 32 are high officers in the Mormon church, and 28 are living in polygamy.

Representative Buckner will to-day introduce a bill providing for the gradual retirement of greenbacks and national bank notes, and the substitution therefor of treasury notes. The bill repeals taxes on deposits, and capital stock of banks not issuing circulating notes, and also repeals the tax on bank cheques.

ST. PAUL, Jan, 9.—General Terry reports the Indian outlook in Northern Montana unfavorable. The buffalo are diminishing. The Indians are raiding cattle and ranchmen are organizing.

SMUGGLERS FINED.—The Minister of Customs has fined Hartlaub, Smith & Co., of Montreal, $600 for the last importation of spirits under the head of vinegar, and the same amount for the July importation with confiscation of all the goods, the whole amounting to some eleven thousand dollars. The Minister has released the goods which were sold to innocent parties.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS.

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Belleville, Jan. 9, 1882

There is decidedly better feeling in the barley market, although the street price here is not as yet much affected. A sale is reported in Buffalo of 155,000 bush. No. 1 Canada barley at $1.12. Against such favorable reports dealers here say that it is with the utmost difficulty that they can effect sales and then only in five or ten car lots, and large dealers advise their agents here that prices must be lower to induce them to operate.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

CHAPTER I.

THE SUDDEN SUMMONS.

> Sir Knight, of thy fair courtesie,
> Tell me whether dark or bright,
> Or little loved, or loved aright,
> Is the face of thy ladie.
> E. B. BROWNING.

It was a splendid spectacle, that famous masquerade ball, which was given as the valedictory of the old and the salutatory of the new year, at the opening of one of the most brilliant seasons our national capital had ever seen.

A great war had ended.

A renowned military commander was at the head of our government, with a council selected from among the most eminent statesmen of the nation, and a diplomatic corps of the most distinguished ministers from foreign countries.

Certain illustrious personages of royal rank or lineage—a Brazilian emperor, a Russian grand duke, and a Bourbon prince—were among the transient and highly honored guests of the city.

These, indeed, were but as blazing comets shooting swiftly across the social firmament, exciting admiration and disturbance rather than giving real pleasure and satisfaction.

Besides these, there were gathered at the capital the usual winter multitude of noted politicians, financiers, authors, artists, beaux, beauties, leaders of fashion and queens of society.

These might be called the fixed stars of the period.

Conspicuous among these bright lights of the world, were two who—to carry out our figure of speech—might have been called the sun and the moon of that empyrean; but they were termed—the one the 'lion,' and the other the 'belle' of the season.

They were a gentleman and a lady; both young, handsome, gifted, and one wealthy.

The name of the first mentioned was Tudor Hereward. He was an accomplished scholar, an eloquent orator, a rising statesman, and although but twenty-seven years of age, he was already an able party leader in the national House of Representatives. In person he was tall, fair and stately, with severely perfect Grecian features that were scarcely lighted by the cool, steel-blue eyes, and only slightly shaded by the carefully dressed light brown hair and trimly cut mustache.

His dress—the stereotype suit of the hour—was always faultlessly neat, and even fastidiously dainty.

His manners were reticent, reserved, and very cold, except when he was warmed up in debate on the floor of the House of Representatives, when he would often seem to be transfigured, and inspired with a splendid and burning eloquence. Men predicted for him an illustrious future. He was now, as has been said, the 'lion' of the season.

The 'belle' of the winter was Leda Von Kirschberg, the only child and heiress of Jacob Von Kirschberg, head of the great banking house of that name.

She was a beautiful, stately blonde, with a brilliantly blooming complexion, sparkling, purplish blue eyes, a small acquiline nose, pouting ruby lips, and shining, rippling auburn hair.

Her dresses were the happiest 'inspirations' of Worth and Pingen, and the envy and despair of her rivals. Her manners were at once dignified and gracious.

So much for the social status and personal appearance of the 'lion' and the 'belle' of that resplendent scene and season.

To say that nearly all the young ladies were more or less infatuated with the 'lion,' and that quite all the young men were much more than less madly in love with the 'belle,' would be but a faint statement of the situation.

And that these two pagan idols were sublimely indifferent to their many idolators, and were utterly devoted to each other, was too humiliatingly apparent to all to be questioned by any.

But ah! for 'the course of true love'—if indeed their mutual hallucination could be so called—there was an insurmountable obstacle in the way of its happy termination in marriage.

The belle of the season was a betrothed maiden!

The fact was not generally known, for it had not been ostentatiously announced in the society column of the newspapers, but Miss Von Kirschberg was really engaged to be married to Mr. Nicholas Bruyin, a millionaire, much richer end very much older than her own father.

So you see!

The ancient bridegroom-expectant had not come with the widowed father and motherless daughter to Washington, so that few in the city knew of the great man's existence, and none knew of his relations to the beauty and heiress.

Least of all did Tudor Hereward, her devoted knight, suspect the truth. For if he had done so, be sure that his fine sense of honor would have forbidden him to trespass on the sacred rights of the betrothed lover by too marked attentions to the betrothed maiden.

No! Tudor Hereward was ignorant in seeking and innocent in winning the impassioned heart of Leda Von Kirschberg.

Why she had concealed the fact of her marriage engagement, and why she had encouraged and even invited the exclusive attentions of Mr. Hereward, is, perhaps, not difficult to understand.

In the first instance it was probably nothing more than vanity prompted her to seek to attract and monopolize the attentions of the most brilliant society man at the capital. Possibly she meant no harm at all, and had no ultimate object in view. But she who plays at "flirting" plays with fire.

Before she was well aware of the truth, she had not only captivated the fancy and imagination of the famous young statesman, but she had irrevocably lost, to him, her own vanity-full heart!

But that she had no intention of giving him her hand was soon quite apparent.

Neither had received any intimation of the other's disguise, yet the same subtle sympathy which had directed their costume for the evening brought them together through the immense crowd of maskers that filled all the reception rooms, dancing rooms, supper rooms and conservatories, and overflowed into the halls, balconies, piazzas, and even into the glass-roofed winter garden on the grounds.

Through all of these a kaleidoscopic panorama was perpetually passing.

Kings, peasants, popes, brigands, angels, bayaderes, nuns, sultanas, judges, bandits, chimney sweeps, flower girls, beggars, heathen gods and goddesses, nights and days, and many other antagonisms, jostled each other.

The night of the last day in the old year, the night of the masquerade ball, given by Senator S., in his splendid new mansion in the northwest quarter of the city, was destined to decide their fate.

Miss Von Kirschberg and Mr. Tudor Hereward were, of course, among the invited guests.

He took no character. It would not have been in harmony with his proud, fastidious nature to play any part, or, at least, any conspicuous part in such a harlequinade.

He merely covered his usual evening dress with an inscrutable black domino of fine cashmere, and his handsome face with a black mask of fine velvet.

She—by some subtle sympathy divining his thoughts and intentions on the subject—also eschewed the queens, gipsies, peasants, nuns, and nights and mornings, into which the ladies would try to transform themselves for one evening only, and over her dress she wore a white silk domino, and over her fair face a white mask of satin and lace.

Truly Democratic, Republican and Communistic conventions are rolled into one in your large masquerade ball, which is also chaotic, anarchic, and anachronistic, since it jumbles together all parts of the world, all dates of history, and all ranks of people.

Dazzling light and deafening music were streaming through every window of the crowded mansion when the Black Domino passed out of the conservatory, entered the winter garden, and looked about him.

Here were no lighted lamps, for the moon-shine pouring in through the glass roof flooded the wonderful, beautiful scene with a soft, bright radiance.

The Black Domino stood peering down the lovely walks, bordered with evergreens and hardy roses in full bloom. His eyes were searching for the "swan," as he mentally called a lovely, white form whom he had been watching all the evening, and whom he had seen glide through the crowded room out of the house, and in the direction of the winter garden.

He had followed her slowly and with difficulty, for he could not slip through a "jam" as easily as she had done.

Now, in this freer space and purer air, he hoped to find her.

Nevertheless, he walked down between the hedges of blooming roses, until he saw, in a corner of the rear hedge, an arbor of climbing roses, in the midst of which his eyes caught a gleam of silvery rainment.

He hastened directly to the spot, and found her there.

She was reclining on the rustic seat, and had taken off her mask for air, revealing the fair, proud face of Leda Von Kirschberg.

TO BE CONTINUED.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S

EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

Notes From Ireland.

The Government have resolved to make a large increase in the strength of the Irish constabulary.

A Baronetcy has been conferred on the Right Hon. Edward Sullivan, Master of the Rolls. Sir Edward Sullivan was born in the year 1822 at Marrow.

The Duke of Leinster granted an abatement of 20 per cent, on the current half-year's rent. The abatement is equivalent to a sum of between five and six thousand pounds.

The proposed national exhibition of Irish manufactures was abandoned, in consequence of the want of harmony among the promoters. The question on which dispute arose was whether Her Majesty the Queen should become patron.

After distributing prizes to the London Irish Rifles lately, Sir Garnet Wolseley remarked that although the Irish occasionally gave trouble to their rulers, they were at times denounced in epithets which they did not deserve. Even at the present moment he thought there were more loyal people in Ireland than was generally supposed.

The Shannon River has risen to an unusual height, and inundated many thousand acres of land. Notwithstanding this, the Shannon improvement works at Meelick, below Banahar, in the great auxiliary new channel, are being carried on vigorously. Three hundred laborers are at work. Nearly £20,000 have been paid to the laborers in the last two years by the Board of Works.

In a pastoral letter to the priests of his diocese the Most Rev. Dr. Gillooly directs them to advise parents not to send their children to the meetings of the Children's Land League established in his diocese. His Lordship says:—"You are all aware that the secular education as well as the moral training of the children should be left to those who are duly appointed for that purpose."

An Irish paper is pleased to learn that the reports so industriously circulated, through the medium of the news agencies, with regard to the annoyance sought to be imposed on the Marquis of Drogheda, are greatly exaggerated. A representative of the Irish Times visited Monasterevan, and learned that the statements as to inconvenience being caused in the household at Moore Abbey were simply fabrications. Everything goes on as usual, and the only grounds for the sensational reports set afloat consist in the fact that some farm laborers have been dispensed with.

The Newbridge Harriers, in the spirit of the resolutions passed at a recent public meeting, met at Pollardstown, for the purpose of resuming hunting. All of a sudden they were confronted by a hostile crowd, numbering between two and three hundred persons: armed with sticks, and having a number of mongrel dogs with them. The dogs were let loose on the pack, which were scattered in every direction. One of the harriers was killed, and it is stated that several more are missing. The hunting, of course, was immediately suspended, and the horsemen returned home. The crowd cheered, and said there would be no hunting until the suspects were released.

Possibly in no other town or city would such reckless car driving be permitted as is carried on with the most perfect impunity, and without the smallest apparent interference on the part of the authorities, in the capital of Ireland. One has only to indulge in the luxury of a sixpenny outside, and he may enjoy the fun and excitement of scattering pedestrians right and left as he careers along at the rate of eight miles an hour through even crowded streets. Crossings seem now to afford but faint protection to foot passengers, who are in constant and imminent danger of their lives in attempting to pass from one footway to another. In Belfast and some other important Irish towns, drivers of cars and other vehicles are obliged to pull up at crossings until the way is clear, and they are further restricted to a rate of travel averaging six miles an hour; but in Dublin everything is quite different, the cab and carmen travel at their own sweet will.

A handsome and commodious gallery has lately been erected in the chapel of Kilmurry-macmahon, West Clare, by the Rev. John Wall, P. P., for his parishioners, at the cost of £100. To pay off the debt incurred he proposed to sell the pews by auction, and one Sunday lately he had the auctioneer in attendance for the purpose of putting them up to competition. After the celebration of mass the terms of sale were announced, but did not get a single bid, and the auction was practically boycotted. It appears that Father Wall had sold by private sale to Mr. Francis Gore Hackman, J. P., Kilmore, one of the pews for the use of his servants, and that gentleman and his tenants not being on friendly terms the parishioners demanded that the price of the pew should be given back to him, and that they would themselves pay the cost of erecting the gallery. This Father Wall would not consent to, and the result was that no sale took place.

It is not generally known, but Ireland is rich in mineral stores. Her coal, iron, lead and copper deposits are both extensive and valuable. At Knockmahon, in the county of Waterford, nearly three thousand tons of copper are raised every year. Luganure's lead is a staple quotation is the markets and the Slievordagh and Dulkallow collieries have an output of coal which would not shame some English pits. The great want of this portion of Irish industries is, however, capital; and if absentee landlords would only invest at the of the rents they draw from Ireland in Irish labor, the whole aspect of affairs would be changed in half a generation. Money to develop mining and lay railways down to the sea, where the cheap freight could be obtained, are the first two needs of Irish trade so far as minerals go. This obtained, there is no reason to doubt that second Durham and a second Staffordshire might be founded on the other side of the Irish Sea.

Revolution in Locomotives.

Inventors have shown a disposition of late to depart altogether from the old and seemingly well established general form of locomotive engines. A great many changes have been made in the details of locomotive construction since its early days, but the machine itself still remains the same in general appearance. The Wooten dust burning engines present a somewhat different form, and the Fontaine, with its main driving wheels and most of the machinery above the boiler, is still more novel in the arrangement of its parts, though most of its outline remains the same. Another new locomotive—Dr. Raub's—does not at all resemble the ordinary locomotive, except that it has wheels and a cow catcher. The boiler or boilers extend from end to end. The smoke stack, steam dome, cylinders and driving gear are all in the centre, grouped together under the cab. The purpose of this construction is to get the centre of gravity in gravity in the centre of the base formed by the driving wheels, and to put the motive power also in the centre. If one of Dr. Raub's locomotives should be cut in four quarters, each quarter would be exactly like the other quarters in form and weight. Whether these new forms are practically better than the old remains to be proved by actual work, but it is a good thing for inventors to get rid of the notion that they are bound to follow closely an adopted form or system while seeking to make improvements. Habit, custom, prejudice are so many dead weights on inventive genius. They should not enslave the mechanic, however, though he, more than any one else, needs to know what has been accomplished, and why certain forms have been adopted.

Died of Starvation.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Over the door of a room in the Arcade building, in which the Adelphi Theatre is situated, the name of Rose Brothers, architects, has long appeared. Few people have known the architects, and none have been aware of the extreme state of destitution in which they lived. Examination by J. W. Wells, of the Canal street mission, reveals a terrible state of things. Two men—one about 75 and the other about 70—had lived in the rooms, and for years had been literally buried in a heap of old paper rags and dirt. There they had starved by inches, for fuel or food in the rooms there was none. The brothers refused all offers of aid. Ten days ago one of them died in his chair, and his brother, afraid of disclosing his poverty, hid the death till disclosure was inevitable. To-day the second brother died, the victim of proud poverty, in the hospital. The proprietor of the arcade block, James Mooney, was a delegate to the Chicago Land League convention. He offered his services to the brothers, but they were refused. The Roses were the architects of the building in which they succumbed to starvation.

Sagacity of a Dog.

A Cologne paper records that the owner of a number of rabbits near Barnicu found that for six successive nights one of his rabbits was stolen from the house which he had made for them of a wooden case, which stood a few inches above the ground. At the top of it an opening had been made, about the width of two hands which was closed at night by a board on which heavy stones were laid. The house having then been secured, and as it was found each morning that only one rabbit had been stolen, and that all the rest were quite uninjured, it was considered impossible for a weasel to have effected the theft. It was therefore supposed that human hands had been at work. The owner consequently first made the opening more secure by nailing down one side of the board, and covering it with grass and stones, and then hid himself in order to watch for the thief. At one o'clock in the morning (the correct house breaking hour) he heard a noise at the rabbit house, and was not a little astonished to see two dogs instead of a man on the top of it. One was a large dog of the neighborhood, well known to him, a cross between a St. Bernard and a large wooly Collie, feared by all the other dogs; the second was a stranger, a small terrier, just slender enough to get through the hole into the rabbit house. The big dog, who, on other occasions, never noticed his smaller comrades, had evidently come to an understanding with his little friend about the nocturnal rendezvous. The big dog scratched away all the grass and stones, dragged the board, and let the terrier jump through the hole. The latter returned in a few minutes with a rabbit in his mouth, which he presented to his great friend, and both proceeded to devour their supper undisturbed.

The Apostle of Æstheticism.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Oscar Wilde, the great apostle of the intense, arrived to-night on the steamship Arizona. Wilde is fully six feet three inches in height, straight as an arrow, and with broad shoulders and long arms. His outer garment was a long ulster, trimmed with two kinds of fur, which reached almost to his feet. He wore patent leather shoes, a smoking-cap, and his shirt might be termed ultra-Byronic. A sky-blue cravat of the sailor style reached well down upon the chest. His hair flows over his shoulders, curling slightly upward at the ends. He gave a World reporter a definition of æstheticism, which, says he, "is a search after the science of the beautiful. It is the science through which men look after their relation which exists in the arch. It is, to speak more exactly, the search after the secret of life."

"What are your intentions as to your American tour? Will you lecture?"

"That will depend chiefly upon the recognition which my philosophy meets. I shall lecture in Chickering Hall on the 9th of January, but whether I shall continue my labors will depend upon the results attained."

A Tribune reporter thus describes Mr. Wilde:—His face is oval in shape, and so elongated at the chin as to be almost pointed; his nose in harmony, long and pointed. When he laughs his lips part widely, and show a shining row of upper teeth, which are superlatively white. His complexion, instead of being of the rosy hue so common to Englishmen, is so utterly devoid of color that it can only be said to resemble putty. His eyes are blue or light gray, and, instead of being dreamy, as some of his admirers have imagined them to be, they are bright and quick, not at all like those of one given to perpetual musing on the ineffably beautiful and true. Instead of having the small, delicate hand, only fit to caress a lily, his fingers are long, and when doubled up would form a fist that would hit hard knocks should occasion arise for the owner to descend to that kind of argument. His voice can be said to be anything but æsthetic. It is so far from feminine that it is almost burly, and becomes coarse in laugh, a form of expression which Wilde apparently uses immoderately; at least he did so last night. One of the peculiarities of his speech is that he accents almost at regular intervals, without regard to sense, perhaps the result of an effort to be rhythmic in conversation as well as in sense."

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil

Will be found invaluable for all purposes of a family liniment. Immediate relief will follow its use in all cases of pain in the stomach, bowels or side; rheumatism, colic, cold, sprains and bruises. For internal and external use it has no equal in the world, for what it is recommended. For sale by all dealers at 25c. per bottle.

A General Stampede.

Never was such a rush made for any Drug Store as is now at James Clark & Co., for a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. All persons afflicted with Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can get a Trial Bottle of this great remedy free, by calling at above Drug Store.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

ZOPESA.

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Biliousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

The Season and Business.

The extraordinary mildness of the season, which surpasses in duration even that of 1877-8, has beyond doubt had a bad effect on business, and especially upon that of the dealers in dry goods, furs and clothing. Farmers resident at long distances from the trading centres, who rely on snow and frost to render the rough roads over which they have to travel practicable for heavy loads, have as yet been unable to do their trading, whilst the trade in cordwood, dressed beef, dressed hogs, &c., has been very light owing to the lack of sleighing. Yet there is a vast and highly gratifying difference between the trade of the winter of 1881-2 and that of 1877-8. In the first-named season collections were very small, travellers were unable to sell goods, and wholesalers had to protect their customers' paper as it became due. Now all is different, as we learn from travellers in several lines of business. Collections are prompt, obligations are met at maturity and there is ready sale for the right sort of goods. The Grits may attribute this change of circumstances to what cause they please. Business men and travellers attribute it to the N. P., and in that belief a large majority of the people will concur.

Protection and Prices.

The Toronto Mail has of late become very fond of conundrums. Here is one which our contemporary will not answer: Wages are lower and food is dearer in Germany than in England. In Germany there is a high tariff; in England freedom in both buying and selling. Why is it that Canadian Tory journals always assert that a high tariff increases wages, and yet does not enhance the cost of food and other necessaries of life?—Hamilton Times.

An excellent answer to the Times' first question is furnished by the Philadelphia Times. We quote as follows:—"France is a protected country. It has a tariff that is more rigidly protective than the German tariff; it is in some respects a prohibitory tariff; and France actually carries the principle so far that she pays bounties upon certain classes of exported manufactures, as, for example, refined sugar. Surely, then, if the protective system is wholly responsible for the depression and poverty in Germany, the same system should produce the same results in France. But, in fact, it does not. Next to the United States, also a severely protected country, France is to-day the most prosperous country in the world. Its people are busy, its industries are thriving, it is paying off its debts, and it has just announced that there is in the Treasury a large surplus from the past year. It is clear enough, then, that protection does not 'do so much harm' in that portion of Europe." Besides, the German tariff has not been in operation a year yet.

As to the second query, it is not true that Conservative journals assert that the tariff has not increased the cost of food products. The Conservative press have always contended that the prices of farmers' products, have been enhanced by the tariff, and the free-traders have invariably held to the contrary. Witness the frequent attempts of the Globe and other free-trade papers to prove that the N.P. robs the farmer by depressing the price of every article that he has to sell, and of which the following, from the Ottawa Free Press, is a fair sample:

"The inability of the Government to improve the position of the farmers has been demonstrated. If (the tariff) has increased the cost of everything the farmer has to buy while depressing the price of everything he has to sell."

The Times must not attempt to foist upon the public the arguments of the Globe, as proceeding from its Conservative contemporaries.

Editorial Brevities.

The discussion of the ferry route question continues. There cannot be too much light shed on this important matter. The route that will best serve the interests of the city is the one that ought to be adopted.

The farmers in New Jersey use goats to protect their sheep from dogs. It is said that two goats can drive away a dozen dogs, and two are about all each farmer puts in with his sheep. As soon as a dog enters the field at night the goats attack him, and their butting propensities are too much for the canine, who scons finds himself rolling over and over. The hint may be serviceable in this neighborhood, where numerous sheep are annually killed by raiding canines.

The total average effective strength of the British regular army during the year 1880 was 138,986, composed as follows: Cavalry 51,156; artillery 33,643; engineers 5,551; other arms, 132,276. By ranks, the average strength was: Officers, 7,817; non-commissioned officers, trumpeters, etc. and rank and file, 181,169. The distribution of the army was: In England and Wales, 67,297; Scotland, 4,006; Ireland, 20,584; abroad, 97,009. Respecting the reserve and auxiliary forces, the following figures are given as the total enrolled: Army reserve, class 1, (Jan. 1, 1881) 20,126; class 2, 19,835; militia (date of inspection) 130,331; yeomanry (date of inspection) 11,598; volunteers (Nov. 1, 1880,) 206,537; total 388,427. The militia reserve, included with the militia, numbered 28,666. The total establishment of the reserve forces was 444,170; so that there were wanting to complete 55,743.

The extent to which the duty on grain grown in the United States has assisted the Canadian farmers in the home market is shown by the following comparison of the quantity of grain imported for consumption in the years named:

Oats	672,095	78,867
Barley	128,319	15,155
Corn	4,180,000	1,677,448
Rye	65,414	5,850
Wheat	2,911,111	10,176
Totals	7,959,939	1,788,523
	1,788,523
Decrease in 1880	6,171,416

A Montreal exchange informs us that the beet sugar business in the Province of Quebec has so far proven a great success. The sugar extracted from the beets is abundant and of good quality. The only difficulty connected with the business is that of securing a sufficient quantity of beets from the farmers. Want of knowledge and want of skill on their part has resulted in crops which although equally productive as ordinary crops, have failed to satisfy their expectations. It is in consequence difficult to persuade them to cultivate a sufficient amount land to supply all the requirements of the factories, so that the managers of the latter have not been able to work their machinery full time, and they fear that next year they will not have enough beets to secure to their factories the certainty of being employed during the whole season. A number of gentlemen have associated themselves together to supply these wants. They intend to rent a number of farms on the St. Lawrence and Richelieu Rivers for a period of six years. They calculated to rent six thousand acres, which they intend to farm according to the system of rotation adopted in France and throughout Europe, by which they will secure three crops of beets and one of grain, with two of grass, in the space of six years.

THE COMING SESSION.—The quantity of private legislation that will come before Parliament at the approaching session will be unprecedentedly large. Already the Clerk of the House of Commons has received no less than ninety-nine notices of application for private bills. This is nearly double the whole number received last session and more than any year since confederations. A very large number of the applications are for acts of incorporation for new railway companies, while several are for electric light companies. There is one application for divorce from a man named Gardiner, in the County of Bruce, on the ground of adultery.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Council for 1881 held its final meeting last night.

PRESENT.—His Worship the Mayor, Aldermen Smith, Clarke, Lingham, Holden, Starling, Dickson, Diamond, Vandusen, Dunnet, Durand, Frost, McLinich, Campion, Costello, Petrie, Ostrom, St. Charles, Farley.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS, &c.

The report of the Woman's Christian Association was read, showing that their expenditure on poor during the year had been $707.69, and that they have a balance on hand of $20.21.

The following communication from the Mayor was read:

Gentlemen of the City Council:—

This being the last meeting of the Council that I shall have the opportunity of presiding at your honorable body, and being deeply impressed with the advantages that must necessarily accrue to the city by a more effective system of assessment and equalization, I would again impress upon you the importance of the appointment of an efficient Assessment Commissioner.

It must be obvious to every one conversant with our present system of assessment, that a thorough and radical change is absolutely necessary to a fair and full assessment and equalization of the city.

However well the old system may have answered in the past, when our population and territorial limits were much smaller than they are at present, it must be apparent now that, with larger territorial limits and increased population, the old system is entirely inadequate to meet present requirements.

Past experience has fully demonstrated that no two or three men who are appointed from year to year can become sufficiently acquainted with the details of the business they are called upon to perform, to make a satisfactory assessment in the limited time at their disposal, and for the small remuneration they receive.

I would therefore earnestly recommend the appointment of a permanent Assessment Commissioner, whose duty it shall be to devote his entire time to the assessment and equalization of the city—one who is not only competent to perform the duties pertaining to the office, but one that can be held responsible for his acts.

I am aware that a recommendation at the last meeting of a Council is not a common occurence, and that the opportunity of considering a recommendation at the very close of a Council is out of the question,—and it may also have the appearance of presumption on my part in offering it, but in closing my labors of some seventeen years of municipal work in Belleville, I desire, in the interests of the city to which I am so warmly attached, to leave this last official recommendation as a matter of record behind me, in the hope that my successors in office may deem it of sufficient importance to bring it before the incoming Council for their consideration, and I trust adoption.

Very truly yours,
R. S. PATTERSON,
Mayor.

Mayor's Office, Jan. 9, 1882.

The communication was, on motion of Ald Dickson, received and ordered to be placed on the minutes.

The annual report of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department was read, showing that there is 4,400 feet of good hose on hand; that the engines are in good repair; that a new ladder truck is required; regretting that the re-erection of wooden buildings in the fire limits had been allowed, and acknowledging valuable services from Assistant Chief Commins and readiness of the Council in granting supplies. Also giving a list of fires during the year.

From Wm. Severn, claiming $48 for loss of sheep worried by dogs.

A number of accounts were read.

From Turner & Kerr, for reduction of assessment.

From N. McCoy as to taxes.

The above were referred to their proper Committees.

BY-LAW.

Also a By-law for the appointment of two High School Trustees, to supply vacancies now existing in the Board.—Read a first time.

Ald. Dickson moved, seconded by Ald Ostrom, a motion of thanks to the Woman's Christian Association for the way in which they had administered the fund for the poor and the care which they had taken of the recipients of the Corporation's bounty.

The Mayor expressed his cordial concurrence in the resolution, which was passed unanimously.

BY-LAWS.

Council went into Committee on By-laws. Ald. Costello in the chair.

The By-law regarding carters and other licenses, also that for the appointment of School Trustees—Messrs. T. Holden and Rev. M. W. McLean being appointed—were read a second time.

The By-laws were passed and numbered.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means, Ald. St. Charles in the chair.

The report of the Fire Committee was taken up.

Ald. Dickson opposed the clause allowing the re-erection of wooden buildings within the fire limits. The By-law had been deliberately violated to the knowledge of the police, and ought to have been enforced, as it was a good By-law. They should legislate in the interests of the city, not of individuals.

Ald. Petrie said the By-law had been allowed to become a dead letter, and should be repealed.

Ald. Diamond said permission had been granted to other parties to violate the By-law, and the request of Mr. Doyle should not, in such case, be refused. Mr. Kyle had been permitted to repair his stables, and so should Mr. Doyle.

Ald. Starling spoke to the same effect as did Ald. Diamond.

Ald. Smith urged similar reasons for granting the petition.

Ald. Dickson held that there ought to be a committee of inquiry as to the failure of the police to enforce the By-law.

Ald. Smith said the police had interfered in the case of the erection of a building by Mr. John Bell, but owing to a letter from that gentleman, as to the nature of which he was not informed, the matter was dropped.

The report was then adopted.

The Public Works Committee's report was then considered.

Ald. Holden moved to increase the amount to be paid Mr. Hill for watering the market to $45.

Ald. Starling said Mr. Hill had been offered $45 to water the market and had refused. He had not done the work properly and should not get more than the Committee recommend, namely $30.

The amendment of Ald. Holden was lost.

Ald. Petrie moved to purchase 100,000 feet of lumber from Mr. Sutherland, instead of 50,000, as recommended.—Carried.

The By-law Committee's report was adopted, also the report of the Court of Revision.

Ald. Dickson moved that whatever would have been the unpaid salary of the late City Clerk, had he lived to the 1st of January, be paid to his widow.—Carried.

The Committee rose and reported.

Ald. Dickson moved that the report be referred back for the purpose of striking out that clause of the Finance Committee's report recommending the passage of the account of $5 from the Harbor Master for pea age, &c.—Lost.

Ald. Holden moved that the report be referred back for the purpose of amending the Finance Committee's rep rt to the effect that Jas Hill be granted $45 instead of $30 for watering the market square.—Lost.

Ald. Holden called for the yeas and nays, with the following result:—

YEAS.—Ald. Dunnet, Durand, Frost, Holden, Ostrom, St. Charles, Vandusen—7.

NAYS.—Ald. Clarke, Costello, Diamond, Dickson, Lingham, McInnich, Petrie, Starling, Smith—9.

Ald. Dickson said he had for some time been impressed with the fact that the salary of the City Treasurer was not adequate for the work he had to perform and the responsibility which he had to bear. To pay a small salary to an official who had large sums of money passing through his hands was putting temptation in his way. He moved that the Salaries By-law be amended in order to fix the salary of the Treasurer at $900 instead of $800.

Ald. Diamond opposed the motion. He claimed that the Treasurer's perquisites amounted to a considerable sum. Judging from the work performed by the Treasurer and Clerk, the former official was better paid at $800 than the latter at $1,000. Further, he claimed that the books of the Treasurer were not kept under a proper system, and were not in a good condition.

Ald. Holden denied the statement of Ald. Diamond that the Treasurer's books were not in proper condition. As a practical account, he could confidently assert that the system under which they were kept was a good one and they were in proper condition.

Ald. Diamond asserted that the Treasurer had been in the habit of paying out money without authorization from the Chairman of the Finance Committee.

The motion was carried.

Ald. Diamond called for the yeas and nays, with the following result:—

YEAS—Clarke, Costello, Dickson, Holden, Lingham, Ostrom, Petrie, St. Charles, Vandusen.—9.

NAYS Diamond, Dunnet, Durand, Frost, McInnich, Starling, Smith.—7.

The Salaries By-law was read a third time, passed and numbered, with a clause added by Ald. Dickson to the effect that no official of the city to be allowed to order any supplies without authorization, also that the salaries mentioned in the By-law be made to cover expenditure which may be made for assistance, &c.

The Council adjourned for five minutes and resumed for the purpose of hearing the minutes read.

The minutes being read and approved, the Council adjourned sine die.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR, EDITOR.—Seeing a notice in your last edition referring to the difficulties in the mission work of our city, and being a sympathiser in the work, I would say after having attended many of the Sunday afternoon meetings, especially the Sabbath School, that a building for the purpose is a growing necessity in our midst. There are now 30 to 40 children assembled in a room about 10x15, and it would be a disgrace to the city of Belleville if our Christian friends would not come to the rescue by opening a subscription list immediately for the purpose. I can say from my own experience and that of others that a mission house is necessary in every city, no matter how small. I trust the matter will be taken up by some influential citizen in rescuing the perishing.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.,

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My strength has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JAN 10.

City and Vicinity.

A MEETING of the Board of Directors of the Mechanics' Institute is called for to-morrow evening.

FIVE car-loads of salt from Liverpool arrived here yesterday and were shipped to Hastings this morning.

REV. M. W. MCLEAN and Thos. Holden, Esq., were appointed High School Trustees last evening by the City Council.

A MEETING of the Horticultural Society will be held next Thursday at 2 p. m., in the office of the Secretary, W.J. Diamond, Esq.

MR. GEO. THOMAS has just shipped 39 fowls, chiefly game, to L. J. Hilton, of Fort Collins, Col. Most of the birds were purchased from Mr. Thomas.

DURING the past month 240 car-loads of ties have come down over the Grand Junction, from Foxboro', having been purchased by the G. T. R. from Jas. Nosworthy.

M'ME GEORGEN reads this evening in Picton, to-morrow evening in Trenton, Thursday evening in Deseronto, Friday evening in Napanee, and will return to Belleville on Saturday.

ALD. FARLEY left to-day for Kingston, to complete his military course at the Kingston School of Gunnery, which will be completed in April. He will return on Monday for the organization of the new Council.

REV. MR. SCHUSTER has established a day school in connection with the City Mission and has engaged a small room off Covert's grocery shop, Church St., for a school-room. Already about twenty are in attendance and are taught reading, writing and arithmetic. The school hours are from 2 to 4 p. m. No pupils are received into this school except those who do not and will not attend the public schools.

THE larceny case of Horne vs. Power was on this morning at the Police Court, and was further adjourned till to-morrow. Michael Cogan was fined $5 and costs for being drunk and disorderly. A man named Wannamaker, from Demorestville, was charged with drunkenness, but was dismissed, the Magistrate saying that he would make all allowance for a man who lived in Demorestville. The boy Murphy, of whom we have already written, was brought up on a charge of vagrancy, and was sentenced to five years in the Penetanguishene Reformatory.

SHIVAREE ON A SMALL SCALE.—A Prince Edward man named Post married a young lady named Sproule last week, and the marriage, for some unaccountable reason, appears to have given offence to several parties living near the G. T. R. station. Last night, after the happy couple had gone to their new home (near Bleecker's Corner, about a mile from the G. T. R. station, and just outside the corporation limits), they were visited by about a dozen roughs, who commenced to make noisy demonstrations—shouting, threatening, kicking the door, and letting fly a few stones by way of a gentle reminder. The bridegroom did not fly, but remained at his post—and the bride, of course, stuck to her Post. The police were sent for, and two officers went up. When they found, however, that the house was outside the corporation, they telephoned down asking the Chief of Police (who is also High Constable of the County) for instructions. The party who took the message to the Chief understood that more men were required, and so informed the Chief, who took the only other officer on night duty with him, and hastened up to the station. In the meantime the two officers who had first gone up, had proceeded to the scene of the disturbance, and found everything buried in the most profound quiet. They aroused the bridegroom and inquired respecting the disturbance, and were informed that the visitors had left about half an hour before without doing any damage. Accordingly the preservers of the peace retired in good order, reached the station in time to meet the Chief and Sergt. McCrudden, who arrived just in time to learn that they had arrived too late for the fun. The party walked back to town not a little disappointed.

THE School Board of 1882 will meet this evening for organization.

A MEETING of the Library and Reading Room Committee of the Mechanics' Institute was held on Saturday night, at which it was determined to expend about $100 in newspapers and magazines for the reading room. The library will be stocked with a fresh supply of books, $150 being in hands of the Committee to expend for this purpose. We understand that those who were entrusted with the task of canvassing for new members have been very successful, nearly 60 having already been secured. The prospects for the Institute grow more and more encouraging.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 10.—Lakes, southerly to easterly winds, fair to cloudy, mild weather, followed by rain to-night or to-morrow.

M'ME GEORGEN.—As we anticipated, there was a large audience last night at the City Hall to hear M'me Georgen, the new elocutionary star about whom so much has been heard. The expectations of those who went to hear and see her were naturally raised to a high pitch—higher than they should have been, in fact. The public went to see a second Scott-Siddons, and perhaps some were a little disappointed because M'me Georgen was more like herself—that is, more original—than like Scott-Siddons—that is, a mere copyist. But if the audience failed to see a second edition of Scott-Siddons last evening, they saw an artiste who, though she may not possess the enchanting beauty of face, and the perfectly moulded, supple and exquisitely graceful figure, nor the rich melodious voice, of the more celebrated artiste,—yet has mental qualities which, aided by great physical advantages, will yet enable her to achieve a place in the front rank of readers—and who, if she adopted the stage as a profession, would surpass Scott-Siddons as an actress more than Scott-Siddons surpasses her as a reader. The programme last evening was all given from memory, the reader not being hampered with any book or scrap of paper. This was a great advantage, as it enabled her to concentrate all her thoughts and energies on her work. Without going into the programme in detail, we will merely say that all the selections were given in a truly artistic manner, which denoted careful study as well as the possession of natural dramatic qualities of a high order. The best-rendered selection on the programme was the fine descriptive poem "The Benediction;" her reading of it could hardly be improved on. "The Senator's Dilemma" was well calculated to show M'me Georgen's talent in reading dialogue, and was admirably given—the sudden transition from the romantic and designing Countess to the gruff, matter-of-fact and bewildered Senator being, if anything, more marked and more cleverly done than in Mrs. Scott-Siddon's reading of the same selection. All the humorous selections were excellent, with the exception of "The Mormon Lecture," which is hardly adapted for a reading and needs Artemus' own peculiar drawl and his "picture-show" to illustrate it, to bring out the exquisitely funny points in it as they should be brought out. The only serious fault which was noticeable in M'me Georgen's elocution was a tendency to use the falling inflection too much. She would often allow her voice to fall three or four times in a single line, which not only gave a montonous effect to her reading but sometimes obscured the sense. This, however, is evidently the fault of her training, and will disappear as M'me Georgen advances in her art and relies more on her own judgment. She is evidently a hard-working and enthusiastic artiste, and as she is yet young, there is no doubt that a bright future awaits her on the platform, and a still brighter future on the stage should she adopt what is no doubt the profession for which she is best fitted by nature.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

FEMALE DOMESTICS.—It is understood that owing to the great scarcity of female domestics in the North-West, the Dominion Government is about to organize a scheme for the purpose of encouraging female emigration to that district by means of assisted passages, &c. Should this project fail to meet the difficulty Chinese domestic help will in all probability be introduced.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Finance Committee met last night.

PRESENT.—Ald. Dickson (Chairman,) McIninch, Smith, Petrie, Dunnet, Diamond, and the Mayor.

The accounts submitted by the various committees were passed.

A number of accounts were submitted by Ald. Petrie, Chairman of the Harbor & City Property Committee, which were ordered to be paid. They were as follows :—

E. Tardy, cartage	$1.00
H. B. Rathbun & Son, ½ cord wood for Harbor Master's Office	2.50
Jas. Clarke & Co	6.40
L. O'Brien, livery rig	1.50

An account of $5.00 from the Harbor Master, for postage, &c., was rejected,

An account of $55 from Sylvester Sidley, for attending to the light on the dock during the erection of the lighthouse, was laid over for further information.

An account was submitted for two railway passes granted by the Chairman of the Poor & Sanitary Committee, amounting to $4 50. A slight discussion ensued over the advisability of passing it, as some members doubted whether that official had the power to grant passes. It was finally decided to pass it.

The petition of Luke O'Donnell, asking for the remission of his taxes, was passed.

The account of Jas. Hill, $45, for watering the market square, was not entertained, for the reason that Hill had not watered the market during the whole season. It was decided to give him $30.

An account from the Dafoe House was considered, amounting in all to $13 70, the items being incurred principally by the Industrial Committee. Ald. Diamond having objected to the account on the ground that it was vouched for by the Chairman of the Committee alone, and not recommended for payment by the Committee, Ald. Dickson (Chairman of the Industrial Committee) immediately called a meeting of the Committee—a quorum of which was present—and recommended the payment of the account, which was then passed.

The petition of Mrs. Burden for remission of taxes was laid over for enquiry as to amount, &c.

The account of of John J. Shea, bill posting, $5, was passed, also that of Lake & Jenkins $21.50.

Address and Presentation.

Mr. James Phelan, who for the past four years has had charge of the Public School of West Williams, left there by the noon train on Thursday last. He has been promoted to the Head Mastership of the Belleville Separate School. The day before his departure, his pupils in very large numbers, assembled in the West Williams school room, and read the following address :—

To MR. JAMES PHELAN, Teacher :

VERY DEAR SIR,—It is with sentiments of heartfelt regret that we learn of your intended departure from our midst. During the past four years your untiring zeal for the advancement of education, has won for you hosts of friends amongst all classes and creeds. The spiritual and temporal welfare of us, your pupils, has been the one grand object which you always had in view. The progress which we have made under your able tuition, speaks for itself. Many of us you have lifted up from the cradle of our educational infancy, and leading us on to some at least of the difficult scientific labyrinths, you obtained for us the distinction of having been admitted to the High School. It is true you have been firm and unswerving in enforcing the observance of rule, still your kind and genial manner has endeared you to every one of us. No wonder, then, if we regret your departure from amongst us. However, there is a silver lining to every cloud—your promotion to the head mastership of the Belleville Separate School sheds a bright ray of hopeful joy over the chill cloud of sorrow that now hangs over our school room like a pall on a maiden's bier. Our loss is Belleville's gain. But we cannot allow this occasion to pass away without testifying to you our full heart gratitude. And now, as a token of our esteem and appreciation of your services, we beg of you to accept of this writing desk, as a souvenir of your sojourn in West Williams. Trusting that your life may be long and happy in your new home, we remain, very dear sir, on behalf of the pupils,

Your sincere friends,

KATIE ANN MCDONALD,
MAGGIE KILGALLIN,
THOMAS GLEASON,
ALEX. MCDONALD.

West Williams, Dec. 27th, 1881.

MR. PHELAN'S REPLY.

MY DEAR PUPILS,—Your flattering address would naturally lead one to suppose that you had all kissed the blarney stone. I feel quite unequal to the task of expressing my feelings in a manner befitting this occasion, whose sweet recollections will ever cluster around my memory. For this beautiful writing-desk I thank you very much, for your appreciation of my past services I thank you more, and for your kind good wishes, so beautifully expressed in your address, I thank you most of all. I cannot, however, in conscience appriate to myself all the good things you have said of me. The picture you paint of me is not mine, it is the ideal of what I ought to be, and of what I hope to be before my death knell rings. My past four years in your midst were, it is true, years of duty, but they were also years of pleasure. If I have been firm in enforcing the observance of rule, it was simply for your own benefit. If I have been kind and genial to you, it was because you have deserved such treatment. For this beautiful writing-desk I once more thank you, and when I am far away rest assured I will keep it as a souvenir of the many happy days spent amongst you in West Williams.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Owing to a proposed change in business, has determined to close out his entire stock of Furs at cost. Everything will be marked in plain figures, and no second price entertained. Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. Please remember that this is a genuine sale, and not an advertising dodge. [47d&wtf

MORNING DESPATCHES

AMERICAN.

OFFICIALS INDICTED

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 10.—It is stated that the grand jury found indictments yesterday against Controller Baker and Ex City Treasurer Winans, on account of careless business management.

SHIPMENTS OF PROVISIONS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—In anticipation of an early opening in the French and Continental markets, exporters of provisions have taken hold in real earnest. During the past forty-eight hours the shipments of meats aggregated almost four million pounds. Packers have also sent to Liverpool and other English markets since Christmas large consignments of lard and meats for the continental trade.

DEATH OF A PROMINENT BROKER

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Wm. Seymour, jr., a prominent member of the New York Stock Exchange, died yesterday ; aged 64.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The Herald says that Guiteau says his forthcoming speech will make five columns in the Herald, and as he was leaving court yesterday he handed Porter a sealed letter.

It is understood that the House Committee on Foreign Affairs began yesterday an inquiry into the diplomacy towards Chili and Peru, and determined to ask the State Department for the whole correspondence, only part of which has so far seen light. There is a general demand for the correspondence. The friends of Blaine assert that it will show that Hulbert not merely transgressed his instructions, but entered into various speculative schemes of his own The friends of Hulbert assert that he has done nothing but obey Blaine's instructions, which, they say, were at one time to support the claims of the Peruvian Company at all hazards and get them acknowledged by Peru, and later were to pay no attention to the Peruvian Company's claims at all.

The report of the contingent expenses of the Treasury Department for the last year has been in the Speaker's possession since Thursday. The report covers the last nine months of the time Sherman was Secretary. It is alleged that there are strange charges made under the head of Contingent Expenses which have not been explained before the Senate Investigating Committee. The Speaker refuses to allow anybody to have access to the report.

The Tribune says : Misleading statements have been made regarding the law which, it is was said, would postpone Guiteau's execution four months or more. The law simply makes sure that a condemned man shall have 30 days in which to prepare for death. After an adverse decision on appeal, it will not delay Guiteau's execution unless the trial continue after Jan. 21st, when next general term of Court meets, which seems impossible now.

The Times says ; The introduction yesterday of Cassidy's bill in the House, and Teller's resolution in the Senate, in reference to the Northern Pacific Railroad, are regarded as the beginning of active proceedings which will be taken in Congress for the purpose of restoring to the public 30,000,000 acres of the best land in the United States.

Arrived, the Erin from Liverpool.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

FIRE IN SULPHUR MINES.

SCHMOLNITZ, Hungary, Jan. 10.—The sulphur mines are on fire. It is feared that the flames cannot be extinguished. It is probable the loss will be many million florins.

THE GERMAN EMPEROR'S RESCRIPT.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The excitement regarding the Emperor's rescript is increasing.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The News says that international politics are subject to unfavorable attention on the Stock Exchange. The rescript of the Emperor of Germany is regarded as so unconstitutional as to amount to a revolution from above, while the designs of Bismarck may have behind a cause of uneasiness.

MIDNIGHT RAIDERS ARRESTED.

CORK, Jan. 10.—The arrest of Cornell has led to the apprehension of the entire band of midnight raiders of Mill St. district, of which he was a leader.

GERMAN POLITICS.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The prominent feature in yesterday's debate in the Reichstag. was Bismarck's statement that he regarded the interpellation, relating to the development of of the factory laws, which proceeded from the Clericals, as indicating their intention of supporting the Government. This is considered an open overture for the alliance with he party of the centre,

DAMAGED BY AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

RIFLES AND EXPLOSIVES CAPTURED IN CORK.

CORK, Jan, 10.—A large party of police to-day, on the North side of the city, discovered a case six feet under ground, containing a large number of Snider rifles and a quantity of dynamite, gun cotton and ammunition.

THE GUITEAU CASE—SUMMING UP.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10th.—In the Guiteau trial to-day, Judge Cox occupied 55 minutes in reading that portion of his decision touching upon the question of jurisdiction. He reviewed the progress of opinion, and cited all the important rulings from the early days of the common law of England, and decided against the prayer of the defence He said jurisdiction is complete in the place where the wound is completed, consequently this Court has full cognizance of the offence Judge Cox next took up the question of the legal test of insanity, and decided that a knowledge and appreciation of the difference between right and wrong must be taken as a correct test.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for your selves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

He had not expected this revelation of her identity, and he felt that his presence at this moment might be considered an inexcusable intrusion upon the privacy of the lady.

'Leda,' he said, deprecatingly, as he stood before here and removed his own mask, 'please to pardon my indiscretion, but I have been trying to make an opportunity for speaking with you all the evening, in fact, all the day—but have not succeeded even in seeing you until to-night.'

'Tudor, sit down here for a little while. The rooms were so warm and the crowd so dense that I felt like suffocating; so I came out here to unmask and inhale a breath of fresh air,' she said, as she smilingly made room for him beside her.

'I am very glad you did so! I presumed to follow you. Do you forgive me for my presumption?' he inquired, as he bowed and took the offered seat.

'That depends,' she answered archly. 'How could you know me to follow me? Or were you, perhaps, following an unknown white domino that had caught your flitting fancy?'

'How could I know you?' he repeated, gravely, taking her hand and fixing his eyes on her lovely face—'How could I know you? By the same simple, universal law of nature through which I know myself—for you are my sweeter, purer, higher self! Leda, my queen, do you imagine that any disguise could hide you from my knowledge? My heart would always recognize you, Leda!'

'Oh, Mr. Hereward!' she murmured in a low, distressed tone, whose meaning he could not have perceived, for he went on to plead.

'I have been seeking you for many hours, my love, my queen! Not to tell you in set speech that which my whole life in your dear presence has been telling you ever since we first met, and in that meeting recognized each other! Ah, lady mine! Ever since that sacred moment of meeting and mutual recognition, I have been tempted to believe in the old heathen myth, that man and woman were originally one being; but that Jove, in a rage, cleft them in two, leaving the halves to seek each other sorrowing through all the ages! To seek in vain—as we see by all the mismatched couples in this lower world—except in such happy cases as ours; for, sweet lady, I have found my completion in you and you yours in me. And we know it now!'

'Oh, Mr. Hereward!' she moaned in an almost inaudible tone.

'This, dear Leda, I have not followed you here to tell you that which you feel and know so well, but only to ask your permission to speak, at once, to your good father and invoke his blessing on our betrothal. But even this I scarcely need to mention—for surely I know I have your sanction for it.'

'Oh, Mr. Hereward! Pray, pray do not talk to me in this manner!' she moaned, in agitation, as she withdrew her hand from his fond clasp and covered her white face.

He gazed on her in surprise and uneasiness, yet scarcely taking in the full meaning of her words.

'But why? Why may I not speak to you in this way? Why, Leda? Why?' he inquired trying to take her hand again.

She drew it away as she faltered:

'Oh, Mr. Hereward! Because—because we are only friends! And we can never be more to each other than friends! Though I hope,' she added pleadingly, 'that we may always be just such dear friends as we are and have been! Shall we not?' she prayed, dropping her hands and raising her eyes appealingly to his stern set look.

He met her glance, he gazed on her white cheeks and trembling form, fixedly, incisively, with incredulous amazement and indignation in every feature of his firm, handsome face, for no part of her previous deneanor towards him had prepared his mind for this unexpected repulse.

'Miss Von Kirschberg, how is this? It cannot be that I hear you aright!' he said.

'Ah, yes, you do! Mr. Hereward! You hear me aright,' she sighed.

'And we can be no more than friends?' he said, drawing in a hard breath. 'Is this true?'

'Oh, yes Mr. Hereward! It is true! And it is heart-breaking!' she moaned, in a voice full of tears.

'Leda! In the name of Heaven! What do you mean? Explain yourself. I implore you?' he prayed, in an agony of sorrow, anxiety and confusion.

'I mean—I mean—Oh, Tudor! My heart is broken!' And she dropped her head on her bosom and again covered her face with her hands.

'Leda! Leda!' he cried with anguish.

'Oh, Tudor! Our friendship has been so precious, so delightful to me! And—and—all our communion has been so improving, purifying, elevating to my soul. I am so much less vain, selfish and frivolous than when you first met me, the spoiled child of fortune. Our precious, delightful friendship has saved and redeemed me! And—and—I pray that I may enjoy it forever. But—but—it must be only friendship,' she said, while heavy, sobbing sighs shook her bosom and streams of tears forced themselves through the slender fingers that covered her face.

'Leda!' he exclaimed, in bitter pain, 'you knew my love! my hopes! my aspirations! And you led me on and on to the brink of this humiliating overthrow. Ah! how cruelly and bitterly you have deceived me!'

'Oh, do not reproach me! Do not break a bruised and aching heart! If I have deceived you it was because I first deceived myself. What knew I of my own untried nature? Nothing, or next to nothing—when we first met!'

'Leda! Leda!'

'Let me speak! You have charged me and you must hear me!'

'Speak then! Defend your conduct if you can do it!'

'We met by chance in general society, we did not seek to meet. We knew nothing of each other until fate brought us together. Then we were mutually pleased. Oh, how natural! Our tastes, sympathies, opinions, were in harmony. We seemed to belong to each other. We became better friends, more intimate companions. It was inevitable.'

'And deplorable,' muttered Hereward, between his set teeth.

She continued:

'I found your society so precious, improving, delightful! I saw no harm, no danger or disappointment in the enjoyment of it. And so—and so—I drifted—drifted into caring more for you than I had any legal or moral right to do! Ah, do not blame me for deceiving you, my friend! I first so fatally deceived myself!' pleaded the lady, in heart-broken tones.

'I do not wish to blame you, and I will not do so—if I can help it. But, Leda, in the name of Heaven, what do you mean by saying that you have no legal or moral right to care for me—'

'As I do and as I must care, for I cannot change my heart, though I can govern my conduct.'

'But you do not answer me—'

'Oh, Tudor! Tudor! How shall I tell you that—that—before I came down here—I was—was betrothed to Mr. Nicholas Bruyin,' she faltered, in an almost expiring voice, as she raised her arm and hid her face behind the wide flowing sleeve of her domino, as if shrinking from the eyes of her lover.

'Mr. Nicholas Bruyin? Son, or grandson of the great financier, I suppose.' he said, in a low, cold, hard tone.

'The 'great financier' (as you call him) himself. He has no son or grandson. He is a bachelor,' she explained, in a steadier voice, for now that she had told the worst, she was beginning to recover her self-command.

'The great financier himself!' exclaimed Tudor Hereward with a bitter laugh.

'Yes,' sighed Leda.

'Why, he must be at least seventy years of age!'

'He is seventy-one.'

'Quite old enough to be your grandfather.'

'Quite old enough.'

'And this, then, is your lover, Miss Von Kirschberg!' he said, in bitter irony.

'My betrothed husband,' amended the young lady.

Tudor Hereward broke into another harsh laugh.

Leda Von Kirschberg bowed her head in humiliation.

'And no disparity of age, no uncongeniality of habits, no incompatibility of mind should have been cause sufficient to prevent the thought of such unnatural and degrading betrothals!' he said, in stern condemnation.

'No,' she answered, sorrowfully. 'No, and now it is too late to remedy the evil. For with us children of the Fatherland betrothal is held scarcely less sacred and binding than marriage itself. So, you know, I am compelled to marry the aged man.'

'Good-by, Miss Von Kirschberg,' he said coldly, as he arose to leave the arbor.

'Oh, Tudor!' she pleaded, clasping her hands and raising her eyes to his face. 'Do not go away in anger! Do not condemn me utterly! Listen to me! Hear my defence yet farther! When I was betrothed to Mr. Bruyin I was but a child, ignorant of myself, despite my twenty years. He was my father's dearest friend and our most frequent visitor, and—'

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland, July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil. R. McKENZIE, M. D., Surgeon Betts' Cove Mining Co. Newfoundland.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendant annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

My Dear Sir,—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. English and Foreign Snow Birds.

The English birds are more domestic and familiar than ours; more directly and intimately associated with man; not, as a class, so withdrawn and lost in the great void of the wild and the unreclaimed. England is like a continent concentrated—all the waste land, the barren stretches, the wilderness left out. Wood birds here are house and garden birds there. They find good pasturage and protection everywhere. A land of parks, and gardens, and hedge-rows, and game preserves and a climate free from violent extremes—what a stage for the birds, and for enhancing the effect of their song! How prolific they are, how abundant! If our songsters were hunted and trapped by bird fanciers and others, as the lark, and goldfinch, and mavis, etc., are in England, the race would soon become extinct. Then, as a rule, it is probably true that the British birds, as a class, have more voice than ours have, or certain qualities that make their songs more striking and conspicuous, such as greater vivacity and strength. They are less bright in plumage, but more animated in voice. They are not so recently out of the woods, and their strains have not that elusiveness and plaintiveness that ours have. They sing with more confidence and copiousness, and as if they, too, had been touched by civilization. Then they sing more hours in the day, and more days in the year. This is owing to the milder and more equable climate. I heard the sky lark singing above the South Downs in October, apparently with full spring fervor and delight. The wren, the robin and the wood-lark sing throughout the winter, and in midsummer there are perhaps three times as many vocal throats as here. The heat and blaze of our midsummer sun silence the most of our birds. On the other hand, there are certain aspects in which our songsters appear to advantage. That they surpass the European species in sweetness, tenderness and melody I have no doubt, and that our mocking-bird in his native haunts in the south surpasses any bird in the world in compass, variety and execution is highly probable. That the total effect of his strain may be less winning and persuasive than the nocturne of the nightingale, is the only question in my mind about the relative merits of the two songsters. Bring our birds together as they are brought together in England, all our shy wood-birds—like the hermit thrush, the veery, the winter wren, the wood wagtail, the water wagtail, the many warblers, the greenlet, the solitary vireo, etc.—become birds of the groves and orchards, and there would be a burst of song indeed.—The Century.

Chameleon in Fable.

The name 'chameleon' is derived from two Greek words signifyng 'ground lion,' a name singularly inappropriate, since it is one of those creatures which are specially fitted by their organization to live in trees and which are comparatively ill at ease when on the surface of the earth. It is by no means surprising, however, that this creature should have attracted the attention it has attracted, such is the singularity of its appearance and the peculiarities of its habits and properties. Neither is it surprising that it should have occasioned many errors and superstitions when we consider the erroneous beliefs current among ourselves with respect to our own toads and glow worms, efts, etc. Pliny tells us that it lives without eating or drinking, and though generally an inoffensive animal, becomes terrible in the dog days. He also adds, on the authority of Demetrius, that it has the power of attracting to the earth birds of prey so that they become in turn the prey of other animals, and that its head and neck when burned on oak charcoal, will cause thunder and rain to occur simultaneously. On the other hand he rejects as fabulous the Grecian belief that its right leg, cooked with a certain herb has the power of making a person invisible; that the thigh of its left leg mixed with sows' milk will induce gout if the boot be rubbed with the compound, and that a man may be made to incurr the hatred of all his fellow citizens by having his ... posts anointed with a mi... meleon's intestines and the r... of the ape. Aldrovandus informs us on the authority of older writers, that a viper passes underneath a tree, in the branches of which a chameleon is perched, and the latter will let fall some of its saliva upon the viper, which is thereby killed, and he further tells that elephants sometimes unwittingly eat chameleons among the leaves of trees on which they feed, and that the meal is a fatal one unless the elephants have recourse to the wild olive as an antidote.—Nature.

England.

The London Society for the abolition of Compulsory Vaccination says that vaccination, while being of questionable utility for preventing small pox, retards all improvement and discoveries in the treatment of the disease.

Additional precautions have been taken for the security of the late Prince Consort's mausoleum at Frogmore since the discovery of the sacrilege committed at Balcarres Castle. The contents of Frogmore would indeed be worth a King's ransom.

A recent judicial decision in England recognizing all persons hiring a room in a house and holding a latch key as being under the terms of the last Extension of the Franchise in Towns Act, entitled to a vote, will add tens of thousands to the English voting lists.

Some British shipowners have begun to man their vessels with negro seamen exclusively, the officers alone being white men. They take them at the same wages as ordinary English or foreign seamen. Those who have tried the experiment state that they find colored men as good sailors as Europeans, and that they are more docile and less inclined to run away.

The sale which has been arranged, so far as amount was concerned, of the Duke of Westminster's beautiful seat of Cliveden, overlooking the Thames, to Mr. Levi Lawson of the London Telegraph for over a quarter of a million sterling, has been cancelled. The Duke refused to part with the place, and the reason given is that he objects to the tenant, although offered more than the commercial value of his property.

At Hatfield House, in England, the other day, William Dimmock, a laborer was assisting in laying a telephone wire when he slipped from a wall, and in falling took hold of a wire used in connection with the Brush lights which are in operation at Hatfield House. He was immediately killed by the electric current. The medical evidence showed that death arose from shock to the system, causing paralysis of the heart.

A London paper says:—"The expense which has to be incurred by a Lord Mayor of London is now so great that we are not likely ever again to see any man allowing himself to be elected twice to fill the position, even if the livery desired to confer that honor upon him. Sir Francis Truscott's year of office cost him £20,000 over and above the £10,000 allowed by the Corporation for expenses, and Mr. McArthur's outlay will not amount to much less.

The British Government has granted permission to the German Union Telegraph Company to use Valentia as a connecting point for the submarine cable which it is about to lay from Emden to unite Germany directly with the Anglo-American system of wires from England. Most of the shares of this company are held in England, and an English firm of telegraphists have contracted to lay the cable from Emden to Valentia, which it is expected will soon be ready for the transmission of messages.

Æstheticism has reached its climax in Oxford, says the London World. A fancy dress party was given there, not 100 miles from Jesus College, the other night. Amongst the company, which consisted of undergraduates, most of the leading æsthetes figured. The host wore a charming dress representing the Lady Sapphir from "Patience." A lank and limp youth looked very classical as Camma, from Mr. Tennyson's "Cup." Among other dresses were a Leander and a Grenicheux. Music and dancing were kept up till midnight.

When Goldwin Smith last returned from England, he announced that he should never return, but he is back again. He has comfortable private means. His father was a leading practitioner in medicine and surgery at Windsor, and helped to bring into the world most of the young ladies and gentlemen around the royal borough. The son went to Eton and thence to Oxford, where he became a fellow of University College, while Dean Stanley, also a Fellow, was tutor. A fastidious dyspeptic, and fine classical scholar was Goldwin Smith's reputation in college.

Queen Victoria signified her intention last month of conferring the Victoria cross upon Surgeon Edmond Baron Hartly, who displayed conspicuous gallantry in attending the wounded under fire in Basutoland, South Africa. One of his acts is well worth recording:—During the attack on Moirosi's Mountain he proceeded into the open mountain under a heavy fire and carried in his arms from an exposed position a wounded corporal. While removing him to a place of safety the corporal was again wounded, although the surgeon remained unharmed. The surgeon then returned under a severe fire to dress the wounds of other men of the storming party, and remained until the work was completed, though the fire at the latter part of the time had become furious.

Those who pass from Kensington northward through Palace Garden find themselves on a private road on which are some of the finest mansions in London. Conspicuous among these is Baron Reuter's with its four towers, to one of which the telegraph wires converge, and it is the Baron's favorite amusement to take a guest up to his telegraph room and ask him from what part of the world he would like to get a message. But near the Kensington gate is a red brick house, a couple of stories high, with a little green in front, and a billiard room at the side, and here it was that Thackeray (who built the house out of the profits of his American lectures) lived the last peaceful and easy years of his life. From him it passed into the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Bravo, the stepfather and mother of the young barrister so mysteriously poisoned a few years ago near London.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try its virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

ZOPESA.
(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Biliousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 11.

Iron Manufacture.

We learn with pleasure that at length there is a flattering prospect of the location in this city of an iron smelting establishment, which will be of large capacity and operated by a company possessed of ample capital. The Company (chiefly composed of influential capitalists resident in the United States) for the incorporation of which, under Canadian laws, Alderman Dickson has given notice, has been incorporated and organized under the laws of New Jersey. The organization in Canada will be completed within the next few weeks, and then the location of the works will be decided upon. That Belleville will be chosen is almost a certainty, as the advantages which the city possesses have favorably impressed the promoters of the enterprise.

A Comparison.

The Opposition are very fond of asserting that free-trade England has made more rapid progress in the development of the cotton and iron industries than any other country. The Moncton Times, with its usual ability, traverses this statement and shows conclusively that the claim put forward by the Canadian free-traders is not well founded. Our contemporary says: "It was only while other countries adhered to the Free Trade theory also that England's progress was more rapid than theirs. She had the start of other nations in these industries, and she had cheap coal and iron ore with which to work. In order to place themselves on an equality as regards the conditions of success it was necessary that they should protect their infant industries until they should become strong enough to stand competition. The industrial statistics of Great Britain and the United States show that the latter have made great strides under a Protective tariff. The growth of the United States cotton manufacturing industry, during the last ten years, has not only been relatively greater than that of Great Britain, but actually greater, the growth having been much in excess of the increase of population. And with regard to iron the stimulating effect of protection, both on production and consumption, is clearly shown. The returns show that in ten years the production of the United States in iron, as the result of Protection, has increased more, both relatively and in quantity, than that of Great Britain; the consumption of iron has increased more, both proportionally and actually, in the United States than in Great Britain; and the consumption of iron, per capita, is now as great in the United States as in the United Kingdom. The effect of Protection on consumption is, perhaps, the most striking thing in these comparative industrial statistics. Many free Traders, while admitting that Protection stimulates production, make pathetic appeals on behalf of the consumer, and assert that consumption is greatly lessened by the increased cost of the protected goods. The reverse, however, is shown by the facts. In ten years the annual production of iron in the United States has more than doubled, having increased from 1,911,608 tons to 4,295,414 tons. The British production, in ten years, has increased only 16½ per cent., or from 6,627,179 tons to 7,721,833 tons. During the same period the consumption of iron more than doubled in the United States, having increased from 3,190,573 tons in 1871 to 6,407,754 tons in 1880, while the consumption in Great Britain increased but fifteen per cent., or from 3,457,960 tons to 3,934,562 tons. The details of the tables are even more significant as to the effect which Protection is having. The American consumption of iron ore for 1880 was, for example, fifty per cent. greater than that of any previous year in the decade, while that for Great Britain was less than for 1876, 1877 and 1878. The per capita consumption in both countries, in 1880, was 225 pounds, but promises to become much greater on this continent under the protective tariffs which prevails here."

Editorial Brevities.

The London Advertiser professes to be a sort of semi-religious newspaper, but it often fails to remember the teachings of scripture. It berates the N. P. for failing to entirely remove poverty from the land, forgetting that the scriptures tell us "The poor ye have always with you."

An eminent firm of London, Eng., solicitors, have issued a writ out of the High Court of Justice, Queen's Bench division, and sent it to the sheriff of Carleton to be served upon a resident of "Ottawa, Carleton, Ontario, in the State of Canada, one of the United States of America." And yet the advantages of Canada as a field for Englishmen to emigrate to, and her importance as the brightest gem in Britain's crown, are being specially brought before the people of the mother country at the present time.

in the assessment, and these will never be corrected under the present system of appointing men who are not in every case well qualified for the discharge of their duties, whose salary is too small, and whose time is too limited to do much more than copy the blunders of their predecessors.

"Will the Conservatives stand by their tariff?" asks the Montreal Herald. Has not the Herald read the Globe's sneaking reporters' report of the Conservative Convention at Toronto? At that meeting a series of resolutions, embodying the party platform, were adopted, and one of the planks was unswerving adherence to the tariff.

Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, after the failure of his attempt to secure election to the Board of Education, published a letter in which he questioned the propriety of a Government official occupying the position of School Trustee. Mr. Anderson's business partner, who is also a Government official, has been appointed to a similar position, and he can now argue this question with his partner: "Whether is it more objectionable for an appointee of the Dominion Government (which has nothing to do with educational matters) or an appointee of the Ontario Government (which has all to with educational matters), to occupy a seat at the Board of Education?" We are quite sure that the senior partner of the firm—who by the way ought to be a useful member of the Board—will be able to overcome the scruples of his junior.

In his speech at Watford on the 5th inst., Mr. Mackenzie said:

"A great many manufacturers and some wholesale merchants were under the impression that if the Liberal party returned to power there would be an immediate reduction of the scale of duties to their old level. That would be a course which no Government should take. Interests created under the tariff would have to be regarded, and there would have to be a gradual return to the sound policy of a revenue tariff."

Mr. Mackenzie also told the farmers that the tariff was a very bad thing for them, so that it can be seen how consistent the ex-leader of the Opposition is, and what reliance can be placed in his promises. It is a matter of certainty, however, that Mr. Mackenzie's party will not have the opportunity of altering the tariff for a good many years to come.

Ameliasburg Correspondence.

AMELIASBURG, Jan. 10th 1882.

The past week has been a very quiet one.

Sleighs were all the go on Saturday, but the rain on Saturday night and Sunday has left the roads in as bad a state as before.

For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the term, we will state that, the board pointing over the new road at the upper ferry on which "No thoroughfare" is printed means that the new road running from the front road to the woods is not a public road and is liable to be closed at any time by the owner.

The ministers are busy with their Missionary work now. The Rev. Mr. Jewell, of Consecon, will preach the sermons at the following places on Jan. 15th: Massassaga 11 a.m. Centre 2:30 p.m. Rednerville 6:30 p.m. The following week, meetings will be held, Monday night Rednerville; Tuesday, Centre; Wednesday, Massassaga. Deputation, the Chairman of the circuit, W. Blakely Esq., Cherry Valley, and Rev. Mr. Jewell.

Steps are being taken by the Grange to make a shipment of barley.

Wm. Mercer, Esq., a long resident of the village of Rednerville, intends starting with his family for the North-West in the spring.

Jas. H. Peck did some fast skating a few days ago. His place being about three miles from Belleville, he went over the distance in 12½ minutes, and returned home in the same time.

Mrs. John Yott, of Rednerville, has been suddenly bereaved through the death of her sister, Mrs. Eccles, of Wolfe Island. Mrs. Eccles was a widow aged 50. Mr. Geo. Lott and Miss Dora Lott left her two weeks ago in very fair health and had only reached home when the sad news was sent. A son and daughter are left motherless, who have the heartfelt sympathy of many friends in this hour of sorrow.

A large emigration to Manitoba is talked of here. About every tenth man you meet is for Manitoba and the North-West to seek his fortune, in the spring or sooner. Strong inducements no doubt will be held out by American sharpers, as usual, to persuade many of these to settle in Dakota. Ye who may be thus seduced, hear what Mrs. Minaker, daughter of Lewis Redner, of this place, has to say of Dakota during her short stay there: "We were just sitting down to tea on the 27th of June. The heavens suddenly became darkened, as if a heavy rain storm was approaching. Suddenly a heavy blast came against the windows. Hailstones, the size of large hen's eggs, soon smashed every pane of glass. The wind swept the dishes off the table, carrying dishes and table and everything else before it. A large ash-box, 2 ft. by 3 ft. full of ashes, was carried about ten rods, the cattle were lacerated in great gashes, the crop was clipped off as if by a scythe, the poultry all killed, and the roof of the house raised about three inches, whilst I and my children escaped being beaten to death by taking refuge in the pantry. The tornado was about half a mile wide and lasted several minutes."

The many friends of Walter Herrington will be pleased to learn that he is gradually improving. He is stopping at home and has been accompanied during the holidays by a couple of fellow students, who have given him their unremitting attention since he was hurt. The attachment of college ties are strong, as thus illustrated, and by the fact that a couple of other students voluntarily held out their arms while the physician cut pieces of flesh therefrom to engraft in Walter's legs and feet, which in all probability saved him from being crippled for life. Such examples of heroism are certainly commendable and worthy of at least a passing notice. Again: Walter tells us that an old man of 60 years of age rescued him from the burning building when he lay buried under the ceiling which had fallen upon him, while the front part of the ceiling, which rested still upon the front wall, was tottering above his head and fell in about half a minute afterwards. Less worthy acts have received a recognition from the Humane Society, and why should these go unrewarded?

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

The Ferry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—The important matter of Ferry communication between the city and Prince Edward is one that demands immediate action. It is conceded by all who are capable of forming an intelligent opinion in the premises, that there is nothing with which the material interest and general prosperity of the place are more intimately identified; and certainly no private or sectional considerations should for one moment be allowed to influence a decision. It is pitiable if now, as is rumored, such considerations are in any way hindering what long ago should have been actively taken in hand by the City, namely, the establishment of more rapid communication and lower rates.

Grand schemes for increasing the trade and augmenting the business of the town, in the way of factories and tall chimneys, appear to be constantly flitting before the vision of many of our citizens, while here what is tangible and real, and what we may lay hold of at any time if we will, is yet left in abeyance from month to month and year to year, while we indulge in day dreams, building castles in the air, imagining blast furnaces, cotton mills, &c., looming in the horizon.

Tradesmen, mechanics, hotel keepers, professional men, property owners, each and all are more deeply interested in this matter than many of them seem to be aware or are willing to admit. With speedy communication, low fares and popular management, such an impulse would be given to the traffic from Prince Edward as would astonish those who are ignorant of what might be brought about. The business of the city would be most materially increased, all would be greatly benefitted, and the value of property enhanced.

Belleville is undoubtedly the best market for the greater portion of the neighboring county, and the wealthy farmers of Prince Edward recognize this and are knocking at our very doors. Do let the city act in this matter in such a manner as any business man would in the management of his own affairs, in a common sense, practical way. Leaving all little side issues out of the question, aim directly at the object to be attained: the establishment of the greatest amount of traffic possible. To secure this, adopt what will be for the Prince Edward people a popular route, fix popular fares and arrange for popular management. Though our neighbors do choose a route which some of us might not prefer, yet let them have their choice, for in consulting their interest and wishes we only advance our own prosperity. They seem unanimously to desire the shortest water route, which is said to be in the neighborhood of Bushy Island. If, then, the voice of the people we want to trade with us calls for Bushy Island, let the terminus by all means be there, especially as it will be cheaper to run the ferry on the shorter route, and the approaches to the dock will probably cost much less than by Mill Island.

To advance such flimsy reasons as are usually put forward against this route is sheer trifling. It is, for instance, the utmost folly to argue against it on the ground that pedestrians with baskets of eggs or butter would prefer being landed at the market, or that it would be less convenient for ladies of the city who would like to take an airing on the ferry, or for young gentlemen who want to go to Ferry Point to see a man. Pedestrians with baskets, if landed on this side, will get to the market at all events, and the object of the ferry is not to satisfy pleasure seekers, unless it be incidentally. Let the city awake up to the importance of the matter.

In reply to Salesman, who wanted some light about the Hungerford Cheese Factory, I say the report was put in all right. $30.70 was the average price for the 6 months, clear of all expenses, April or November cheese not being included. We made two dividends in the six months, and some of our patrons got as high as $33 35 per Standard. If Salesman gives me his name, I will inform him either by letter or through your paper, what our average price was per lb, also our running expenses.

Montreal Telegraph Company.

THE ANNUAL REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS—THE LOSS BY DEFALCATION, &C.

The statement of the Montreal Telegraph Company just published shows that the transfer of the Company's lines and offices was made to the Great North-Western August 17, and that little difficulty has been experienced in the transfer. The loss by the defalcation of the late treasurer is placed at $8,497. Reference is made to the judgment given in the case of Low against the Montreal Telegraph Company and the deduction is that the appeal "at any rate will give time to consider what course it will be best to take." For the seven months ending June 30th 1881, the revenue was $283,160; expenditure, $222,538, a surplus being available of $60,631, out of which had been paid in July a half-yearly dividend of 3 per cent to the extent of $60,000. Active assets, $72,115; inactive liabilities, $35,180; inactive assets, $2,164,779; inactive liabilities, $2,000,000: capital stock and excess of assets over inactive liabilities, $164,769. Total apparent surplus, $200,960.

Hop Markets.

The hop market in Utica has not been active the past week, though showing some hint of the awakening which commonly follows the first of January. The large purchases in Waterville tend to raise the prices, but dealers see nothing in the London market to warrant advance and brewers have certainly brought more hops than for many years past and it would seem must be better stocked. They claim, of course, to be amply supplied and some are willing to show their stocks. There has been a little picking up in the call for hops for export, though the London advices report a sluggish market. There have been about 225 bales of hops bought in Utica, during the week, at prices, for good qualities, ranging from 20@23½c. Only one lot was brought at 23½c. Growers are quick to take advantage of any sign of raise. The holiday week was about the same thing, though from 25 to 50 more bales appeared to have been bought. The fortnight's transactions are under 500 bales.—Utica Herald.

The holiday trade of New York dealers with brewers was better than was anticipated, and exporters have taken some lots, though they are sending more hops abroad than they are buying. The exports are lighter than last week. The Produce Exchange Weekly reports a definite improvement in brewing inquiry and a rather better export demand. For the week ending January 6, the receipts in New York were 1,002 bales and exports 923. Dealers' selling prices are from 25@30c.

CROSSING THE ROCKIES.—A despatch from Ottawa on the 29th says: It has now been definitely decided that the Yellow Head pass route through the Rockies for the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be abandoned, Mr Rodgers, one of the Syndicate engineers, having found three other good passes either of which is available for railway purposes and one of which will be adopted. Bow River pass is the one most favored by Mr. Rodgers. It is further announced that an easy and practicable pass has been discovered through Selkirk range, which the Government engineer stated was impassable. The line by Yellow Head pass will be abandoned and a route very near the 46th parallel of latitude selected instead, but Kamloops will be the centre of the railway system in British Columbia."

REVENUE FRAUDS.

Fraudulent Doings by Montreal Liquor Importers.

THE FIRM FINED ELEVEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The Minister of Customs.

MONTREAL, January 7.—The Minister of Customs has arrived at a decision in the case of Hartlaub, Smith & Co., whose importation of spirits under the fraudulent pretence of vinegar was seized by Mr. O'Hara, deputy collector for this port. The parties mentioned have been fined six hundred dollars, and the nineteen hundred and two demijohns of alcohol and vinegar have been confiscated. They are also condemned to pay the same amount of fine, making $1,200 in all, and the value of the consignment of July 27, 1881, which the firm admitted was brought in under similar circumstances to the last. The actual penalty, therefore, the firm suffers for their nefarious practices will exceed eleven thousand dollars. Taking into consideration that innocent parties had either paid or advanced money upon the goods included in the entry with those that were contraband, the Minister justly and commendably exercised the perogative vested in him, and allowed these goods to be transferred to the legitimate owners. The balance, amounting to about three thousand dollars' worth, will be retained as security until the six thousand two hundred dollars for the July consignment and the fines are paid. Messrs. L faibvre & Co., in whose warehouse the goods were stored, had a narrow escape from losing three thousand dollars which they had advanced on the empty demijohn portion of the importation. The decision of the Minister had given universal satisfaction in commercial circles here, in fact to everyone but the parties who have been carrying on the systematic fraud upon the Customs. It was probably one of the most difficult and trying questions that has ever come before the department for judgment, as so many interests were involved. The Minister had in the first place to consider the due protection of the revenue; next, adequate punishment for the violation of the law; thirdly, the claims of the innocent merchants who paid their money in a legitimate manner without being cognizant of any fraudulent practices being attempted; and, lastly, to leave no doubt upon the minds of the honest merchants of the city that the unfair competition to which they had been subjected by unscrupulous parties would be stamped out by the severity which the department would mete out to those who were proved guilty of such impositions. All these questions have been decided in such a satisfactory way as to command the respect of all, and the conclusion arrived at proves beyond all doubt the present Minister's extreme fitness and adaptability for his high position. There were politicians here who hazarded opinions that such a decision would not be come to, but that the matter would be passed over and the goods returned. Their predictions have signally failed, however, and strict justice has been meted out. The heavy penalty inflicted will have a wholesome and lasting influence upon all who are inclined to take advantage either of their fellow-traders or the Government.

—Sir John Holker, M. P. for Preston (Eng.), will succeed the late Sir Robert Lush as Lord Justice of Appeal.

THE ONTARIO STEEL ASSOCIATION.—We were this morning shown a letter from Mr. T. G. Hall, stating that the Ontario Steel Association had been organized, with himself as President, H. M. Clay as Vice-President, and G. H. VanVleck as Treasurer and Secretary. The Company have bought all Mr. Hall's steel patents and all others necessary to make steel of all kinds. They have also acquired eight hundred acres of iron land, including the Hobson and Richardson mines. "We propose," writes Mr. Hall, "to make all the steel we sell, and ship it to the States, and sell all the iron ore we can. We intend to have a large steel plant somewhere in Canada and to gobble up the market in steel. I have just got this thing in a nutshell and I know we can make two millions per annum on steel alone with a capital stock of three millions, without counting the ore we can sell and the wrought iron we can make and sell." Mr. Hall further announces his willingness to resign the Presidency of the Association in favor of some good straight Canadian who can manage the business. The application of the letter is to the effect that it is extremely desirable that four or five hundred thousand dollars of the stock of the concern should be raised in Canada, and that the place where the plant is to be located should become directly interested in the works.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. The New York Cheese Market.

The market for cheese in New York has continued firm, sustained by a good home trade, the increased demand of exporters and the small stock of cheese in sight. Holders believe the situation warrants advance in price. They are securing full rates, especially for finer qualities. Strictly fancy cheese appears to be nearly all gone, and the demand for poorer cheese is sustained by reports from western centres, which represent their supplies as low on account of large shipments west and south. But little is therefore expected to come east. The exports for the week were 25,687 boxes, the receipts having been 26,759. The previous week ending January 1, the receipts were 24,815.

The New York quotations of importance are as follows. Thirteen cents is easily obtained for fancy cheese, either white or colored, of which there is very little to be found.

State factory, fancy	12¾@13
State factory, choice	12¼@12½
State factory, prime	11½@12
State factory, fair to good	10 @11¼
State factory, ordinary	9 @ 9½
Ohio cheddar, fine	12 @12½
Creamery, part skims, choice	8½@ 9
Creamery, part skims, fair to good	7 @ 8

The Liverpool quotation is 54s. for summer and 65s. for September cheese.

Belleville, Jan. 10, 1882

The receipts of grain for the past few days have been liberal, and all wanted at quotations.

Barley is on the "boom," it having advanced from 5 to 7c per bushel in Oswego the last few days, with prospects of still going higher, and is in good demand here for shipment to both Buffalo and Chicago. Buyers here are on the move, and offering better prices, although they are very reticent about naming a price until they get the seller to make an offer to sell, when they close the purchase. We would not be surprised to see 90c paid here before the next 10 days if the advance continues in the United States. In fact we hear of offers to contract now at 85c for large lots.

Wheat is quiet and nominal, and sells for home consumption at $1.25 for fall. Spring scarce and firm, at $1 35, and all offering is bought readily at that price.

Rye—not much coming in—is in active demand at from 75c to 80c.

Pease are also scarce and wanted at 80c. Very few offering.

Oats in good demand for home consumption, and are taken at 40 to 42c.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (10 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'The richest as well as the oldest and ugliest man of your acquaintance,' sneered Tudor Hereward.

'He was kinder to me than any one else in the world, except my dear father,' she continued, disregarding the sarcasm, or seeming to do so, 'and I was grateful to the old gentleman, and was even fond of him, as children are fond of an old uncle, or a grandfather. And so to please him and my father I consented to become his wife. How should I have known any better?'

'Will you permit me to say good evening to you now, Miss Von Kirschberg?' he demanded, icily.

'No; for it is not my fault that we part at all—and not my wish that we part in this way. Oh! Tudor, have some consideration for me. I have given you all that I could give—more, indeed, than I had any sort of right to give. I have given you all my society since I have been here—all my friendship since we first met. Oh! my friend, do not part in malice from me. Do not quite abandon me. Do not, after lifting me somewhat above self and the world, do not leave me to sink again into their perdition. Though we may be no more than friends, still let us be friends. Oh, Tudor! shall we not be friends as we have been?'

She was wringing her white hands together and pouring her whole soul through the violet splendor of her eyes that were raised tearfully, prayerfully to his.

He was standing before her, regarding her firmly, sternly.

'No, Miss Von Kirschberg,' he answered, coldly, 'we can not be friends, such as we have been! There is a plain piece of folk lore among the country people of my old home to the effect that—'Friendship sometimes turn to love, but love is friendship—never!' I believe the proverb to be true. As for me, I am too much in earnet for such trifling. I cannot be merely a friend of the woman to whom I have given my whole heart. I must be her husband, or a stranger to her!

'Ah, Heaven! Ah, Heaven!' moaned the lady, pale with sorrow, "Even the friendship that could be no sin—even the friendship that might be my salvation is denied me! Oh, why should this be?'

'Because, Miss Von Kirschberg,' he answered relentlessly—'I do not belong to this new school of sentiment and philosophy! I am a plain countryman, an old-fashioned Christian, one who holds the marriage bond to be a very sacred thing, and believes that the wife has no right to cultivate a sentimental friendship with any man except her husband, for that such a deviation from her allegiance would be both sinful and dangerous.'

'Oh! would to Heaven!' she cried, clasping her hands in the earnestness of her aspiration—'would to Heaven I might have been your—'

'—Hush, Miss Von Kirschberg! Do not finish that sentence! It is better left incomplete!' he said in his stern integrity.

'I was only about to add that if I had had the complete happiness of being your wife, I should not then have needed the friendship of any other human being! I should have been perfectly satisfied with your love alone!' And she ended with a sobbing sigh.

'Then you had better not have said it! I am sorry that you have. Again—Good-by, Miss Von Kirschberg! I hope you may be happy.'

And he turned to leave her.

'Stay! Oh, stay!' she implored, laying her white hand on the sleeve of his domino.

'What can I do for you, Miss Von Kirschberg?' he coldly inquired.

'Promise me that you will not let any memory of me mar your life—'

He looked at her curiously, but did not speak.

'Promise me,' she continued, "that you will some time marry and forget me!'

If this speech was a ruse to get at his present thoughts and feelings, it was a vain one. If she expected to hear him protest that though he left her and repudiated her friendship, yet he should never be able to forget her, and certainly since he could not marry her he should never marry any one—if she expected to hear him say this, she was much mistaken and deeply disappointed, for he laughed lightly and answered:

'No! I shall cherish morbid memories to mar the life for which I am responble to the Lord. I shall probably, in time, marry some true-hearted young woman, whom I shall endeavor to make contented. Yes, I shall marry, if only to raise another bar between myself and this my first romance, and—I hope my last folly, upon which I now turn my back forever! Once more, good-night, Miss Von Kirschberg,' said Tudor Hereward, as he walked away.

His mind was full of conflicting emotions—of wrath and pity—for the bowed and wretched woman he had left behind, and whose heart, when divided between love and lucre, had given her deliberate choice to lucre.

He went on through the winter garden, towards the illuminated house, from which music still pealed, and through which crowds of gayly and fantastically dressed people still passed.

He entered through the conservatory, and then, without waiting for the supper, at which the guests were expected to unmask, without even taking leave of his host or hostess—for not knowing what characters they had assumed or where to find them, he could not have done so—he left the house and bent his steps towards his hotel.

It was yet so early that the hotel was still open.

As he passed in through the office the clerk called to him.

'A telegram waiting for you here, sir.'

Tudor Hereward reached his hand for the message, without the slightest misgiving. He was in the habit of receiving telegrams, generally on political affairs.

He tore open the envelope of this one, and took it to the gaslight over the clerk's desk and read as follows:

CLOUD CLIFFS, W. V., 9 p. m., Dec. 31, 18—.

TO THE HON. TUDOR HEREWARD,——Hotel, Washington City: Your father is very ill. He begs you to come home at once. LILITH WYVIL.

Tudor Hereward stood very pale and still while his eyes were riveted on the lines before him.

Then, with a start, he rallied himself and went to the desk and wrote the following answer:

WASHINGTON CITY, 11:13 P. M., Dec. 31, 18—.

MISS LILITH WYVIL, Cloud Cliffs, Frost-hill, W. V.: Yours just received. Will leave for home by 12 M. train.

TUDOR HEREWARD.

He dispatched this by the messenger boy, ordered a carriage to be at the door in fifteen minutes, and hurried to his room to pack his valise.

saying that less than half an hour afterwards to care for meard was seated in a Pullman the mountain regions in West Virginia, whither we must precede him.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Cole's Great Circus was lately wrecked on its way to Kansas City. After it arrival there, a Kansas City Times' reporter found John Sawbright, its veterinarian, rubbing the injured animals with St. Jacobs Oil. He said it was the best remedy known for injuries to horses, and was so very clean to use.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering

"Brown's Household Panacea" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful," "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 264ly

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Cruelty to Animals

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil

Will be found invaluable for all purposes of a family liniment. Immediate relief will follow its use in all cases of pain in the stomach, bowels or side; rheumatism, colic, cold, sprains and bruises. For internal and external use it has no equal in the world for what it is recommended. For sale by all dealers at 25c. per bottle.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle. 264ly

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

ave recently published a new on of Dr. Culverwell's Celebra-say on the radical and per-(without medicine) of Nervous Debility and Physical Incapacity, mpes to Marriage, etc., resulting from cess nt in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangers of internal medicine or the appliance of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply and radically.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a loose preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "loose preparation," but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides many day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, etc., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION with IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does from in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or purulent matter like secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the nervous system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time; if not of too long standing. It is warranted to GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no need to suffer from any distressing Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians have consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

New Finds at Pompeii.

Correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette.

I was anxious to see what was doing at the new excavations, but I knew that the best things would be at once transferred to the museum at Naples, so I went there first. I found one room entirely devoted to the newest frescoes. There are about five pictures, averaging four feet square, each full of quite romantic interest; some of these have only been there a few weeks, and none of them are yet labelled. The colors are fresh, the drawing is equal to most things in the Royal Academy, and the effect of these buried relics of the first centuary (A.D. 79) so suddenly lifted into the daylight of 1881 is, I confess, a little ghostly. I should not have been surprised on turning round to find a Pompeiian of the arrested life of the period looking over my shoulder at some of his old haunts. One of the largest pictures gives a sort of a birds-eye view of the theatre at Pompeii, with a wild beast fight going on. You look down upon the arena from some height. You also command a view of the street with the passers by and a few booths, from one of which a thief has stolen something and is making off. The warning, or exact warning, is half drawn over the top of the theatre, as far as I know, the only contemporary representation of the thing ever discovered. We know that sailors were employed to stretch a similar veil, supported by masts over the top of the coliseum, but exactly how the thing was managed I believe has puzzled antiquarians. They may get a hint from a closer inspection of this amazingly vivid bit of contemporary history. Two long flights of steps outside enable the spectators to reach the top seats without going inside the theatre. This is surely an admirable idea, worthy of our imitation. The next day at Pompeii I puzzled over the ruins of both theatres. I could not make out where these external stairs could have been placed. In the painting they rise from a public square, but the temple of Isis is built close against the big theatre, and the small theatre is also completely hemmed in by houses. Is it perchance the theatre of Herculaneum?

A large painting of a sleeping bacchante, nude, watched by a satyr, might have been designed by Etty in drawing, color, and perspective; it is a masterly study, showing besides a great feeling for landscape painting, which, for some reason or other, the ancients are not supposed to have carried for; but the more we conceive of pictures know of them the more evident it is that they knew quite as much about color and drawing as they did about sculpture. Look at Pygmalion and Galatea in other wall, or Mars and Venus and a capital study of Europa mounting the Bull surrounded by her maidens. All these are highly decorative, show a perfect sense of vigor and freshness of handling that many a modern artist might envy. The new find in bronze is an exquisite seated statuette figure of "Abundantia," about a foot high holding a patera, or cup; her chair is adorned with horns of plenty, and the pressure of her body and the set of her drapery over the cushion on which she sits is so realistic that one expects to see her move upon her chair or rise at any moment. Beside her is a slave boy, in backward attitude, about a foot and a half high, pouring wine into a cup. This is also new.

I visited Pompeii next day and went straight to the diggings. The only wonder is that anything is ever dug up at all; the process is ridiculously slow, even for Italy. The directors sit all day on the rubbish heaps smoking, and dozens of children file up and down with their little baskets of earth, while a few idle peasants shovel up a few lazy spadefuls at a time. Still, the finest thing I saw was the side of a dining-room, uncovered only a few days ago. On one side was a bright picture of a fine cock and hens in a great state of excitement over a large basket of grain and red cherries, all upset. Landseer could not have done it better. The fondness of the Pompeiians for birds, beasts and fishes is very apparent, and always seems to lend to dining. The wealth of cooking apparatus in the museum is astonishing. You have saucepans perforated with countless holes, in most elaborate patterns, every conceivable kind of boiler and caldron, casts for jellies, representing the prostrate hare and the sucking pig; ladles, spoons, skewers, dishes for roasting six eggs or a dozen eggs at once, toasting-forks, griddles, and fancy machines for pastry and delicate confectionary, what in Elizabeth's day were called "conceits". In Pompeii itself the oil-pots and wine-jars, whence let out, and of mosaic work of colored marble, are among the quaintest features of the ruined shops. I saw in another new part a fine dining-room, found three months ago, with some of the liveliest animal paintings imaginable. The first section of the walls all round represented the boldest scenes under the sea—a conger struggling with an octopus, a shark pursuing its prey, a shoal of fish flying through the water, all glittering and fresh. The middle section dealt with birds and wild animals, hares, quarrelling, diving, and the upper and largest section gave fierce hunting scenes—a horse pursued by a lion, an ox in desert scenery springing upon a tiger, and all these were set in scenery of great force, variety, and character—woods, rocks, rivers, and green hills. The corridors and ante-rooms of this house are equally rich, the walls copiously vignitted with figures—dwarfs on stilts, street scenes, animals. In one room there is a perfectly white suite of marble steps to nite, leading to a fountain. The whole thing stands as though finished yesterday, without a soil or chip or scratch.

They seem now to be coming to some of the richest houses, and have broken into the outer court of one in which stands a beautiful fountain cupola and niche of elaborate mosaic work, representing god and goddesses in the deep blue heavens half veiled with fleech clouds. The house is still imbedded under 30 feet of earth; but if this is the backyard what must the halls and corridors be? The plan now adopted is to leave as much as possible in situ. Specimens repeated themselves, and it is needless to go on removing similar mosaics or frescoes, of which there are plenty in the Naples museum. As a rule, therefore, all the latter excavations are more interesting than the old ones, because they have been left unspoiled of their treasure. I should like to spend a week at Pompeii every year, if only to watch the uncovering and revel in the new finds.

Truly Remarkable.

THE CASE OF CHLOE ANN VIOLET, WHO STARVED HERSELF TO DEATH IN SIXTY DAYS.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 8.—Miss Chloe Ann Violet, who started out on a starvation fast under the belief that she was obeying a command of the Lord on the 5th of November last died at the residence of her mother, on Queen street, last night about 12 o'clock, having lived without taking food of any kind for sixty days. This case is remarkable from the fact that is is the longest known. There is a well authenticated case of a lady of New York State fasting forty-seven days, dying at the expiration of that time. Miss Violet, although emaciated, retained consciousness and talked freely, indeed cheerfully, up to the time of her death. She was thoroughly impressed with the belief that her time had come, and that the Lord desired and commanded her to abstain from all kinds of food. She believed further that to do fasting would be safe passport to heaven, and the gates of the Golden City would be thrown wide open to her, but that to die in any other way would be disobedience to the command of the lord, for which she would have to suffer in the next world. For 60 days she cheerfully acted out this delusion, her only regret being that she allowed herself to be induced to abandon her first attempt, some years ago, to starve herself to death. She had not taken a particle of food of any kind since the 5th of November last, not even medicine would she take, fearing that her life might be prolonged thereby. Her father, Mr. Robert Violet, died from an overdose of laudanum, and her brother Albert Violet, drowned himself in the river about 10 years ago. Miss Violet was highly respected by all who knew her. Every effort, force and persuasion were used to make her give up her wild purpose, but without success.

An Ape as a Detective.

Since the dog of Montargis played so important a part in the conviction of his master's murderer, few of the inferior animals have distinguished themselves so conspicuously by furthering the ends of justice as has an observant ape, whose intelligent conduct on a recent tragical occasion entitles him to universal admiration and respect. This very superior simian belonged to a travelling troupe of performing monkeys, five in number, and was at one time with his proprietor and colleagues in Southern India, when the company was attacked by robbers on the road to Sarrata. While these miscreants were slaughtering the impressario and four members of the troupe, the fifth contrived to evade their grasp and to scuttle up a lofty tree, from the topmost bough of which he watched their subsequent proceedings. Having plundered the manager's corpse, they hastily interred it with a view to avert the discovery of their crime, and made off. No sooner were they out of sight than the sagacious ape descended from his post of vantage, and hastened to the nearest human habitation, the inmates of which, laboring folk, he induced by beseeching gestures and plaintive cries to follow him to his master's grave. It appears that the police authorities of Sarrata have retained the ape's services, in the confident expectation that a quadrumane, who has already given such shining proof of his detective abilities, will render them invaluable assistance in tracking and identifying his dead master's assassins.—London Daily Telegraph.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Bette' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, I can certify that it has always found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

ruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and morbid appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to shading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

ZOPESA.

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Living Image, ing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER; makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Biliousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 50 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 12.

The City's Poor Fund and its Administration.

There is nothing that teaches like experience. When it was proposed in the City Council that the administration of the City poor fund should be entrusted to the Woman's Christian Association, the proposal encountered a good deal of opposition. After some weeks of consideration, the proposal was finally carried out, and in May the ladies entered upon the arduous duties which they had voluntarily assumed, the first payment from the City Treasury on that account having been made to them on the 17th day of that month. The result of the year is now before us, in the form of a report which was presented to the City Council, and that the result of the experiment has been eminently satisfactory, we propose to prove by comparing the expenditure under their auspices with that of former years. For the purpose of comparison, then, we take the six years previous, which afford as fair a basis as could be desired. The figures are as follows, in each case including the amount unpaid on the first of January following, as shown by the Auditor's report:

1876	2,386 89
1877	3,566 35
1878	2,736 04
1879	2,489 39
1880	4,068 44

The figures for the six years have been taken from the Auditors' reports—those for 1881 from the Treasurer's books. The total for the six years previous to 1881 foots up to $17,263.30, or an average of $2,877.22 per annum. The annual grant of $300 to the Home for the Friendless is included in the expenditure for each year since the establishment of the institution. Of the $2,400.32 (exclusive of the grant to the Home), disbursed on account of poor relief for 1881, the amount expended by the Woman's Christian Association during the nearly eight months of their administration was but $707.69, and in addition the municipal authorities paid $95.50 for passes whilst that body administered the funds, making the total expenditure under the auspices of the ladies $803.19, and they have on hand $129.21. The expenditure for the first four months, under the direction of the Council was, therefore, $1,410.17, not including $408.58 spent in payment of accounts from the former year. Under these circumstances, then, we are safe in assuming that, had the administration of the poor fund remained in the hands of the Council, at least $500 more would have been disbursed than was expended, and to that extent at least are the ratepayers the gainers by the unselfish labors of these benevolent ladies. Further, there will be no after-claps—no unpaid accounts remaining to swell the expenditure of the coming year.

But not only has the sum of a least $500 —we are inclined to believe nearly double that amount—been saved to the taxpayers, but the really deserving poor have been more effectually cared for than ever before. The host of drones and lazy, worthless characters who, under the former system, drew a considerable amount from the City treasury, have been got rid of. They were chiefly women, who could humbug men with false stories of a pitiful character, but could not so deceive their own sex. The incorrigibles who desired to seek fresh pastures have been deported from the city, and as a result of the weeding-out system has been most salutary in all respects. These are results which every one can appreciate, and it is but small praise to the noble, self-sacrificing ladies who have, by their constant exertions achieved these ends, to say that they deserve the thanks of the entire community, no portion of which will join more heartily in thanking them than the needy ones to whose wants they have ministered in a true spirit of Christian philanthropy. It is to be hoped that they will continue in the good work.

To complete the record which the figures above quoted voice so forcibly, we append a statement of the expenditure by Wards made under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Association:

Samson Ward	$126 75
Foster "	249 74
Baldwin "	38 77
Ketcheson "	6 85
Bleecker "	44 40
Murney "	158 07
Coleman "	63 11
Total	$687 69
Boof for distribution in December	20 00
	$707 69

The total amount received from the City Treasurer was $836.90, which would leave a balance on hand of $129.21.

The account for the whole year will therefore stand as follows:

EXPENDED BY THE COUNCIL.

Poor relief, Jan'y till May.	$1,410 17
Railway passes	67 98
Unpaid accounts from 1880	408 58
	$1,876 70

EXPENDED BY THE LADIES.

Poor relief, May to Dec. 31	$707 69
Railway passes	95 50
Home for the Friendless	300 00
Balance on hand	129 21
	$1,232 40
Total	$3,109 10

Editorial Brevities.

The sapient Montreal Herald is informed that Mr. Mowat is styled the "Little Premier" not because of his bodily stature, but because of the smallness of his Government, as compared with that of the Dominion.

Mr. Mackenzie told his hearers at Watford that his party, if successful in the general election of 1883, would respect interests created under the tariff. The Globe asserts that every industry in the country could be carried on as successfully under the old tariff. Evidently Mr. Mackenzie does not agree with the organ.

The Toronto organ of the free-traders, with the object of showing that prices in Toronto are lower now, as compared with Chicago, than in 1878 gives a comparison of prices in the Toronto market on September 13th, 1878, with those of January 4th, 1882. The Hamilton Spectator shows the unfairness of the comparison by saying: The 12th of September is an improper time at which to make a comparison. The harvest of the previous year has at that date been exhausted, and the new grain has not come in. Local millers will bid high, and sometimes extravagant, prices for grain to keep their mills employed. We therefore substitute October 15, 1878 and compare prices of that day in Toronto and Liverpool with prices on the 15th of October, 1881. In the middle of October our grain is coming in freely and prices are steady, while the condition of the English crop is also well known. We take white wheat for our comparison, the value of spring having materially changed in Ontario in the past few years:

	Toronto.	Liverpool.	Liv. highest.
Oct. 15, 1878	$0.83	$1.43	55
Oct. 15, 1881	1.33	1.60	27
Increase	45	17

The Globe justifies the suppression of the obstructionists in the British House of Commons, and concludes an article on the subject by saying:

But when a party, which is after all an insignificant minority of the House of Commons, deliberately resorts, session after session, to the policy of obstructing the progress of business under cover of the rules of the House it is time for some means to be provided for putting down the obstructionists, and this is in the interest of real freedom of speech and action.

Had the same means been adopted to end the obstructive tactics of the Grits on the Pacific Railway question, what a different tune the organ would have sung.

A crusade against polygamy has been commenced in the United States. Evidently the "peculiar institution" of Utah will soon follow that of the Southern States.

Marmora Correspondence.

MARMORA, Jan. 7.

Mr. S. Johnston, long a popular resident of this township, now residing in Nelsonville, Manitoba, has unfortunately met with a sad accident, having fallen and broken his leg and also is suffering from pneumonia.

During the past year nineteen deaths have occurred of persons in this township, besides other inhabitants elsewhere.

Mr. G. H. Rowe has left the village school and accepted a call to the head mastership of the Oshawa public school at $450 per annum.

The rural schools have so far only been able to obtain a partial supply of teachers. The year begins as follows:—S. S. No. 1, Mr. J. O'Donnell, teacher; S. S. No. 2, Mr. M. Thompson; S. S. No. 3, Miss Fleming; S. S. No. 8, Mr. Johnson, teacher. Sections 4, 6 7 blank.

Mr. D. Kelly has obtained a contract from A. F. Wood, Esq., to get out a large quantity of railroad ties.

The anniversary Tea of the Marmora Methodist Church, was held on Dec, 29th, but owing to the heavy rain the attendance was limited. An eloquent address was delivered by Rev. J. McFarlane. They were indebted to some of the Stirling ladies for so greatly adding to the entertainment of the evening, by their genial gift of song. Recitations and readings were given by the pupils of the Public School, and Mr. Rowe. Proceeds $40, to be applied on circuit funds.

A social was held also in the Town Hall on the 31st Dec., in aid of the same fund. Attendance limited. Vocal and instrumental music provided by the Marmora ladies. The proceeds were $20.

A tea-meeting was held at Blairton on Dec. 26th, the edibles and music provided by the ladies, as usual, were first class. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. Laidlaw, Chaplin, and Pattyson. Some beautiful solos and instrumental duets were given by the Misses Aunger. Proceeds $40, to be applied on circuit funds.

MADOC TOWNSHIP NOTES.

The first tea meeting in connection with the opening of the elegant and commodious brick B. C. Church on the El Dorado was held on Dec. 24th. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity, so that standing room even was in a short time not to be obtained and many persons had to go away without getting in at all. Adresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. G. Dunkley and J. McFarlane, vocal and instrumental music by local amateurs, including some instrumental duets rendered remarkably well for such youthful musicians by the Misses Richardson. The proceeds amounted to $100. The dedication took place next day, when an eloquent and impressive sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Hennor.

The rural schools, or part of them, are this year supplied as follows:—Hart's section, Mr. H. Miller, 'ast in Rupert's section; Tummelty's section, Mr. H. Wood, of Madoc village; Blakely's section, Miss E. Robineon.

W. H. Tummelty, Esq., who about a year ago suffered so disastrous a loss by the burning of his barns and outbuildings, has replaced them by elegant and commodious buildings, as follows:—One barn, 36x62, well painted, containing also a stable underneath for 24 cows and other animals, besides room for a large quantity of roots; a drive house, painted, 32x46; also a fire proof brick granary with a capacity for storing 2,000 bushels of grain.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

"Free Trade in Libel."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—For the disgraceful distribute in Saturday's issue entitled "Another Crank," the Ontario undoubtedly had precedents afforded it by the Peterborough slanderer of Judge Lazier and by the vials of venom which the Mail threw at Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn at the close of his successful career as Principal of Upper Canada College. But no precedents could justify, as no facts do warrant, such an outrageous and abominable attack as is made in the editorial columns of your local contemporary upon Mr. N. F. Davin, a gentleman who has done almost as much for the periodical press and national literature of Canada as Mr. Goldwin Smith. Because Mr. Davin is Secretary of a Royal Commission at Ottawa, perhaps because Mr. Davin has not recognized the existence of the Ontario, because Mr. Davin, in the interest of individual and social culture and private and public morality, has written to the Globe a letter which must strike every reader as forcible and true. Because he has denounced profanity, obscenity, irreverence, and inebriety, therefore, by the Ontario Chronicler, who apparently neither assumes a virtue nor has it, he is dubbed eccentric, hypocrite, and "crank," and it is deliberately and maliciously stated that although not yet a murderer like Guiteau, he probably will be soon—and all this without any substantiation of cause or fact. If my personal friendship for Mr. Davin did not, I hope my sense of decency and journalistic propriety would call upon me to protest against such a gross abuse of the problematical privileges of free speech, even if I could not vindicate the character of the gentleman assailed. I have known Mr. Davin intimately for several years, and I have never met a truer gentleman nor an abler one. The sentiments in his letter to the Globe, which appear to have pierced the pachydermatous immorality of some few at least—sentiments expressive of opposition to profanity, indelicacy, and irreverence in conversation and to social evils generally,—are sentiments the truth of which I have always known him to endeavor to inculcate. If every man who tries to cultivate public taste is to be denounced by the Ontario, it is time that the proprietor of that journal (who, I believe did not see the article in question) or a judicial censorship overlooked its proofsheets. Fortunately the steel does not wear away as fast as the grindstone, even though at the crank of the grindstone labors a rampant Ontario 'Chronicler.'

Yours truly
W. N. PONTON.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headaches, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. Two physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and ailments so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

The Legislature.

The session of the Legislature was opened this afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor Robinson. Several measures of importance are promised by the Government, amongst which is one in relation to market fees. The provisions of this measure will be looked for with much interest.

—Lord and Lady Dufferin kept Christmas at Constantinople as they used to keep it at Ottawa. They gave an amateur performance of Sheridan's play, "The Critic," at the British Embassy.

—Considerable excitement exists in Brantford over the investigation of the alleged murder of John B. Sage, who disappeared on Dec. 23rd, 1880 and whose body was subsequently found in the Grand River at Caledonia.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at James Clark & Cos., Druggists.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 12.

City and Vicinity.

ONLY one drunk found shelter in the cells last night.

MR. CHAS. GILLEN has resigned the Secretaryship of the Mechanics' Institute, having determined to go to Manitoba toward the close of the month.

ALEX. ROBERTSON, Esq., M. P. P., and Dr. Boulter, M. P.P., have left for Toronto, to attend the opening of the Ontario Legislature, which took place to-day at 3 p.m.

THE only case before the Police Magistrate this morning was that of John McCallum, charged with drunkenness. He was fined $5 and costs, or, in default, a month in gaol. Not being able to pay his fine, he was committed.

THE members of the Bay of Quinte Sportsman's Club are requested to meet at the Hub, at 8 o'clock to-morrow night, for the purpose of adopting Constitution and By-laws and transacting other business. Those who wish to become members are invited to attend.

ANOTHER pigeon shooting match took place yesterday near Palliser's hotel, Foxboro. Messrs. F. Root and James Taylor chose sides, seven on each side. The result of the match was that Taylor's side won by 8 points, the score standing 138 to 130. A number of gentlemen from the city took part in the shooting. Some fine shooting was exhibited, and still more excellent "skirmishing."

VENERATED names in literature lend a peculiar interest to the contents of the Midwinter number of THE CENTURY, which will include among its contributors Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry W. Longfellow, and the late Dean Stanley. Other familiar names in the list of contributors are E. C. Stedman, W. D. Howells, Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, H. H., Maurice Thompson, Frank R. Stockton, and George E. Waring, Jr.

AT the Mechanics' Institute meeting last evening a very liberal offer was made by Thos. Ritchie, Esq. He offered to donate $100 towards the purchase of two billiard tables, on condition that the membership could be brought up to 200. As the list is already well advanced toward 100 and there is a large field which the canvassers have not yet worked, there is every probability that the Institute will receive the benefit of Mr. Ritchie's liberality.

WE have received the second number of "The Canadian, and Manitoba and Far-West Times, a journal devoted to the interest of British America, and containing late special information for capitalists, men of business, tourists and emigrants." The Canadian is published weekly in London, England, and contains much useful information for intending emigrants for Canada. Amongst other items is one relating to the proposed steel works in this city. A Canadian organ was much needed in London, and the Canadian fills the void very acceptably.

ONE of the questions which should engage the attention of the City Council of 1882 as soon as possible is the removal of the police station to some more suitable building. A committee was appointed by the old Council quite early in the year to take into consideration the advisability of erecting a new building for a fire and police station; and that committee has not yet been discharged—because it has never reported. It is to be hoped that those who will be entrusted with the matter this year will show a little more energy than did the committee of last year.

THE public distribution of prizes, medals, and other trophies to successful competitors in recent rifle contests in Belleville will take place some day next week, probably Thursday, in the City Hall. Hon. A. P. Caron, Minister of Militia, will distribute the medals, &c., and it is expected that Hon. M. Bowell will also make it convenient to be present. A short programme of military songs, &c., will be prepared for the occasion, and a guard of honor will be furnished the Minister of Militia. During his brief stay in the city, the Hon. Mr. Caron will be the guest of Col. Lazier.

The annual meeting of the Cemetery Company will be held at the office of Mr. A. G. Northrup, Secretary, at the Shire Hall, on Monday afternoon next at 3 o'clock.

A PETERBOROUGH gentleman, staying at the Dafoe House, was out late last night, and was returning to his hotel with a rather unsteady gait, when he suddenly went crash into a lamp-post on the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle Sts. Picking himself up, he struck out madly with his fists against the offending post, crying, "what the d—l do you mean by knocking a man down in the public street?" He was finally persuaded to take pity on the post and to enter the hotel; but he did so grumbling at the inefficiency of the Belleville police force, who allowed unoffending strangers to be so grossly misused without any attempt to prevent it.

MR. ALEX. CAMPBELL, eldest son of Col. Campbell, who has for the past few months been engaged in the Merchant's Bank here as cashier, has been recalled to the head office, Montreal, and will shortly be sent to the Northwest to fill some position of trust—probably to take charge of a branch in one of the pioneer cities. He left last night by the midnight train. A large number of Mr. Campbell's friends entertained him at an oyster-supper in the evening, at the Hub. The evening was spent most agreeably, speech, song and sentiment following each other in rapid succession—until it was time to proceed to the railway station. If warm expressions of friendship, good-will and good wishes have power to cheer and strengthen one in embarking in any new enterprise, Mr. Campbell will be enabled to look back on his departure from Belleville with feelings other than those of regret.

MOTHER SHIPTON'S SUCCESSOR.—One of the chief elements of success in a modern prophecy is in the way it is uttered (the result is of little consequence); and the popularity of Mother Shipton's celebrated prophecy is undoubtedly owing in a great measure to its pat rhymes. This fact has been recognized by some genius with as keen an eye for future events as that of Mother Shipton herself, and he discourses as follows :—

> The world shall come to an end—'tis true,
> In 1882.
> The world itself shall no longer be,
> In 1883.
> The world itself shall be no more,
> In 1884.
> The world itself shall not survive,
> In 1885
> The world shall vanish into nix,
> In 1886.
> The world shall burn in fires from heaven,
> In 1887.
> The world shall end as sure as fate,
> In 1888.
> The world shall end, if rhyme is a sign,
> In 1889.
> The world can't possibly come to an end in > 1890, for there is no rhyme to let it die on—
> But certainly to an end 'twill run,
> In 1891.

MURCHISON SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.—At the meeting of this Society on the 6th inst., Prof. Macoun gave an address on Practical Education vs. Cram. The address was an able one and embraced all the more important points respecting education as carried out in our public schools at the present day. He claimed that as an educational system, ours was a failure, having a wrong basis, because every teacher was forced by the programme to teach in a cast iron groove; this was utterly against progress, as although the system might turn out good parrot machines, it did not develop the independent thought and mind of the pupil, a point which he thought was more essential than the absolute amount of material learnt; it likewise spoilt all indivduality, both in the teacher and in the pupil. This individuality it was necessary to have developed, in order to make the best progress. He continued by saying that he thought the teacher should be allowed to have more latitude in his teaching, and if he found a pupil likely to excel in any branch, to help him forward in that branch; by that means, many children who by the present system are compelled to keep in the same groove as the others, would feel more interest in their work, and their minds would expand more rapidly. He always found in his experience that by watching the tastes and inclinations of his pupils, and helping them on in that branch for which they showed most inclination, they made more rapid progress in other branches. He remarked that the pupils in our City schools do not take so high a standing as they did ten or fifteen years ago, as none had succeeded lately in passing direct to the Universities. This was not from want of ability, but was the outcome of the present system of education. The discussion which followed was a very long and interesting one, and finally resulted in the following resolution being passed: "That this Society considers the question of our educational system to be of such importance to the public, that steps be taken to have a meeting of the citizens called, so that the question can be more publicly discussed."

Cullen, the former pastor of the church, will be present on the occasion, as well as the clergymen already mentioned and city ministers.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention —in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Owing to a proposed change in business, has determined to close out his entire stock of Furs at cost. Everything will be marked in plain figures, and no second price entertained. Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. The Causes of Colds are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be too widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

MORNING DESPATCHES

EUROPEAN.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS ARRESTED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 12.—Three men were arrested for taking observations and measures on a bridge close to one of the Emperor's habitual hunting resorts.

THE JEANNETTE'S CREW.

The first news from Yakasska since 20th Dec'r arrived yesterday. There is no direct news of the Jeannette. The inhabitants of the shores of the Governments of Yakasska and Yenesoisk have been informed of the shipwreck, and been asked to make energetic researches for the wrecked men, who have not yet been found

AMERICAN.

IRON INTERESTS OF THE SOUTH.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 12.—The transactions recently closed, and those now under consideration point to the consolidation of the great iron producing interests of the South, into a few hands.

FEMALE BROKER ARRESTED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Daw, a broker arrested in Philadelphia, is supposed to be Mrs. Warner who formerly ran a ladies' Stock Exchange here, which collapsed suddenly, leaving a number of victims.

NEGRO EXODUS.

The Times' Charleston, S. C., states: It is stated the negro exodus extends to nearly all the counties in the western part of the State. The number of emigrants thus far is estimated at 10,000, two-thirds of whom are able bodied men above the age of 21. It is said as many more will leave the State within the next two months, and the reason the colored people do not all go, is because they have not the necessary means. The negroes complain that they are unjustly treated.

GOVERNOR CORNELL'S MESSAGE.

The Times says: The merit of the message is that it presents a very full and clear statement of the condition of the varied interests of the State for the guidance of the Legislature. Its principal shortcoming is a lack of constructive suggestion in regard to the more prominent questions of public policy that call for action at the hands of the Legislature.

The Herald says that in scarcely any instance has the Governor sketched even in outline a measure with regard to any matter which he recommends. It is impossible not to believe that a new crop of evils will be reaped during the next six months, which would be largely diminished if the Governor's message had been composed upon a different plan.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS,

The World says that the interest throughout the country in the Civil Service reform question is illustrated by the fact that several editions of Pendleton's speech are exhausted. It has become necessary to stereotype the speech to satisfy the demand for it.

The Herald says that the vote in the House on the proposition to deprive future Speakers of the power to appoint Committees developed much more strength than was expected.

Guiteau said yesterday: "My speech will surpass Portia's, and will read like one of Cicero's orations. It will be a grand affair. I am sure of an acquittal. Porter is too much for Scoville. It takes me to match him."

The Tribune says that one of the most prominent Republican members stated yesterday that he feared the feeling against Keifer among the Republican members, on account of some appointments, was gaining rather than losing strength, and the intensity was not so much on account of personal ill-will as because of the growing impression that the composition of some of the committees was such as to hazard the interests of the Republican party.

The Sun says that Jacobs said last night: I am confident that both Houses will be organized this week. The people of the State are demanding it and it ought to be done.

ADVISING THE PRESIDENT.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 12.—The Republican Legislature last evening adopted a resolution favoring the retention of Kirkwood in the Cabinet.

A ROW IN COURT.

CHICAGO, Jan., 12.—The jury in a case here yesterday disagreed, and were discharged. Gen. Stiles, counsel for the plaintiff, Gen. Jones, one of the plaintiffs and A S. Trude, counsel for the defendant, began to dispute in the presence of the Court, as to how the jury stood. A newspaper reporter knocked Jones down, and Stiles rushing to defend his client was knocked by Trude against a marble wainscotting and cut under the eye. Jones then hit Trude in the neck, making a painful wound. The policemen and friends separated the belligerents. Trude afterwards apologized. The attendance of a surgeon was necessary. There was a great deal of bitterness among the counsel in the case, the charge of jury fixing being made on each side.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 12.—W. S. Power, son of a State Senator, accidentally fatally shot himself yesterday, while displaying a revolver to his sweetheart.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

DEATH OF A LECTURER.

GOV. SEYMOUR'S SISTER DEAD.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—Mrs. B. Tibbits, sister-in-law of ex-Gov. Seymour, died to-day.

GLADSTONE REMITS RENTS.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Gladstone has again remitted 10 per cent off rentals on his Hawarden estate.

THE FRENCH VINTAGE.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The official returns of the vintage give only a little more than 34,000,000 hectolitres, showing a diminished production.

MUZZLING THE GERMAN PRESS.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—The restriction on the freedom of the press increases daily.

THE POPE'S HOUSEHOLD.

ROME, Jan. 12.—The Pope declined to comply with the law requiring him to fill up the census paper, but a Monseigneur filled it up, the return showing that 500 persons are living in the Vatican, one-third of whom are females.

ANOTHER MURDER IN IRELAND.

BALLINROBE, Jan. 12.—The bodies of process server Huddy, and his nephew, who recently disappeared, have been found chained together in Lough Mask. Five persons supposed to be implicated in the matter have been arrested.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Arrived, the Jason from Amsterdam.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The audience at the Guiteau trial to-day was large and intelligent. Davidge said he simply desired to render to the jury what aid he could in their present solemn duty. The time had now come when the jury were to become factors in the trial. Whatever disorder or levity might have characterized the trial, there was but one sentiment in respect of the conduct of the jury. All commended their dignified deportment and close attention to the evidence, and he could not doubt that they would continue to deserve commendation. As Davidge traced the course of reasoning by which the prisoner reached the conviction that "but one little life interposed between himself and possibly great benefits," Guiteau became restless and nervously twisted about. "Not often," said Davidge, "in the record of heinous crime do we have such plain, pointed evidence as to the first conception of the crime."

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes :—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of those difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

Butter, Milk and Eggs.

The three indispensable articles of consumption are so greatly improved in quantity and quality, when HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDERS are mixed with food of the cows or poultry that no dairy or poultry yard can possibly be remunerative without them. Ask for the

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

MALTOPEPSYN
AN
Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

CHAPTER II.

LILITH.

A maiden grave and mild,
Though on the verge of womanhood,
At heart a very child. ANON.

It was a very handsome chamber, notwithstanding that the furniture was somewhat old-fashioned, worn and faded.

Purple damask curtains draped the four tall windows— two on the east front, and two on the south side. Purple draperies canopied the rosewood bedstead, and covered the cushions of the chairs and sofa.

Turkey rugs lay on the polished yellow pine floor wherever they were most useful—before the dressing bureau that stood between the two front windows on the east; before the sofa that sat below the side windows on the south; before the fireplace, in which a fine hickory wood fire burned, on the west; and on each side of the bedstead, that stood with its head to the north.

And on the bed lay a very handsome man, in the prime of life, though the mortal pallor of his face showed that he was smitten unto death; a man who at first sight might have been taken for Tudor Hereward, so strong was the resemblance between the two.

And Tudor Hereward he was in fact—Tudor Hereward, Senior.

He was sleeping now, and his face was shaded from the firelight by a tall purple screen that stood between his bedstead and the fireplace.

Before the fire, in a deep easy-chair, reclined a young girl, robed in a white wrapper.

Her lovely face and form, with the glow of the fire-light upon it, and with the background of the purple draped chair, throwing out in relief the graceful, white-robed figure made a very graceful picture.

Her hands were clasped in her lap; her head was bowed on her bosom; her eyelids dropped over the dark eyes until their long, thick lashes lay like shadows on the oval, white cheeks. Her jet black hair escaped from its fastenings, rippled down in long tresses upon her shoulders and bosom.

She seemed to be sleeping, but she was not so, for the faintest stir or sigh from the man on the bed instantly aroused her.

Everything in the room was motionless, except the flickering flames on the hearth, that sent up weird, dancing lights and shadows on the whitewashed wall and purple draped windows. And all was so silent that the ticking of a watch on the distant dressing-table could be distinctly heard.

'Lilith.'

The voice that came from the weak man on the bed was so faint that none but the most attentive ear could have heard it.

'Lilith.'

'Yes, father,' she answered, softly, as she arose and glided noiselessly to her bedside and took his pallid hand in hers.

'Have I slept long, darling?'

'Since eleven o'clock. It has been a refreshing sleep, I hope. You feel better?'

'A little. What o'clock is it, dearest?'

'It is after five. It will soon be light now. I wish you a happy new year, father,' she said, but her voice faltered as she thought of what the new year might bring to them.

'Yes, love; a happy new year for us both,

'Whichever side the grave for me
The morning light shall break,''

he answered, gravely and sweetly.

Lilith stooped and pressed her lips to his pallid brow. She could scarcely keep back her tears.

'You sent the telegram to Tudor?'

'Yes, father; I started Alick with it to Frosthill.'

'Has any answer come?'

'Yes, father. I told Alick to wait at the office until it came, and then to hurry home with it. Mr. Hereward left by the midnight express from Washington, and will be here this forenoon. I have already sent Stephen in the gig to meet him at the station.'

'He will be here in a few hours, then. Is everything prepared for his arrival? His room aired? A fire kindled in it? and— But of course, of course; for you never forget nor neglect anything, darling, least of all Tudor's comfort, or mine. Give me your hand, Lilith—sweetest heart that ever was!' he said, clasping the little white hand that she laid in his.

'Will you take something now, father? I have some fresh port wine whey ready.'

'Yes, dear,' he answered, faintly, for he was already fatigued with this brief talk.

She went and took up a covered china pitcher from the hearth, poured some of its contents into a glass, and brought it to him. She slipped one hand under his pillow to raise his head a little while she gave the refreshment.

After he had taken sufficient she put away the glass out of sight, brought fresh water scented with lavender, sponged off his face and hands, changed his pillows, and laid him comfortably to rest.

Then she moved noiselessly about the room, putting everything in order.

Finally she resumed her seat in the easy chair before the fire.

Her patient lay perfectly quiet, and she thought that he slept again. But he had not composed himself to the rest she had hoped for him.

'Come sit by me a little while, Lilith, my darling,' he said.

She arose, and went and sat on the side of his bed.

'Give me your hand, my precious,' he said. And he closely clasped the hand she placed in his, and pressed it to his face.

'My sweet child! My dear, good, faithful daughter! What should I have done without you? I pray our Lord to bless you my Lilith,' he whispered.

'Dearest, best father in this world, our Lord has blessed me through you. How much do I not owe you? How would my seventeen years of life have passed but for you? My infancy in some almshouse—my childhood and youth in some hard task-master's shop or task-mistress's kitchen. This must have been my fate but for you, who rescued me from it, and gave me a father's love, a happy home, and a good education. All and every blessing that I enjoy in this world, under Divine Providence, I owe to you,' warmly responded the girl.

'Hush, Lilith! Hush, my darling! Forget all that. You are my beloved child.'

'By charitable adoption,' murmured the girl.

'No, but by the most sacred claim that a child could have upon a man, not even except that of birthright. And even if this had not been true—if this had been otherwise, and instead of the most sacred claim you had upon my love and care, you had had none whatever—still, Lilith—still, my dearest, you have been so much to me—a loving child, a tender nurse, a guardian angel.'

'Do not say so of me, dear father—of such a poor one as I am.'

'It is no impiety and no exaggeration to say that, my darling, for the greatest blessing of my life you are and have always been, my precious one.'

'Your praises humble me, father, because I feel so unworthy of them.'

'Why so, in the name of truth?'

'I think of my many shortcomings—my failures. But do not talk any more now, dear. I can see that it tires you to do so. Try to rest again.'

'Ah, Lilith! there will be time enough to rest—afterwards. It is near seven o'clock, is it not?'

'Within ten minutes,' she replied, after looking at her watch.

'And Tudor will be here in three hours.'

'Yes, I think so. I told Stephen to put the best horse in the gig when he went to the station to meet him.'

'I shall not sleep until he comes. I feel so anxious to see him. I have so much to say to him?'

'Shall I open the shutters now, dear father? Or would you rather they should remain closed?'

'Oh, open them by all means, love! I should like to see the sun rise once more.'

'Many times more, dearest father! And this is the New-Year's sun, you know!' said Lilith, trying to command her voice and to speak cheerfully.

'The New-Year's sun! So we must greet it.'

Lilith arose and opened the east windows,—which were on the side of his bed, whose head was to the north,—and let in the first faint light of the winter day that was dawning redly above the cloud-capped, snow-covered cliffs that shut in this little valley, and tinging its mists with a roseate hue.

Then she extinguished the night light, replenished the fire, and resumed her seat by the bed.

The patient had turned his face to the east and was gazing out upon the brightening dawn.

But when the little figure sat down beside him, he turned his eyes upon her and inquired:

'Lilith dear, have you slept during the night?'

'Oh, yes, father!' cheerfully answered the girl.

'How and where, I would like to know,' he demanded, incredulously.

'Oh—I—I slept very comfortably, in the easy-chair before the fire,' she answered hesitatingly.

'And you started up wide awake and came to look at me every time I stirred in my sleep! I know you did just as well as if I had seen and heard you! Oh, yes, my dear, I know how comfortably you slept last night in that arm-chair before the fire!' he added, in a dissatisfied tone.

'I do not feel tired this morning, dear father, indeed I do not.'

'Lilith, I wish you would go to your room and lie down, and send Nancy to me.'

'Dear father, Tudor will soon be here, and when he comes I will give up my watch to your son, but to no one except him.'

'Ah, Lilith, my faithful daughter!' he murmured, with a sigh. 'If your future were but assured—'

'Dear father, it is assured, being, like all our future, in the hands of the Divine Providence! You know that, since you it was who taught me the faith!'

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

Selection of Dairy Cows.

If it is a fact that 40 per cent of our dairy cows do not pay for their care and keeping, it will be advisable to get rid of the non-paying and select and keep such only as do pay.

Selection: There is a marvellous meaning and a most satisfactory amount of wealth in that word to the dairyman. In England within twenty-five years the increase of products from the same number of cows has nearly doubled in the herds where due care has been given to the selection of the best and most profitable cows for the dairy. This assertion is made on the statements of Mr. Allender, of the Aylesbury Dairy Company, Dr. Voelcker, Mr. Tisdall, Mr. Jenkins, Mr. D. Long, Mr. C. S. Read, M. P., Mr. J. K. Fowler and Mr. Treadwell, of the Farmer's Club Inns of Court Hotel, Holborn, London. And in this country we have as many and as good authorities to prove that selection has as greatly benefitted the dairy here as in England, in the names of a Willard, an Arnold, a Henry Stewart, Dr. Sturtevant, Wm. Crozier, a Havermeyer, a Holly, Wm. B. Dinsmore, a Harding, a Sturtevant, and scores of others.

This is virtually putting two cows into one skin, the economy of which is manifest and various. There is economy in the purchase or raising of one good cow instead of two; the saving of one half in keeping, care, and milking. The expense of a small herd, in all respects, of a dairy of really first class animals over a large herd of inferior cows, must be sufficiently apparent to our dairymen to induce them to make the careful selection.

Selection, however, requires the necessity of testing the products of the individual cows of the dairy. This is the bugbear against selection. This at first may seem to require a great deal of trouble and care to those unaccustomed to experimentation even of the simplest kind; but when one makes up his mind that it is as necessary for the dairyman as it is for the merchant to use thought, pen, ink and paper, those least disposed will take to it kindly when it is a money making expedient.

This, then, is all that is required to put two cows into one skin: A pencil and slate on which the name of each cow is written on the left hand margin, with the months and dates over the top, and a spring scale hung in some convenient place to hang the pail on, of each cow's milk, and the weight recorded on the line to the right hand of her name. The slate may be written up every week, on a sheet arranged for the purpose. This is all there is about it, except the gratifying result of knowing exactly which are good cows, and which pay, and which are worse than worthless.

Farmers to some extent test the fertility of their fields by the relative quantity of crops raised upon them; their meadows by the loads of hay; the profitable breed of hogs by the weight of pork they have to spare annually; but they seldom—and few at that—ever test the weight of milk of the cows of the dairy. It is true that an egg is an egg, though it may be a goose egg or a sparrow's egg; and it is also true that a cow is a cow—except when there are two cows in one skin—though one may be of the best and the other of the worst kind.

It is also true that some breeds of cows are better adapted to milk production—some to butter making; and others to cheese; and others which are good for milk, and, in case of accident turn profitably into beef; and it is a fact that well bred or high grades of the appropriate breeds for the kind of dairying pursued are more profitable.

The English are partial to the milking strains of Short-horns for milk producers for towns and cities, in rich pasture districts. But on high or rolling grounds they prefer the red Norfolk and Suffolk polled cattle. In the same kinds of rough pastures in this country these admirable polled animals would add greatly to the profits of the dairy and the farm, because they are good milkers, make good beef, and the steers are useful for light work. But whatever the breed, and whatever the products—beef, butter, milk, cheese or labor, the same judicious selection should be made, to secure the best results.

The Jerseys, the Guernseys, the Herefords, the Polled Angus, the Short-horns, the Ayrshires, the Holsteins, the Devons, the Norfolks, the Suffolks, the Swiss, the natives, the grades, the scrubs, are all animals of relative value or relative worthlessness, and require rigid selection to secure the most profitable herd. No matter how long the pedigree, how admirable the form, how solid the color, how perfect the escutcheon, how mellow the skin, how black the points, how large the udder; if the cow does not come up to the highest excellence in quality and quantity of product, she is not the best cow to keep in the herd. Keep on testing and selecting, and you will be amply rewarded for all your pains-taking in the annual income of your dairy.—Am. Dairyman.

Bill of Fare for Egg Production.

"Fanny Field," whose exceptional achievements in egg production during the cold months has been chronicled in these columns, reports to the Prairie Farmer her method of feeding, about which some of our readers have inquired. Hens must be supplied with egg-making material and this must not be consumed as fuel to keep them warm. Success presupposes comfortable and clean quarters. Corn is fattening, but on this ration alone, even in abundance, "there will not be eggs enough to pay for the trouble of shelling the corn."

"My way of feeding fowls in winter—and it works wonderfully well—is to give them a warm breakfast every morning, just as soon as they can see to eat, a few handfuls of grain at noon, and a full feed of grain at night. The warm breakfast is made of vegetables, turnips, beets, carrots or potatoes, boiled and mashed up with wheat bran; or oatmeal scalded with skim milk; or refuse from the kitchen boiled up and the soup thickened with bran; and when sweet apples are plenty, we boil them, and mix with cornmeal—sometimes one thing and sometimes another; we don't believe in feeding one thing all the time, and the hens don't believe in it either. I don't think that my biddies need the noon feed because they are hungry, but I give it to them to make them scratch for exercise and to keep them out of mischief. I scatter it around among the litter under the shed and let them dig it out. This 'lunch' is generally oats or buckwheat, and once in a while sunflower seed. At night I generally feed corn; but if I could get wheat cheap enough, I should feed that at least half of the time. My fowls have water or milk by them all the time, and green food is supplied by fastening cabbage heads up where the fowls can help themselves. Sometimes, when somebody has time to attend to it, we give them a change in green food in the shape of raw turnips or sweet apples choped fine.

"Two winters ago I took a new departure on the meat question, and now, instead of fussing to cook it and deal it out a little at a time, I just hang up a piece and let the fowls eat all they want. When they have meat within reach all the time there is not the slightest danger of their eating too much. I get cheap meat from the butcher, and I am sure I am paid twice over for the outlay. Crushed oyster shells, gravel, charcoal and crushed raw bones are kept in the houses all the time. This raw bone is an excellent thing for fowls, and would be the last article for food that I would think of dropping from my biddies' bill of fare. Where the crushed oyster shell cannot be obtained, lime in some other shape will do just as well. One of my neighbors had two of the rooms in his home plastered this fall, and he saved all the old plaster for his hens. The poultry raisers who neglected to get a supply of gravel under cover before the ground froze up, must do the next best thing—feed their broken dishes to their fowls. Break them into bits of a suitable size, and it will do just as well as gravel. I believe in salting all the soft food, and I used to put in a dash of pepper, sometimes mustard or ginger, once in a while, and I honestly thought the fowls were benefitted thereby; but doubts are creeping in, and I am very much inclined to drop everything except the salt.

Milk is a food that should not be taken in copious draughts, like beer or other fluids, which differ from it chemically. If we consider the use of milk in infancy, the physiological ingestion, that is, of it, we find that the sucking babe imbibes, little by little, the natural food provided for it. Each small mouthful is secured by effort, and slowly presented to the gastric mucous surface for the primal digestive stages. It is thus regularly and gradually reduced to curd, and the stomach is not oppressed with a lump of half-coagulated milk. The same principle should be regarded in the case of the adult. Milk should be slowly taken in mouthfuls, at short intervals, and thus it is rightly dealt with by the gastric juice. If milk be taken after other food it is almost sure to burden the stomach, and to cause discomfort and prolonged indigestion, and this, for the obvious reason that there is insufficient digestive agency to dispose of it. And, the better the quality of the milk, the more severe the discomfort will be under these conditions.

Milk is insufficiently used in making simple puddings of such farinaceous foods as rice, tapioca and sago. Distaste for these is engendered very often, I believe, because the milk is stinted in making them, or poor, skimmed milk is used. Abundance of new milk should be employed, and more milk or cream should be added when they are taken. In Scottish households this matter is well understood, and a distinct pudding plate, like a small soup-plate, is used for this course. The dry messes commonly served as milky puddings in England are exactly fitted to create disgust for what should be a most excellent and delicious part of a wholesome dinner for both children and adults.—Dr. Dyce Duckworth, in Popular Science Monthly.

Scene—a butcher's stand. Butcher: "Come John, be lively now; break the bones in Mr. William's chops, and put Mr. Smith's ribs in the basket for him," John (briskly): "All right sir, just as soon as I've sawed off Mrs Murphy's leg."

'I'm not very proud of your progress in school,' remarked a New Haven mother to her son, who was struggling along in grade five. 'There's Charley Stuart away ahead of you, and his isn't as old.' 'I know it. Teacher said he learned all there was to learn in my room, and that left me without anything to learn.' The boy will keep without ice.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescrib'ng cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Cruelty to animals.

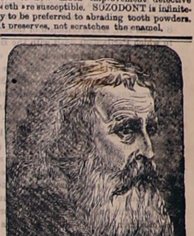

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

ZOPESA.

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Biliousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

The Legislature.

The speech with which the third session of the fourth Legislature of Ontario was opened was, like all the speeches which have preceded it under the Mowat regime, verbose in the extreme. With the object of showing that they have something still to reform, a number of measures—chiefly of an unimportant character—are promised, and an attempt at conflict with the Dominion authorities is foreshadowed in a recommendation to pass another Act similar in character to the disallowed Rivers and Streams Bill, and a criticism of the manner in which Parliament dealt with the Boundary award. In such a conflict—the object of which is evidently to assist the Grit party in the election of 1883—the Mowat Government are not likely to come out with flying colors, as they will find to their cost before they see the end of the matter.

The chief measures promised are: (1) Relating to market fees and toll gates; (2) to lessen the liability to accidents from steam boilers; (3) relative to the public health; (4) to allow of the affirmation of agnostics in the courts of law; (5) to enable municipalities to impose a special tax for the establishment of free public libraries; (6) for the establishment of a Bureau of Agricultural Statistics.

The first-named measure more particularly concerns Belleville, the position of this city being of an entirely exceptional, character, as we have already fully explained. The proposal is a vexatious piece of class legislation at the best, and such a proposition as that of last session it will be nothing short of infamous to force upon our people without full compensation for the expenditure which the city was put to in the freeing of the gravel roads from tolls. It will be the duty of the City Council and of our representative in the Legislature to watch this measure very closely and to insist on fair play to Belleville.

Immigration.

The Whig gives the following statistics of the Kingston emigration agency for the year 1881: "By way of Quebec and Halifax the number of immigrants was 2,140; from the United States 56, a total of 2,196. Of these 1,504 were males, 270 females, and 422 children; 1,045 English, 506 Irish, 548 Scotch, 3 Germans, 43 Scandinavians, 16 French, and 35 from other countries. Of farm laborers there were 1,349; mechanics, 142; clerks, traders, etc., 19; female domestics, 157. Of these 2,187 remained in Ontario, 3 went to Manitoba, and 6 to the United States. The number that came to this country last year exceeded that of any previous season since 1876. The returns for those years were: 1876, 905; 1877, 809; 1878, 801; 1879, 1,193; 1880, 1,354; 1881, 2,196. At the various Customs' offices throughout the Kingston district 859 persons were reported as coming to Canada with effects valued at $33,056. Of this number 519 were native born Canadians, returning to Ontario, 236 were Americans, and the balance of various nationalities. The emigrants from the old country were distributed in various sections. The K. & P. R.R. and the N. T. & Q. R.R. employed a great many. Mr. Macpherson says he never before settled so many around Kingston. Wolfe Island farmers secured an important quota.

Editorial Brevities.

The Hamilton Times does not understand why it is that "the farmer can get more for his truck at home than abroad—can get 30 cents a pound for the butter eaten in Hamilton, but only 20 cents for the butter eaten in Boston—and the wonder is that he does not sell more of it in Hamilton, even if the price falls to 28, 25 or 22 cents, by reason of the greater supply withdrawn from export and thrown upon the home market." And it asks the silly question: "Is the farmer such a fool that he would send butter abroad for 20 cents when the N. P. enables him to get 30 cents at home for it?" There are a good many things that the Times does not or will not understand. It ought to know that the home market is not large enough to take all the butter the farmer has to offer, consequently he is obliged to accept a considerably lower price for the quantity that he cannot dispose of at home. And so with cheese, which is always some cents per pound higher when sold in small lots for home consumption than when sold in large quantities for exportation, and which retails in the English cities as cheaply as in the Canadian centres of trade. The N. P. is, however, enlarging the home market rapidly, much to the benefit of the farmer, despite the efforts of the free traders to the contrary.

The Montreal Star remarks on the result of the by-elections which have been held since the present Government took office: "The record certainly proves that while Mr. Mackenzie's Government lost in popularity, as time rolled on very appreciably, Sir John's administrations rather more than holds its own, which is quite an exceptional thing for any Government to do."

The Colborne Express says:—"Friday's Globe contains a long editorial against the N.P.—in one place promising the poorer man cheaper provisions; in another, the farmer higher prices for his produce! This puzzle can only be understood by a recollection of our experiences three or four years ago, when there was next to nothing for labor and ditto for farm produce."

Bangor Correspondence.

We were visited this year by a rather unusual occurrence—a green Christmas—which cast a damp on the spirits of those who imagine that Christmas, to be enjoyable, must be accompanied by the proverbial sleigh ride. As may be expected, the open winter has considerably retarded lumber operations, and its effects can easily be discerned in our business life.

For the last few months a fever for emigration to the prairie lands of the West and Northwest, has raged here. The consequence is that many inhabitants have gone to Michigan, Dakota, or Manitoba, many are getting ready to do so, and most of the rest intending to do so as soon as possible. Part of this desire to remove may be attributed to the wish for "change" inherent in every human breast, more or less—part to the wish to better themselves; but most to the knowledge that sooner or later lumbering must end, and then "a long farewell to all our greatness."

On the 10th December, in the school house of S. S. No. 1, Bangor, a highly successful soiree was held for the purpose of obtaining prizes for the young ideas who are learning how to shoot. Something like $24 was netted.

No municipal elections this year. The members were elected by acclamation.

Mr. Lake and family departed for Michigan some time ago. Mr. Henry Dennison occupies the homestead.

Pinkeye is prevalent here. No serious results have occurred, however.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—The Lieutenant-Governor opened the Legislature this afternoon with the following speech from the Throne:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It is with much pleasure that I once more bid you welcome to the metropolis of the Province, and that I can congratulate you upon the encouraging circumstances under which you assemble for the performance of the responsible duties with which, as the representatives of the people, you have been put in charge.

The public revenue for the year has considerably exceeded the amount estimated. The year has been one of general prosperity, the result of the late abundant harvest, the general revival of trade in other countries, and the consequent demand for the products of our fields, forests and mines; and the recent census has shown that the population of the Province has in the last decade increased by nearly 300,000, and amounts now to nearly two millions, notwithstanding the number of our people who from various causes have during several years past left the Province.

I regret that since your last session no progress has been made towards a recognition of the right of the Province to that extensive portion of its territory, our title to which, notwithstanding the award of the distinguished arbitrators appointed by the two Governments, the Federal authorities have continued to dispute. The grave practical evils resulting from the dispute have since you last met been greatly increased by an act of the Federal Parliament transferring to the Province of Manitoba, so far as relates to Provincial jurisdiction, the claim of the Dominion to the most valuable part of the disputed territory, including our organized municipalities south and east of the height of land. While the bill was before the House of Commons I addressed to the Federal Government a despatch, protesting, on behalf of Ontario, against this part of the intended act. A copy of my despatch, with other papers relating to the territory, will be laid before you.

I regret that I have to refer also to the disallowance of the Act of last session for protecting the public interest in rivers, streams and creeks. The competency of the legislature to pass the Act was disallowed mainly upon the ground that the Minister of Justice did not approve of the mode or extent of the compensation which the Act gave to owners of property affected by the Act. The correspondence on the subject will be laid before you. The object of the Act is of such importance, as well to those engaged in the lumber trade as to the province in general, and the duty of asserting the right of the legislature to deal according to its own judgment with all matters within provincial jurisdiction is so urgent, that a bill for the same purpose as the disallowed Act will, without delay, be submitted for your renewed consideration.

I congratulate you that recent decisions of the judicial committee of the privy council have set at rest all questions as to the right of the provincial legislature to legislate as our interests may from time to time require on matters of internal trade, and in particular on the law of insurance. Some further provisions seem now necessary in order to render effectual the legislation which had for its object the scarcity of uniform conditions in fire policies, and I invite your attention to the subject.

I regret that the right of provinces to property escheated for want of heirs, unanimously maintained by the highest Courts in Ontario and Quebec and acquiesced in by the Federal Government for several years, has, on Ontario appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada by the Government in the name of the defendants in a well known case, been negatived by a majority of the judges of the Court. The case in question is but one of several cases of the same kind which have occurred since confederation, and the constitutional question involved is so important, and some of the grounds on which the decision proceeds are of such far-reaching application, that I have lost no time in taking the necessary steps for obtaining a review of Her Majesty's Privy Council. There is strong reason for expecting a favorable result.

I congratulate you on the general favor with which the report of the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the agricultural resources and requirements of the Province has been received by all classes interested in agriculture. I have anxiously considered what further means may be employed to aid this great industry and to promote the welfare of the population engaged in it. During recent years in great Britain and other European countries, and also in the United States of America and in the American colonies of Great Britain, great advantages have been found to results from the collection of reliable crop reports and other agricultural statistics. A measure to secure like advantage to this Province will be submitted for your consideration.

I have also to recommend to your consideration such changes in the law respecting the Agricultural and Arts Association as may increase the usefulness of that organization and bring its operations into harmony with the present needs and circumstances of the country.

A bill respecting market fees will again be submitted for your consideration.

Other measures which will probably be laid before you, and to which I invite your attention, are a bill for amending and consolidating the laws respecting line fences, ditches and water courses; a bill to provide by a general law for the construction of water works in cities, towns and villages; a bill providing for the crossing of railway tracks by streets and roads; a bill for the inspection of boilers, with a view to affording some additional security against explosions; a bill to make provision for maintaining and promoting the public health; a bill for further simplifying the laws concerning real property and conveyancing; a bill to remove some defects in the law of evidence; a bill to place on a more satisfactory footing the law of libel in certain cases, and a bill to facilitate the establishment of free libraries.

It having become necessary, in the interests of settlement and revenue, to place under timber licenses a few townships lying to the south of French River and Lake Nipissing, in the Parry Sound and Nipissing districts, the activity of the timber trade last year afforded a favorable opportunity of selling at public auction the right to cut pine timber in these townships, covering the limited area of 1,321 square miles, and it is gratifying to know that the result was most satisfactory, the sale having, among other advantages, increased the available means of the Province by nearly three quarters of a million of dollars, besides adding to the revenue the annual rent to which purchasers are liable, and the dues on the timber which they may cut.

In consequence of circumstances not within the control of either Government, the accounts between the Province and the Dominion are still unsettled. The money coming from the common school fund for local improvements in counties in which lands that produced the fund are situated, has not yet been received by the Province. In view of the prolonged delay, I recommend the payment of the principal, about $125,000, to the counties interested out of the consolidated revenue of the Province, in anticipation of the receipt of the money from the Dominion.

The subject of constructing new provincial buildings adequate to the growing requirements of the province and the necessities of the public service, has continued to receive my attention during the past year. Much more time than had been expected had been consumed in procuring the necessary modifications to be made in the plans received previously to your last session and in the preparation of specifications. The preliminary work has now been completed. Tenders have been called for, and the result will be communicated to you.

The public accounts, showing the receipts and expenditure of the past year and the estimates of money required for the services of the current year, will be laid before you. The estimates have been prepared with every regard for economy consistent with the public interest.

I cannot allow the present opportunity to pass without expressing in my own name and in that of the people of this Province, the grief and indignation which, in common with the whole civilized world, we felt at the horrible and unprovoked murder of the late honored and lamented President of the United States. By no community was President Garfield's death more sincerely mourned than by the people of Ontario.

In now dismissing you to the onerous and important labors in which for some time you will be engaged, I desire to express the hope that your deliberations and decisions will, as on former occasions, be such as to manifest your wisdom and your patriotism, and as will contribute to the continued development of the varied resources of our great Province, and to the increased well being of its inhabitants.

The House proceeded to business shortly before four o'clock. The new members were introduced to the Speaker as follows:—Mr. E. W. B. Snider, who replaces Mr. Springer for N. Waterloo; Mr. Frank Madill, who takes the place of Mr. Paxton for N. Ontario; Dr. Brereton, who represents East Durham, succeeding Mr. Ressevar; and Mr. Albert Hagar, representing Prescott, a seat rendered vacant by the death of Dr. Harkin, an Opposition member. Mr. Hagar sat in the old Parliament of Canada, and in the Dominion House of Commons from Confederation till 1878, when he was defeated. Mr. Macmaster, member for Glengarry, takes the seat occupied by the late Mr. Scott, though the seats for the new members have not yet been allotted.

The Speech will be taken into consideration to-day, when the reply will be moved by Mr. D. D. Hay, seconded by Dr. Robinson, of Ca dwell.

Dr. Kincaid, on account of injuries recently inflicted upon him by an insane patient, was not present, and therefore public curiosity as to the mode of his introduction to the Speaker was not gratified.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

THE date of the grand concert to be given under the auspices of Belleville Lodge No. 81 I. O. O. F., to celebrate the re-opening of their beautiful Lodge Room, has been fixed for Wednesday evening, the 25th inst.

ALEX. ROBERTSON, M. P. P., called on us on Monday, says the Trenton Courier, wishing to know if he could be of any assistance to this portion of his constituency in the approaching session of Parliament.

A LARGE number of informations are being laid against violators of the snow By-law. It therefore behooves house holders to keep their sidewalks clean, as the price paid to snow shovellers for the remainder of the year would not be as great as the amount of the fine imposed.

Two small boys, named Fred. Beamish and Alfred Bullen, attending the Union School, got into an altercation this morning at recess, when Beamish stabbed Bullen in the wrist with a jack-knife, inflicting a serious wound. The former was expelled from the school by Mr. Irwin.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 13.—Lakes, light to moderate variable winds, cloudy mild weather, with snow or rain, probably followed to-morrow by fresh to strong westerly to north westerly winds and colder weather.

HOSPITAL SITE.—Dr. O'Reilly, Assistant Inspector of Prisons and Asylums, was in the city to-day for the purpose of inspecting a site for the proposed hospital to be erected under the direction of the Woman's Christian Association. In company with Messrs. A. G. Northrup (representing the W. C. Association) ex-Mayor Patterson, and Alderman Dickson, Diamond, Dunnet, St. Charles and Starling, he inspected three sites—the Phillips property (which was inspected and approved of by Inspector Langmuir) and the Kelly and Flint properties. The Kelly lot is just east of Macdonald St. It is 3 1-5 acres in extent and extends from the Kingston Road to the bay. A substantial wooden house is on the property, besides the foundation for another building, a splendid well, and between 250 and 300 fruit-trees. This property can be purchased for from $1,500 to $2,000. The Flint property is about 50 acres west of the Phillips lot. It is 8½ acres in extent, and can probably be purchased for about $2,000. Dr. O'Reilly approved of all three sites, but favored the Kelly property, as being quite large enough for the purposes required, besides the advantages of the house, trees, &c., and the comparatively small price for which it may be acquired.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

A New Opera House.

The Scheme Under Consideration by Wm. Dafoe, Esq.

So many rumors of projects for the erection of a new Opera House have been set afloat since the burning of the old building that any new rumor to that effect is usually received with an incredulous smile and a dubious shake of the head by our citizens. There is, however, good substantial foundation for the latest rumor, and the chances are strongly in favor of the speedy erection of an opera house which will (internally) surpass the old one which we have not yet ceased to mourn.

An INTELLIGENCER reporter having heard that Mr. Wm. Dafoe had under consideration the erection of a new opera house, called on that gentleman this morning in order to learn whether there was any ground for the rumor.

"Yes," said Mr. Dafoe, in reply to the reporter's question, "I have been considering the matter for some time, and I have made up my mind to go ahead with the scheme—unless I find it is going to cost me too much."

"What sum would you limit yourself to?"

"Well, I wouldn't put any more than $10,000, or $12,000 at the most, into it. I have been told by an experienced man that it need not cost more than $7,000 or $8,000, as I own the land on which it will be built and will utilize some walls already standing, and don't intend to have an elaborate and costly exterior. I have been offered $1,000 a year for the house; but it wouldn't pay me to spend more than $10,000 or so in its erection, besides paying taxes and insurance."

"Where do you intend to put up the building?" asked the reporter.

"Just next to the Dafoe House," was the reply. Mr. Dafoe then explained the plan of the proposed building. It is his intention to erect the main structure in the vacant spot in rear of the Dafoe House. The north end of the main building (lately occupied by Dr. Gibson as a surgery) and the brick laundry in rear of it, will be utilized for the construction of a long gangway to lead from Pinnacle St. into the main building. This gangway will be 26 feet wide and 60 feet long. The main building will be built according to the plan prepared by Mr. John D. Evans for Messrs. Henderson and Farley some months ago, only the auditorium will be considerably larger, as the space which was in the plans set aside for vestibule ticket-office, &c., will all be utilized. The interior of the building will be 106x60 ft., with a stage nearly double the size of that in the old opera house. The dressing-rooms will all be on a level with the stage. A very deep gallery will be constructed—lower than the old one, and with a heavier incline. The most ample means of exit possible will be furnished. There will be three large double doors, swinging outwards, on each side the building, on the ground floor, and a similar one in the upper part of the right wall, as a means of exit to the occupants of the gallery. (The rear part of the building being on the side of a hill, the ground would be within two or three feet of this last mentioned door.) Of course these modes of exit would only be used in cases of emergency, the regular entrances being quite sufficient for ordinary use.

"When do you propose to begin the work of construction, Mr. Dafoe?" inquired the reporter.

"Just as soon as possible," said Mr. D. "The specifications will be ready in a few days, and I will immediately invite tenders. If the tenders are satisfactory I will have the work begun at once and push it forward until the house is finished, which would probably be early in the summer."

Thanking Mr. Dafoe for the information which he had so willingly furnished, the reporter took his leave.

A $65,000 FIRE IN TORONTO.—The Mail of the 13th says: "A disastrous fire occurred between seven and eight o'clock last night, whereby a loss of about $65,000 has been sustained. It originated in the premises occupied by the firm of Gillespie, Mead & Co., Wellington street, near Bay, and spread with great rapidity owing to the inflammable nature of the material in which it first started. Gillespie, Mead & Co., who are dealers in dressed and undressed furs, occupied the second, third and top story of the bilding, while the first flat and basement were rented by the firm of Gillespie, Ansley & Martin, wholesale dealers in hats, caps, and straw goods. Next door to the east, and in the same building, were the premises of Houston, Foster & Co., importers of cloths. The whole stock of Gillespie, Mead & Co., was destroyed, and those of the other two firms seriously damaged by water. A. Allan & Co., dealers in caps, &c., suffered a slight loss by water. The building was damaged to the extent of $8,000.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—A friend of mine (well known in Canada) perpetrated the following conundrums on the train coming from Ottawa the night before last:

Why is Guiteau like the Premier of the Province of Quebec?

Answer—Because he is a Chap low in public estimation.

Ans.—He will Git tow around his neck.

Should my friend ever come to Belleville I hope "our Cadi" will give him 30 days in jail.

FROM RIMOUSKI.

Murderer Hanged.

RIMOUSKI, Jan. 13.—Morreau was hung in the jail yard at 8:30. He mounted the scaffold with a firm step and knelt down and stood up without aid; he did not say anything in reference to his crime; his lips were continually moving in prayer; the fall was 9 feet and death was instantaneous; his neck was broken and his head nearly separated from the trunk; the body was cut down in two and a half minutes after the fall; the trunk was bleeding profusely. Morreau has not said anything lately about the accomplice

Dairymen in Convention.

MEETING AT SYRACUSE OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION—ELECTION OF OFFICERS AND AWARD OF PREMIUMS.

SYRACUSE, Jan. 12.—At the American Dairymen's Association "butter-making" was the principal topic to-day. President Arnold advocated the thin setting of cream, both for product and flavor; also the churning of sweet cream. H. Sazee, a Japanese student at Cornell, read a paper on the sago bean product of Japan, which can be cultivated in this country, and is very valuable for feeding stock. L. D. Curtis read a paper on the North-West, holding that the wheat lands were gradually deteriorating and would soon become dairy lands. A discussion followed.

The following officers were elected:—President, Prof. L. B. Arnold, Rochester; Secretary, L. D. Curtis; Treasurer, S. Hoxie, Whitestown, and a long list of vice-presidents. Harris Lewis, of Little Falls, was awarded first premium for his exhibit of butter, and P. P. Smith, of Cazenovia, first premium on cheese.

Poisoning Sensations.

TWO CASES WHICH ARE AGITATING SOCIETY CIRCLES IN ENGLAND.

The world is at a loss for some sensation of the moment, but at present it has in stock an unusual supply of strange stories, two of which, at least, are likely to afford food for speculation and comment for some time to come. The investigation of the Wimbledon and the Sheffield poisoning cases may end in incriminating none of the parties concerned, but they belong to a class of incidents which will be fancied to indicate man's predilection for the old methods of taking life. Dr. Lamson's examination is proceeding at Wandsworth Police Court on the charge of having poisoned his brother-in-law, Percy Malcolm John, a student at Blenheim House School Wimbledon. The facts as developed in the course of the inquiry are almost extraordinary. Dr. Lamson called at Blenheim House School on the third of last month to see his brother-in-law, who was deformed, but in good health. It is not disputed, we believe, that he gave his brother-in-law, in presence of the Principal of the school, a capsule purporting to contain quinine. He left soon afterward, and Mr. John shortly exhibited virulent symptoms of poisoning, and died the same night. Dr. Lamson crossed the channel to Paris, but, upon hearing that he was suspected of the murder of his brother-in law, he returned to England and voluntarily gave himself up. His surrender is of course a point in favor of his innocence. There are other facts which the prosecution affirms that it is in a position to establish. Two persons, it is said will be produced who sold Dr. Lamson some aconite, the poison of which Dr. Bond had discovered traces in the stomach of the deceased young man. It is contended that Dr. Lamson had a pecuniary motive for the death of his brother-in-law in the money which at his death would lapse to Dr. Lamson's wife. Further, the prosecution designs to prove that the prisoner was badly in want of money at the time, and had resorted to various dishonorable means of procuring it. At the same time the nature of the prisoner's defence has still to be disclosed, and it may supply a sufficient answer to all these inculpating circumstances. And many persons will not readily believe that an educated, apparently refined and even witty man of the world, as Dr. Lamson is stated to be, should administer poison to a poor boy who stood between him and £3,500. Another alleged case of poisoning is in process of investigation before a coroner's jury at Sheffield. Mr. Skinner, an artist of that town, died suddenly with arsenical poisoning after eating a fowl stuffed in the usual manner. His housekeeper, Miss Dover, cooked the fowl and upon her suspicion has fallen. The presence of arsenic in the stomach was revealed at the post-mortem examination; while it has been discovered that Miss Dover purchased some arsenic on the day before Mr. Skinner's death, professing to require it for the purpose of coloring some artificial flowers. A bottle of onion stuffing has also been found containing arsenic; and the question to be decided will be whether the poison was mixed with the food accidentally or by design. The fact that Miss Dover was also apparently seized with illness at the same time as Mr. Skinner will doubtless be relied upon as an indication that she could not have been guilty of the crime attributed to her. But it is contended that she only feigned the symptoms of poisoning, or that she was suffering from nervous excitement. Miss Dover charges Mr. Skinner's former housekeeper with sending a hamper of poisoned apples and onions, of which the fowl stuffing had been made. It has been proved at the inquest that Mr. Skinner and Miss Dover quarrelled a good deal. Whatever the upshot of the inquiry the poison panic that has prevailed of late in Sheffield will continue to agitate the inhabitants of the town.

NEGRO EXODUS FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 13.—In the Senate yesterday Miller, Republican, offered a resolution stating that over 5,000 colored people from a single county left this State during the past six weeks, and providing for the appointment of a Committee to investigate the grievances of the colored people. After a long and animated debate the matter was indefinitely postponed. It is announced that several hundred negroes who joined the exodus from Newfield have returned, disgusted with the scheme.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The Sun says: Some of the best Republicans in Congress have gone in person to the President, to protest against the selection of Sargent for Secretary.

The World says: Kasson will in all likelihood be given the chairmanship of the proposed special inter-oceanic Committee, and it will be constituted averse to foreign policy, and especially strong upon the subject of the Isthmian canal. It will have jurisdiction over all matters relating to the preservation of neutrality, and to the relations of this Government in the Isthmus, and it is thought also over all matters relating to the supremacy of the Government on the continent.

ALBANY SPECIALS.

The Times' Albany special says that Boyd's resolution calling upon the Controller for information as to how much tax would have been paid by the Central Railway during the last twenty-one years under a certain contingency, caused a panic among the clerks in the Controller's office. It would require, according to the Deputy Controller, ten months to collect the information and an increase of at least ten clerks to the working force of the Controller's office.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Guiteau said:—"In justice to myself and Davidge, I desire to say that I received a letter yesterday severely denouncing Davidge, and my remarks against him were based upon that. I have found out, however, I was mistaken, and that Davidge is a high toned Christian gentleman and a sound lawyer. I desire, therefore, to withdraw anything I said against him. I still entertain the same opinion of Corkhill however."

Davidge resumed argument and the review of the evidence. He showed by the evidence of J. W. Guiteau and other witnesses for the defence the fallacy and absurdity of Scoville's pet theory that the prisoner was imbecile.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My strength has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'Ah, yes? But in times of weakness and danger and uncertainty, we are so apt to fall from the faith. The Apostle Paul feared that while he preached to others he might himself be a castaway. Shakespeares heroine confessed that she could teach twenty what were good to be done, rather than be one of twenty to follow her own teaching.'

'Dear father, are you not talking too much? Had you not better rest?'

'I cannot rest, dear. I am thinking of you. Ah! if I had lived longer—if I could have lived to be an old man, I should have made or saved a fortune for you, Lilith. But now I have nothing—nothing of my own, I have only a life interest in this estate, which came with my late wife, Tudor's mother, and goes to him entire at my death I have no power even to leave you a home, my poor little daughter,' he added, with a deep sigh.

'Dearest dear,' she murmured, laying her fresh cheek against the wasted one of the sinking man, 'do not be troubled concerning me. I am not a bit troubled about myself. I have no fears for the future—none!'

'No! Children have no fears for the future because they have no knowledge of the world. They have, indeed, an unconscious faith. Ah well! The Highest has declared that 'Unless ye become as little children ye shall not see the Kingdom of God.' And that is evident, since anxious care, no more than envy, hatred or malice or any other form of selfishness, can never see the Kingdom of Heaven.'

'Dearest father, you are fast exhausting yourself. Try to get a little rest before your son arrives.'

'I cannot. I am thinking of you, I say. Lilith! there is only one way in which I could have you in perfect peace! Do you know what way that would be?'

'No, dear; but do not be troubled. I am not.'

'No, of course not. Children never are, as I said before. Lilith! listen to me, my darling! I could depart in peace if I could leave you—THE WIFE OF MY SON.'

Lilith started suddenly and blushed over face, neck and bosom.

He was watching her anxiously, he saw her emotion and gave it an interpretation favorable to his wishes. He continued, at the risk of exhausting his little remaining strength:

'I believe that Tudor loves you and will ask you to marry him without delay, so as to give him the legal and moral right to protect you when I shall have passed away, and, oh, my dear child, I hope and pray that your answer may be such as to give him happiness and me peace.'

Lilith could not speak. She dropped her head upon her bosom and covered her face with her trembling hands; but the vivid blush that had deepened over face, neck and bosom proved a sufficient answer.

'Being Tudor's father, I might be thought too partial a judge; for I think him one of the most excellent men of the earth—pure, true, wise, good and brave. Even if he were not my own son, yet knowing him as I do know him—of all the men in the world—I should prefer him to be the husband of my darling girl.'

'But, oh, sir, I am not worthy—I am not suitable in any way to be your son's wife,' faltered the young girl, in an almost inaudible voice, while she was paling, flushing and trembling with uncontrollable agitation.

'Not worthy, Lilith! You not worthy!' he muttered, gazing steadily at her trembling frame.

'Oh, no! no! no! I was but a poor laboring man's child, and but for your charity I should now be a pauper or a servant. Your son comes of one of the oldest and proudest families in the country—descended through you from the most ancient Saxon nobles—and through his mother from an even prouder race, a royal one—the old English kings. And he has all the hereditary pride of his race. It would not be fitting—he would not think it fitting—that he should marry a laborer's daughter.'

'Hush, Lilith! Hush! You distress me, child. You are my daughter. I have adopted and brought you up. For years it has been my dearest wish that you should become the wife of my son, who loves and esteems you as you deserve. You are of all women in the world the most worthy of him, as he of all men in the world is the most deserving of you. You seem to have been 'made for each other,' as the country people say. To be sure, my darling, you are over young to marry yet,' nor should I wish you to wed for three or four years to come, were I not about to leave you unprotected in the world. And so, my beloved child, before I depart I must see you the happy wife of my good son.'

He looked at her wistfully as he spoke, and at that moment the first rays of the rising sun streamed through the clouds that capped the cliffs, glanced through the east window, and illumined the bowed head and white-robed form of the girl.

'It is a good omen. All is well,' murmured Tudor Hereward, as he turned over and dropped into the sudden, swoon-like sleep of the dying.

After a few minutes Lilith arose softly and bent over him.

'Thank dear Heaven, he sleeps well; and he must not be awakened even for his son,' she murmured to herself, as she noiselessly crossed the room and let down the purple cutains, to temper the bright sunshine.

'His son's wife!' she murmured softly to herself, while a flitting blush played over her lovely face. 'His son's wife—Tudor's wife! Oh, my dear father! to wish such happiness for me! A happiness I dare not dream of—no, no, indeed I dare not dream of,' she added hastily, fearfully, as she pushed the black curls away from her free-head, and—as if to banish dangerous thought by action, she crossed the room and entered a little dressing closet, in which sat a tall, thin, black woman of about forty years of age, clothed in a gown of black and white striped calico that made her seem even taller and thinner than she was; and in a white turban, a small white shawl and white apron.

She laid down the coarse gray yarn stocking that she had been knitting, and arose to meet her young mistress.

'Nancy,' said the latter, 'I want you to find Alick and tell him to see that the fire is kept up in the young master's room, and everything is ready for him there. After that tell him to go down to the outer gate and wait for the carriage from the station, and to stop it there, lest the sound of the wheels coming to the house should awaken the master, who is sleeping quietly at present and must not be disturbed on any account. Do you understand?'

'Yes, Miss Lilith.'

'And tell Cassy to have breakfast ready for the young master at a quarter past ten o'clock. He will want a substantial meal after his long night ride.'

'Yes, Miss Lilith.'

'And you, Nancy, after you have delivered your messages, return to this room and keep a lookout for Mr. Tudor Hereward's arrival, meet him yourself and take him up to his room and tell him that I will notify him as soon as his father wakes, but that Major Hereward must not be disturbed until then.'

'Yes, Miss Lilith, I'll 'tend to eberything. Don't you be anxious or likewise 'sturbed in your mind. And, now, honey, you ought to get your breakfas' an' go right to bed. I know as you aint tuk a wink o' sleep since ole marse been sick.'

'Oh, yes, I have, Nancy.'

'Oh, sho! Wot's shettin' up yer eyes in a arm-chair 'fo' de fire? Dey's wide open de minute ole marse stirs! I knows! Now you g'long and get some breakfas' and go to sleep. An' arter I done my messidges I'll come and sit here an' watch ole marse wid one eye, an' listen fo' young marse wid t'oder. Now, g'long an' do's I tell yer, honey.'

'I will, when Mr. Tudor Hereward arrives. Not until then. I will not give up my post to any one but him. But I thank you all the same, Nancy,' gently answered Lilith, as she softly closed the door and resumed her seat beside the sinking man.

She looked at him and saw that he was sleeping heavily. His talk to her had greatly fatigued him, and he slept the sleep of exhaustion.

He slept long and deeply, while she sat watching his ebbing life, thinking sorrowfully of the beloved and revered friend, the much more than fond father, who was so soon to leave her, grieving for him, and yet—though, indeed, dreaming her young dream of love, dreaming so, because she could not but dream in the stillness and silence of the chamber.

'With a defeated joy'—

So still and silent was it that her listening ears detected the first faint sound of the carriage wheels as the vehicle drew up and stopped at the outer gate.

This she knew heralded the arrival of Tudor Hereward—Tudor Hereward, the hero of her childhood's reverence and of her womanhood's love!—Tudor Hereward, destined within a very few hours to become her husband—it the father should be right in his happy hope.

Major F. Melcher, editor of the Charleston (S. C.) Deutsche Zeitung, writes: "One of my pressmen, Mr. J. N. Wheaton, was cured of a severe case of rheumatism by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, after other remedies hod failded. He speaks very highly of it, and I think such a preparation is deserving of the highest praise that can be given it"

WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

IT is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister]

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. It is warranted not to produce costiveness* (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. THE OLD BROWN SCHOOL HOUSE.

It stood on a bleak country corner;
The houses were distant and few,
A meadow lay back in the distance,
Beyond rose the hills to our view.
The roads crossing there at right angles
Untraversed by pomp and array.
Were cropped by the cows in the summer;
I've watched them there many a day.

In memory's hall hangs the picture,
And years of sad care are between;
It hangs with a beautiful gilding,
And well do I love it I ween.
It stood on a bleak country corner,
But boyhood's young heart made it warm;
It glowed in the sunshine and summer,
'Twas cheerful in winter and storm.

The teacher, Oh well I remember,
My heart has long kept him a place;
Perhaps by the world he's forgotten,
His memory no touch can efface.
He met us with smiles on the threshold,
And in that rude temple of art,
He left with the skill of a workman,
His touch on the mind and the heart.

Oh, gay were the sports of the noontide
When winter winds frolicked the snow;
We laughed at the freaks of the storm-king,
And shouted him on all a-glow.
He dashed at his beautiful sculpture
Regardless of all its array,
We plunged in the feathery snow drifts,
And sported the winter away.

We sat on the old-fashioned benches,
Beguiled with our pencil and slate.
We thought of the opening future,
And dreamt of our manhood's estate.
I cast a fond glance o'er the meadow,
The hills just behind I see,
Away in the charm of the distance,
Old school house! a blessing on thee.

WHAT TIME IS IT.

What time is it?
Time to do well—
Time to live better—
Give up that grudge—
Answer that letter—
Speak that kind word, to sweeten a sorrow;
Do that good deed you would leave till to-morrow.
Time to try hard
In that new situation—
Time to build upon
A solid foundation.
Giving up needlessly, changing and drifting;
Leaving the quicksands that ever are shifting.

What time is it?
Time to be thrifty;
Farmers take warning—
Plough in the springtime—
Sow in the morning—
Spring rain is coming, zephyrs are blowing;
Heaven will attend to the quickening and growing.
Time to count cost—
Lessen expenses—
Time to look well
To the gates and the fences;
Making and mending, as good workers should;
Shuting out evil and keeping in good.

What time is it?
Time to be earnest,
Laying up treasure;
Time to be thoughtful.
Choosing true pleasure;
Loving stern justice, of truth being fond;
Making your word just as good as your bond.
Time to be happy,
Doing your best—
Time to be trustful,
Leaving the rest.
Knowing, in whatever country or clime;
Ne'er can we call back one minute of time.

TABERNACLE SERMONS.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

THE NEW YEAR.

"He thanked God and took courage."—The Acts, xxviii., 15.

Paul had just landed at Putro i and was getting off him the sea dizziness, and was about to cross the country to Rome. Grand Christian people at Rome heard he was coming and went out to greet him and escort him up to the city. And if any man ever deserved a triumphal entrance it was Paul. No sooner had he looked upon these people who came out to greet him than two sentiments took possession of his soul—gratitude and hopefulness "He thanked God and took courage." Standing here in the first morning of the new year, these two sentiments are dominant in my own soul and in yours. Gratitude to God for the past—hopefulness for the future. It is only a few hours ago, at the midnight, that the door of eternity opened and let in amid the great throng of departed centuries the old dying year. Under the twelfth stroke of the brazen hammer on the city clock, the old patriarch fell dead and the stars of the night were the funeral torches. Fifty-two times hath the shuttle flown, each weaving a week with golden border of Christian Sabbath. Three hundred and sixty five times hath the clock struck twelve for noon, twelve for night During that time how many marriage garlands have been woven, how many graves dug, how many fortunes won, how many victories achieved, how many defeats suffered, how many souls lost, how many immortals blessed! Year of assassination and of triumph, of conflagration and of harvest, of joy and of sorrow. I twist a garland half of amaranth and half of cypress—the amaranth for the joy and the cypress for the grief—and I put the garland on the brow of the old dead year. And right beside the grave of the dead is the cradle of the new year. This season of year to me is very suggestive. It is more than an anniversary to me. If I live until next Saturday I shall be fifty years of age. If I live until next Friday I shall keep the first anniversary of my son's death. So that this season of the year is full of suggestiveness, and full of solemnity, and full of gratitude, and full of hopefulness—all kinds of emotion commingling in my soul. I thank God and take courage.

In our church it has been a year of great prosperity. We have blown the gospel trumpet and the people have come in by hundreds and hundreds and yielded their hearts to God, and these altars again and again have been thronged with people who stood up in the presence of three worlds and acknowledged the Lord who brought them, and it has been a perpetual harvest home, and there is a great multitude this morning in the house of God, children of life who only a year ago were the children of darkness. I have thought this morning it might be well to talk with you in rehearsal of some things we have been trying to do during the past year and to state some things we hope to do during the coming year. And in the first place, in this church I have during the last year tried to be worthy of your confidence and love—not by sycophancy or by consultation of your prejudices, but by pleading a straightforward gospel whoever it might hit. When a minister stands in the presence of a congregation who do not believe in him, his usefulness is done. When a congregation comes to believe that a pastor has in his soul the principles of selfishness and worldliness dominant, he had better be away. When a congregation wish that their pastor might be called to some other field of usefulness he really is called to go. A minister has no more right to kill a church than a church has a right to kill a minister. There is a time to come and there is a time to go. I know a minister of religion who had his fourth settlement. His first two churches became extinct as a result of his ministry, the third church was hopelessly crippled, and the fourth was saved simply by the fact that he departed this life. Well my friends, on the other hand, I have seen more, I have seen pastorates which continued year after year, all the time strengthening, and I have heard of instances where the pastoral relations continued twenty years, thirty years, forty years, and all the time the confidence and the love were on the increase. So it was with the pastorate of old Doctor Spencer, so it was with the pastorate of old Dr. Gardiner Spring, so it was with the pastorate of a great multitude of those old ministers of Jesus Christ of whom the world was not worthy. Many years ago, in England a lad heard Mr. Flaville preach from the text: "If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be anathema maran-atha." Years passed on. The lad became a man. He came to this country. He lived to be a hundred years old, and yet had not found the Lord. Standing at that age in the field one day he bethought himself of a sermon which he had heard eighty-five years before, and of the fact that when Mr. Flaville had finished the discourse and came to the close of the services, he said: "I shall not pronounce the benediction. I cannot pronounce it when there may be in this audience those who love not the Lord Jesus Christ and are anathema maran-atha." The memory of that old scene came over him, and then and there he gave his heart to God—the old sermon preached eighty-five years before coming to resurrection in the man's salvation. Would God that those of us who now preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ might utter some word now that will resound in helpfulness and redemption long after we are dead. Standing in your midst during the past year, you have seen in me many imperfections, but you could not have had consciousness of them, and I verily believe that the relation between us is strengthening, and that the friendship that began on earth will be resumed in heaven.

"'Tis not a course of small import
The pastor's care demands;
But what might fill an angel's heart,
It filled a Saviour's hands.

"They watch for souls for which the Lord
Did Heavenly bliss forego;
For souls which must forever live
In rapture or in woe."

Again we have during the past year tried to culture in this congregation, and we shall try to do the same in the years to come, the spirit of Christian sociality. There are churches which are arctic seas, iceberg grinding against iceberg. People come into such a church and sit down as they sit in a ferryboat, side by side, no nod of recognition, no grasp of the hand, no throb of brotherly or sisterly affection. From Saturday to Monday they are simply ferried over by Christian ordinances. Now, my brother, if you have a hard nature, if you have a malicious nature, if you have a bad nature, the higher the wall you build around yourselves the better; but if there be in you anything loving, anything kind, anything genial, anything sympathetic, anything useful, let it shine out. There is a vessel crashing into the rocks. One man crawls up on the beach from the shipwreck. He walks right up the beach, goes into the fisherman's hut and sits down to warm himself, utterly reckless of the fact that there are fifty men struggling in the surf. Oh, how selfish and how mean, you say, that is! How much better the spirit of the survivors of the Atlantic steamer who, having escaped to land themselves, went out as far as they could toward the breakers, and the water was cold, and they tried to bring the suffering and the drowning to shore, and pulled away until the left arm gave out in the cold water, and then the right arm gave out, and then with their teeth they caught the garments of the suffering and the drowning and pulled them shoreward. Alas! my friends, if you and I, having escaped from the wreck, from the dark wave of sin and death, and got fairly ashore, we sit down to warm our Christian graces by the fires of the Christian church, utterly reckless of the fact that there are thousands of Christians in the surf! My friends, the church ought to be a great home circle of fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters. That would be a very strange home circle where the brothers and sisters die not know each other, and where the parents were characterized by frigidity and heartlessness. The church must be a great home circle, the pulpit the fireplace, the people all gathered around it. Who is that sitting before you? "I don't know," you say. Who is that sitting behind you? You say, "I don't know." Who is that sitting at the right and left of you? You say, "I don't know." You ought to know. I declare that you have the privilege of giving the right hand of fellowship to every fellow worshipper. Many a time when the Gospel sermon may have failed, and the Christian song may have failed, and the Scripture session may have failed, one good hearty shake of the hand on the way to the door and an expression of personal interest in the man's salvation had done that which all the other services of the day could not accomplish. Oh! let there be sociality in the church of Jesus Christ. If fish go in shoals, if sheep go in flocks, if flowers go in tribes, if stars swing in galaxies, then let all those who worship in the same church move in loving and shining bands. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one glassy sea, one doxology, one heaven.

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.

From sorrow, toil and pain
And sin we shall be free,
And perfect love and friendship reign
Through all eternity."

But I have also to remark that during the past year I have tried, as I shall this coming year try, to preach to you a very practical religion. I know, as you know, the vast majority of the people who attend this church are business men and business women. There is no need of my dealing in abstractions I know what your troubles are, what your annoyances are, what your perplexities are, what your exasperations are. I care very little about the Hittites and the Jebezites and the Moabites. I would rather look after your annoyances and your perplexities and your enemies that want to keep you out of the Promised Land. So I only preach gospel that is not only appropriate to the home circle, but is appropriate to Wall Street, to Broadway, to Fulton Street, to Montague Street, to Atlantic Street, to every street—not only a religion that is good for half-past 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, but good for half-past 10 o'clock any morning, or good for half-past 7 o'clock Sabbath night, but good for half-past 7 o'clock of any night. Now suppose here was a case of diphtheria, and a physician came in—would he give medicine appropriate to the yellow fever, or to cholera, or to marasmus? Oh! no. He gives a specific for diphtheria. And there is a large company of promises here, a great collection of promises, and there is one just adapted to your case. It is a specific. It will cure; it will cure. The fact is, that a vast multitude of business men get no practical use from their religion. If you are sick, or if a member of your family dies, you say, "We must have religious consolation. Send for the minister." But suppose you are in a business corner, suppose the Sheriff is after you, suppose your partner has played you a mean trick, suppose there are half a dozen men in the front office with duns for debts you cannot pay, suppose you can no more sleep at night than you could sleep on the top of a mast in a Mediterranean hurricane, suppose at midnight you walk the floor with flushed cheek and your head aching as though it would split open, do you take practical advantage of your holy religion? Oh! no. You wait until the morning and then you send for some old skinflint and try to borrow a thousand dollars from him at two per cent. a month, and he will not lend it. Or you go to some friend that you helped in the day of trouble. You say he will surely help you. He will not. I know a man who in the panic of 1857 helped many through their troubles. He loaned a thousand dollars to this man, and five thousand to that man, and ten thousand to another man. He took other men into his own bank and said, "Give this man all the accommodation he wants," and he saw many through their financial troubles. They said, "Thank you, thank you, thank you, thank you." Five years passed along and his day of trial come. Where were the friends he had helped? All gone. Most of them out of town, or if they came in it was to say, "God bless you," knowing right well that one ounce of practical financial help would have been worth fifty tons of God bless yous. Nothing makes a man so mad as to say God bless you, when you ought to bless him. Well now, what have you done in the midst of your trial? Not at all what you ought to have done, my dear brother. You ought to have gone into the private office and locked the door, then knelt down and said: "O God, Thou hast said 'Call on me in the day of trouble and I will deliver thee;' and this is a day of trouble; fulfil Thy promise. There is that note in the bank, and I cannot pay it, and my rent is due and I cannot meet it; Lord God, fulfil Thy promise." Would He have done it? Just as certainly as there is a God on the throne. Ah! no. So many of you, my dear friends, instead of making your religion a robe in which to wrap yourself from the chill of this world, make it a sort of string of beads around the neck, that looks very beautiful but nothing more. In the panic of 1873 there was a business man found in his back office in Wall street with a loaded pistol on the table, and he was writing a farewell letter to his family. A friend came in and mistrusted what was going on. He said: "This is my pistol." What did that frenzied merchant want? Did he need advice of the brokers? Did he want help from the note shavers? Not so much as he wanted God. I saw a man go right through all the perturbations of business life. He was faithful to God. I saw him one day worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. I saw him the next day and he was not worth a farthing. I said: "Mr. Stevens, they tell me you have been unfortunate." "Yes," said he, "it is all gone." "O no," I said, "It is not all gone." "Yes," said he, "it is all gone. I put my name to a paper I ought never to have signed. It is all gone." I said: "William Stevens, I am your pastor, and I have a right to talk to you plainly. You say it is all gone. It is not all gone. Who put the iron fence around the village church?" Said he, "I did." Said I, "Who gave three thousand dollars towards the building of this village church?" Said he, "I did." Said I, "Do you suppose God has forgotten that? It is not all gone. You have made an investment for eternity." All the rest of his life he was a clerk in the great establishment, the great manufacturing establishment over which he had presided. He was all that time happier than Henry VIII. on the day when Anne Boleyn came to the palace, happier than Napoleon III. at the time of his coronation, happier than any man who puts his trust in this world when he ought to put his trust in God. O! how I should like to take the lamp of this Gospel and put it right down in your counting-room, right down on your carpenter's table, right down in your importing establishment, right down amid your commercial interests. I cannot help but see that the same trouble that makes one man ruins another. I stood at Long Branch and I looked out on the ocean, and there was a very strong wind blowing, and I saw one vessel going this way and another vessel going that way. "Why,' I said, "that is very strange—vessels going in opposite directions, propelled by the same wind;" but I looked again and I saw it was the way they had their sails up. And I saw people under the strong tempest, of disaster, one man driven on the rocks, the other man driven into the harbor of God's mercy. "It is the way you have the sails up. One man has the sail of pride up, the other man has the sail of faith in God up. But I see some among you business men trying to put your trust in God, but my brother you make the dreadful mistake; you put your trust in God and then you take it away. A vessel comes across the sea. It is nearing the "Narrows." A pilot comes on board. "Now," he says, "Captain, you have had a very rough time, go and rest, I will take you up to the wharf in safety." The captain goes to rest, but he feels nervous. He says: "Now, how if he should run us on the rocks?" He goes up and says to the pilot: "Here is a very peculiar current and there are headlands; now be very careful. I think I had better help you in this charge." "No," says the pilot, "I will take all the charge of this vessel, or I will take none." We put our confidence in God. We say, "O, Lord! take possession of our heart, our life. We will trust Thee for the future." We get nervous and say, "We are going on this religious rock and that rock, this misfortune and that misfortune" God will take entire charge, or He will take none.

"Only trust Him, only trust Him, just now."

Again: I have during the past year tried, as I shall try this year, to preach a Gospel of comfort for all the bereft. This is the most delicate work a pastor ever has If you do not know how to dress a wound you had better not touch it. There is a great deal of spiritual quackery that comes to a wound, that irritates it, and poisons it, but does not cure it. It may take no special skill to convey a sloop across the North river, but it does take a great deal of ingenuity and skill of navigation to take a steamer from New York to Liverpool. It may take no special skill to comfort a small trouble, but to comfort an immortal soul, all God's waves and billows going over it, and in a cyclone and the euroclydon of bereavement, it does take a great deal of ingenuity, a great deal of grace, a great deal of skill. During this past year, how many of my flock have been touched, and during my pastorate of nearly thirteen years, there is hardly a family in my congregation but has been sorely touched. Where is Father Voorhees? Where is Father Griffin? Where are those grand old men, those glorious Christian women who used to worship with us? Why, they went away into the next world so gradually that they had concluded the second stanza or the third stanza in Heaven before you knew they were gone. They had on the crown before you thought they had dropped the staff of the earthly pilgrimage. They were before the throne of God and you did not know the life had passed. And then the dear children. O! how many have gone out of this church. You could not keep them. You folded them in your arms and said: "O! God, I cannot, I cannot give them up. Take all else, take my property, take my reputation, but let me keep this treasure. Lord God, I cannot bear this" There have been so many who have gone out from this congregation I could not count them up. From all other trouble you can run away. You can run home. But suppose the home is broken up? Suppose that everything reminds you of one departed, every book, every picture, every chair, every sofa, every figure in the carpet. You sit down at the piano and you put the portfolio of music on the rack, and you put your foot on the pedal, and you spread your fingers abroad the keys, and the music starts grandly; but after a while you put your finger on a key and the chord does not answer because it is broken, All the accompaniment is spoiled. And so sometimes you go along in the grand march of life, among its joys and festivities, when suddenly you think of a voice that is hushed and a heart that is silent, and that silent key spoils all the music. Oh! if we could all die together, if we could keep all the sheep and the lambs of the family together until some bright spring day the birds achant and the waters aglitter, and then we could altogether hear the voice of the Good Shepherd and hand in hand pass through the flood. No, no, no, no! Oh! if we only all had notice that we are all to depart together and we could say to our families, "The time has come. The Lord bids us away." And then we could take our little children to their beds, and straighten out their limbs and say "Now, sleep the last sleep; good-night until it is good-morning." And then we go to our couches and say; "Now, altogether, we are ready to go. Our children are gone; now let us depart." No, no! It is only one by one. It may be in the midnight, it may be in the winter, and in the snow coming down twenty inches deep over our grave. It may be in the strange hotel, and our arm too weak to pull the bell for help. It may be so suddenly we have not time even to say good-bye. Death is a bitter, crushing, tremendous curse. The apple that our first parents ate from the forbidden tree had in it two black seeds, one called sin and the other called death. But during this last year I have again and again and again had the privilege of preaching to you a resurrection hope. A gale from Heaven has blown off the white caps of the billow of sorrow, and the feet of Christ have trampled the waves to a level, until over the glittering floor of the hushed sea marched all God's promises troop by troop.

"O! weep no more, your comfort's slain,
The Lord is risen, he lives again."

And so comforted have some of you been that you have felt you could almost hear the voices—the rapturous voices—of your departed, and involuntarily you call them by name—father, mother, and child! so very near were they. And though you have had crying spells when it seemed that you must see your departed one the next moment or die, for the most part you are calmly waiting, peacefully awaiting, until the roads that parted shall come together the other side the woods, and the day of your mourning shall be ended. I play you three tunes on the gospel harp of comfort. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." That is one. "All things work together for good to those who love God." That is the second. "And the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to the living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." That is the third.

And once more I remark, that I have during the past year tried, as I shall this coming year try, to present Jesus Christ as the only hope in life and death—the only escape from sin and darkness and death. I have tried to show that if a man is not born again he cannot get to heaven. If the Bible is plain in anything, it is plain on that point, If there is anything about God, or Christ, or the judgment, or heaven, or hell, that I have not presented; I wish you would tell me that I might preach that truth. Believe and live. Refuse and die. That is the Gospel. I have tried as far as I could by argument, by illustration, and by caricature to fill you with disgust with much of this modern religion which people are trying now to substitute for the religion of Jesus Christ and the religion of the Apostles. I have tried to persuade you that the worst of all cant is the cant of skepticism, and instead of your apologizing for Christianity, was high time that those who do not believe in Christianity should apologize to you, and I have tried to show that the biggest villains in the universe are those who would try to rob us of this Bible, and that the grandest mission of the church of Jesus Christ is that of bringing souls to the Lord, and a soul saving church. But, you say, "What will you do with those who come into the church, who have been changed by the grace of God and have entered on the christian life, and go back again to sin?" My reply is: I find that the best way of disciplining Christians is to plunge them chin deep in Christian work, and if after a man has been lifted out of the mire of sin on to the Rock of Ages he wants to jump back again he will have to jump. I will not stand and watch him. If after the Lord has revealed Himself to a man, if under the light of the promises and under the plying of the Holy Ghost, a man wants to go back, turning away from the banquet of a Saviour's mercy to eat the carabs of the wilderness with the swine, then he can go back. My chief anxiety will be for those who are outside, to invite them in from the highways and the hedges by the hundreds and thousands who have never yet tasted and seen that the Lord is gracious. There will be during this coming year, I suppose, 200,000 strangers in this church. The vast multitude of them perhaps we will meet only once. Will you by your prayer, and shall I, by my exhortation, meet the case of any of those? How many will you save? A thousand? five hundred? one hundred? twenty? ten? one? or none? All other works seems stale and insipid compared with the work of soul saving. Now the year is gone. If you have neglected your duty, if I have neglected my duty, it is neglected forever. Each year has its work. If the work is performed within the twelve months, it is done forever. If neglected, it is neglected forever. We cannot call that year 1881 back again. When a woman was dying, she said: "Call them back." They did not know what she meant. She had been a disciple of the world. She said: "Oh! call them back." They said: "Who do you want us to call back" "Oh!" she said, "call them back, the days, the months, the years I have wasted; you cannot call a year back, or a month back, or a week back, or an hour back, or a second back. Gone once it is gone forever. Now we start on the new year. It is going to be an eventful year to us. We cannot look forward and see the events, but God looks into the year 1882 and sees all the events just as plainly as He sees all events of 1881. Eighteen hundred and eighty-two is going to be just as eventful a year as 1881. Whether you or I will live to see the close, I cannot say. God can spare you, and He can spare me, and He spare ten thousand better people than we are, and still carry on His work. He is going to bring this world to Himself. God does not ask us to help because He cannot do the work. He only asks us to help because He wants to give us the honor of the service. You and I may falter, we may prove faithless, but the work is going on, and the kingdoms of this world are going to be the kingdoms of our Lord. When a great battle was raging, a messenger came up and said to the general, who was talking with an officer: "General, we have taken a standard from the enemy." The general kept right on conversing with his fellow officer, and the messenger said again: "General, we have taken a standard from the enemy." Still the general kept right on, and the messenger lost his patience, not having his message seemingly appreciated, and said again: "General we have taken a standard from the enemy." The general then looked at him and said: "Take another." Ah! forgetting the things that are behind, let us look to those that are before, Win another castle, take another standard, gain another victory. Roll on, sweet day of the world's emancipation, when the mountains and the hills shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the wood shall clap their hands, and instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar will come up the myrtle tree, and it shall be unto the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that cannot be cut off.

"The song of love now low and far,
Ere long shall swell from star to star!
That light, the breaking day which tips
The golden spired Apocalypse."

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powder. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

The Licensing System, as Carried Out in Belleville.

It has been well said by a contemporary that nothing can be more corrupt and evil than the licensing system, as carried out in the Province of Ontario under the Crooks Act. With the transparent object of supporting their supporters, and controlling for their own aggrandizement the powerful influence of the Licensed Victuallers' Association of the Province, the Ontario Government deprived the municipal Councils of the power of issuing licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors and the appointment of License Inspectors, and arrogated the same to themselves. The issue of licenses they placed in the hands of three irresponsible individuals, denominated License Commissioners, in each of the districts into which they divided the Province, thus acquiring further patronage; and although during the first year or two that the "Reformed" system was in operation the Government appointed one Conservative as a member of each board of License Commissioners, they soon, in West Hastings at least, abandoned even this pretence of fairness by appointing none but their own partizans to the office. Further, in this division, they dismissed the very respectable man whom they had appointed Inspector—without warning, without any charge being made against him in his official capacity, and after they had notified him officially that his appointment had been changed from annual to "during pleasure"—and appointed a thorough-paced partizan in his stead.

Being thus freed from the interference of a Conservative on the Board, and with a ready and pliable Inspector, the Commissioners here were prepared to carry matters with a high hand in the interest of the "pairty" of purity. In 1880, after they had issued the full number of licenses allowed by law, application was made for one more, which the Commissioners—at least two of them, for one refused to take part in the transaction—granted, in defiance of the law. The result was the famous suit of Sarsfield vs. Grainger (Inspector), which, after upwards of a year's litigation, has resulted in the affirmation of the conviction made by the Police Magistrate and affirmed by the County Court. The public wondered why the Commissioners would take the responsibility of granting the additional license, but it now turns out that the responsible parties or at least one of them was indemnified against the costs of a possible prosecution for issuing the twenty-fifth license by those concerned, which proves beyond a doubt that the Commissioners knew that they were doing an illegal act. What can be thought of such men as these, who deliberately violate the law which they were appointed to administer?

It is generally known that the Commissioners attend to their arduous duties without fee or emolument, and their self-sacrificing labors are expected to only draw reward of the knowledge that the "pairty" is benefitted by their sacrifice of time and [illegible]; but our Commissioners have advanced ideas, and if willing to sacrifice their own time for the love of their country in general and their party in particular, they have brothers that must live, and the plan of granting licenses instituted by the Commissioners—whether intentionally or not—is found advantageous to the increase of the worldly store of the brother of at least one of the Commissioners. The plan adopted is as follows: In the years 1880 and '81, the full complement of licences for the city was not at once granted, but the applications of a number, amongst whom were many of the wealthier applicants, were reserved until a future date. In the mean time the brother of one of the Commissioners let it be understood that, on his palms being greased, applicants would find it much easier to procure their licenses. A number took the hint, and those that were able greased the hands of the brother of one of the Commissioners when, presto! objections to their receiving licenses were removed, and the licenses granted. Of course we do not charge that the Commissioners were aware of this crookedness going on, but were the recipient of the fees a more distant relative of one of the Commissioners, the public would feel that the Commissioners were more like Caesar's wife, "above suspicion." We are fully aware of the gravity of the charge, and are prepared to substantiate it.

Again at the last mayoralty election the License Inspector, who is brother-in-law of the defeated candidate—whom we do charge with even a knowledge of the matter—used his influence with hotel keepers in the interest of the unsuccessful candidate, and any one can imagine how potent that influence could be. The measure of his success we do not know, but the fact shows to what extent Mr. Grainger is prepared to prostitute his office and to abuse its powers.

The one conclusion to be drawn from the above illustrations of the unscrupulous manner in which the License Law is administered in this locality at least, is that the people should insist on a return to the old system. The Star-Chamber Boards of Commissioners are responsible to nobody and can do as they please, their opportunities for favoritism, blackmailing and coercion being practically without limit. The municipal councillors are, on the contrary, directly responsible to the people, and they would not be likely to run counter to public opinion, to blackmail, to coerce in the interest of either political party, or to appoint an Inspector who would work solely in the interest of party. If there must be Commissioners, let them be chosen by the Council from amongst their own members, or let the duties be placed in the hands of the Police Commissioners, and we venture to say the law will be honestly administered. The experience that has been had under the present system is of so bad a character that a change is absolutely necessary, but which much needed change we do not expect as long as there is in power in Ontario a Government whose whole term of office has been marked by a curtailment of the people's right of making appointments, by which the country is filled with creatures of their own, who will do their bidding, whether in the interest of the country or not, as long as they receive their instructions from their masters at Toronto.

Gage's Series of Readers.

Since we expressed our opinion of the series of Readers which the enterprising firm of W. J. Gage & Co. have recently published, the Hon. Adam Crooks, Minister of Education, has issued a circular positively forbidding their use in the schools of the Province. We can understand and appreciate as a general principle the Minister's desire to save parents the expense of buying new text books, but we are of opinion that occasions will arise when conformity to this rule will prove injurious. If Gage's books were only equal, or only a little superior to those at present authorized, we would not favor their authorization, but the opinion seems to be universal in the press and among educationalists that they are so far superior to the readers at present in use that the Minister should at least give permission to Trustees to adopt them if they feel so inclined. In this opinion we coincide, and hope to see Mr. Crooks' circular giving the necessary authority. Uniformity in text books is no doubt desirable, but as several different Grammars have been authorized the same course might with propriety be pursued as to the Readers, leaving it to the Trustees, who are directly responsible to the people, to select the best.

Editorial Brevities.

More places for the hungry Grits! The Ontario Government will provide them in the new Bureau of Agricultural Statistics which they propose to establish.

The Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario offer two sets of prizes of $30 and $20 each for essays on the following subjects:—1. Manures: Their preparation, application and effect on growing crops, and in maintaining and increasing the fertility of the soil to which they are applied. Competition on this subject to be restricted to practical farmers cultivating land in the Province of Ontario. 2. The Homestead: Its arrangement and surroundings, with regard to convenience and comfort combined; economy, healthfulness and picturesque appearance; including choice of site, dwelling-house and offices, water supply, drainage, farm-buildings, shelter belts, gardens and shubbery. Open to general competition. The length of these essays must not exceed twenty-five pages foolscap, to be written on one side only. The manuscript to be sent to the Secretary of the Agricultural and Arts Association, not later than the 1st August next.

The lumber trade is booming, and prices seem likely to advance, owing to the absence of snow in Ontario. The Peterborough Review reports that Messrs. Irwin & Boyd's annual lumber sale at Nassau Mills on the 10th inst., proved a great success. The quantity offered was 1,200,000 feet, and every board found ready purchasers at prices considerably in advance of last year. The sale was largely attended by gentlemen from Toronto, Whitby, Stirling, &c., and they were the chief purchasers.

The Canadian Spectator comments as follows on Grit consistency: "The Globe and most other Liberal papers, as well as Liberal speakers, insist upon it that as a party they have a consistency of belief and aims as to the future policy of this country; they indulge in the use of great sounding words and strong phrases, but it is quite impossible for a practical man to find out what it all means. Mr. Blake suits his ideas to his hearers; he goes forth a fishing, and the fish in the pool decide the bait. In Montreal, where manufacturing interests are large, Mr. Blake announced that were the Liberal party to be returned to power the changes in the tariff would be few and slight; down in the Lower Provinces the same orator declared for Free-Trade pure and simple, and from the speeches delivered in West Northumberland a few days ago it is difficult to glean what Mr. Blake would propose to do if he had to lead the Government. Mr. Mackenzie is frank, and states that he would advocate a "a gradual return" to the old form of Free-Trade and fly-on-the-wheel-ism, but the Globe never hesitates—it roars for Free-Trade—it calls the lightning to its aid against the iniquity of Protection. The remainder of the Liberal press take up first one policy and then another, and usually satisfy themselves with the happy assurance that they are glorious Reformers."

A Great Fraud.

FARMERS BADLY TAKEN IN AND SWINDLED—OCCASION FOR INDIGNATION.

QUEBEC, Jan. 13.—A great fraud was committed at the expense of farmers in Kamouraska county last fall. A well dressed sharper, under the assumed profession of a grain dealer, went from farm to farm to purchase oats at 50c. per bushel, to be delivered in January. Contracts were signed in duplicate, and it appears that the duplicates in the purchaser's hands were nothing else but promissory notes which have been transferred to other parties, in Montreal, who want the immediate payment. The farmers' suprise and excitment at the reception of the notices can hardly be expressed. It appears that over 80 car loads of oats were ready for shipment, the farmers having threshed their oats with diligence to fulfil their contract and receive their well earned money. The farmers of St. Anne, River Ouelle, St. Denis, and Kamouraska have been the most imposed upon. Those having sold for instance 400 bushels of oats have signed notes for $400.

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES.—We have received the United States Census Bulletin No. 271, which presents the final official figures of the population of the United States in 1880 compared with 1870. From it we learn that the total population of the United States in 1880 was 50,155,783 against 38,558,371 in 1870. The population in 1880 was divided according to sexes as follows: Males, 25,518,720; females, 24,636,963. 43,475,860 were natives, and 6,679,943 were foreigners. There were 43,402,970 whites, 6,580,763 colored, 105,465 Chinese, and 66,407 Indians.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at James Clarke & Co., Druggists.

THE FRAGRANT WEED.

HOW CIGARS ARE MADE.

A Visit to Lockerty's Cigar Factory.

How many of those who daily light their fragrant cigars and enjoy the light blue clouds of smoke that float around them like incense, ever give a thought as to how cigars are brought into being? We venture to assert that but a small proportion of cigar-smokers ever visited a cigar factory and are acquainted with the process of cigar manufacture. Thinking that a little light on this subject would not be unacceptable to those of our readers who are more or less devotees of nicotine, an INTELLIGENCER reporter paid a visit to Mr. Thos. Lockerty's Tobacco Factory yesterday afternoon, in order to view the process and learn some facts about the tobacco industry. Probably Mr. Lockerty's factory is the oldest one in this district. It was established in 1863, and since that time it has continued to flourish, its output growing larger, and the quantity of its products improving, with each succeeding year. Of late, Mr. Lockerty's business had been growing so rapidly that he found it necessary to furnish new and ampler accommodation for his workmen, and early last year he commenced the erection of the fine brick factory on Commercial St. which he at present occupies. If one is not accustomed to the aroma of tobacco, the scent which greets his nostrils as he enters the building is almost overpowering. Tobacco is to be seen everywhere and in all conditions: tobacco in bales, as it came from the island where it is grown in most perfection; tobacco in leaf, its thin delicate texture revealing itself as the broad leaf is unrolled; tobacco "fillings" piled in heaps on the floor; tobacco in tubs, being moistened in order that it may be the more readily worked; bits of tobacco strewed about the benches of the workers—the refuse, which will be carefully collected and worked into cheap cigars as fillings; and, finally, tobacco in its most legitimate form, worked into those dark-complexioned, delicately-moulded sirens commonly called cigars—all ready to be kissed by the loving lips of their devoted male lovers. Tobacco's greatest triumphs have been won in the form of the cigar, and the great majority of the lovers of the weed will echo Byron's sentiment:

'Sublime Tobacco, which from east to west,
Cheers the tar's labor and the Turkman's rest;
Which on the Moslem's ottoman divides
His hours, and rivals opium and his brides!
Divine in hookas, glorious in a pipe,
When tipp'd with amber, mellow, rich, and ripe;
Like other charmers, wooing the caress
More dazzlingly when daring in full dress:
But thy true lovers more admire by far
Thy naked beauties—Give me a cigar!'

Cigars in every stage of manufacture and in endless profusion are to be seen here. Before the tobacco can be transferred from the rough bale to the artistically ornamented box it has to pass through several processes. After being taken out of the bale, it is soaked in tubs of water in order to prepare it for being more easily worked. It is then taken in hand by the strippers, who spread out the leaves and roll them tightly together into pads, in order that the makers may the more readily work the leaf. The "fillings" of cigars differ in quality, according to the value of the cigar. The best cigars are made of real Havana leaf throughout, but ordinary ones have fillings of seed tobacco—that is, tobacco grown in America from Havana seed. The "filling" is in short narrow strips before being used. It is pressed in tin moulds to the form which is intended, after which the rough cigars are passed to the finishers. It is in this process that the greatest dexterity is required. The workman, with wonderful precision and rapidity, cuts the leaf which is to be used for the wrapper into the exact size and form which is required; then takes one of the rough cigars and with a few dexterous movements rolls the wrapper around it, shapes the smoking end deftly with his left thumb and forefinger (paste having been previously applied), and chops off the larger end smoothly, passes the cigar into a mould, once more presses it—and it comes out a full-fledged, perfectly-shaped cigar, needing only a little seasoning before it is ready to "mix forever with the elements" in the form of aromatic smoke. When it leaves the finisher's hands it is taken in charge by the packer. The business of packing is a trade of itself. The packer has to sort the cigars which he receives, keeping those of each color and quality by themselves, and packing them neatly in the boxes which are prepared for them. As a matter of course, it requires a great amount of experience to be a skillful packer, for the quality of cigars is determined by the most delicate shades of color. The three principal colors are—Claro, a light brown; Colorado, a medium brown; and Maduro, a very dark brown.

Mr. Lockerty has of late been unable to fill all the orders which pour in upon him, chiefly on account of his inability to secure skilled workmen. At present he has fifteen hands constantly employed, and the average daily output of the factory is 3,000 cigars of all grades. The quantity of pure Havana leaf which is consumed annually in the manufacture of the Lockerty cigar is between 6,000 and 7,000 lbs. Mr. Chas. Lockerty, eldest son of the proprietor, has sole charge of the factory, and personally superintends the different departments of manufacture. He informed the reporter that since the National Policy came in force the demand for the better brands of domestic cigars has greatly increased, and an impetus had consequently been given to the business. The duty on imported cigars was fixed by the Tilley tariff at 80 cents per lb., and this was a decided check to the importation of American cigars. He believed, however, that a still higher duty was necessary in order to ensure the successful manufacture of domestic cigars of the best brands. The duty, he thought, should be practically prohibitory—$2.50 per lb., the same as in the American tariff, and the domestic manufacturers would then be able to make not only good cigars of the cheaper brands, but the very best cigars that could be made. If this protection were granted, the competition among domestic manufacturers would be certain to keep down the price. If a revenue had to be collected on cigars, it should be internal revenue on the manufactured cigars, as is done at present to some extent. There is no reason, Mr. Lockerty confidently asserted, why as good a cigar could not be manufactured here as in the States. Since the N. P. had obliged them to manufacture cigars of the better brands, expert judges had pronounced these cigars in every respect equal to the average imported article.

As we have already stated, an excise revenue is collected from the manufacture of cigars. The tobacco is admitted free, in bond, and the cigars are manufactured in bond. Everything in the factory is bonded, and a semi-monthly visit of inspection is made by the Inland Revenue officials. The excise duty is 40 cents per lb., and the amount of duty which is yielded to the Government by Mr. Lockerty is $1,500.

Judging from present appearances, there are prospects of a rapid growth of the cigar-making industry in this country, and one of the most prosperous factories promises to be Mr. Lockerty's. Already his cigars have achieved for themselves a more than local reputation; and, with the energetic management and careful supervision of himself and his son, there is no reason why the Lockerty Cigar should not be as well known, and its good qualities as readily admitted, in all parts of the Province, and even the Dominion, as in Belleville.

THE FERRY QUESTION.

A Meeting of the Merchants of the City Last Night Decides in Favor of the Bushy Island Route.

A BRIDGE ACROSS THE BAY DISCUSSED.

A meeting of the merchants of the city was held last evening in the store of Brignall & Thompson, for the purpose of discussing the question of ferriage between the city and Prince Edward County, with special reference to the route. About 50 of the most prominent merchants of the place were present.

Mr. C. F. Smith was, on motion, called to the chair, and Mr. H. L. Bottoms was appointed Secretary.

Mr. J. P. Thompson laid his views before the meeting. He spoke strongly in favor of the Bushy Island route. His chief arguments were: that the ice in the bay at the Bushy Island route was about 10 days later in forming in the fall and about the same time earlier breaking up in the spring than on the present route; that the B. I. route was only 872 yards, while the present route was 1,750 yards—more than double the distance. An estimate prepared by the County Surveyor of the cost of constructing approaches to Bushy Island gave the cost of such approaches as $[illegible],928.

Ald. Starling advocated having two boats running on the present route.

Mr. Robt. Dick spoke in favor of the B. I. route.

Mr. F. Rous asked what was the comparative distance of the two routes from Ferry Point to the corner of Front and Bridge Sts.

Ald. Starling admitted that the present route was much longer than the B. I. route.

Mr. H. Walker said that in all cities that he had known of, which were interested in ferrying, the main object had been to land passengers as near as possible to the business part of the city.

Mr. W. F. Jones suggested the scheme of a large ferry for teams on the Bushy Island route and a smaller and swifter one on the present route.

Mr. Thos. Ritchie submitted the following resolution: "That whereas, in this most important matter of ferry communication between the city and Prince Edward County, this meeting recognizes that the sole object is to increase the traffic between Prince Edward and the city—therefore be it resolved that, in the opinion of this meeting, if the Bushy Island route be most satisfactory to the P. E. farmers, that route should be chosen—if not, that some other route be selected in compliance with a popular expression of opinion by the persons on the P. E. side whom it is sought to accommodate; that, in any case, more rapid communication be established and maintained: namely, at least three trips within the hour by a boat with a capacity of conveying at least one fourth more than either the Prince Edward or Mary Ethel; that the rates be at a maximum of one-third the present rate allowed by the city; that effective means be adopted to ascertain the opinion of the P. E. people generally, who are likely to make use of the Ferry, as to the route—giving them at the same time to understood that neither the Mary Ethel nor Prince Edward will be accepted as a means of communication, neither of these boats being of sufficient capacity."

Mr. Kelso pointed out that the question of the comparative length of the two routes was of very little importance, since a steamer could travel much faster than a horse. Further, he affirmed that a ferry could not land at Bushy Island in a strong easterly wind. He opposed the motion.

Mr. Angus McFee thought that a fourth of the money which would be expended on the Bushy Island scheme would dredge the harbor up to the new ferry-slip. He favored the present route. The B. I. landing was too far away from the city.

Mr. A. M. Foster said that the total cost of constructing the B. I. landing and approaches would be under $4,000, which, compared with the cost of running two ferries on the present route, as proposed by Ald. Starling, was a mere bagatelle.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint said that Capt. Anderson, of the Mary Ethel, had examined the water in the vicinity of Bushy Island, and had expressed himself perfectly satisfied that any ordinary ferry could easily land there. He pointed out that the Prince Edward people themselves were almost a unit in favor of the B. I. route, and if their convenience were to be consulted that should be the route adopted. They, having a practical knowledge of the two routes, should know which was the most feasible. They also were the parties most interested.

Mr. A. N. Reid seconded the resolution submitted by Mr. Ritchie.

After some desultory discussion,

Mr. Ed. Reddick gave his views on the subject—speaking very energetically in favor of the present route. In reply to a question from Mr. Bottoms, whether one boat would carry all the passengers, Mr. R. sagaciously replied, "Yes, if it would be big enough."

Mr. Costello stated that Mr. Evans' estimate for dredging the harbor thoroughly and blasting out the water approach to the new ferry slip would be $5,000. It would be a pity to abandon the new ferry-slip when this would give us a splendid ferry landing.

Mr. Knox pointed out that the P. E. people had never had the Mill Island route, with more rapid ferriage by that route, laid before them for consideration.

Some further discussion having ensued, the resolution was put and carried with but few dissentient votes.

Ald Dickson made a brief and forcible address. He said that the business men of the city should control the ferry, and fix the rates. He urged the establishment of a joint stock company among the merchants of Belleville.

Mr. Ritchie thought that a better scheme would be the building of a steamer by the city and leasing it by tender.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint advocated the construction of a bridge to unite the city and P. E. county. He believed the scheme perfectly feasible, and he had no doubt many prominent men in the city and Ameliasburg would be willing to subscribe to the project.

Mr. C. P. Holton said that a practical engineer had informed him that a bridge across the bay could be built for from $75,000 to $100,000 at the outside.

Mr. Kelso said no doubt the cost would be under $100,000. The chief difficulty in the way of the construction of a bridge would be the obtaining of a charter.

Mr. Flint moved, seconded by Mr. Kelso, that the City Council take the proper steps towards securing a charter for the construction of a bridge between the City of Belleville and the Township of Ameliasburg.

The motion was carried unanimously.

A subscription list for a joint-stock ferry company was then opened.

The following names and amounts were all that were secured:—

C. F. Smith	$500.
J. W. Dunnet	500.
Thos. Ritchie	500.
Brignall & Thompson	500.
Geo. D. Dickson	200.
C. J. Starling	200.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—I desire to correct some misstatements which appear in a lengthy paragraph in the Ontario of last night, relating to the alleged stealing of a horse under seizure. In the first place, the five horses taken from Gilbert's stable at Trenton were not "stolen during the night" in June last, but were taken at noon in April, 1880, after Mr. Gilbert had been told by their owner that he was going to take them. The mare which was seized at the Queen's Hotel did not belong to me, and has not been secreted, being now in the possession of her owner at Trenton. The debt in regard to which the execution was issued, I offered to pay at the same rate that the note was offered to a third party, and I am still willing to do so.

Yours truly,
J. E. SMITH.

THE congregation of John St. Presbyterian Church raised $4,000 last year for all purposes.

THERE are now 136 young men in attendance at the Ontario Commercial College, besides 30 who attend night school.

REMINDER. — Evangelistic meeting to-morrow evening at Bethel Hall, after the churches are out. Everybody invited.

THREE tramps were sheltered in the police cells last night. They were farm-laborers, recently arrived from England.

A HORSE and sleigh broke through the ice in crossing to the city from Ferry Point. They were got out with considerable difficulty.

THE credit sale of Mr. Deacy's farm stock and implements will take place on Tuesday next, instead of Wednesday, as advertised.

THE Napanee papers promise the Histrionic Association a cordial reception on the occasion of their visit to that town on the 24th inst.

THE City Mission day school is progressing favorably under the management of Rev. Mr. Schuster. It has now 30 pupils in regular attendance.

WE are informed that the injury which was inflicted with a jack-knife by one boy on another at the Union School yesterday, was merely an accident.

"What is the greatest charge on record?" asked the professor of history. And the absent-minded student answered: "Seventeen dollars for hack hire for self and girl for two hours."

FOR a Saturday's market, that of this morning was small. The roads in the country are in very bad condition, and that is no doubt the cause of the comparatively small attendance.

THE annual Missionary Meeting in aid of the Diocesan Mission Fund will be held in St. Thomas' Church to-morrow evening. Revs. A. J. O'Loughlin and A. F. Echlin will deliver addresses.

MR. WESLEY HOWELL, who a short time since lost his eyesight from the effects of an accident, made his way to our sanctum to-day and gave undoubted proof that he is rapidly recovering under Dr. Willson's treatment.

THE Bay of Quinte Sportsman's Club met last night at the Hub. The only business of importance transacted was the completion of the Constitution and By-laws and the acceptance of the challenge of the Deseronto Club to a pigeon shooting match.

MR. JAS. MARSDEN, Clerk in the Master of Chancery's office, was knocked down by a horse on Front St. this morning, the driver being unable to rein it up in time. Fortunately, Mr. Marsden escaped without being run over and without serious injury.

WE were informed this morning by a prominent and influential farmer from Ameliasburg, that $50,000 could be secured among the farmers of Ameliasburg, Sophiasburg and Hillier, toward the construction of a bridge to connect P. E. County with this city.

THE programme of the Oddfellows' Concert, to be held in the Oddfellows Hall, on Wednesday evening, the 25th inst., will be found in another column. No one who scans it but will admit that a rich and varied entertainment awaits those who may attend.

IT has been found necessary to again postpone the public presentation of the prizes won in recent rifle contests in Belleville, owing to the fact that the Minister of Militia has been obliged to visit Washington on important business, and will not return for ten days.

A MAN named James Grills was hurt by a threshing-machine in the 3rd concession of Sidney yesterday afternoon. He was caught in the cylinder while feeding the machine, had all his clothes torn from his back, and was badly bruised. The machine was stopped, however, before he could be very seriously injured. It was a narrow escape.

THE New York Book-keeper, a very able journal which circulates among the accountants of the United States and Canada, publishes in its last issue the paper on Joint Stock Companies read by Mr. J. W. Johnson, of Ontario Business College, before the Institute of Accountants of Ontario at its last meeting in Toronto.

WE have been shown a 3 lb. wad of tobacco, neatly bound in the form of a cone, which arrived here all the way from Winnipeg a day or two ago. It was sent to Mr. Wm. Baker, carriage manufacturer, by his son Fred, who is at present running a land office in Winnipeg. If it is Manitoba grown tobacco (as probably it is) the denizens of the Northwest have no occasion either to smoke "kinnekinick" or the imported article.

MR. B. R. WOLEVER is the next one who will leave Belleville for the Northwest. He starts for Winnipeg on Monday. Mr. Wolever has for several years acted as organist of Christ Church, and last evening the members of the choir, with a number of friends from the congregation, called at his residence and presented him with a flattering little address, accompanied by a well-filled purse.

BLEECKER ST. Methodist Church will be re-opened for divine service to-morrow. Rev. Dr. Jeffers will preach in the morning, Rev. Mr. Burns, of Wellington, in the afternoon, and Rev. T. W. Jeffery, of Cobourg, in the evening. On Monday evening a tea meeting will be held in the church. The West Belleville choir will furnish music for the tea-meeting. The street car and buses will run for the accommodation of persons going to and returning from the tea-meeting.

LAST evening there was a very pleasant gathering at the residence of Madame Tourgis to witness the annual examination of her pupils. For upwards of two hours those present were called to listen to a number of well executed pieces and to note the marked progress which had been reached. At the close Rev. D. Mitchell and A. G. Northrup, Esq., congratulated Madame Tourgis on the success of the entertainment and on the evidence presented of her excellent mode of teaching, and of the personal qualities which rendered her attractive to her pupils. We doubt not that Madame Tourgis will grow in public favor as a teacher of music.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 14.—Lakes, fresh to strong north-westerly to westerly winds, fine colder weather, followed to-morrow by south-westerly to southerly winds, and rising temperature.

CITY MISSION SERVICES TO-MORROW.—At Mr. Minor's, Franklin St., Bleecker's Mills, Sunday School at 10 a.m. Public Service at 11 a.m. In Mr. Covert's store, Church St., Sunday School at 2:30; and service at 6:30 p. m. at Mr. Thompson's, near corner of Dundas and Church Sts.

RAILWAY NOTES.—The Peterborough Review says: "The Midland Railway Company have placed colored lights on all the switches, at nearly all of the principal stations on the line. They are very convenient and a great safeguard against running off. The contracts for the supply of ties for the Toronto and Ottawa line between Madoc and Bridgewater are being let. Tenders are being asked for to supply the bridge timber and erect the necessary stone work in the same district."

IS IT A HOAX?—The Picton Gazette says: "A report has been circulating in this place to the effect that Messrs. D. Davy and John Johnson, who were reported drowned in the bay while coming from Hog Island to Picton last fall, have been heard from in Dakota, Mrs. Davy having received a letter from her missing husband. We have been unable to trace the report to an authentic source, and if there is no truth in it, the person who started the story has been instrumental in giving currency to a most heartless and cruel joke, but, if on the other hand the parties supposed to be drowned really "vamoosed the ranch" in the manner stated, they deserve all the contempt it is possible to heap upon them from those who have assiduously labored for the purpose of securing to their families and friends all of mortality that remained of them."

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The number of The Living Age for the week ending January 14th, contains the following notable articles; Carlyle's ethics, Cornhill Magazine; Two studies in Dante, Contemporary Review; English Satire in the Nineteenth Century, Frazer's Magazine; Kioto, Fortnightly Review; Fairies, Saturday Review; together with the conclusion of Mademoiselle Angele, and the usual amount of poetry. This is the second number of the new volume. New subscribers can begin with this number. For fifty two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year both postpaid. Littell & Co. are the publishers.

MINING AND RAILWAY PROJECTS.—The Globe publishes the following telegram from this city:—"Mr. Coe has sold a three-fourths interest in all his Hastings lands and mines to the proprietors of the Prince Edward County Railway, Messrs. S. G. Ritchie, of Akron, Ohio, and J. B. & G. W. McMullen, of Picton. The railway will be at once built northward from Trenton to the townships of Wollaston and Tudor, where the largest of the mines are located. Ample docks of the most approved pattern will be built at Weller's Bay, on Lake Ontario, where the depth of water obtainable is from fifteen to twenty feet. Mr. Ritchie, the President of the railway company, is making arrangements for the erection of a Bessemer steel rail mill at the Lake Ontario terminus of the road." We are informed further that the Messrs. McMullen have entered into contract with the Pennsylvania Iron Co. to deliver to them 450,000 tons iron ore by December next.

A THOROUGH SCOUNDREL.—The Campbellford Herald says:—"The man Johnston or Toner, at present in gaol at Cobourg, charged with an indecent assault upon a young girl at Campbellford recently, has a horrible record. It is said that his real name is Townley, and that he hails from Belleville. If this identification is correct, he has been in gaol twice already for this kind of crime, and on one occasion he received twenty lashes, and on the other a second severer application of the cat-o'nine-tails. It does not appear to have done him any good. Once he attempted an assault upon a young woman on Rankers Island, and but for the darkness, which aided his escape, he would have been lynched. Hanging would do him a great deal of good." If the so-called Johnston or Toner is the man who was flogged here for indecent assault, he was known here as Andrew Townley, and does not belong to Belleville, but lived here for a year or two. After being released from gaol here, he attempted a repetition of his crime, and fled to avoid arrest. It is not at all probable that he ever returned to this place.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

RAILROAD DISASTER.

Terrible Collision on the Hudson River Road.

Large Number of Lives Lost.

Senator Wanger Killed and an Assemblyman Injured.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 13.—The Tarrytown passenger train ran into a special New York express, which left Albany at 2:40 this afternoon, in a rock cut on the Spuyten Duyvil and Portmorris road at seven o'clock this evening. Two cars were set on fire by an overturned heater and destroyed. Several passengers were injured. The rear end of the special express was composed of three drawing-room cars filled with members of the Legislature. Two rear drawing-room cars of the Chicago express were telescoped and set on fire. It is reported that seven bodies have been taken from the wreck. Senator Wagner, it is feared, is burned. He was last seen entering one of the drawing-room cars a few minutes before the collision.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—At 12:25 Capt. Yule telegraphed the following particulars of the accident to police headquarters:—About 7:15 p.m. the special New York express on the Hudson River Railroad, bound south, became disabled at Spuyten Duyvil and the Tarrytown special, which followed close behind, ran into and telescoped with the drawing-room cars "Idlewild" and "Empire." Both cars were set on fire and destroyed, the people inside being burned. Park Valentine, aged 21, his wife, 19, of Remington, Vt., and a lady supposed to be from Philadelphia, were killed. Their bodies are at Killcullen's Hotel. Four bodies, burned to a crisp, are at King's Bridge Station. ... aged 36, of Spring Valley, Pa., is fatally injured. Mary Daniels, residence Sherwood House, Fifth-avenue, badly injured, but will recover. It is stated that D. L. Ransom, of Hoffman House, is among the killed."

It is reported that Valentine and his wife, who were killed, were married on Wednesday. Valentine is a nephew of Trenor W. Park, and was in business with his father, one of the wealthiest citizens of Southern Vermont. His wife was a Miss Gaylord, of North Adams, Mass. They were en route to Florida on their bridal tour. It is also reported that Senator Wagner was killed and forty more injured. There were at least 500 passengers on the train, and the horrors of the occasion were increased by two of the rear cars taking fire, some of the occupants being roasted to death in the sight of hundreds. Occupants of houses in the vicinity of Spuyten Duyvil at once came to the assistance of the wounded and tried to quench the flames in vain with water. Two women were clasped in each others arms and jammed between the frame of one of the cars and the colliding engine, and the flames quickly lapped them in their fiery embrace.

Assemblyman Sheehy was badly hurt. Police Commissioner Nichols was cut on the knee. Scarcely any doubt remains that Senator Wagner met his death.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—After Senator Fitzgerald escaped from the ruins of the train yesterday, he says he distinctly saw a hand and arm extended up out of the blazing car, and from the shape of the hand and cuff he was almost sure it was Wagner's.

The Herald states that Geo. Thompson, passenger, said in last night's report to be from St. Louis, was from Luzerne, N.Y. He was not seriously hurt.

It is stated that Valentine and his bride were seen talking together in one of the cars. They did not seem to be much hurt, but they did not move and fire soon reached the spot where they were. The young woman fell first; it appeared as if she dropped with the heat. Her head sank on the man's shoulder and then they both fell.

Senator Jacobs was slightly hurt about the head and thigh.

A newspaper man climbed out through window when he heard the screams of the women and shouts of the men from the extreme rear of the "Empire." Whether they were among that car's passengers or in the forward end of the "Idle Wild," is unknown.

Assemblyman Moak was fastened between the timbers close to the roof. The roof was pried off with great difficulty. The newspaper correspondents had narrow escapes.

Valentine Senior was looking out from the rear platform of the "Idle Wild," and stated that a brakeman with a light in one hand, and, as Valentine believes, with a white light in the other, was standing not ten feet distant looking up the track towards Spuyten Duyvel when the head light of the Tarrytown locomotive loomed two hundred yards away. The brakesman started on a run and began swinging the lanterns. Valentine had just time to leap from the platform and run across the track when the locomotive plunged into the "Idle Wild." The small man beside Valentine ran into the car and must have been killed. Lieut.-Gov. Barstow, of Vermont, was in the party of which the Valentines were members. He was at the forward end of the train when the accident occurred. It is feared that there were more passengers in the fated cars than there is any trace of.

THE LATEST.

Recovering the Bodies.

Senator Wagner's Remains Found

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Senator Wagner's body was recovered this morning from the railway wreck. It was recognized by personal effects, being itself unrecognizable. Both hands were burned off and his limbs drawn up, showing the horrible agony the victim endured. The body was brought here on a special train. The bodies following were also brought here:

Park Valentine and wife, both burned almost to crisp, but recognized by their faces and clothing. Oliver Keely, arm burned off and body dreadfully scorched and scalded. D. L. Ransom, of Messina, N. Y., guest at the Hoffman House. A body supposed from papers, &c., to be that of Rev. F. M. Marshall. Mrs. Maud Brown, of West 53rd Street. Also the body of a man, half consumed and utterly unrecognizable. The 99th Street hospital telegraphs that one burned man has been recognized as Briggs, an hotel keeper on Kingsbride Road.

Henry Rockenbaugh, who was in the rear car, states that he escaped through a window; heard a lady wedged under the seats calling piteously for help, and vainly tried to aid her. He recollects seeing Miss Brown get on the car at Greenbush. It was reported that an unknown woman had been taken to 99th St. hospital, burned about the hands, not fatally.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

MORNING DESPATCHES AMERICAN.

GREAT FIRE IN GALVESTON.

GALVESTON, Jan. 14.—The loss by fire here yesterday is estimated at $1,600,000.

BURGLAR FRIGHTENED OFF.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 14.—A burglar who last night entered Sec'y Frelinghuysen's house and was about carrying off valuable property, was frightened away by a servant girl.

VIRGINIA POLITICS.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 14.—The Legislature yesterday elected W. C. Elam Secretary of State, and other Readjusters were nominated for state officers. A colored member introduced a bill looking to the suppression of criminal intimacy between white men and colored women. The negroes insist on the passage of the bill.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN HUNG.

WENTWORTH, N. C., Jan. 14.—Joe Hay, Elderidge Scales and Matilda Carter—all colored—were executed yesterday for the murder of Nash Carter, Matilda's husband, in the presence of five thousand spectators. On the way to the gallows the woman uttered piercing screams, but recovered composure before reaching the gallows. A colored preacher made prayer and a hymn was sung, Matilda's voice being heard above all. The gallows was erected in a deep ravine and was surrounded by an armed guard. Pressing against these was a densely packed crowd, while the hillside was covered with people on horse back, in waggons, up trees and around lighted fires. The prisoners all made rambling, incoherent remarks, mainly asserting their innocence and warning the people against bad company and whiskey. All were ready to die and expected to meet God and be forgiven. Hay admitted undue intimacy with Matilda, who also admitted that she had been guilty of marital infidelity, and, audibly laughing, added: "But I was smart enough to keep my husband from knowing it." The culprit's necks were not broken by the fall and their struggles were fearful.

FLOODS IN TENNESSEE.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 14.—The log crop, valued at a million dollars, is endangered by the flood of the Cumberland river. A large portion is already swept away. Thirty horses in training for the spring meeting of the Nashville Blood Horse Association have been removed by steamer to the city, the race track being inundated.

NEW YORK NOTES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Within the last ten years twenty-two savings banks, with nearly fifteen million dollars belonging to upwards of a hundred thousand depositors, passed into the hands of Receivers in this city. The affairs of only three have been closed up. The amount paid depositors was but little more than four millions, while a million dollars have been swallowed up by the Receiverships.

At a reception given last night to Parnell's mother by ladies of the Parnell Land League, there was a large attendance. Mention of the name of Parnell, or the cause of Ireland, evoked outbursts of enthusiasm.

The Lennox Fire Insurance Co. have transferred their risks, and will wind up. Capital, $150,000.

Arrived, Silesia from Hamburg.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

The World says that the adoption of a resolution calling upon the Interior Department and the Department of Justice for information regarding the Northern Pacific land grants, promises to lead to a long and interesting discussion in the Senate.

The Times says that the resolution recently introduced by Representative Neal is regarded as the beginning of an attack on the administration of the Post office Dept. under James. A determined attempt will be made next week to provide at once for the erection of a new building for the Congressional library at Whitehall.

A. H. Turner, a prominent lawyer and ex-Congressman, died this morning.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 14.—Charles Clarke, aged 16, while amusing himself yesterday trying to catch a rope attached to a belt in a silk mill, was drawn into the shafting. His feet were pulled off and he was thrown against a pulley block and killed.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LARGE FIRE IN ALBION.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Jan. 14.—The block bounded by Main St., Beaver Alley Bank and Main Sts. at Albion was burned last night. The block composed the largest business portion of the village. Total loss $250,000. Several persons were injured. The favorable shifting of the wind apparently saved the entire place. The American Express, Western Union and Mutual Union Telegraph offices were destroyed.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Guiteau said, "I received 30 checks for $15,000. I suppose some are worthless and many good. I don't want anyone to send worthless checks, checks should be to my order, anyone can send money."

Scoville asked the Court whether the prisoner would be allowed to speak in his own defence. If the Court proposed to accord the privilege, Scoville and Reed prefer that he should speak first.

Guiteau:—I want to close the arguments for the defence. I wouldn't trust my case in the hands of the best lawyer in America.

Cox:—I should be loth to deny any man a proper opportunity to be heard if represented by the Counsel, but it is safe to assume that the prisoner will abuse the privilege as he has done all through the trial and what he would say would be highly improper to go before a jury. I shall therefore deny him the privilege. His Counsel can read from his manuscript anything they deem proper to be laid before the jury.

Guiteau protested he appeared as his own counsel, and claimed his right as an American citizen to be heard in his own defence. Finding Cox could not be moved, he shouted "Let the record show I appear here as my own counsel, and that I take exception to your ruling, Judge Cox. I shall appeal to the American people, and they will overrule you, and you will go down to future ages with a black stain upon your name."

Reed spoke on behalf of the prisoner. He complimented the jury for the seriousness, solemnity and care which had characterized it during the trial. The fact that the counsel for the prosecution occupied two days addressing the jury showed the grave apprehension of the prosecution that something would make the jury say that this poor man was a lunatic and irresponsible.

—In the Guiteau case, on the 13th, Davidge concluded his speech, but nothing of special interest transpired. Davidge, in the course of his remarks, claimed that the prosecution had shown the prisoner to be "in religion a hypocrite, at law a pettifogger, in all things a swindler, a denizen of gaols, and a depraved, wicked wretch."

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

W. S. MUIR, M. D.,
C. M., L.R.S.P. and L.R.C.S., Ed.,
Late House Surgeon P.&O. Hospital.

P. S.—I have been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

—A meeting of the stockholders of the suspended Bank of Prince Edward Island was held on the 13th. A loss of $216,000, caused by the defalcations and incompetency of the late cashier, has to be made up. There is said to be a prospect of the bank being re established in a short time.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Owing to a proposed change in business, has determined to close out his entire stock of Furs at cost. Everything will be marked in plain figures, and no second price entertained. Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. Please remember that this is a genuine sale, and not an advertising dodge. [47 &wtf

MALTOPEPSYN

—AN—

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourself—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° Fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

TOBY TYLER; OR, TEN WEEKS WITH A CIRCUS.

BY JAMES OTIS.

TOBY AND THE LITTLE BOY CUSTOMERS.

CHAPTER XIII.

TOBY ATTEMPTS TO RESIGN HIS SITUATION.

At last it was possible for Toby to speak of his loss with some degree of calmness, and then he immediately began to reckon up what he could have done with the money if he had not lost it.

'Now see here, Toby,' said Ben earnestly, 'don't go to doin' anything of that kind. The money's lost, an' you can't get it back by talkin'; so the best thing for you is to stop thinkin' what you could do if you had it, an' just to look at it as a goner.'

'But—' persisted Toby.

'I tell you there's no buts about it,' said Ben, rather sharply. 'Stop talkin' about what's gone, an' just go to thinkin' how you'll get more. Do what you've a mind to the monkey, but don't keep broodin' over what you can't help.'

Toby knew that the advice was good, and he struggled manfully to carry it into execution, but it was very hard work. At all events, there was no sleep for his eyes that night, and when, just about daylight, the train halted to wait a more seasonable hour in which to enter the town, the thought of what he might have done with his lost money was still in Toby's mind.

Only once did he speak crossly to the monkey, and that was when he put him into the cage preparatory to commencing his morning's work. Then he said:

'You wouldn't had to go into this place many times more if you hadn't been so wicked; for by to-morrow night we'd been away from this circus, an' on the way to home an' Uncle Dan'l. Now you've spoiled my chance on' your own for a good while to come, an' I hope before the day is over you'll feel as bad about it as I do.'

It seemed to Toby as if the monkey understood just what he said to him, for he sneaked over into one corner, away from the other monkeys, and sat there, looking very penitent and very dejected.

Then, with a heavy heart, Toby began his day's work.

Hard as had been Toby's lot previous to losing his monkey, and difficult as it had been to bear the cruelty of Mr. Job Lord and his precious partner Mr. Jacobs, it was doubly hard now while this sorrow was fresh upon him.

Previous to this, when he had been kicked or cursed by one or the other of the partners, Toby thought exultantly that the time was not very far distant when he should be beyond the reach of his brutal task-masters, and that thought had given him strength to bear all that had been put upon him.

Now the time of his deliverance from this bondage seemed very far off, and each cruel word or blow caused him the greater sorrow because of the thought that but for the monkey's wickedness he would have been nearly free from that which made his life so very miserable.

If he had looked sad and mournful before, he looked doubly so now, as he went his dreary round of the tent, crying, 'Here's your cold lemonade,' or 'Fresh-baked pea-nuts, ten cents a quart,' and each day there were some in the audience who pitied the boy because of the misery which showed so plainly in his face, and they gave him a few cents more than his price for what he was selling, or gave him money without buying anything at all, thereby aiding him to lay up something again toward making his escape.

Those few belonging to the circus who knew of Toby's intention to escape tried their best to console him for the loss of his money, and that kind-hearted couple, the skeleton and his fat wife, tried to force him to take a portion of their scanty earnings in the place of that which the monkey had thrown away. But this Toby positively refused to do, and to the arguments which they advanced as reasons why they should help him along, he only replied that until he could get the money by his own exertions he would remain with Messrs. Lord and Jacobs, and get along as best he could.

Every hour in the day the thought of what might have been if he had not lost his money so haunted his mind, that finally he resolved to make one bold stroke, and tell Mr. Job Lord that he did not want to travel with the circus any longer.

As yet he had not received the two dollars which had been promised him for his two week's work, and another one was nearly due. If he could get this money, it might, with what he had saved again, suffice to pay his railroad fare to Guilford, and if it would not, he resolved to accept from the skeleton sufficient to make up the amount needed.

He naturally shrank from the task; but the hope that he might possibly succeed gave him the necessary amount of courage, and when he had gotten his work done, on the third morning after he had lost his money, and Mr. Lord appeared to be in an unusually good temper, he resolved to try the plan.

It was just before the dinner hour; trade had been unexceptionally good, and Mr. Lord had even spoken in a pleasant tone to Toby when he told him to fill up the lemonade pail with water, so that the stock might not be disposed of too quickly, and with too little profit.

Toby poured in quite as much water as he thought the already weak mixture could receive and retain any flavor of lemon, and then, as his employer motioned him to add more, he mixed another quart in, secretly wondering what it would taste like.

'When you're mixin' lemonade for circus trade,' said Mr. Lord, in such a benign, fatherly tone, that one would have found it difficult to believe that he ever spoke harshly, 'don't be afraid of water, for there's where the profit comes in. Always have a piece of lemon-peel floatin' on the top of every glass, an' it tastes just as good to people as if it cost twice as much.'

Toby could not agree exactly with that opinion, neither did he think it wise to disagree, more especially since he was going to ask the very great favor of being discharged; therefore he nodded his head gravely, and began to stir up what it pleased Mr. Lord to call lemonade, so that the last addition might be more thoroughly mixed with the others.

Two or three times he attempted to ask the favor which seemed such a great one, and each time the words stuck in his throat, until it seemed to him that he should never succeed in getting them out.

Finally, in his despair, he stammered out:

'Don't you think you could find another boy in this town, Mr. Lord?'

Mr. Lord moved around sideways, in order to bring his crooked eye to bear squarely on Toby, and then there was a long interval of silence, during which time the boy's color rapidly came and went, and his heart beat very fast with suspense and fear.

'Well, what it I could?' he said at length. 'Do you think that trade is so good I could afford to keep two boys when there isn't half work enough for one?'

Toby stirred the lemonade with renewed activity, as if by this process he was making both it and his courage stronger, and said in a low voice which he could scarcely hear:

'I didn't think that; but you see I ought to go home, for Uncle Dan'l will worry about me, an', besides I don't like a circus, very well.'

Again there was silence on Mr. Lord's part, and again the crooked eye was upon and glowered down on Toby.

'So,' he said—Toby could see that his anger was rising very fast—'you don't like a circus very well, an' you begin to think your Uncle Daniel will worry about you, eh? Well I want you to understand that it don't make any difference to me whether you like a circus or not, and I don't care how much your Uncle Danial worries. You mean that you want to get away from me after I have been to all the trouble and expense of teaching you the business.'

Toby bent his head over the pail, and stirred away as if for dear life.

'If you think you're going to get away from here until you've paid me for all you've eat, an' and all the time I've spent on you, you're mistaken, that's all. You've had an easy time with me—too easy, in fact—and that's what ails you. Now you just let me hear two words more out of your head about going away—only two more—an' I'll show you what a whipping is. I've only been playing with you before when you thought you was getting a whipping; but you'll find out what it means if I so much as see a thought in your eyes about going away. An' don't you dare to try to give me the slip in the night, an' run away; for if you do, I'll follow you an' have you arrested. Now you mind your eye in the future.'

It is impossible to say how much longer Mr. Lord might have continued this tirade, had not a member of the company—one of the principal riders—called him one side to speak to him.

Poor Toby was so much confused by the angry words which had followed his very natural and certainly very reasonable suggestion that he paid no attention to anything around him, until he heard his name mentioned, and then, fearing lest some new misfortune was about to befall him, he listened intently.

'I'm afraid you couldn't do much of anything with him,' he heard Mr. Lord say. 'He's had enough of this kind of life already, so he says, an' I expect the next thing he does will be to try to run away.'

'I'll risk his getting away from you, Job,' he heard the other say; 'but of course I've got to take the chances. I'll take him in hand from eleven to twelve each day—just your slack time of trade—and I'll not only give you half of what he can earn in the next two years, but I'll pay you for his time if he gives us the slip before the season is out.'

Toby knew that they were speaking of him, but what it all meant he could not imagine.

"What are you going to do with him first?' Job asked.

'Just put him right into the ring, and teach him what riding is. I tell you, Job, the boy's smart enough, and before the season's over I'll have him so that he can do some of the bare back acts, and perhaps we'll get some money out of him before we go into winter quarters.'

Toby understood the meaning of their conversation only too well, and he knew that his lot, which before seemed harder than he could bear, was about to be intensified through this Mr. Castle, of whom he had frequently heard, and who was said to be a rival of Mr. Lord's, so far as brutality went. The two men now walked towards the large tent, and Toby was left alone with his thoughts and the two or three little boy customers, who looked at him wonderingly, and envied him because he belonged to the circus.

During the ride that night he told old Ben what he had heard, confidently expecting that that friend at least would console him. But Ben was not the champion which he had expected. The old man who had been with a circus, 'man and boy, nigh to forty years,' did not seem to think it any calamity that he was to be taught to ride.

'That Mr. Castle is a little tough on boys,' old Ben said thoughtfully; 'but it 'll be a good thing for you, Toby. Just so long as you stay with Job Lord, you won't be nothin' morein' a candy boy; but after you know how to ride, it 'll be another thing, an' you can earn a good deal of money, an' be your own boss.'

'But I don't want to stay with the circus,' wailed Toby; 'I don't want to learn to ride, an' I do want to get back to Uncle Dan'l.'

'That may all be true, an' I don't dispute it,' said Ben, 'but you see you don't stay with your uncle Daniel when you had the chance, an' you did come with the circus. You've told Job you wanted to leave, an' he'll be watchin' you all the time to see that you don't give him the slip. Now, what's the consequence? Why, you can't get away for a while anyhow, an' you'd better try to amount to something while you are here. Perhaps after you've got so you can ride, you may want to stay, an' I'll see to it that you get all of your wages, except enough to pay Castle for learnin' of you.'

'I sha'n't want to stay,' said Toby. 'I wouldn't stay if I could ride all the horses at once, an' was gettin a hundred dollars a day.'

'But you can't ride one horse, an' you hain't gettin' but a dollar a week, an' still I don't see any chance of your gettin' away yet awhile,' said Ben, in a matter-of-fact tone, as he devoted his attention again to his horses, leaving Toby to his own sad reflections, and the positive conviction that boys who run away from home do not have a good time except in stories.

The next forenoon, while Toby was deep in the excitement of selling to a boy no larger than himself, and with just as red hair, three cents' worth of peanuts and two sticks of candy, and while the boy was trying to induce him to 'throw in' a piece of gum because of the quantity purchased, Job Lord called him aside, and Toby knew that his troubles had begun.

'I want you to go in an' see Mr. Castle; he's goin' to show you how to ride,' said Mr. Lord, in as kindly a tone as if he were conferring some favor on the boy.

If Toby had dared to, he would have rebelled then and there, and refused to go; but as he hadn't the courage for such a proceeding, he walked meekly into the tent, and towards the ring.

TO BE CONTINUED.

THE CHILDREN'S DRIVE.

Three little children at grandpa's—Archie, Kitty and May—
After a summer of sunshine have the last frolic to-day.
High in the old farm waggon—never was carriage so grand—
Three little children are ready for a drive to fairy land.

The ponies are off in the pasture, the black horse stands in the stall,
But make believe steeds are harnessed and there at the children's call,
They'll race over the hill and valley, they'll dash thro' village and town,
And surely they'll find the fairies before the sun goes down.

They are going home to-morrow—this frolic will be the last;
So trot away bravely horses—no danger of going too fast.
Aloft in the old farm waggon, dimpled and freckled, and tanned,
Hurrah for the dear little children, driving to fairy land.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland,
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of infallible relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

DECLINE OF MAN.—Impotency of mind, limb or vital function, nervous weakness, sexual debilty, and all diseases caused by indiscretions and abuse, are radically and promptly cured by the use of Mack's Magnetic Medicine, which is for sale by all responsible druggists. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 13.

The reply to the speech from the Throne was moved by D. D. Hay. Referring to the first clause, relating to the increased prosperity of the Province, he combatted at some length the idea that this prosperity was due to any Government. He quoted from the Trade and Navigation Returns for the last three years to show the large increase in exportations of Canadian produce during that period. The total increased exportation of the year 1881 over that of 1879 amounted to $20,717,473. This represented an increased production for each family of Ontario of $35, or $7 per capita. The fiscal policy of the Dominion had nothing to do, he asserted, with the increased lumber and agricultural exports. Unless the increased demand for our products had taken place and unless we had been favored with abundant harvests the depression would have been still deeper than before. That the N. P. had been of no avail in stimulating manufacturers was, he claimed, shown by the depression of real estate and the diminished population in the smaller towns and villages. In reference to the Boundary question, he urged that it was a mistake to suppose that the land in question was worthless, as it included large fertile tracts. The timber resources of a part of the country in dispute were estimated at $54,000,000, or $135 a head for every family in Ontario. He accused the Opposition of sacrificing the interests of Ontario in obedience to their party leaders. The question of the disallowance of the Streams Bill was a cognate one, and the course of the Dominion Government in the matter was a blow at the life of the House. He referred to the evident tendency on the part of leading Conservatives and the press of that party to belittle the Local Legislatures in order to pave the way for their abolition. He thought that the proposed measure for the collection of reliable crop reports and other agricultural statistics was highly desirable, and would favor a still more comprehensive measure, so as to include statistics relating to other industries. The speaker concluded a speech of about two hours length with an appropriate reference to the death of the late President Garfield.

Dr. Robinson, of Cardwell, in seconding the adoption of the reply, alluded to the Boundary question pointing out that it was impossible for the Mackenzie Government to confirm the award, as it was not laid before them in time. He strongly condemned the action of the Dominion Government in vetoing the Streams Bill. He touched briefly on several other topics of the Speech, and expressed particular satisfaction with the proposed measure for promoting the public health, pointing out a number of sanitary reforms which might with advantage be undertaken. As regarded free libraries, he held that in the smaller places the Mechanics' Institutes would serve every purpose, while in the cities free libraries might be of service, and they should have the opportunity of establishing them if they chose. He expressed his concurrence in the reference to the lamented death of President Garfield, and concluded his remarks by a brief review of his career and services.

The Attorney-General complimented the mover and seconder of the reply, and proposed an adjournment of the debate until Monday.

Mr. Meredith concurred in the suggestion, stating that the Opposition required time to consider their course regarding the Speech, and the House adjourned until Monday afternoon.

'MURDER WILL OUT'.

A FALLEN WOMAN'S DOWNWARD PATH TO THE GRAVE.

Particulars of a Horrible Crime Committed Two Years Ago.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—That "murder will out" is an adage often quoted, and while, strictly speaking, not correctly applied to every case, yet it turns out to be true often enough to startle the guilty and give a feeling of greater security to innocent or law-abiding people. Such a case has just come to light, and a case of murder of a revolting description it is. The story is that of a woman called "Yankee Emma." She came from the United States some time in 1876, and drifted into a very uncertain manner of life, until at length she became a courtezan well known to the police authorities. Her real name was Emma Hamilton, and she also bore an alias of Murphy, having been, it was said, at one time married to a man of that name. She was tall, finely formed in figure, dark-haired, and pretty. Traces of these were visible even when debauchery had reduced her to a less than human position. One morning in July, 1880, she staggered into the Central Police Station in a terrible plight. She had been beaten, and kicked, and pummelled with fists until her head was almost unrecognizable. She begged for God's sake to be allowed to sit down and rest. Her hair was clotted with blood, her clothes covered with it, and a more pitiable spectacle never presented itself, even to the police sergeant

"Who has done this to you?" asked the sergeant.

"I was drunk and with some one. I do not know their names," was her reply.

"The hospital is the place for you, I think," said the sergeant.

He then sent her away to be medically treated. The time for that had gone by, however, and upon reaching the hospital the woman sunk into insensibility and died in some hours. All that could be learned from her at the time was that she had fallen from a hay cart. This story she stuck to. Meantime the police made a search for her murderers, believing the case to have been one of foul play.

A girl, who had been a companion, knew something of the affair, but could not be made to speak, as her man was concearned in it. The man having now died she comes forward and tells that one evening in July, 1880, Emma Hamilton, with several other girls, was carousing in a Colborne-avenue house. Some objectionable roughs were present, and Emma ordered them away. She was thereupon attacked by the ruffians, and was kicked and beaten by them until senseless and bleeding. She fell to the ground, to all appearances dead. She lay there until the morning, when she managed to be taken to the police office, staggered in, and laid her story before the officers as given above. A man named Livernois was arrested last night, and two other of the assailants are in the St Vincent de Paul Penitentiary serving a term. They will be at once questioned.

"I was very severely burned about the right leg several years ago," says Mr. R. R. Colyer, 193 Erie street, Jersey City, N. J., "and the spot always remained tender. A short time ago I wounded the old spot, and it refused to heal. I applied St. Jacobs Oil, half a bottle of which cured the injured limb."

—The Dominion Government will probably contribute something in the way of supplies towards Commander Cheyne's proposed Polar expedition.

Extraordinary Suicide.

A LUNATIC NAMED WALSH KILLS HIMSELF IN A CHURCH.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13,—The Basilica, formerly known as Notre Dame Cathedral, was this afternoon made the scene of a shocking tragedy, the victim being a man named Wm. A. James Walsh, who committed suicide by shooting. It appears that Walsh, who is a man of 45 or 50 years, had been drinking, and subsequently suffering from partial delirium. While in this condition he sought shelter in a refuge attached to the church, and under the charge of Father Malloy, where destitute persons are taken in and cared for. While there he refused to eat, seemed in terror, and used language implying an intention to commit suicide, saying that he would rather kill himself than have any one kill him. Being permitted to enter the church with another inmate of the Refuge to-day he disturbed the services. Between two and three o'clock this afternoon Father Malloy sent a messenger to call a policeman, thinking it better to remove Walsh Hearing of this intention Walsh ran into the basement of the Church which adjoins the Refuge. Police Constable Kane, accompanied by the messenger, went to the Church, and on entering soon caught sight of Walsh passing up the centre aisle. Kane followed, and when within six feet, Walsh, who had knelt and was rising up, suddenly shot himself in the right temple. Kane instantly seized him and wrested the revolver from him. Walsh seeming to resist though he never spoke. There were eight or ten persons, including several ladies, in the basement at their devotions. Two ladies were immediately in front of the suicide. They ran screaming out followed by the others, leaving the policeman alone with Walsh. Several ladies fainted. As quickly as possible Dr. Valade was summoned, and when he arrived the wounded man's pulse was still beating. The seat and floor were crimson with his blood. He died in a few minutes after. The body was taken to an undertakers. The affair has occasioned great excitement among the members of the congregation worshiping in the Basilica, a very large proportion of whom were French Canadians. Walsh is said to be from the Gatineau district.

Visiting Cards.

The mystic letters written on visiting cards are a source of bewilderment to the Congressmen from rural districts, who cannot decipher their meaning. Once that stalwart Kentuckian, Senator McCreery, met a foppish young constituent who had just returned from Paris, and said to him:

"I received your card the other day. I recognized your father's name, which is the same as yours, and supposed that he was his son; but what did the letters E. P. written in the corner, mean?"

"Why, Mr. Senator, replied the travelled man, "it is customary in Paris to write the initials of certain words on leaving cards. For example, had I been going away, I should have written P. P. C., the initals of Pour Prende Conge—to take leave. As it was, calling myself, I wrote E. P., the initals of En Personne—in person."

"Oh," said McCreery, "I understand."

A week or so afterward the two met again, and the young man said; "Senator, I received your card, but I couldn't comprehend what the letters S. B. A. N., in the corner meant. Pray interpret them."

"With pleasure," said McCreery, his eyes twinkling with humor. "S. B. A. N., are the initals of Sent By a Nigger!"

The young man tried to laugh, but really couldn't see the point of the inscription. Others did.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil,

The Ferry.

The meeting of merchants which was held on Friday night, to discuss the question of the location of the ferry landing on the north side of the bay, was an important one, and the decision that was come to was such as might have been expected from a gathering of intelligent men whose interest it is to secure the route which will be of the greatest advantage to the trade of the city. It is obviously the interest of the city to give the best possible accommodation to the people of Prince Edward, and as, so far as we can learn, a very large majority of the residents of that county who make Belleville their market town, or are inclined to do so, prefer the Bushy Island route as offering the shortest water course, we therefore hope that that route will be chosen. There are no doubt several objections to the scheme, but as these and its merits have been previously enumerated, there is no necessity for going over them again. That as to the lack of accommodation for foot passengers can be overcome by according permission to the owner of a small steamer to carry foot passengers only, to and from the foot of Dundas Street. By this means, we believe, the ferry accommodation could be very greatly improved and a considerable addition made to the trade between the city and Prince Edward.

"Make the Rolls Right."

It is a curious coincidence that, whilst one of the Globe's editors was indicting a fierce diatribe against the Conservative leaders for issuing a circular to the members of their party, urging them to be on their guard against attempts to tamper with the voters' lists by partizan assessors and to take measures to perfect their organization, Mr. Blake, the leader of the "Liberals," was drawing up a series of instructions of a somewhat similar character. A copy of this document is before us, and we append the circular letter from Mr. Blake which accompanied it;

TORONTO, Nov. 30th, 1881.

DEAR SIR,—I take the liberty of laying before you the urgent need for immediate and effective organization by the Reformers in every riding, and of asking you to promote this work in your own locality. I am most anxious to see in active operation, not merely riding and municipal organizations, but also committees in each polling subdivision. I would beg your earnest assistance in procuring an early meeting of any existing organization, and promoting this action. Allow me to suggest that the subdivision committee, if not already formed, might have a chairman, vice-chairman and secretary, and be composed of from five to eleven members, according to the circumstances of the subdivision—existing, where practicable, the services of some of the younger men of the party; that its members might bring in friends to its meetings; and that it first duty should be to look after the next assessment, on the basis of which the election is expected to take place.

For this purpose the committee should, in December if possible, and at latest in January, go over the last voters' list, discuss the changes which have taken place in the subdivision, and see whether any names should added or omitted; and the list of changes should be handed to the assessor immediately after his appointment, and, if needful, he should be formally notified.

Make the roll right, if you can, while in the assessor's hands.

The new assessment roll should, when complete, be examined with a view to make it correct for the purposes of the voters' list; and the Municipal Court of Revision should be appealed to, whenever it may be expected to correct errors or omissions.

After a new voters' list is prepared it should be gone over, and the proper steps taken to correct it by appeal. I enclose a memo. of hints on these points for the service of the committee.

The committee should meet occasionally to discuss the political condition of the subdivision, with a view to its improvement, and should attend to the early and systematic canvass of the subdivision. Many votes may be won or lost, according as this work is done or neglected.

The committee should undertake (with the aid, if needed, of other voters of the subdivision), the bringing up to the poll of the like form voters, each man becoming responsible for certain named voters.

By a systematic organization like this we can materially improve the condition of every subdivision, and produce surprising results.

In our Province, where there are so many evenly balanced ridings, the victory depends mainly on organization.

The Conservatives are preparing to organize more thoroughly than ever before; they have warned their friends against all Reform assessors; and they propose to make the next assessment roll the basis of a contest in every riding, and of a Conservative victory in Ontario.

They cannot do it, if we discharge our duty! Whether they are to succeed or fail depends largely on you and men like you, and I look to you and our brother Reformers in your locality to meet them with energy, determination and steady work. I am sure you will prove to me that I do not look in vain.

I shall be glad to hear from you on the subject of this letter, and to receive from the Secretary the names and address of the gentleman appointed for the subdivision as officer and members (where there is no committee), the names of six influential Reformers of the subdivision, and some account of the work in the subdivision.

Your faithful servant,
EDWARD BLAKE

To .....Esq.

The issuance of such a document as the foregoing over the signature of the leader of the Grit party shows the necessity which existed for the precautions enjoined upon the Conservative party by their leaders. The Conservative leaders were roundly abused for urging upon the members of their party the necessity of counteracting attempted frauds by lawful means, but what can be thought of Mr. Blake's proposition to "make the roll right while in the assessor's hands," by handing to him the list of changes which the Grit party deem necessary, and thus endeavoring to make of men sworn to do their duty impartially, mere instruments for manipulating the rolls in the interest of a party? Such a proposal is simply infamous, but it is quite in keeping with the tactics of the Grit party.

That Mr. Blake's circular has already borne fruit is evidenced by the unusual activity amongst the Reform Associations throughout the country during the past few days. The real object of these meetings is now apparent, namely the preparation of lists of changes to be "handed to the assessors immediately after their appointment," as counselled by Mr. Blake. We cannot advise our friends to imitate such despicable expedients where they are in the majority; but we do urge them to look well to the voters' lists, when published, and thus they will be able to defeat the underhanded efforts of their opponents who follow the advice given in the party circular. If it is objected probable that the voters' lists of altogether probable that the voters' lists of this year will, in the rural districts at least, be used in the general election of 1883, and every Conservative who is entitled to the franchise should therefore examine the voters' list and see that his name is properly entered thereon. If it has been omitted, then should he enter an appeal with the Clerk of the municipality within thirty days from the first posting of the list. It is only by such means that the machinations of the "party of purity" can be frustrated. Let every Conservative who lives in a municipality in which the assessors are Grits, remember that eternal vigilance is the price of the franchise.

Editorial Brevities.

In reply to assertions on the subject which the Globe made, the Mail publishes the following reply: "The directors of the Canada Pacific railway, notwithstanding reports to the contrary, have no intention of changing the route of the continental road, via Lake Superior. Neither do they purpose abandoning the branch from the Pacific line to Sault Ste. Marie. They will utilize the lakes by placing steamers on them during the construction of the line. Algoma bay may be used as a convenient point for traffic with Chicago, but there is no idea of making it a terminus of any kind or for any purpose.'

The speech which that irrepressible talker, the "Prophet of Listowell," made in moving the address in the Ontario Legislature, was altogether out of place. It was a mere rehash of the Globe's anti-N. P. articles, and would have been better fitted for the House of Commons. It is really too bad that the N. P. should have raised the price of Apollinaris water and corkscrews, as Mr. Hay, on his Winnipeg trip, showed that he dearly loves to indulge in the innocuous beverage. But this should not be a cause of offence, as he only quaffs copious bumpers of his favorite tipple when he can do so at the public expense; and in such case, of course, the Province pays the duty.

The Globe states that the Ontario Government have taken action in relieving the sufferers by the bush fires in Muskoka. "As a matter of fact," says our contemporary, "the Ontario Government have granted a substantial measure of aid, not enough to take the place of private charity, but a very useful supplement to it." This niggardly method of dealing with the matter is not what the people want. As the Globe's correspondent has stated, the sufferers are a class of people who shrink from making their wants known. The proper course would have been for the Government to have placed a reasonable sum at the disposal of the local Committees, who have the best means of knowing the amount of relief that is required in each case. Private charity has already contributed largely to the relief fund, and ought not to be further taxed in this matter.

The Newmarket Era says of the Syndicate land regulations:—"It is exceedingly questionable whether the Government would have been allowed to be as liberal as this offer of the Syndicate appears to be, in case the railway had been constructed as a government work and the Syndicate bargain never entered into."

The Arena or Bull Fights of Old Mexico.

For the Intelligencer.

Having had occasion to go to El Paso in old Mexico, to purchase a couple of good ponies and saddles for a hunting expedition, I found the people were much interested about the great national feast and Spanish bull fights—so I concluded to wait and see the so-much read-of bull fights. The place selected for the arena is at El Paso, across the Rio Grande del Norte, and is enclosed by a wall eight ft. high, with raised seats in a circle on the top of the wall. There were some 3,000 people present, principally Mexicans, and some Spanish ladies and gentlemen. After a short interval a clown came out and harangued in Spanish, then the cry was raised "Aroux" (bull), when in came four horsemen on fine steeds, dressed in old Spanish style, with each a lasso on the saddle; next came four Spanish youths, and an old Spaniard some 75 years old, dressed in bright gaudy tights, large loose sleeves, with a turban on the head, and carrying a small red flag. Then after some manœuvering they turned in a wild black bull, which came in with a roar and a bound. The band commenced playing, the trumpet sounded, and then of all the noises! Every one yelled, shouted, and at that instant the bull, maddened by the din, charged the men, and then the fight commenced. The bull would throw small dogs in the air, and some bravery was shown, especially by the old Spaniard, and a youth whom I took for his son. They fought four bulls during the afternoon, and once a young fellow going too far was caught by the bull and thrown to the ground, and only rescued with great trouble, all rushing up and shoving their flags in the bull's face, and otherwise diverting his attention from the youth. He then charged them all, right and left, but they quietly despatched him, and then the fight was over. This continued every afternoon for the two weeks, and affords great amusement to the Mexicans, who come from far and near to witness the sport.

DISCOURSES BY EMINENT DIVINES.

Bleecker St. Church was destroyed by fire in November, 1880. Shortly after the fire the vestry of the church was temporarily fitted up, and the congregation worshipped there. When Rev. Mr. Burns was appointed pastor of the church last summer, however, he immediately began to take steps toward the re-erection of the church. The work was commenced in October last and was just completed last week, and the church was formally dedicated to the worship of God yesterday.

The church, though not as large as the old building, is cozier and pleasanter inside. It is 63x35 ft., with a seating capacity of about 220—quite large enough for the congregation for several years to come. The walls are tinted a cheerful color, the seats are comfortable, the pulpit fittings tasteful and pleasing, the heating and lighting arrangements all that could be desired: altogether, the Bleecker St. people have a church in which it will be a pleasure for them to meet to worship God.

The dedicatory sermons were preached yesterday by Rev. Dr. Jeffers, Rev. Wm. Burns, of Wellington, and Rev. T. W. Jeffery, of Cobourg. There were large congregations at all the services, especially in the evening, when the little church was crowded to overflowing.

Dr. Jeffers' text was the 22nd verse of the 21st chapter of Revelation :—"And I saw no temple therein; for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." Nothing in ancient history, he said, was more interesting than the history of temples. People naturally felt that they must fix their minds on some place as God's residence before they could address Him in prayer. This led them to worship the sun, moon &c., and from this they proceeded to worship images in which they supposed their gods dwelt, and then they worshipped the images themselves. Thus arose idolatry and polytheism. The heathen built temples, in the deep recesses of which there was a dark chamber, where they placed their images and supposed their God dwelt. In the temple of God at Jerusalem there was a Holy of Holies where the presence of God dwelt, but there was no image there—the cherubim were compound animals, representing all nature as worshipping God. Into this holy place the High Priest went once a year to offer sacrifice and prayer, but the people were not allowed to enter it; they remained in the outer court of the temple and there worshipped, fixing their minds on the Shekinah, the presence of God, in the Holy of Holies. After the captivity the Jews built synagogues, where the scriptures were read to the people, and from which the idea of our churches was taken. Christ is now the divine Shekinah; Heaven is the Holy of Holies; and we stand in the outer courts and fix our thou, hts on Christ while we worship. They need no temple in Heaven, for God fills it all with His glory; but we do not see God face to face, and we need a temple yet. If the churches in which the Christian religion is diffused were to be closed for twenty years, the people would fall into a state of great sinfulness. No nation so early in its history had so many churches as Canada, and this church, he believed, would be prosperous and would be a blessing to the community.

At the close of his discourse Dr. Jeffers read the dedication service, and the building was consecrated to the worship of God.

In the afternoon Rev. Wm. Burns preached an admirable sermon from the 8th verse of the 27th Psalm: "When thou saidst, Seek ye my face, my heart said unto thee, Thy face Lord will I seek."

The pulpit was occupied in the evening by Rev. T. W. Jeffery, of Cobourg, who preached a characteristic sermon. He chose his text in Luke xix, 5—"And when Jesus came to the place he looked up, and said unto him, Zaccheus, make haste and come down, for to day I must abide at thy house." The following are a few of the leading thoughts of Rev. Mr. Jeffery's admirable discourse:—

One peculiarity about the character of Jesus was, that he always aimed at something. How many people there are who, when asked at any time where they are going or what they are going to do, would say "I don't know." Many men are just five minutes behind time in making a fortune. Men are responsible for many of their misfortunes. God is not responsible. If the preacher thought that God was responsible for all the ills of life he would give in his allegiance to the devil. There are men whom God is doing His best to make rich, but these men will not let Him. Men will not take advantage of their opportunities, either temporal or spiritual. Does God make all the smash-ups on the Grand Trunk? No; it is the result of the laziness, incompetency or carelessness of men. But Providence gets the blame for accidents of this kind and similar calamities. It was in a right way in which Christ became acquainted with Zaccheus. Zaccheus was a man whom nobody liked—he was a tax-gatherer, and this class of the community are not very popular—for even pious men often shirk the payment of their taxes. But Zaccheus had a friend who spoke to Jesus about him. It is a grand thing to have a friend at court. There is no doubt that God has taken pity on many wicked persons on account of godly friends, either in this world or in heaven, who plead for them. It is an error to think that those who have loved us in this world fail to have sympathy with us after they leave the flesh. If we are not converted ourselves we should at least cultivate the good-will of those who are, for they have power with God. Zaccheus was probably brought to Christ through the influence of Matthew, a fellow-publican; he had no doubt spoken to Zaccheus about the Saviour, and roused a curiosity in his mind to see and converse with him. There are different ways of bringing men to Christ. If we would go to work in the right way we would seldom be repulsed and would do much more good than in the blundering way that is often done. Men are often insulted by being handed a tract or being spoken to out of season. In his 25 years' experience as a minister of the Gospel he had never been repulsed by any man because he spoke to him of the Saviour. Zaccheus took advantage of probably the only opportunity he would ever have of seeing Christ. A wise act! Tremendous issues often hang on a moment's resolution and a moment's act. The waters of Niagara only go over the cataract once, and we often experience feelings and impressions which we can never experience again. Zaccheus was anxious to see Jesus. Many men do not believe in Jesus. We cannot believe in anything which we cannot see. If we never saw a bird we could not believe in a bird. We cannot believe in a God unless we see him in the person of Jesus, and we may see him by faith if we study his personality as revealed in the inspired word. In order to see Jesus, Zaccheus took advantage of the means at his disposal. He was a little man—a very awkward thing in a crowd. It was necessary for Zaccheus to accommodate himself to the situation—to overcome the difficulty which confronted him. He got into a tree. Many men tried to get up into different kinds of trees in order to see Jesus. Some men ascended the tree of Reason—away up thirty or forty feet. If Zaccheus had done this—if he had got into a high tree—the crowd and Jesus might have passed him by and Zaccheus would have come down without being satisfied. The tree of Reason is usually a rotten one, and lets down suddenly those who ascend it. No man living has perfect reasoning powers. Our reason depends very largely on our physical conditions, and is always tinged with prejudice. We cannot bring ourselves to believe in God or Jesus by the mere act of reason; we must take our stand on the truth of God and exercise faith; we must get above reason. We must get ourselves in a proper condition to see Jesus. Is not Jesus everywhere? Yes. He is in a gambling hell, a saloon, or a ballroom as much as in a house of prayer; but we do not want to see him in such places: we are not in a proper condition to see him. And so, in order to see him, we must go to the proper place, where we will be in a proper condition to do so. But Zaccheus did not want to see Jesus half so strongly as Jesus longed to see Zaccheus. Would that we could all realize how ardently Jesus longs to commune with us, to aid us, comfort us, and deliver us from anxiety. Nothing would please Jesus so much as to meet every one of us face to face, and let us see the smile of love that lights up his face. What a hell-upon-earth it is for a mother who pours out her heart-love upon a child, who sees that child turn his back upon her! This is the feeling that Christ must have when he sees our ingratitude, and our indifference to him. In spite of the tumult that surged around Christ the one thing in his heart was Zaccheus. Before Zaccheus spoke a word, Jesus spoke to him, and invited him to come down. Often God perceives our inclinations before we make any direct appeal to him, and he meets us more than half-way. The very moment a man spiritually turns round that moment a man is converted. Zaccheus was converted the moment he obeyed Christ and came down. The first proof of this was, that he made haste to come down. When a man is soundly converted he is not tardy in following the Saviour and publicly acknowledging him. Another evidence was, Zaccheus obeyed joyfully. Another very substantial evidence was, he paid his debts. Every soundly converted man will strive to pay his debts; and if he tries, God will assist him The man who has not done his best to pay his debts in this world will find it tremendously hard to get into heaven. If it could be realized by the world that religion had this effect on a man, the world would hold a great prayer-meeting, and the prayer would go up, "O Lord, convert some more of them!" The church does not inculcate these practical lessons as much and as often as it should. We may, however, wrong men, and not be able to recompense them; we may not be able to find them; they may have died or gone away. But if this is the case Christ will provide means (perhaps in another world) to enable us to recompense fourfold those whom we may have wronged, as Zaccheus did. The preacher concluded by an earnest exhortation to his hearers to strive to do spiritually what Zaccheus did in reality—to see Jesus, to take him home to their breasts and allow their future lives to be influenced by his love.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what you have called it, the "king" of remedies, Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. The non-cathartic especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weak nesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

THE NEW COUNCIL.

Meeting for Organization.

The City Council of 1882 met this morning for organization.

The following handed in their declarations to the Clerk:—

MAYOR.

Nelson S. Lingham.

ALDERMEN.

FOSTER WARD.—Messrs. A. T. Petrie, E. H. Laroche, Robt. Clarke.

SAMSON WARD.—Messrs. Geo. D. Dickson, Hugh Blair, H. McIninch.

BALDWIN WARD.—Messrs. W. J. Diamond, Jas. Smith, Jas. Macoun.

BLEECKER WARD.—Messrs. C. J. Starling, A. A. Farley, Jos. W. Campion.

KETCHESON WARD.—Messrs. Jno. Taylor, Geo. S. Tickell, A. Brignall.

COLEMAN WARD.—Messrs. A Durand, Jno. G. Frost, Wm. Lingham.

MURNEY WARD.—Messrs. J. W. Dunnet, J. G. Vandusen, W. W. Watson.

The new Mayor was escorted to the chair by Aldermen Blair and Macoun and was invested with the insignia of office by the City Clerk.

His Worship said he had not prepared a set address; but would bring to the notice of the Council several of the most important matters to be considered by them during the ensuing year. It would be necessary, he thought, in the interests of the city, to induce manufacturers—especially iron workers—to establish industries in the city. The prospects of the establishment of smelting works were, he was glad to say, very favorable. The question of ferriage was also an important matter which required careful consideration and wise handling. In this matter we should do our best in the interest of the city—at the same time endeavoring to please our Prince Edward friends. The question of water-supply would no doubt be a prominent one this year. A special and immediate water-supply for Foster Ward was, he thought, a necessity. It would be necessary to take action with regard to furnishing a building for police cells and a fire station for No. 1 engine. The question of a Hospital and Home for the Friendless it was hardly necessary to refer to; but he was certain that the energetic action taken by the benevolent ladies of the city was regarded with feelings of satisfaction and pleasure by the Council and their actions would be seconded. After a few further remarks of a congratulatory character, His Worship resumed his seat.

Ald. Dickson moved that his Worship be congratulated on his election to the Chief Magistracy of the city, and that he be thanked for his address.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Dickson, the following Aldermen were appointed a Committee to strike the Standing Committees for the year: Ald. Laroche, Blair, Diamond, Durand, Vandusen, Taylor, and Starling. (Ald. Frost and Petrie were originally named in the motion, but they refused to act on the Committee, and Ald. Laroche and Durand were appointed in their place.)

The Committee retired, and in a few minutes returned and submitted the following report:—

FINANCE COMMITTEE.—Chairman, Ald Dickson; Ald. Starling, Taylor, Vandusen, Diamond, Petrie, McIninch, Macoun, Dunnet, Campion, Smith.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Chairman, Ald. Starling; Ald. Clarke, McIninch, Taylor, Smith, Lingham, Watson.

FIRE.—Chairman, Ald. Smith; Ald Petrie, McIninch, Brignall, Campion, Durand, Vandusen.

HARBOR & CITY PROPERTY.—Chairman, Ald. Campion; Ald. Clarke, Blair, Diamond, Tickell, Durand, Dunnet.

MARKET.—Chairman, Ald. Petrie; Ald. Blair, Brignall, Diamond, Starling, Durand, Watson.

BY-LAWS.—Chairman, Ald. Farley; Ald. Blair, Tickell, Smith, Laroche, Lingham, Watson.

POOR & SANITARY.—Chairman, Ald. Vandusen; Ald. Laroche, Blair, Tickell, Macoun, Farley, Frost.

FERRY.—Chairman, Ald. Diamond; Ald. Laroche, McIninch, Brignall, Starling, Lingham, Watson.

WATER & GAS.—Chairman, Ald. McIninch; Ald. Laroche, Tickell, Macoun, Farley, Frost, Dunnet.

PRINTING & SUPPLIES.—Chairman, Ald. Clarke; Ald. Farley, Blair, Brignall, Macoun, Frost, Vandusen.

COURT OF REVISION.—Chairman, Ald. Taylor; Ald. Petrie, Dickson, Starling, Dunnet.

The adoption of the report being moved,

Ald. Dunnet complained that the different wards were not represented in the Chairmanships of the Committees. He claimed that the wards should be represented in the Chairmanships as in the Committees. It would be noticed that the wards on the west side of the river were only represented by one Chairman of a Committee. He hoped that this year it would not be necessary to have work done by special committees that should be done by standing committees, as was done last year. He objected to the report chiefly on the ground that the committee appointed to strike the standing committees for the year had no power to report who should be the chairmen of those committees. He pointed out that Ald. Dickson himself had, on the death of the late Chairman of Finance, Ald. Jellett, held that the Council had no right to appoint the Chairman of a standing committee. He himself believed that Ald. Dickson was then right—and this was a parallel case.

Ald. Dickson held that the Council had power to appoint the chairman of a committee in appointing the standing committees for the year. If, however, the chairman of a committee was removed during the year, the committee had power to appoint their own chairman.

The Mayor ruled that it was in order for the Council to adopt the report of the committee, as submitted.

Ald. Dunnet appealed to the Council against the ruling of the chair.

The decision of the chair was sustained.

Ald. Dunnet asked for the yeas and nays. They were taken as follows:—

YEAS.—Ald. Blair, Brignall, Campion, Clarke, Dickson, Diamond, Farley, Laroche, Lingham, Macoun, McIninch, Petrie, Taylor, Starling, Tickell, Smith, Vandusen, Watson.—18.

NAYS.—Ald. Dunnet, Durand, Frost.—3.

Ald. Dunnet said that there were eleven distinct propositions in the report, and they should be voted on separately.

The Mayor decided that the report should be voted on as a whole.

Ald. Dunnet moved, in amendment to the report, that the name of Ald. Brignall be substituted for that of Ald. Diamond as chairman of the Ferry Committee. He held that a business man should be Chairman of that Committee, since the business portion of the community was the most largely interested in the question of ferriage.

Ald. Frost seconded the motion. He spoke strongly against the lawyers monopolizing the Chairmanships of the most important Committees and claimed that the business men of any community knew best what was for the interests of the community, and were usually as intelligent and were almost invariably as energetic.

The amendment was lost.

The yeas and nays were called for, and were taken with the following result:—

YEAS.—Ald. Dunnet, Frost, Vandusen, Watson.—4.

NAYS.—Ald. Blair, Campion, Clarke, Dickson, Durand, Farley, Laroche, Lingham, Macoun, McInnich, Petrie, Starling, Taylor, Tickell, Smith—15.

Ald. Diamond and Brignall were excused from voting.

Ald. Dickson moved the suspension of the rules for the purpose of introducing a By-law for the apppointment of Auditors for the year 1882.—Carried.

The By-law was read a first time.

The rules were suspended for the introduction of a By-law appointing an Assessment Commissioner and a By-law to prevent the erection of wooden buildings within the fire limits of the city, and to define the fire-limits.

The By-law was read a first time.

Council went into Committee on By-laws, Ald. Farley in the chair.

The By-law for the appointment of Auditors was taken up for consideration.

The Mayor nominated William McCoy.

On motion of Ald. Dickson, the Council proceeded to ballot for the other Auditor, the lowest name on each ballot to be left off. The names of the applicants were—T. B. Bentley, P. P. Lynch, and J. D. Clarke.

The result of the first ballot was: Clarke, 8; Bentley, 8; Lynch, 5. The second stood—Clarke, 15; Bentley, 7

J. D. Clarke was accordingly appointed second Auditor.

The salary of the Auditors was fixed at $75 each

The Committee rose and reported—Adopted.

The By-law was read a second and third time, passed and numbered.

Ald. Dickson said that the Ferry License would expire during the current year, and it would be necessary to secure another License. The Township of Ameliasburg had applied for an exclusive license to run the ferry. The City Solicitor had received a communication from the Provincial Secretary, asking that immediate action be taken by the present Council, and requesting that reasons be shown why the license should not be granted exclusively to Ameliasburg, or why a joint license should not be granted. He moved that the following Aldermen be a special Committee to take into consideration the question of license, with power to act: McIninch, Campion, Durand, Frost, Dickson, Diamond, Taylor, Starling.

Ald. Diamond objected to the appointment of a special committee. It should be left in the hands of the regular Ferry Committee. He objected, besides, to the composition of the committee because the majority of the members on it were in favor of the Bushy Island route.

Ald. Dickson explained that the reason he had moved for the appointment of this special committee was that all the members on it were members of the committee for the same purpose appointed by the Council of last year. He declared, further, that the question of route had nothing to do with the object for which the committee was appointed.

Daring Bank Robbery.

A SAFE BLOWN OPEN AND A LARGE SUM OF MONEY STOLEN.

WYOMING, Ont., Jan. 14.—The safe in Fawcett's banking office here was blown open last night, and a considerable amount of cash taken. Entrance to the bank was obtained by forcing a window. The explosion was heard by many but thought nothing of. Tools from a blacksmith shop near by, a quantity of putty and a coil of fuse were left behind by the burglars.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after excrise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

C. M., L.R.S.P. and L.R.C.S., Ed.,
Late House Surgeon P.&C. Hospital.

P. S.—I have been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE DEAD-LOCK.

The Herald's Albany special says: It is understood that any further attempts to break the Legislative dead-lock will be postponed until after the funeral of Wagner.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

The Tribune says: In the Senate the sub-committee investigating unfavorable reports regarding the management of the Soldiers' Home, District of Columbia, have requested Surgeon Gen'l Barnes, president of the Commissioners of the Home, to appear before them on Wednesday.

TOMBSTONE, Arizona, Jan. 16.—Sonora advices give the details of a desperate fight near Yanqui between Mexican troops and Indians in ambush. Five soldiers were killed and several wounded. The troops retreated.

BISHOP MCQUADE TO THE LEAGUERS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A Rochester special says that the pastor of St. Mary's Cathedral read to the congregation yesterday a letter from Bishop McQuade, which created a sensation. The Bishop says:—"I see by a notice in the public press that you are engaged in taking up collections in your church for the amelioration of the condition of the suspects now in prison in Ireland. I cannot permit the church to be used for any purpose having a tinge of political action about it, and so I must forbid the method you propose to follow, but the end you wish to obtain is a good one and deserving of help. You are at liberty to organize a relief committee to meet at your own house or some other convenient place." The Bishop states that the charge against him of want of regard for Ireland and her true interest is worse than calumnious.

THE RAILROAD DISASTER.

NEW YORK, January 14.—All the bodies but one have been recognized. Father Marechale, of Troy, is among the victims of Spuyten Duyvil catastrophe. George Nealiss, the brakeman, who failed to signal the approaching train, has been arrested.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

THE EGYPTIAN SITUATION.

ALEXANDRIA, Jan. 16.—The Egyption situation is becoming very grave. Parliament refuses to surrender the right of voting the budget, and the programme of Parliament clashes with that of the Khedive and Prime Minister. If the Parliament persists in this attitude the Ministry will resign. The Anglo French vote has not overawed the national party policy, and England and France are anxiously awaited. Precipitated action might produce actual dangers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Arrived, the Polynesia, from Hambourg.

FUNERAL OF MR. AND MRS. VALENTINE.

REMINGTON, Vt., Jan. 16.—The funeral of Park Valentine and wife, victims of the Hudson River R.R. disaster, was held this afternoon. There was a great assemblage of relations, friends and citizens. The clergyman officiating at the wedding, on Thursday, also officiated at the funeral to-day.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

The Graphic's Washington special says that Judge Charles Price and Col. W. P. Johnson, influential Democrats from North Carolina, have declared to the President their purpose of co-operating in future with the Republicans.

UNITED STATES APPOINTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Quite a pressure is being brought to bear upon the President and Secretary of the Treasury for a change in the offices of Surveyor and Naval Officer of the port of New York. It seems pretty well settled that if Rounds, of Illinois, is appointed Public Printer, Gilfillan, of Pennsylvania, will be made Assistant Secretary; or if Oyster, of Pennsylvania, is made Public Printer, Shepard of Illinois will be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

CHAPTER III.

"A MOMENT MORE AND THEY SHALL MEET."

Wait; yet I do not tell you,
The hour you long for now
Will not come with its splendor darkened
And a shadow upon its brow;
Yet through the misty future,
With a crown of starry light,
An hour of joy you know not
Is winging her silent flight.
A. E. PROCTOR.

Lilith listened for the coming step, but she did not hear it.

A little later on she heard a low tap at the chamber door, so low a tap that if her ears had not been so acutely attentive she could not have heard it at all. She knew who stood without—the one being on earth whom she loved more than all the world; who held in his hand her destiny; who before the day was over, might be her husband.

She arose, trembling, flushing and paling, noiselessly crossed the room, and softly opened the door.

It was as her heart had divined.

Tudor Hereward, pale, anxious, weary, dusty, just as he had come off his long night ride, stood before her.

'Lilith! My father! How is he?' he demanded, in a low, hurried tone; and he waited her answer with suspended breath.

The young girl crossed the threshold into the hall, closed the door behind her and replied in a whisper:

'He is better just now. He is sleeping.'

'What—what is the trouble now, Lilith?' he anxiously inquired.

'His old malady in an aggravated form,' sadly replied the girl.

'When was he stricken again?'

'Yesterday afternoon. The doctor was sent for immediately, but he did not reach the house until evening. As soon as he had seen Major Hereward he came out and told me that the case was very serious—much more serious than it had ever been before. He asked where you were, and when I told him you were in Washington, where you had gone at the meeting of Congress, he said 'of course,' though he had forgotten you had to go, but that you must be summoned home at once. I then sent a telegram to you,' Lilith explained, in a low, agitated voice; and even while she spoke she kept her hand on the knob of the door and often bent her ear to listen for the slightest sound from the sick room.

'Has he suffered much?' sorrowfully inquired the son.

'Only just at first; but he rested quietly during the night, and took nourishment this morning. He is sleeping again.'

'Lilith, my child, what is the matter with you? Your color comes and goes, your frame shivers as with a chill. Are you not well, dear?' he inquired, compassionately.

'Yes, I am well, thank you, Mr. Hereward,' said the young girl, striving to compose the agitation that had attracted his attention. 'And now, if you please, I must return to Major Hereward. I will inform you as soon as he awakes. You will find everything ready for you, and you will excuse me from attendance, I am sure.'

'Yes, yes, dear child! Do not trouble yourself about me more than to have me called when my father wakes,' replied Tudor Hereward, as he turned away.

'He always speaks to me as if I were still a little child. I do not believe he knows that I have grown up. Oh, I am sure he will think I am too young for him, even if everything else were fitting. I wish I were five years older,' mused Lilith, as she re-entered the sick room and resumed her watch at the bedside.

She looked at her patient, rejoicing in the fact that he slept so well; rejoicing in the hope that he would awaken from his sleep refreshed, and rally from this prostration, as he had rallied from so many others, with renewed health and strength, to go about his house and farm an apparently well man.

Certainly the family physician had given no reason for such high hope; but, then, even doctors were sometimes mistaken, she thought.

So she sat and watched her patient, hoping for his recovery, dreaming of his cherished desire that she should be the wife of his son, and wondering if such happiness could ever be in store for her.

Every time her patient stirred in sleep she would gently pass her hand to and fro over his brow without touching it, but with an intuitive mesmeric motion that soothed him into deeper slumber.

Thus the hours passed while he slept this profound sleep, angel-guarded.

Twice again Tudor Hereward came to the door, and tapped so softly that none but Lilith's fine, attentive ears could have heard the sound.

Each time she arose and softly opened the door, to tell him that his father still slept well, and that she would call him when Major Hereward should awake.

On the last occasion he took her hand, drew her away from the door into the hall, and whispered earnestly:

'Lilith, I am told that you have had no breakfast, and farthermore that you have taken neither food nor rest since my father was stricken. This must not be so, my child. Let me relieve your watch, while you go and take necessary food and sleep.'

'When he wakes I will do so, Mr. Hereward. Not until then, please. I could not. And I do not need anything, really. I had some coffee during the night-watch. Let me go back to him now. As soon as he wakes I will be sure to inform you,' she gently replied.

And the son retired, and the young nurse returned to her post by the bed.

It was late in the short winter afternoon when Major Hereward awoke, looking so much refreshed, strengthened and brightened that Lilith's heart was gladdened to behold him.

'Has Tudor come, my dear?' he anxiously inquired.

'Yes, father, some hours ago. And he has breakfasted and rested, and is waiting anxiously to see you. I am so glad and so thankful that he will see you looking so much better,' said Lilith, as she hastened to the fireplace and brought a small bowl of beef tea to the bedside.

When he had taken this refreshment, and she had put away the empty bowl, he said:

'Send for Tudor to come to me, my dear.'

Lilith went to the adjoining little room, in which Nancy sat sewing, and dispatched her with the message.

A very few minutes passed before Tudor Hereward entered the room. And as he did so Lilith glided silently from it.

He went directly up to his father's bedside, and bent over him with affectionate solicitude.

'I hope you are feeling refreshed by your long sleep, dear sir. The news of your sudden attack grieved me very much. I came on at once by the first train that left Washington after your telegram reached me. I arrived at half-past ten. And I am very grateful to find you so very much better,' he said, as he took and held his father's hand between both of his own.

'I am very glad that you have come Tudor. I am very glad to see you, indeed, my dear son,' replied the father, laying his other hand upon the young man's bent head.

'And you are really much better now, father?'

'Yes, I am better, just at present, I thank Heaven, and the little guardian angel who has nursed me so tenderly and watched over me so faithfully. Where has she gone?' inquired Major Hereward, looking around.

'If you mean little Lilith, the child left the room as I entered,' replied Tudor Hereward.

'That is well. I am glad she has withdrawn for a little space, not only because I wish her to have some relief from her long watch, but also because I wish to talk of her with you alone.'

'To talk with me of Lilith?' carelessly inquired the young man, as he sank into the arm chair at the head of the bed, as if preparing for the tete-a tete.

'Yes, of my dear daughter, Lilith.'

'What of the child, sir?'

'I am so very anxious about her.'

'But why? What ails her? She looks pale and disturbed, certainly, but that is from loss of rest, no doubt.'

'Tudor, you do not understand. It is for Lilith's future that I am so anxious. My dear son, you must know that this last attack of illness is the gravest I have ever suffered.'

'That is the doctor's mistaken opinion, sir. You are really looking very well.'

'However well I may be looking just at this moment, Tudor, I feel that my mortal pilgrimage draws to it close.'

'I do hope and I believe that this is not so, sir.'

'Never mind what you hope and believe, Tudor. Your hope and belief will not affect life and death. And feeling so sure as I do that my departure is very near at hand, I have become painfully anxious concerning the future of my dear daughter, Lilith.'

'Lilith again! I do not admit the possibility that you are anywhere near death, sir; but even if such were the case—which Heaven forbid!—why should you be troubled about the child, my dear father?'

'Because I have nothing to leave her; because her future may be unprovided for and unprotected. That is the reason, Tudor. And reason enough, I should suppose.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendant annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Cruelty to animals

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing, a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestiible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

MONTHLY REPORT FOR THE MONTH OF DEC'R.

Christmas month has come and gone, and in response to the appeal in last month's report, many presents have been sent to the Home, and both there and among the Wards, Christmas cheer has, in a measure, been partaken of.

On the 12th of December we changed our Matron, and Mrs. Pulver is now in charge. On the 14th of the month we had to finally dismiss the Whittocks, owing to the old man's impertinence, and determination not to obey the rules of the Home. We therefore procured them a pass to Peterborough, paid their freight, gave them a little money to go on with, and sent them back whence they came.

In the first week of the month, Geo. McFarlane, the orphan boy for whom the City has been paying at the Kingston Orphans' Home for a year or two past, was brought to the "Home" to await his new master, a farmer in P. E. Co., where he now is comfortably settled.

We have had two other new inmates during the month, Mr. Holmes and Mr. Gardiner—the latter having resisted the persuasions of the ladies for the past two years, but at length has succumbed.

The expenditure for the Home during December has been as follows:

Supply $33.00. Home Reg. Committee $16.98, which includes matron's expenses and the Whittocks' removal. Fuel $5 15. Matron's salary $8.00 Total $63 13.

A Street Car Which Carries its Track.

The Accommodation Car Company has begun operations here with a capital stock of $1,000,000, divided between the patentee, T. T. Prosser, and F. F. Cole, a real estate man. The object of the company is to build and equip a thousand cars and put them on the streets of Chicago. The car is the patent of Mr. Prosser, and as regards present appearance is a queer, oglesome-looking craft which carries its track along with it, and to all intents and purposes is designed to traverse any and all lines of streets. The car, which is of the ordinary kind, is mounted, in the middle upon a truck which sits on four wheels, each about one foot in diameter. These wheels run around in the inside of two steel tires, each ten feet in diameter, and which rest upon the ground and are held only to the car by a set of wheel-clamps. The car is designed to hold fifty people, and the owners claim that the more it carries the easier it runs. It will be stopped in the usual manner, and two horses will be required to pull it. The owners say they intend putting the cars on the principal streets of the city, and placing the cash fares at 4 cents, and selling 30 rides for $1,

Mr. Gladstone, on Dec. 29, complete the 72nd year of his age, having been born at Liverpool on the 29th December, 1809. Having been elected to Parliament for Newark on the 13th December, 1832, he has entered upon the fiftieth year of his public life. Of the members of the Cabinet of Earl Grey, then in office, not one survives. Of the 658 members of the first Reformed Parliament, to whom the speech of King William was addressed on the 15th February, 1833, the Prime Minister is the only one who, with a seat in that assembly now, then began his political career. There are in the present House only two representatives who were in the unreformed Parliament—Mr. Christopher Talbot, who has sat continuously for Glamorganshire since 1830, and The O'Gorman Mahon, first elected for Clare in 1830, but whose service has not been unbroken.

H. C. Dern, editor of the Altoona (Pa.) Tribune, has used St. Jacobs Oil in his family for burns, bruises, etc., and heartily recommends it as a family remedy.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland,
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

The Value of Mines.

That iron mines are more valuable than gold or silver mines seems to be the fact—at least the Marquette Mining Journal, published in the great iron mining country of Michigan, makes the assertion. Commenting on a table which was published by the New York Engineering and Mining Journal, setting forth the dividends paid by gold, silver, lead, copper, quicksilver, and nickel mines in the United States and territories during 1881, the Marquette paper says:

"It will be observed that no iron mines are included in the foregoing tabular, owing, no doubt, to the fact that the iron mining companies are close corporations, whose shares are not listed on the stock boards. It would, we opine, surprise the editor of our esteemed contemporary to be told that the iron mines of the upper peninsula of Michigan have paid, or will pay, in dividends on their earnings in 1881, as much as, if not more than, the gold and silver mines of any other three states or territories mentioned in the above list. Such, nevertheless, is the fact, as the Engineering and Mining Journal can ascertain on careful inquiry. It is a fact, moreover, which can be most readily and conclusively demonstrated, that the net earnings of the iron and copper mines of Lake Superior will equal those of all the gold, silver, lead and other mines, excepting coal, in the United States, and leave a balance in their favor!"

This statement is highly encouraging to the owners of iron mines in this part of the country.

Editorial Brevities.

The Montreal Witness jeers at the editors of English papers and other periodicals because of their lack of knowledge of Canadian affairs. The same journal speaks of "iron mining in Prince Edward County."

The New York Financial Chronicle gives some interesting statistics as to the railway war during the past year. Five roads were engaged in this determined warfare of rates, namely, the Central, the Erie, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, and the Grand Trunk. The total gross earnings of these lines amounted in 1880 to $121,000,000, and last year, in spite of all the cutting and slashing of rates, the total rose to $126,500,000. The net earnings for 1880 were over $50,500,000, and about $48,250,000 for last year. All the railroads in the United States earned a net amount of $255,193,436, their gross earnings being $615,501,931. Thus it is found that the four trunk lines within the United States earned in 1880 more than one sixth of the total revenues of all the lines.

The London Advertiser endorses Mr. Blake's method of "making the roll right" by supplying to the assessors, so soon as they have been sworn in, lists of persons whom the Reform Associations wish to be added to the roll. Such a proceeding is, we are inclined to believe, illegal, as the law prescribes the manner in which the rolls shall be made right. But the perceptions of the Grit organs are not very clear except when their political opponents are concerned.

The St. John (N. B.) Daily News informs us that at its last meeting the municipal Council of that city adopted a report from one of its committees relative to the loyalists' Centennial. It adopts the project of a $100,000 Memorial Hall for which the city should provide the site, the city and county half the cost, and the Province the other half. The hall should have an auditorium fitted to accomodate two thousand people, rooms for a great free public library, and for the Mechanics' Institute and the Historical Society; and it should be opened on the 18th of May, 1883, with solemn observances, including a grand procession and a splendid oration—the proceedings to be wound up with a banquet and a magnificent pyrotechnical display. There ought to be a celebration of the anniversary of the settlement of the Bay of Quinte district, and Belleville, as the chief place in the Bay country, would be the most appropriate place for such a celebration. Something on a less extensive scale than it is proposed to have at St. John would answer very well. We commend the matter to the attention of the City Council. Liberality in this matter would yield a good return.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism; exonerated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was? Beveridge replied: "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Cos., Druggists.

Tweed Correspondence.

The first quarterly meeting of the Parish Vestry in the Parish of Roslin, was held in Christ Church, Thomasburg, on Monday, the 9th inst. It was well attended by persons from all parts of the parish, and the proceedings were harmonious. The Rev'd Mr. Gardner (Rector) presided. The business for which the Vestry was called was to settle up the affairs of the Church, and to appoint a Churchwarden for St. James' Church, Tweed, in the place of the l te Joseph Elliott, Esq. Mr. Wm. Wray was appointed Vestry Clerk for the Parish. The Church of England and our Church Associations were never before in such a prosperous state; harmony is the prevailing feeling in the three Churches in the parish. Financially we are growing. We have on hand a cash balance of some $130, after paying our Rector his salary, but indeed he is a worker in every sense of the word. This, under God, is the secret of our success. Our week night meetings are of great benefit. Whilst the people and clergy work in unison all goes well, which is the case in the parish of Roslin.

Address and Presentation.

The pupils of Mr. Burke's school, Maynooth, gave a free Concert in the School house on the evening of Dec'r 22nd, 1881. It consisted of humorous songs, dialogues, recitations, Xmas trees, &c. The entertainment was highly successful, reflecting great credit upon those who took part therein. Mr. Winnett and Miss Roblin were on hand with some of their choice selections of music, and the frequent encores was a proof that they were more than appreciated. Mr. Wm. Holden also gave some good violin music. A grand Christmas tree and the real presence of Santa Claus, added to the delight of the little ones.

Just before the distribution of gifts, Miss Mary Parsons and Miss Mary George came forward, when the former read the following address to Mr. Burke, and the latter made the presentation:

Farewell address presented to Mr. L. W. Burke: P. S. Teacher, Maynooth, Hastings Co.:

DEAR TEACHER,—We, the undersigned pupils of Union School No. 1, Monteagle and Methuen, respectfully request you to accept the accompanying gifts, not for their intrinsic value, but as a token of our sincere friendship and esteem.

Although the majority of us differ from you in religious views, yet your unswerving kindness and attention has constituted a bond of union between us.

The assiduous and painstaking manner in which you have discharged your duties, coupled with the satisfactory results, will ever be a pleasant remembrance to us, while at present we take this opportunity of expressing our deep regret caused by your departure.

In conclusion, we wish you every success in your new field of labor, and pray that the Great Architect of the universe will in His unerring judgment ever guide you through the rugged and uneven paths of life.

Wishing you the usual compliments of the season and many happy returns of the same,

Believe us to be,
Yours most sincerely,

MICHAEL KOUY,	BRIDGET RYAN,
JEANNETTE SCOTT,	MARY ROURE,
MIRIAN GEORGE,	ANNIE PARSONS.

Signed on behalf of all your loving pupils.

Maynooth, Dec, 22nd, 1881.

Mr. Burke made a very appropriate reply, which had a very telling effect upon the audience. After the distribution of presents the audience dispersed, all feeling sorry that Mr. Burke had seen fit to sever his connection with them.

VISITOR.

Another Pioneer Called Away.

DEATH OF MR. JONAS CANNIFF AT A RIPE OLD AGE.

The following biographical sketch of the late Jonas Canniff appeared in the Mail of the 16th inst.:

One after another of the pioneers of Canada and the veterans of 1812 is passing away. Mr. Jonas Canniff, who died at the residence of his son, Dr. Canniff, yesterday morning, had just passed his 92nd birthday. He was born in Dundas county, N.Y., and came into the wilderness of Upper Canada when four years of age with his father, whose attachment to the British flag led him to undertake the long and tedious journey with his family and household goods in order to make a home on British soil. The family settled in Adolphustown, on the Bay of Quinte, and here the father, James Canniff, lived and died at a good old age. In 1813 Jonas moved to his half-constructed logehouse on the River Moira, a short distance from the present northern limits of the city of Belleville. At the beginning of the war in 1812 he had been engaged in clearing the land, and at its close he took up his abode where he was to spend the many years of his active life. Mr. Canniff served as a sergeant in Captain Durland's company, raised in Adolphustown, under Colonel Cartwright of Kingston. He was present when the American fleet passed down the bay from Bath with the object of attacking Kingston, and with his company followed the vessels, which continued to send cannon shot among the militia, until they passed Kingston, not venturing to approach the shore. In 1815 Belleville was not yet named, and was but a small village; and only a few scattered settlers existed in the county of Hastings. Mr. Canniff was one of the pioneers in building saw and grist mills. He was a man of great energy and industry, and was known for his strict integrity and unswerving adherence to Christian principles. After acting as township clerk for one year, shortly after the organization of the municipality of the township of Thurlow, he steadfastly declined to accept any office. He was appointed a Justice of the Peace, but did not qualify for the office. He assisted to organize the first agricultural association, but declined the presidency, which he was urged to accept. He gave little attention to politics, but claimed to be a Reformer, while he was a consistent Conservative. While a young man he, with his wife, became members of the Methodist body, of which he was an active official member for about a quarter of a century. Mr. Canniff was twice married; his second wife died several years ago. For nearly three years he has lived in Toronto with his son, where he died rich in Christian faith and hope, as he was full of years. He leaves three sons and one daughter, and an aged sister. Mrs. Singleton, of Brighton, Ont.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems almost young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY, Jan. 16.

Mr. Meredith resumed the debate on the address. He began by good humoredly rallying the mover of the address on his bellicose speech, then passing on to reply to Mr. Hay, he deprecated the introduction of Dominion politics into the legislature. If the ministry, however, desired to make the national policy a battle ground, certainly the opposition would not have cause to complain. He did the mover of the address had any regard for the feelings of his friend, the member for Lincoln, he would not have ventured on his tirade on the N. P., for that gentleman, Mr. Neelon, had repeatedly declared his approval of the N. P. Notwithstanding Mr. Hay's denials the benefits of protection were patent on every hand, and many of the reform organs seeing the folly of longer trying to convince the people to the contrary, were backing down from their former hostility. With reference to the boundary question, hon. gentlemen seemed to forget that Ontario, though only a province of the Dominion, was Premier Province and consequently more deeply interested than any other in the welfare of the Dominion as a whole. The opposition would not shrink from taking just and patriotic ground on this and all other questions, but would not and could not echo the violent and inflammatory language used by the mover of the address. He charged that the course of the Government evinced not so much a desire to maintain the rights of Ontario as to make political capital for their friends at Ottawa. The proper course to have pursued would have been to make a dignified protest against setting aside the award of the arbitrators, and in this the opposition would have joined, and then, failing success by this means, either settle the matter with Manitoba or make a case and have it decided in the courts. It should be remembered, however, that the trouble had arisen owing to the refusal of the Mackenzie government to agree to accept the award of the arbitrators. As to the disallowance of the streams bill, he held that it should have been disallowed on its merits, as being a wanton interference with private property. The reference to the escheats bill was not in the best taste, as it, though no doubt unintentionally, censured the judges of the Supreme Court. He hoped the expectations of the Attorney-General as to the result of the appeal to the Privy Council, would not prove as illusory as his equally confident expectations of a favorable result in the Supreme Court. As to the new parliament buildings, he did not know whether Mr. Hay spoke by the card when he said it was the intention of the Government to proceed with them at once. He has hoped that the Government had abandoned the idea for the present. He regretted the absence of promise of relief to the Muskoka sufferers in the speech. As to the sales of timber limits, he thought it anomalous that while the Government could not spend money without the consent of Parliament they could dispose of the public domain without doing so. He agreed with what had been said of the death of Garfield, and took occasion to pay a tribute to the late Messrs. Harkin, Scott and Rosevear, whose death since the late session they all deplored.

Mr. Mowat commenced by concurring in Mr. Meredith's remarks regarding Messrs. Harkin, Scott and Rosevear and eloquently eulogized Garfield. As to the charge that ministers sought to make political capital, the only thing they expected to do that with was good legislation and wise administration. As to the N. P. he thought its effect for good was overestimated. There might be depression with protection but there could not be with good harvests and good prices. New Parliament buildings he considered absolutely necessary and the only thing on which there might be difference of opinion was as to when they should be commenced. As to the alleged anomaly regarding the selling of timber limits without the previous consent of Parliament it was a necessity of the case. Although the Government had not publicly announced the fact, fearing to diminish private contributions, they had granted aid to the Muskoka sufferers. There was no intention to sneer at or impugn the judges of the supreme court in the reference to the Mercer case, but he still hoped for a termination favorable to Ontario. Passing to the question of the disallowance of the streams Bill, he claimed that it was an unwarrantable interference with provincial rights. He challenged any opposition to show that a similar bill had ever been disallowed by a Liberal Government. Mr. Morris, interrupting, said if the Premier chose he could cite him a case in which this had been done. Coming to the boundary question, he went into the history of the controversy, maintaining the right of the province to the disputed territory and claiming that the course of the Dominion Government was one which could not be taken with decency. Not only the disputed territory, but the entire northwest had been obtained on the strength of Ontario's claim.

Mr. Morris replied in a powerful speech to Mr. Mowat's arguments as to the disallowance of the River and Streams bill.

The debate closed for the day after Mr. Hardy had spoken.

Dr. Kincaid's Assailant.

IS TRIED BEFORE THE COUNTY JUDGE AND RECEIVES 18 MONTHS IN C. P.

John Dugan, who committed the dastardly assault on Dr. Kincaid, M. P. P., on the 5th Jan. last, was brought before His Honor Judge Dennistoun this morning at the Court House.

Mr. C. A. Weller appeared for the Crown, and the prisoner was undefended.

The charge was one of committing an assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm.

In response to His Honor's question of "guilty or not guilty" the prisoner pleaded guilty, but said he did not mean to do any harm, when he committed the assault.

His Honor then sentenced him to be imprisoned in the Central Prison, at Toronto, for a period of 18 months at hard labor.—Review, Jan. 16.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JAN. 17.

City and Vicinity.

BOARD of Education this evening.

ONE prisoner and two tramps found shelter in the cells last evening.

THE annual tea-meeting in connection with Christ Church will be held in the City Hall on Tuesday, the 31st of January next.

A YOUNG woman named Sarah Jane Hinchey, from Tyendinaga, was committed to gaol yesterday afternoon by the Police Magistrate as a dangerous lunatic.

W. J. McGREGOR was before the Magistrate this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was discharged. The wages case of Keating vs. Meagher was enlarged for a week.

THERE was a curling match on the rink yesterday afternoon between sides chosen by the President and the Vice-President The President and his associates won by a considerable majority.

REMENYI'S grand concert for Feb. 6th has been changed to the City Hall. The guarantee list is filling. Those wishing to hear this great artist should call early at Reynolds' and sign the guarantee list.

THE Winnipeg Times of the 12 inst., says:—"Henry Bleecker, barrister, and John Vandewaters, two prominent citizens of Belleville, have arrived in the city, attracted here by the boom in real estate."

THE stone-cutters (thirteen in number) employed by Northcott & Alford on the stone-work to be used in the erection of the Government Building struck for higher wages yesterday. After some parleying, a compromise was effected this morning and some of them have resumed work.

THE couple who were "shivareed" near the G. T. R. station the other evening were apprehensive lest another visitation of the same kind should be made last night, and accordingly informed the police authorities that they were going to be outraged again. The expected visit was not paid, however, and they slept in quiet, if not in peace.

REV. DR. CASTLE, of Toronto, has found it impossible to preach in the Baptist Church next Sunday, as was announced last week. He will, however, fill the pulpit of that church, morning and evening, on Sunday, the 5th of February. On the following evening a church re-union will be held, at which Rev. Dr. Castle will be present.

THE case given below will be of interest to our readers, to many of whom both of the litigants are well known: The World says that in the case of Ellis v. Bickford at Toronto on Saturday, the plaintiff sued for $1550, being arrears of wages alleged to be due him for services on the Grand Junction railway as civil engineer. He testified that the defendant had claimed that he had lost so much time through an accident while in his service, for which he had been paid $800 by the township of Otonabee, he did not owe him anything. The jury gave him a verdict for $450. Dr. Snelling appeared for the plaintiff, R. S. Applebe for defendant.

THE Bay City, Mich., Morning Call of the 14th says:—"About 11 o'clock on Thursday night the body of a man was discovered in the river close by the dock near Potter street, at East Saginaw. The head had broken through and the shoulders were resting on the ice with the rest of the body above and only the head in the water. The body was lifted to the dock by means of a rope and Officer Kaines identified him as John James, better known as 'English Johnny,' an employee of the F. & P. M. railroad yards at East Saginaw. An inquest was held yesterday, when it was discovered that the man's name was John Burns, that he came from Muskegon a short time since, that he formerly hailed from Belleville, Ont., and that he had been drinking and was intoxicated at the time of the accident which resulted in his death. The inquest will be continued this morning."

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 17.—Lakes, moderate to fresh westerly winds, fine cooler weather, possibly local falls of snow, the temperature will fall below zero in most localities to-night.

GUNNER H. McLachlan, late of the Trenton Garrison Battery, has secured a fourth class short course certificate at the Royal School of Gunnery.

JUNIOR LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting of the above association was held last night, when the following officers were elected: President—Eugene McMahon; Vice-Presidents—John Taylor and Charles Corby; Secretary—Curtis Bogart; Treasurer—H. T. Wills. After the election of officers, Judge Fraleck, who had held the office of President, gave a brief address, severing his connection with the Association and announcing his retirement from politics.

MR. CANNIFF'S FUNERAL.—The body of the late Jonas Canniff, sen., arrived to-day by the noon express accompanied by Dr. Canniff, of Toronto, Mr. P. F. Canniff, of London, sons of the deceased, and a number of other relatives. The remains were conveyed from the station to the Bridge St. Methodist Church, where the Rev. Dr. Jeffers read the funeral service. The reverend gentleman also spoke briefly to the few friends who had gathered in the church, referring to the long and honorable life of the deceased, his eminent services in the cause of Christianity and civilization in Canada, his patriotism, his integrity, probity and simple faith as a Christian. He had been one of the speaker's most intimate friends when he was stationed in Belleville forty years ago, had taken an active part in the erection of the old Pinnacle St. Church, and had contributed the greater part of the stone for the erection of the Bridge St. Church. After singing and prayer, the remains were conveyed to the place of interment.

TEA MEETING.—The tea meeting held in connection with the Bleecker St. Church last evening was more successful than the most sanguine expectations of the promoters. The church was literally packed and it speaks volumes for the generosity and foresight of the ladies of the congregation that all present were bountifully supplied. The eatables being disposed of, the chair was taken by Thos. Holden, Esq., P. M., who opened the meeting by a characteristic and witty speech, in which he jocularly complained of having being pelted when at supper by small boys with bread. Doubtless the small boys considered that the cadi of a city like Belleville should be well bred (bread). Short and pointed addresses were delivered by Revs. Mr. Campbell, Dr. Badgley, Shorey and Schuster, after which the Financial Secretary (Ald. Blair) read the financial statement, which showed the liabilities on the church account about $800, including amounts already subscribed. Rev. Thos. Cullen, former pastor of the church, congratulated the church on the energy displayed by the erection of such a neat and commodious place of worship and hoped all present would place their "shoulder to the wheel" and place the church on a good financial basis. Rev. Mr. Campbell then took the platform and asked for volunteer subscriptions which, after a time, were announced as amounting to about $1,300, which would be sufficient to place the church out of debt. The enjoyment of the evening's entertainment was much enhanced by choice selections given by the choir of the Holloway St. Methodist Church. After a few complimentary remarks by Rev. Mr. Burns and Rev. Mr. Jeffery, the meeting was brought to a close by the pronunciation of the benedirtion by Rev. Mr. Burns.

ACCIDENT AT SEVERN'S BREWERY.—About 5 o'clock last evening an immense upright stick of timber which formed the chief support of the large hot-water tank on the third floor of Severn's Brewery, suddenly gave way and snapped off. The weight of the tank coming on the other supports, they also gave way, and the large tank (which was about 10 feet in diameter and eleven feet deep and in which there was 5 feet 5 inches of water) came down with a crash on the worm-tub directly beneath it. The supports of the worm-tub were not equal to the great weight which suddenly came upon them; they broke away as though they had been so much kindling wood, and the two immense tanks came crashing to the ground, a confused and shapeless wreck. The main timber, which gave way, was placed in position about six years ago. It was then in the very best condition, but has since been rotted by being kept moist from the continual droppings from the hot-water tank. Luckily no one was near the spot when the accident occurred, and consequently nobody was injured. Had the accident taken place to-day or to-morrow, however, a number of lives would certainly have been lost, for it was the intention to brew to-day, and a number of the employees would have been working around both tanks. Very little of the machinery was damaged. The engine escaped the general wreck by only a few inches, and the worm received only slight damage. Mr. Severn intends getting new tanks into position immediately, and work will be suspended at the brewery for only a very few days. The total damage will not probably amount to over $400.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Belleville Cemetery Company.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Cemetery Company was held on the afternoon of the 16th inst., at the office of the Secretary-Treasurer, A. G. Northrup, Esq.

Mr. M. Sawyer was appointed chairman.

The retiring Directors were all reappointed, as follows:—John Bell, John Brenton, Jas. Smith, A. G. Northrup, Jas. Macoun, John Forin, Dr. Hope, M. Sawyer, and Geo. S. Tickell.

The Treasurer's annual report was read and adopted. It showed the total liabilities to be $3,984.12, and the total assets $2,497.

The following resolution was passed: "That the Directors take immediate action to forfeit the stock of those who have not paid up; and also to close the accounts of those who have purchased lots and paid only part, and, if not paid, to remove the bodies of those buried in such lots and bury them in the public lots."

It was decided to hold a meeting of the Directors on Monday afternoon, the 23rd inst., for organization.

THE NEW COUNCIL.

Meeting for Organization.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Treasurer proceed without delay to have all lands liable to be sold for taxes advertised and sold, and the taxes due the city realized upon the same as quickly as possible.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved, seconded by Ald. Dannet, That, inasmuch as the terms and conditions of the proposed railway amalgamation are not made public nor confided to this Council, and the City gave and the Grand Junction Railway accepted $150,000 upon certain terms and conditions stated in their by-laws, which terms and conditions, it is feared, will be legislated away unless the claims and rights of the municipality be insisted upon being maintained: therefore be it resolved that any amalgamation of the Grand Junction Railway, or legislation which would deprive this city of its proprietary or other rights and interests in or power of control over the Grand Junction Railway ought and must be resisted, and that the Solicitor be instructed to collect all needful information and report to the Finance Committee at its first meeting; and that he be instructed to take such steps as he may deem advisable to protect the interests of this city.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion that the Solicitor be instructed to proceed against the Collector and and his sureties for the amount of uncollected taxes on the roll of 1879.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a By-law providing for the remission of taxes on iron and steel industries which may be established in this city.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Harbor and City Property Committee take into consideration the amount required to put Mill Island in repair, and report at the Finance Committee at its next meeting.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntosh, "That the City Solicitor be instructed to inform the Government of Ontario that Dr. O'Reilly in their behalf inspected some proposed sites for a hospital, and that the city now offers to purchase one of the said sites which he said was suitable, and convey or have it conveyed to trustees, as may be required, upon the Government stating that it will then issue to the city a patent or grant of the property known as the Hospital Lot."—Carried.

Ald. Dickson said that Dr. O'Reilly had stated while here that the Government would expect the city to appropriate the difference in the price which would be paid for a new hospital site and the price which would be realized by the sale of the old Hospital Lot towards the erection of the hospital which was in contemplation.

Ald. Dickson moved that each Committee keep a book containing the minutes of the work of the Committee, and submit it to the Finance Committee at each meeting; that the minutes of each Committee be read at each meeting of the committee and signed by the chairman; that H. G. Gillespie attend all the meetings of the Committees for the purpose of drawing up reports, &c.; also, that each Chairman of Committee, at the end of the year, submit to the Clerk all books and papers belonging to his Committee.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved that the first regular meeting of this Council after organization be held on Monday evening, the 23rd inst.—Carried.

Council adjourned.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Owing to a proposed change in business, has determined to close out his entire stock of Furs at cost. Everything will be marked in plain figures, and no second price entertained. Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Dr. A. R. Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

W. S. MUIR, M. D.,
C. M., L.R.S.P. and L.R.C.S., Ed.,
Late House Surgeon P.&C. Hospital.

P. S.—I have been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

MORNING DESPATCHES

AMERICAN.

JOHN KELLY ILL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—John Kelly is dangerously ill.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS FOR COLORED PEOPLE.

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 17.—The Board of Education have divided the city into eight school districts, and required children of African descent to attend school especially designated for them, excluding them from schools in other districts. The Supreme Court decides this regulation illegal.

LIBERAL BEQUESTS.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 17th.—Besides other bequests, Wm. H. M. Baldwin gives $10,000 to Rochester Theological Seminary, and $10,000 to Hamilton Theological Seminary.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Tribune says the prediction is freely made that if the jury does not agree in the first hour it will never agree. The opinion is said to be growing in Washington that Guiteau is insane. It is the impression that Justice Cox believes Guiteau insane.

Ivan Petroff, special agent of the Census Bureau for Alaska, has reached Washington. He travelled 8,000 miles in Alaska and among the Aleutian Islands, 2,500 miles of which was through a portion of Alaska never before penetrated by civilized men. He had a variety of adventures, and was captured by Indians, who determined to kill him and his companion. The explorers, however, escaped at night.

The Times says it is reported that the condition of the market and the amount of the surplus caused the oil men to turn their attention to South America and endeavor to devise a plan for making a market there. This directs attention to the fact that in some parts of South America there are large deposits of petroleum of good quality, which can be procured without boring.

The Sun says that a distinguished New England lawyer has given his opinion, feebly as in some respects it has been made out, that Guiteau belongs to a class of criminals whom, when the plea of insanity has been set up, juries have not found guilty and have confined as lunatics. This is a view taken quite largely by lawyers and persons who view it as an ordinary case. Lawyers and others specially interested in behalf of the criminal express considerable confidence that the jury will not convict. Persons who have studied the jurors tend toward the opinion that a verdict of guilty will never be rendered by this jury.

MINNESOTA BONDS.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 17.—An injunction has been asked for against the State Treasurer, to restrain him from paying the interest on new bonds, it is alleged that new bonds have been issued without authority, except that of the pretended amendment to the constitution which was never adopted by the people. It is also alleged that an injunction was issued against the Governor, to restrain him from issuing bonds which was never modified or dissolved, and in spite of it $4,000,000 bonds have been issued.

WRECK—EIGHT LIVES LOST.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17.—A steamer from Belize reports the British schooner Weather Gauge, sunk in a squall off Carolina. 8 passengers were lost, the crew and two passengers were saved.

NEW YORK CANALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Herald's Albany special says that the report of the special Canal Committee for 1881 will be presented to the Legislature on Wednesday. The report is signed by Williams and Forster, Republicans, and Murths, Democrat. It is said that they are unanimous in their conclusion. The report states that the Committee are fully impressed with the conviction that unless steps are taken to cheapen the cost of transportation on water routes, the canals must soon fall into disuse. The report refers to the Welland Canal and Mississippi river as dangerous rivals of the Erie canal, and says we must make the water route to the ocean, through the Erie canal, the cheapest one, and to accomplish this result we must make the canals absolutely free. The cost of maintaining them free will, however, be considerable. Taken alone it will be but trifling compared with the benefits which will accrue to the State from trade that would be thereby kept or brought within its borders. The cost of maintaining the canals during 1880 was $800,000. Had this sum been raised by taxation the counties of New York, Kings and Erie would have paid about 60 per cent., and 90 per cent. of the entire sum would have been contributed by the counties situated upon the water routes between Lake Erie and the ocean. The report shows that the counties of Chautauqua, St. Lawrence and Wyoming received from New York city for educational purposes in 1878 far more than these counties would have to pay towards maintaining free canals. The Committee recommends the immediate passage of a free resolution, submitting to the people an amendment of the constitution, making the canals free. The Committee also recommends to the Department that the water in the Erie and Oswego Canals be increased two feet by excavating a foot more from the bottom and with the earth taken therefrom raising the walls one foot. This, in the opinion of the Committee, would diminish the cost of transporting grain at least one cent per bushel. The report states that the Erie canal has paid into the treasury of the State over $40,000,000 more than it cost. If the amount received by carriers, and warehouse and commission men is added to this sum, the amount is increased to nearly $400,000,000. The report refers to the amount saved in taxes to non-commercial counties through the increase in wealth in commercial counties. In case they find resident engineers can be dispensed with, the committee recommend that the office of canal auditor be abolished, and the duties transferred to a bureau in the office of the Comptroller. They are also of opinion that the offices of canal appraiser and weigh-master can be safely abolished.

THIEVES CAPTURED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The parties arrested yesterday for stealing the express waggon were Marquis Raymond, Henry Hart and Mary Raymond. They were detected by Mary wearing an elegant stolen dress to the thieves' ball. Nearly all the property was recovered, valued at $20,000.

Burrows were to fight this afternoon, but were prevented by the police. The fight was arranged to take place to-morrow.

JOHN KELLY'S ILLNESS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The report that John Kelly is dangerously ill is untrue. His illness is not serious.

THE DISASTER AT SPUYTEN DUYVEL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Aldermen have passed resolutions declaring that the Spuyten Duyvel disaster could not have occurred if a competent flagman had been stationed at each end of the cut, and if the cut had been properly lighted and patrolled, and directing the above precautions hereafter.

SENATOR WAGNER'S FUNERAL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The remains of Wagner were taken this morning to Palatine Bridge. There was a large crowd at the depot. The office of the railway through which the body was carried was draped in black. The officers and employees of the road wore mourning emblems. The train consisted of three drawing-room coaches, a parlor car and baggage car, the cars being tastefully draped in mourning. About the casket were many beautiful floral designs, one with the word 'father,' and another representing the gates ajar, and bearing the word "rest."

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 17.—Arrived, Cimbria.

—Reports from the Texas ranches say a disease resembling the Asiatic plague has broken out among the cattlemen, creating great excitement.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (30 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'But, my dear sir, you cannot think otherwise than that I will both provide for and protect the child whom you have brought up and educated as your daughter? Pray give yourself no uneasiness, for even if you should be taken from us—which I do not believe likely to occur for many long and happy years to come—I should, of course, consider it to be my bounden duty to provide for and protect that child,' earnestly responded the young man.

'Thank you, my good son. I knew, of course, that such would be your disposition,' replied Major Hereward.

'Then why should you suffer a moment's disquietude about the child ?'

'Because, Tudor, in the first place, Lilith is not a child, but a young woman. She was seventeen her last birthday.'

'Indeed ! I had no idea she was so old! But what was her age to do with the question at issue ?'

'Much—everything. Lilith is a young and beautiful woman, therefore there is but one way in which you can honorably protect her, and delicately provide for her.'

'And what way is that, my dear father ? I am ready to do anything you wish.'

'You are the best son in the world, I do believe.'

'I hope not. It would be a bad showing for the world if I were the best son in it. But tell me in what way I can properly take care of Lilith.'

'By making her your wedded wife,' solemnly replied Major Hereward.

Tudor Hereward started violently, flushed crimson, as at a blow or an insult, then fixed his strong, blue eyes searchingly upon the speaker's face, as if he seriously doubted his father's sanity.

'I—beg your pardon, sir ; I—think I cannot have understood you,' he said at length, in perfect good faith, for he really doubted his own ears.

''Cannot have understood me, Tudor ? Why, I speak plain English enough. Understand me now, then, my son: I wish you to marry Lilith Wyvil.'

The young man stared more fixedly than ever. He seemed like one struck speechless.

'You are quite old enough to marry,' continued Major Hereward, seemingly unconscious of his son's amazement. 'You are seven years older than I was when I married your mother. And you should have married years ago had your destined bride reached a proper age. She is, indeed, still very young, but girls are married as young. Come, Tudor, you know what I wish. Make my Lilith a happy wife before I depart hence.'

Some minutes passed in utter silence.

'You do not answer me, my son. Come, what do you say ! Will you marry Lilith Wyvil?' anxiously questioned Major Hereward, after another long pause, as he turned a yearning, pleading gaze upon the troubled face of the young man.

'I am surprised and perplexed beyond all measure, sir, by this most extraordinary proposition. Of course, I cannot marry Lilith Wyvil. I have never even thought of the girl except as a mere child—the child of your charity. As such, I should always think it my duty to care for her needs. But as to making her my wife ! the idea cannot be entertained for an instant. It is an absurdity—an impossibility. I beg your pardon, sir, but the girl is in no way fitted to become my wife. Still, I shall always look carefully to her best interests, as the child of my father's charity—'

'My charity !' burst from the sick man, with a vehemence that must have imperilled his frail life. 'For the Lord's sake, Tudor Hereward, let us have done at once, and forever, with that bragging lie !'

'My dear father !' exclaimed the amazed young man.

'Yes,' continued Major Hereward, almost indignantly ; 'if there be any question of charity in our relations with this young girl, it certainly is not she who is the recipient of it ; it is I, and it is you.'

Tudor Hereward was more than ever inclined to fear that his father was becoming delirious. He longed to feel the patient's pulse ; he wished the doctor might come.

'Do you hear me, Tudor ? Do you hear me, define our true relations with Lilith Wyvel ?'

'I hear you, sir,' replied the young man, in a tone of painful perplexity. 'I hear you, and I should think from your words that we had, in some way, defrauded this child out of her birthright, and that we were living off the revenues of her estate, or in some other manner benefitting by her loss.'

'And you are very nearly right ; for we have been the means of depriving Lilith of her birthright. We have been enjoying this estate and all else that we possess, as you will enjoy your inheritance, and not only your inheritance, but every good thing that you possess, or ever will possess, in this world, and every success that you will achieve, every distinction that you will attain, every triumph that you wil conquer, you will enjoy at Lilith's expense, and at her great loss.'

'Father, your discourse becomes so serious as to be alarming—though I really do not understand it ! Pray explain. Tell me this—Has Lilith Wyvil any sort of claim upon this estate, which I have been always led to believe to have been in my mother's family for centuries, and to have come down in a direct line to her, and from her to us ! If Lilith Wyvil has any legal right to this estate—though I cannot comprehend how it is possible that she should—in Heaven's name let her have it ; let her have it unencumbered by a husband in my person ? But has the girl such an unexpected right ?'

'No, no, of course not. You misinterpret my language. I told you we owe everything we enjoy to Lilith Wyvil, since we possess it at her expense and through her great loss. And this is the sacred truth, as you will admit, when you shall have heard all that I have to tell you. You owe Lilith Wyvil a debt so sacred that nothing but the gift of yourself can cancel it,' said Major Hereward, speaking with deep solemnity.

'I confess that I despair of comprehending your meaning, sir !' said Tudor Hereward, with a hopeless sigh.

'Listen to me, then, and I will make all clear to you,' replied the Major.

CHAPTER IV.

THE SACRED DEBT.

'Do you remember, Tudor, the circumstances under which I first adopted Lilith Wyvil?' gravely inquired Major Hereward.

'Not perfectly ; I remember, of course—for I was a boy ten years old at that time—the autumn when you brought Lilith home here, and represented her as the daughter of your dearest deceased friends,' replied the young man.

'And so she was the orphan child of parents who had won my eternal gratitude and friendship at a very heavy cost to themselves and their child. Send back your thoughts to that eventful year and tell me if you can recollect all the important changes of that time.'

'It would be strange if I could not, sir. My dear mother died in the early spring. You resigned from the army and took me to the seaside in the summer, so that we both might recruit our strength.'

'Do you recollect what happened to you there ?' solemnly inquired the major.

'Yes,' replied Tudor Hereward, with a smile. 'Something happened to me that might have formed the text for a Sunday school sermon on disobedience to parents !—Certainly, I shall never forget that ! I went out bathing against orders, for the waves were very high and the sea very rough. You had refused to allow me to go in the water. But when you were smoking your afternoon cigar in the gentleman's reading room, and Alick was gossiping with the chambermaid, I found my opportunity and slipped away to the beach and went in to bathe. Almost immediately the undercurrent sucked me in, drew me down and whirled me out to sea. Then commenced a death struggle that ended in suffocation and complete unconsciousness. When I came to life again, it might have been hours days or weeks afterwards, I found myself lying in my bed at the hotel, and feeling as if needles were running through every vein and artery in my body and piercing every nerve. The room was full of women. My memory is very hazy from that time until we went home to Cloud Capped Cliffs.'

'Yes, for you had a severe illness after that,' said the major.

'But I remember this—hearing some of the women about me saying that Major Hereward had most liberally rewarded the two men who had brought me to the shore,' added Tudor Hereward.

'Ah, yes ! I rewarded the two men who brought you in ! But the brave young fellow who really saved your life by the sacrifice of his own—he had passed above all earthly reward,' said the major, with much emotion.

'I—I—I never heard of this before ! Who was he ?' demanded the young man, in an agitated voice.

'Joseph Wyvil, Lilith's father.'

'I knew nothing of this !'

'No ; and it may seem strange to you that you were never told. But the very truth is, that the knowledge of the tragedy was withheld from you, at first, in tender consideration. You were a very delicate and sensitive lad, and you were also very ill. It would have excited and distressed you in a perilous degree to have been told that the brave young fellow who saved your life had lost his own. So it was thought best to keep the sorrowful knowledge from you. I always meant to tell you, Tudor, but I put off the sad task from day to day. Afterwards, when we went back to Cloud Cliffs, and the scene changed and time passed, the subject slowly sank into the solemn silence of a loving and sorrowful memory. But now the time has come when I must tell you the whole pathetic story of your rescue from death.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men ? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

OUR SALMON FISHERIES.

Wonderful Stories from British Columbia Told by an Eye-Witness.

Catching 100,000 Fish per Day.

Salmon Weighing 80 lbs. and Trout 5 lbs Each.

(From the Halifax Herald.)

TO THE HERALD:—I had often heard the most marvellous tales about the numbers of salmon in the rivers flowing into the Pacific, and having lately returned from a trip to British Columbia, at the risk of being thought a second Baron Munchausen, I venture to give a few details about these fish and the rivers they frequent. It was well towards the latter part of August when I arrived in Victoria, and in consequence I was too late for the best of the second run of salmon. But even then I saw the Indians coming to the landing places with their canoes full of fish, the proceeds of a very few hours, and I was told that it was a constant occurrence for one person to take 10 or 12 salmon in an hour trolling with a spoon bait in the salt water. Up at New Westminister, 95 miles above Victoria, and just at the mouth of the Fraser, where there are large canning factories, the total catch for the different establishments, during the height of the run, was over 100,000 a day. These fish were all caught in seines; but after the run had passed, some of the establishments wanting more fish, sent up to Yale, 100 miles further up the Fraser, and in one day the Indians dipped and sent down 80,000 salmon. We passed the steamer bringing those fish down on our way up. I watched some Indians dipping at Yale, and I do not think one minute passed, while I was looking on, without the net, of one Indian in particular, being lifted with one, two or three salmon in it. The Indians live almost entirely on dried salmon, and are very fastidious as to the kind they keep, throwing back certainly half what they dip. A Dr. —— in charge of the Railway laborers at Yale, told me that a few days before I arrived, the salmon were passing up the narrows opposite the village so thickly that their heads were out of water. Of course you have heard the old story that Oregon and Washington Territory were lost to England, because our arbitrators wrote to say "that the country was worthless because the salmon would not take a fly." That may be so as regards salmon, because I had neither opportunity nor tackle to try, but it certainly is not the case with the trout. I caught some very fine trout, 4 and 5 lbs. weight, with a fly in the Thompson River at the foot of the Kamloops Lake; and from the way the salmon were playing in the water, I feel sure they are to be caught, if properly fished for. Indeed, two or three persons have told me they have caught them with a fly in the Harrison River, which flows into the Fraser.

There are several kinds of salmon in the rivers running into the Pacific, some much better for food than other. The first run in June is large, some of the fish weighing 70 and 80 lbs. The second, which we saw, is small, averaging 10 or 12 lbs. The last run, called by the Indians "seek eyes," are a mixed lot. The canneries perfer, as a rule, the small to the very large fish. The Indians use the most artfully constructed dip nets. The bow is an oval about 4 feet long and 2 feet wide. The net is fastened on rings of bone, running on the bow, a cord is attached to the two top rings, which, when the net is let down, is held tight. As soon as a fish enters the net the cord is slackened, and the net drops to the bottom of the bow, and the fish is then in a bag without an opening, and cannot jump out and be lost.

Men, women and children all dip, and it looks most dangerous work. Two or three old planks are lashed together, and tied with rotten looking rope to the rocks, as a sort of stage. On this the dipper stands. These stages are usually placed over an eddy, from which, should they fall into it, they would never come out alive. At Yale the rivers runs far too fast, and is too rough for regular net fishing, so dipping is the only means of catching fish. On looking down into the river, you can see the salmon passing the various points exactly like a school of mackerel. The Indians string their fish on poles to dry, the only curing process being exposure to the sun. As a great number of them live away from the rivers on their farms, they pack, or what they call "cache," their fish in rude boxes on the trees some 40 or 50 feet up, and they nail a piece of tin or iron round the tree about four feet from the ground, to prevent vermin climbing up. When the winter sets in they return and take away their fish. I was told that the strictest honesty prevails concerning these "caches," the Indians never robbing one another. The canoes used by the Indians are perfect of their kind. They are first hollowed out of a great log, the length and size varying according to the builder's taste. They are then filled with water and heaps of red hot stones dropped in, which creates steam, and when well softened they are moulded exactly like a racing gig, and stand very rough water and paddle easily. The Douglas Pine is the wood most used, and as it is beautifully clean and free from knots, and the trees from 200 to 300 feet high, is most admirably suited for the purpose.

The Pacific abounds with various sorts of fish, as well as salmon, turbot, cod, haddock, whiting, white bait, etc, etc., and last, but not least, "the Candle fish," or, to call it by its local name, the "Oulahan." This fish is so full of oil that the Indians use it for light, merely sticking a piece of wood or cotton into it and lighting it. It also ranks A 1 for food, either fresh or salted, and thus the poor Indian has light and food all combined in one. The large rivers are, of course, very muddy, hence the difficulty of the salmon taking the fly; and the Fraser and Thompson tremendously rough and rapid, with great boils and whirlpools, that make them anything but pleasant for canoes. The following little incident will show what the Thompson is like: A steamer of about 200 tons—a flat bottomed, sternwheeler that plies on the Kamloops Lake—undertook to go down from Kamloops to Spence's Bridge, a distance of 54 miles. She ran down in two hours, was nearly swamped in a whirlpool and had 13 holes in her bottom, and it took six days to warp her back again; so her owner came to the conclusion that, as far as navigation went, the Thompson River is not a success.

Right from the Rockies.

THE C. P. R. ROUTE THROUGH THE SEA OF MOUNTAINS—A PRACTICAL ROUTE SURVEYED.

(Montreal Star.)

The eminent engineer, Major Rogers, who has in hand the survey of the Rocky Mountains through which the Canadian Pacific Railway line will pass, was in town during a part of last week, and left this morning again for the sea of mountains to continue his labors. He left Winnipeg on the 30th of March, and up to the 10th December was in the heart of the mountains. The surveying staff, which comprised upwards of eighty men, was divided into six parties, and, as may be imagined, had pretty hard work in the region of perpetual snow, and through the canons densely covered with brushwood, wading streams and roughing it generally.

The survey, of course, so far is not complete or in detail, merely having been made by means of barometers, and hand levels, but the result is so satisfactory that the Major is perfectly satisfied that he has found a practicable route, with the exception of about 18 miles, which he has not yet visited, but which he is confident does not prevent any serious engineering difficulty and which is in the region of the Selkirk Range. The route he advises starts from Kamloops, being the eastern extremity of the section now under construction by the Government, from whence it branches off in an easterly direction through various ranges of mountains to the south of Thompson Mountain by the well-known Eagle Pass through the Selkirk region and coming out at Bow River. By adopting this pass, which is known as the Kicking Horse, in preference to the Yellow Pass, which latter was surveyed by the Government, the distance on the prairie section between Winnipeg and Port Moodie is shortened by about 180 miles, and although it may present greater engineering difficulties, still it has been decided to use every available means to shorten the through route, to enable the road to compete with the Union Pacific and Northern Pacific Railways. The maximum grade encountered was about 30 feet to the mile, and the highest summit 5,500 ft. above the level of the sea—the highest summit on the Yellow Head Pass being 3,720 ft. above the level of the sea. On the western side of the Selkirk Range two comparatively short tunnels will be required, and it is believed the only serious bridging will be over the two branches of the Columbia River. The distance through the mountains from Port Moodie to Bow River is about 550 miles, which distance compares very favorably with the Mountain region traversed by the Union Pacific, which amounts to 1,405 miles. The Major states the valleys are full of beautiful timber, Douglas Fir predominating, which will all be most useful in building the road, and also being valuable as marketable lumber. By the present year the route of the Canadian Pacific will be shorter by some 500 miles from this water to tide water than either the Union Pacific or the Northern Pacific Railway.

C. O. Woodbury, Esq., of Milford, Mass, states that the application of St. Jacobs Oil cured a valuable span of white horses of a severe lameness, induced by straining the veins. This led to a personal use, and we now declare it the best—the very best—in the market." Mr. W. is with a vast majority.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Municipal Affairs.

The new Council have begun the work of legislation well, the motions passed and notices given covering nearly every subject of first-class importance, except water works, that will come before them for some months. The ferry, the hospital and home, the old hospital lot, our railway interests, the sale of lands for taxes, appointment of an assessment commissioner, encouragement of iron or steel works, all were touched upon and action taken as far as possible. It is to be hoped that a similar degree of activity will continue to be manifested during the year, and that the pavement of Front St., water works, drainage, and municipal reform will not be neglected. The subjects of the frontage tax, and reduction of the number of Wards ought to be discussed, and an opportunity given to the people to vote upon them.

The Manitoba South-Eastern.

The Opposition press are endeavoring to make a great ado concerning the disallowance by the Dominion Government of the Act passed by the Manitoba Legislature incorporating the South-Eastern Railway. This projected line was intended to divert traffic from the Canada Pacific, and therefore would have deprived Ontario and the older Provinces of a considerable portion of the benefits which they justly expect to derive from the construction of the transcontinental railway. Therefore, were the Ontario Grit journals really in earnest in Ontario. He, in his speech to the shareholders, pointed out that the large emigration from this province to Manitoba had had the effect of depressing and depreciating the value of lands in Ontario." And yet the valuator of an Ontario Loan Company reported recently that the price of farming lands in this Province had advanced 26 per cent, since the N.P. came into effect.

The law provides explicitly as to how the assessment rolls and voters' lists are to be made up; it also provides for the publication of the lists, in order that errors and omissions may be detected, and further it specifies how such errors and omissions are to be corrected. Is it not, therefore, illegal as not being authorized by law—for unauthorized persons to hand to assessors lists of names, with the instruction to add them them to the roll, as Mr. Blake proposes? Doubtless Mr. Blake has considered the point, and he is an eminent counsel; but we should like to see the point decided by a Judge.

The Toronto World makes the following excellent point:—"If commercial independence is something so valuable to Canada that it ought to be maintained at all hazards, why denounce the N. P., which is the most pointed and practical expression of the idea ever given? In eulogizing the idea of Canada's commercial autonomy, while denouncing the national policy which puts it in practice and makes it a tangible reality, the Globe places itself on a par with the man who said that he was in favor of passing the Maine law, but "agin its enforcement." And there are men calling themselves "liberals" who, on this question, are in the same "fix" as the Globe. We may well ask—how long can such an absurdity endure as this, that men shall pose as champions of Canadian nationality, Canadian autonomy and Canadian rights in general, while still opposing a national policy for Canada, which is and must be the real material basis of that ideal "autonomy" which they profess so much to desire? We say this thing cannot last; so unsound a fabric of contradiction and incoherence must come down."

The sales, it is stated, amount to about 7,000 to 8,000 boxes. The Liverpool public cable is now quoted 65s against 68s at this time last year.

A Mischievous Rumor.

The rumor as to the intention of the merchants of Belleville with regard to the ferry, to which currency is given by our Ameliasburg correspondent, is of the silliest possible character, and can only have been started by some interested party. The fact that several of our merchants and business men are stockholders in the Mary Ethel is of itself sufficient to show that they are desirous of affording the fullest possible facilities for the people of Ameliasburg to reach the city, and the discussion that and the resolution passed at the meeting of the merchants on Friday night last, conclusively demonstrate the same fact. As to charging higher prices for goods to those who cross the ferry, the idea is supremely ridiculous, there being too much competition for that; and besides, how could they identify all the Prince Edward people? Our merchants, like those of all other places, sell their goods at a living profit, and the more trade they can do, the larger is their profit. Hence they are desirous of keeping and increasing, if possible, their trade with Prince Edward, and are wisely prepared to invest some of their capital in doing so.

Editorial Brevities.

The Philadelphia American has a long article urging the advantage of a commercial union between Canada and the United States and declaring that the latter country is ready to take the initiative. No, thank you, Brother Jonathan! Canadians will not fall into that trap. The sentiment of this country is expressed in the Tariff Act, which provides for reciprocity of trade or reciprocity of tariffs.

The Eastern Provinces have provided a farmer's conundrum for the Grits. It is:—If, as Ontario Grit papers say, the National Policy lowers the price of wheat in Ontario (which province supplies us with wheat), how can it be true, as the Eastern Grit papers say, that the tariff has increased the price of bread which is made from that wheat?

Says the Ottawa Free Press:—"Our remarks on the cause of Manitoban growth are confirmed by news from England, which reports that at the meeting of the Canada Company in London the Governor, Mr. Robert Gillespie, touched on a point that was raised in these columns—that is, that the development of Manitoba is taking place largely at the expense of Ontario. He, in his speech to the shareholders, pointed out that the large emigration from this province to Manitoba had had the effect of depressing and depreciating the value of lands in Ontario." And yet the valuator of an Ontario Loan Company reported recently that the price of farming lands in this Province had advanced 26 per cent, since the N.P. came into effect.

Institute Affairs.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR:—This is a subject which is occupying the attention of the citizens to quite an extent at present. And it is earnestly hoped that all will join in aiding the directors to secure the liberal offer of Mr. Thomas Ritchie, which is that if the membership reaches two hundred by the end of this month he will give them one hundred dollars towards purchasing billiard tables for the Institute.

And su ely enough is offered for the money. One hundred and twenty dollars subscribed for papers. A large library to which one hundred and fifty dollars worth of new books are to be added at once. A gymnasium furnished with all the modern improvements. And it is the intention to add a recreation room with two billiard tables.

It will be a disgrace to our city if there are not more than two hundred who are willing to help support so useful an institution.

A WELL WISHER OF THE CITY.

The Ferry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—If the writer be not very much mistaken as to the temper of his fellow citizens in respect to ferry accommodation between the city and Prince Edward, they will see that this matter is no longer trifled with.

It is admitted on all hands that the best thing possible for the city and neighboring county would be a bridge; and certainly this should be kept in view, with the hope that sooner or later such a desideratum will be consummated. To this end the city ought, without any delay, to secure a charter, if it is possible to obtain one, in order that, should an opportunity for building it occur, it might be at once seized upon.

But while it is thus admitted without question by all the advocates of each of the routes for the ferry, that a bridge would be the most desirable, it is likewise conceded that the terminus of the bridge would necessarily be in the neighborhood of Bushy Island. Does it not, then, seem most inconsistent and even contradictory to advocate the longer water route for the ferry, as without any shadow of doubt the short water route is the nearest approach to what those who advocate the other, themselves admit to be best?

One great thing to be aimed at in intercommunication is cheapness of transport. Now it is apparent on the slightest reflection that fares on the short water course can be made much lower than by the longer, as one boat somewhat larger and swifter than either of the present ones, could easily perform the work which it would require two to perform on the other. So that in the important matter of the rates of the competing routes the Bushy Island would be the lowest. The cost of building the road through the marsh would be but a few hundred dollars more than the cost of running expenses of one boat for one year. The actual running expenses of the Mary Ethel for last year were $2,500, exclusive of interest on investment and sinking fund. The outlay for the road is made once for all, the expense of the boat is continuous.

Another important matter to be aimed at is regular, punctual and prompt service, not merely on certain days but all through the season on every working day. All who have had any experience in endeavoring to increase or turn traffic in a certain direction will see at once that this is an important consideration. No business man aiming at establishing or increasing traffic from point to another like this would so appoint the service as to be irregular. But in order to meet the matter of expense and bring it somewhat on a par with that of Bushy Island, this is the very thing the advocates of two boats on the longer route propose to do. Namely to allow one boat to be off on certain days for excursions, &c. Of course there are more people crossing on some days than others, but to increase the sum total of the traffic throughout the year, a fixed and permanent service is necessary in order that the public may always know what they can depend on. This is one of the chief reasons why a bridge would be the best.

Among many of the absurd objections to the short route the writer has heard on the streets, is that the bridges spanning the river may be swept away by some overwhelming flood in the spring. This is about as overwhelming as the rest of their objections. Has it never occurred to them that most steam ferries have a rudder, and it is to be supposed that the one to run to Bushy Island would not be an exception, and that its destination could thus be changed to land at the wharf till such a dire calamity be overpast?

Above all do not let a penny wise and pound foolish policy actuate us in this matter. The writer heard a business man, who knows what he is talking about, assert yesterday in thorough earnest, that were the city or his private property and no other alternative presented itself he would without the slightest hesitation expend one hundred thousand dollars in building a bridge, and make it free, and would consider himself five times that much richer the day it was accomplished. BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The first regular meeting of the School Board of 1882 was held last evening.

PRESENT.—Messrs. Wills (Chairman) Johnson, Holden, Macoun, Moore, VanAllan, Hayne, McGinnis, Carmichael, Walker, Northcott, Richards, Wensley, Docter, Davis, Tennant, and Rev. J. W. Burke.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

COMMUNICATIONS, &c.

The following were presented:—

From John Macoun, protesting against the school assessment for Thurlow, and refusing to pay the amount of his assessment. He claimed that the rate of assessment (4½ mills) was excessive.

From Maggie Pake, applying for the position of teacher in Coleman Ward school.

NOTICES.

Mr. Johnson gave notice of a motion for the consolidation of the regulations passed by the Board at various times.

REPORTS.

The Finance Committee reported to the following effect:—

The payment of the following accounts was recommended:

The new Secretary-Treasurer, it was announced, had completed the bond required by resolution, offering as his sureties Mr. A. N. Pringle and Ald. McInnis, and the acceptance of these sureties was recommended. The Committee reported that the terms of the resolution requiring that the tuition fees by all non-residents must be paid invariably in advance had not been complied with, seven pupils having been admitted to the High School without having procured the receipt of the Secretary-Treasurer. The Committee recommend that a copy of the resolution in question be sent to each teacher in the city, and hereafter if they admit any non-resident pupils without the fixed fee, that the amount of the fees which they should have collected be deducted from their salaries. The insurance held on the school buildings of the city was reported—the total amount being $18,000. The Committee recommended that all the insurances on the buildings be placed with one Company, as by so doing better terms could be secured; also, that insurance be effected on property in the buildings. The Committee recommended that the Secretary keep a separate account for each School.

The Committee on School Management reported, recommending that the Third Book be taught in Grier St. School, which should be placed under the charge of Mr. Wm. McKeown, who shall also teach the Second Book; that an additional teacher should be employed for the unexpired portion of the year at a salary of $250 per annum, and who should teach the First Book. One or two minor changes in the schools were also recommended.

Mr Johnston, I. P. S., submitted his annual report, which was lengthy and exhaustive.—The report was received and referred to the Committee on School Management.

Board went into Committee on Reports, Mr. Tennant in the chair.

The Finance Committee's report was taken up.

With regard to the clause in reference to the non-compliance by teachers with the resolution in regard to the collection of fees from non-resident pupils, Mr. Johnson said that $30 had been lost to the Board by this non-compliance.

Mr. Wills said the members of the Board were personally responsible to the Government for money lost in this way.

With regard to the recommendation of the Board with respect to insurance, Rev. Mr. Burke asked whether it was the intention of the committee to transfer the risks to one company immediately.

Mr. Johnson said it was only the intention to transfer them when they lapsed.

Mr. Diamond said there was no object in giving all the risks to one company. Companies were doing business now on small margins, and he was certain the Board could, if an effort was made, get as good terms from half a dozen companies as from one.

Mr. Wensley thought the Board should be able to insure all its buildings at 1 per cent.

If the Board could save anything by putting all its risks into the hands of one company they should do so.

Mr. Diamond said that insurance companies had certain fixed rates for certain classes of buildings, and it would be difficult to obtain any lowering of these rates.

The clause was passed.

The remainder of the report was passed.

The School Management Committee's report was taken up.

Mr. Johnson moved in amendment that the scholars in Coleman Ward school who have been taught in the Second and Third Books be requested to attend the schools they are now attending.

Mr. Johnson explained that in the Canifton Road School, the Station School and Pinnacle St. School, there was an average attendance of only 100 scholars. He thought that instead of going to increase expenditure by appointing a new teacher for the Grier St. School, the Board should re-distribute the schools, which would make the appointment of an additional teacher unnecessary.

Mr. Hayne opposed the amendment.

Mr. Wensley thought it very wrong to engage the services of an additional teacher when it was absolutely unnecessary.

Mr. Macoun said it would be unjust to the people of Coleman Ward, and those living in Thurlow who sent their children to the city schools not to open a new division in the Coleman Ward school.

Mr. Diamond declared that the accommodations of the new building were inadequate for the pupils in Coleman Ward. He felt that it was necessary in the educational interests of the city—especially Coleman Ward—that another division should be organized in the new school.

A lengthy and somewhat heated discussion ensued, in the course of which a number of members affirmed, and a number of others denied, that it had been the understanding that the school in Coleman Ward was to be only a primary one.

Mr. Wills supported the amendment. He thought it absurd to have Third Classes in each of the ward schools of the city, when there was already sufficient accommodation for all the Third Class pupils in the city. He would advocate allowing the Coleman Ward School to remain as it is at present, at least until the next term.

Mr. Johnson's amendment was put and lost.

Mr. Wills moved, in amendment to the report, that the Canifton Road and Station Schools be amalgamated so that one of the teachers may be taken from one of those schools and placed in Grier St. School.

Mr. McGinnis protested strongly against the amendment.

After a slight discussion, it was put and lost.

The clause was then adopted, and the remainder of the report was also adopted.

Committee rose and reported.

The yeas and nays were taken on the adoption of the report, with the following result:

YEAS.—Messrs. Burke, Diamond, Hayne, Macoun, Moore, McGinnis, Northcott, Richards, Tennant, VanAllan, Holden, Davis, Carmichael.—13.

NAYS.—Messrs. Johnson, Wensley, Walker, Wills.—4

The report was accordingly adopted.

Mr. McGinnis moved, seconded by Mr. VanAllan, that Miss Pake be appointed assistant teacher in Grier St. School at a salary of $250 per annum, and that the School Inspector be requested to endorse her certificate.

The Chairman ruled the motion out of order, on the ground that nominations for teachers had to be made by the School Management Committee.

Mr. Diamond moved that when the Board adjourns it stand adjourned till Friday evening, the 20th inst., for the purpose of receiving a report from the Committee on School Management.

With reference to the communication from Prof. Macoun, Mr. Johnson explained that the Secretary-Treasurer, in preparing the By-law fixing the rate of assessment in Thurlow for 1881, had inserted 4½ mills (the rate for 1880) instead of 4, the rate for 1881.

The Board then adjourned.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JAN 18.

City and Vicinity.

THREE prisoners were in the cells last night.

THE noon train was an hour behind time to-day.

THE gas is getting bad again. Is the new purifier in need of purification?

MR. WALTER FANNING shipped to-day a car load of horses via Prescott and Ogdensburg to Mr. Vogle, of Albany.

THE nomination of candidates for the office of School Trustee for Foster Ward took place to-day. Messrs. John Martin and E. Maxon were nominated. Election on Wednesday next.

THOMAS Weymes and William McGregor, drunks, were before the Magistrate this morning, charged with drunkenness.—Weymes was discharged, and McGregor remanded till Monday. Hiram Swan, charged with vagrancy, was remanded.

THE horse of Stephen Wade, carter, ran away yesterday afternoon and threw Mr. Wade to the ground. He was very severely bruised about the body and sustained a slight internal injury in the region of the liver. Dr. Murphy is in attendance on him.

ON Monday last ten tenders for the construction of "the missing link" of railway from Peterborough to Omemee, were received. There was a great variance in the amounts. The contract was not awarded and the papers were taken to Toronto to be placed before the Directors.

A SMALL shed in the rear of a house on Pinnacle St., owned by Mr. John Ross, was burned last night. The engine and firemen turned out, but their services were not required. Parts of the shed were saturated with coal-oil, which proved the fire to be the work of an incendiary.

A RECENT number of the London Graphic pretends to give a portrait of Major Crozier, of the N. W. Mounted Police. The gallant Major has many friends in Belleville who have known him for years, but they all fail to trace in the lineaments of the alleged portrait any likeness to him.

THE monthly assembly last night under the auspices of the Oddfellows' Band was well attended, there being about 60 couples present. The company was necessarily select, owing to the method of disposing of tickets, and a most pleasant evening was spent. The new hall and the adjoining waiting-room for ladies, which have been elegantly fitted up, were a source of pleasant surprise to the majority of the guests. The hall and its ante-room is now by far the best place in the city for balls and assemblies, either public or private.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 18.—Lakes, fresh to strong south-westerly to southerly winds, cloudy to fair weather, with light falls of snow in some localities, higher temperature, followed to-morrow by westerly to north-westerly winds and lower temperature.

DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION.—The Eastern Dairymen's Association will hold their Annual Meeting and Convention in the City of Belleville, on the 7th, 8th and 9th of February, 1882. The usual reduction in Railroad Fares will be made to parties wishing to attend, by first obtaining a Railway Certificate from the Secty., Harford Ashley, Esq., Belleville, Ont.

HIS LAST CALL.—The Battle Creek, Mich., Moon of the 16th says:—"William Brown who has been in the employ of the C. & G. T. R. as call-boy, died in this city at six o'clock yesterday afternoon at the early age of 22 years. 'Kirby' as he was familiarly called, was stricken with congestion of the brain on Wednesday last, and to this affliction later, was added congestion of the lungs. He was also a very civil and obliging young man and his death is deeply regretted by a large circle of friends. He came from Brighton, Ontario, where his widowed mother resides. His remains were taken charge of by Ed. Campbell and the body was placed on the train this afternoon to be taken to his late home."

MATRIMONY IN MANITOBA.—A young man, recently from Manitoba, is commissioned by a number of bachelors to offer such inducements to a like number of marriagable young ladies as may induce them to leave Ontario and accept a home and a good husband in the great North-West. The bachelors of Manitoba he says are all good looking and wealthy. Railway fare will be paid to Winnipeg, Brandon, Emerson and other points. The young man is now in Brantford, and will probably visit Belleville shortly.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

The Society met at 12 o'clock and adjourned for an hour.

On resuming at 1 p.m., the President, Baltis Rose, Esq., took the chair.

The financial report was presented, which was, in effect as follows: Total receipts, $1,344; total expenditure, $1,154.14; balance on hand, $187 86.

The remainder of the report of the proceedings will appear to-morrow.

Ameliasburg Correspondence.

AMELIASBURG, Jan. 17th, 1882.

Mr. R W. Hermon at Rednerville has lately purchased a thorough bred short horn bull and cow from the "Model Farm" Guelph. The bull is only 10 months old and weighs over 1,000 lbs.

At the meeting of the Council yesterday W. A. Anderson was appointed Assessor and Daniel Parliament Collector.

The ice on the bay is not considered generally safe, the frequent south and east winds having cracked it up a good deal. One day last week Mr. E. C. Ketcheson, of Rednerville, broke through with horse and cutter and was with not a little difficulty drawn out.

The Rev. Mr. Jewell preached the missionary sermons for the Rednerville circuit on Sunday to well filled houses. On Monday evening the first meeting was held at Rednerville. Mr. R. W. Hermon, who was to act as chairman, being called away during the day, did not return in time to fill the position, Mr. Scales acting in his place. The body of the church was comfortably filled. The report was read by S. S. Morden, after which short addresses were made by the deputation already announced. The remaks by the Chairman, Rev. Mr. German, of Picton District, were very interesting, he having been a missionary in the North-west. Misses Ketcheson and Anderson were appointed collectors for next year, amount realized about $37,00.

Considerable discussion is going on here concerning the ferry. One report is that it is the intention of the merchants, who are forming a Company for running a ferry, to put rates very low, get the people from this place in town and then make them pay more for their goods.

Those who are intending to build barns next season would do well to pay a visit to Mr. Asa Wallbridge's on Massassaga Point. A recent visit has satisfied the writer that for a stock barn and grain it is hard to beat, being handy in every way.

Mr. S. M. Herrington, of this place, purposes going to Belleville to live in the spring. He will erect a fine brick dwelling upon his lot as early as possible.

The first meeting of the Council took place to-day.

Campbellford Correspondence.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 16, 1882.

The new woollen factory here will be lit up with gas produced from gasoline, manufactured or distilled from petroleum oil, which is very volatile, and when impregnated with air gives a very brilliant light, at about half the price of coal gas. Of course it passes through cast iron pipes into the factory as dry gas. It will take about 250 lights to effectually light up this factory. Messrs. Gilbert & Baker, of Springfield, Mass., are the patentees, under whose instructions the works are being fitted up by Mr. Andrew Twitchell, their foreman. There are only four establishments of this kind in the province, one of these the beet sugar manufactory at West Farnham, and another factory at Stormont, Cornwall. In this 1,000 lights are used. The factories, cities, towns, etc., in the States are generally lit up with this gas, which gives great satisfaction. The steam works for heating the building and other purposes are under the management of Chas. Garth & Co., Montreal, and Mr. Joseph Latousell is the superintendent of the work, which is progressing very favorable. The water works for the supply of the factory in case of fire are under the supervision of Mr. Perry, of Montreal. They have been tested, showing the force and power which can be produced if necessary

Campbellford annual races will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, 8th and 9th of February. These races will be very attractive this year, in consequence of the liberal prizes offered and the great number of counties and townships admitted for competition, as may be seen by the handbills. Should the weather be favorable, a very large attendance may be expected.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Selling Out at Cost.

N. DAVENPORT,

Owing to a proposed change in business, has determined to close out his entire stock of Furs at cost. Everything will be marked in plain figures, and no second price entertained. Those desiring Furs would do well to examine his stock, as his Stock is without doubt the most complete ever thrown on this market. Please remember that this is a genuine sale, and not an advertising dodge. 147d&wtf

Thomasburg Correspondence.

The services of the dedication of the new church were continued as per announcement. Prof. Burwash was with us on Jan. 1st and rendered us excellent service, and as the day was pleasant the congregations were large and the collections good. Bro. Fawcett was on hand for Jan. 8th in his usual good spirits, but as it rained without cessation during the day, the congregations were not overflowing, although the church was well filled both morning and evening, and the sermons were powerful and impressive. On Monday, the 9th, the climax was reached. There was a perfect jam, and after tea had been served in the old church, Mr. Fawcett interested and amused the large audience—some of whom were his old friends of 39 years ago—with some reminiscences of life in the North-West. The whole thing from the beginning was a decided success. Rev. Mr. McFarlane, of Madoc, and Rev. D. Kelso, of Roslin, were present and added interesting addresses. The church is of brick, 50x36 ft., exclusive of tower in front and choir gallery in rear, with graceful spire and buttresses and all on a substantial stone foundation. Inside it is finished in black-ash, with birch and black walnut trimmings, finished in oil and varnish. The cornice and two centre pieces are put on in fresco work by Mr. Richardson, of Belleville. The mason work is by Mr. J. Lane, of Belleville, and the carpenter work and finishing is by Mr. E Ketcheson, of Sidney, and the entire job reflects credit upon those who labored in its construction. The entire cost, including furnishings (except the organ) is $2,400.00 and counting $547 of good subscription, not yet due, the whole cost is met, and the Church is opened for the worship of God entirely free from debt. The quilt, on which 1055 names were written, each representing 10 cents, was by election at 5 cents per vote and brought $30.30, Mrs. Lennox won the quilt and very kindly presented it to Mrs. Peake because of the very active part she had taken in introducing the thing and bringing it to its completion, And thus $135.80 was realized on the organ fund, less only a small amount for expenses. And the work was finished.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

Post Mortem Examintions have, in some instances, led to the discovery of the scars of completely healed abscesses or sores upon the lung. This of itself shows that the lung tissue when diseased is susceptible of restoration to a sound and healthy condition. Persons afflicted with lung disease may reasonably hope to recover health by the use of well chosen remedies. Foremost among these is Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, a thoroughly tested and highly accredited specific for coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, spitting of blood and other affections of the Pulmonary irritation is promptly arrested by the Cod Liver Oil, and the hypophosphites, which are among the finest renovants used by physicians, reviving the flagging energies of the debilitated system.

MORNING DESPATCHES
AMERICAN.

LUMBER RATES

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Lumber rates from here to New York have been reduced by all the railroads from 35 to 20 cents per hundred.

THE PORTER CASE.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 18.—It is stated that when Fitzjohn Porter's case was last before Congress, Garfield wrote to a lawyer here expressing the opinion that Congress could not restore Porter, or do anything to set aside the judgment of the court-martial without invading the prerogatives of the executive department of the Government, and if the question must pass in Congress on evidence, then that evidence was sufficient to sustain the original conviction. Garfield expressed himself fully determined to oppose Porter's restoration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Arrived, the Helvetia, from Liverpool.

FURTHER TROUBLES IN RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 18—Since the arrest of parties taking observations at the bridge of Gatchina on the 2nd of January, thirty-seven persons have been captured. Dr. Brouck was taken at home, where an officer of the artillery, who resisted arrest, was killed the previous evening. Sixteen terrorists, four of whom were women, were captured in a reunion round a Christmas tree covered with seditious emblems.

A WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING.

WAPPITON, Dakota, Jan. 18.—Charles Stockton, pastor of the Lutheran Church, pawned the communion set to a boarding house keeper. Being turned out, he quartered himself on poor parishioners, whom he robbed of $150, the savings of years, and fled to Manitoba.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Tribune says Scoville has agreed to close to-day. Porter can speak on Thursday. He may not occupy more than a day, certainly not the whole of two days. If Cox's charge is not of great length there would seem to be no reason why the Guiteau case should not go to the jury on Friday. It will go on Saturday at the latest.

The Times says it is understood that Windom will make a speech in opposition to the Sherman refunding bill and move to table it.

The Herald says that interviews with a number of Senators and Representatives discloses a general sentiment in favor of this government controlling any inter-oceanic canal or ship railway that may be constructed. Opinions differ with reference to Government subsidies or guarantees, and also with reference to the route to be adopted.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

ANOTHER ARREST IN RUSSIA.

ST PETERSBURG, Jan. 18.—It is rumored that the authorities have captured a most important conspirator, who is well-known throughout Europe, and who recently ventured into Russia.

MISSISSIPPI SENATORSHIP.

VICKSBURG, Jan. 18.—The Legislature have re-elected Lamar as Senator.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—The Sun's Rome correspondent says that in spite of the denials of the organs of the English Government, I can assure you that Gladstone has really turned toward the Vatican asking for help in the Irish question.

BOLIVIA AND CHILI.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 18.—A Valparaiso despatch announces the conclusion of a treaty of peace between Bolivia and Chili. The conditions are reported to be that Bolivia shall surrender the territory along the coast, and break off relations with Peru.

ATLANTA, Jan. 18.—The liabilities of Wylie & Co., failed grocers, are $100,000; nominal assets, $220,000.

Hops.

The Bulletin says: "All buyers are still operating with extreme caution, and very little, if indeed any, stock is taken beyond what there may be immediate use for. Holders make more or less show of firmness, but it is evident that they are unable to gain ground in face of the moderate export trade, and prices can not be termed better than barely steady." In its weekly review last week it said: "There has been quite a liberal business with brewers and more shipments to Europe during the past week; but, so far as regards the general appearance of the market and the prospects for the near future, we find nothing new. The shipments, however, it may be well to state, went mostly on consignment, and for that reason they fail to have the influence that would be felt if there were actual purchases here by shippers to even one-half the amount. Still, the majority of the trade seems to be of the opinion that a change otherwise than in seller's favor is scarcely to be looked for in view of the present relation of supply to prospective requirements for home and export account. At the same time it is evident that there is not confidence enough to induce heavy purchases, and until extensive orders come from abroad, or until some other weighty influence is felt, there is very little probability that business will extend beyond its present hand-to-hand character. As we understand it the interior markets are relatively higher than the New York market, and New York is in turn relatively higher than London." The last sentence seems still to be the truth.

The hop market in Utica during the week has shown more activity, and the purchases and sales have both increased. The sales have mainly been to brewers, but the English market is firmer and in just about the condition of our own. Utica dealers see no reason to expect a decline in the price, but believe that for first class hops 25c. can be maintained, especially if a few more thousands of bales should be sent abroad within a month. There have been between 1,000 and 1,100 bales bought in Utica during the week at from 21 to 25c, most of them, however, at 23a25c. The sales have been 700 or 800 bales at 26a28c.; time sales being one and two cents higher, and made mainly to brewers in the west, where a fluctuation of the market is not as quickly felt.

MALTOPEPSYN

Artificial Gastric Juice.

A WONDERFUL FACT, proving the remarkable digestive power of Maltopepsyn.

Two doses (10 grains), of Maltopepsyn will digest the entire white of a hard boiled egg in a bottle of water, in from 3 to 4 hours. How much more will it digest in the stomach assisted by that organ? About twenty times the quantity.

Test this for yourselves,—it is an interesting and useful experiment.

Get from your druggist ten drops of Hydrochloric Acid in a four ounce bottle, fill bottle half full of tepid water (distilled water is best, though soft water will do), then add the finely cut white of a hard boiled egg, then add two doses (30 grains) of Maltopepsyn and shake bottle thoroughly every 15 or 20 minutes, keep the bottle warm, as near the temperature of the body (100° fahrenheit) as possible, and in 3 to 4 hours the egg will be entirely dissolved or digested.

Maltopepsyn is endorsed by the leading Physicians and Chemists throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Send for Pamphlet, 24 pages, giving full treatment of Dyspepsia with the rules of Diet, etc., mailed free upon application by HAZEN MORSE, TORONTO.

Price per bottle, with dose measure attached, 50 cents, contains 48 doses or about one cent per dose

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'Had you not better defer this to some future time, my dear father? Will not the subject agitate and exhaust you too much?' inquired Tudor Hereward, who had been a deeply interested listher to his father's revelations, yet who feared that the invalid was overtasking himself. 'Would it not do for to-morrow?'

'No, my son! The time has now come when it is absolutely necessary that you should know the whole truth. And therefor I shall suffer less in telling the story and getting it off my mind than I should in keeping a longer silence.'

'Very well, my dear sir. Go on, if you must! But I beg you to spare yourself as much as possible.'

'It is necessary that I should revert briefly to my early life, Tudor. You know so little of it.'

'But you do know, I suppose that, my forefathers and yours owned very large manors in the State of Maryland.'

'Yes,' said the young man, wish an amused smile, 'I have heard all that from our boastful old family servants, who came with you from Maryland. They boast that the first Hereward who settled in Maryland used to stand upon a very high hill in the midst of his estates, and declare that, from that centre to the circumference bounded by the horizon, all the land in sight was his own.'

'Ah, well! that boast may or may not have been a true one! But, at all events, in many generations of high, not to say 'riotous living,' all that land gradually melted away from the possession of the Herewards. In my father's time there was nothing left of the old manor but a large, dilapidated mansion house, with a few acres of worn-out land, and a few tumble-down sheds and out-houses. And these were all heavily mortgaged, beyond hope of redemption. My father struggled on to keep the old homestead over our heads as long as mother lived. She left us when I was about fifteen years of age, having fallen a victim—as I firmly believe—to constant anxiety and worry rather than to disease.'

'I had no idea that your early life had been so full of trial, sir,' said the son, in a sympathetic tone.

'Well, well, it is past. After my mother left us, there remained only my father and myself, for I had neither sister nor brother! He ceased then to strive against fate. He sold house, land, stock and furniture,—parted with all his possessions, indeed, except his family servants. He paid every debt he owed in the world. Then, taking his son and his favorite servants, he went to the city of Richmond and took a book-keeper's place in a large mercantile establishment. It was a great fall for a country gentleman!' added Major Hereward, with a sigh.

'And yet for that I honor my grandfather more than I do all the preceding Herewards, who wasted their substance in feasting and 'riotous living,' said Tudor Hereward, bluntly.

'Yes, he lived and died without a stain upon his pure and noble name. It was some months after his removal to Richmond in November, 18—, that his old and intimate friend, General ———, was elected President of the United States. In the following March, my father was enabled, through this powerful friend, to gratify the ambition of my boyhood, and procure for me an appointment as Cadet at the Military Academy at West Point. This, of course, settled my career in life.'

'But when you went to West Point how fared my grandfather, bereft of home and family, and tied down to a book-keeper's desk in the warehouse of a crowded city?' inquired Tudor Hereward, with much interest.

'I never left him. Ah! my son, the change was too great for him. One day he came home from his counting-house, spent the evening with me talking of my future prospects, then rose to go to his bedroom, dropped back into his chair, and passed away before I could spring to his side. It was a sudden, painless exit. He indeed was changed 'in the twinkling of an eye.' He knew not death.'

'Was it—apoplexy?' inquired Tudor Hereward, in a low, grave tone.

'So the doctors said.'

'And you, at the age of sixteen, were alone in the world?'

'Yes, quite alone; and after all remaining debts were paid, I was nearly out of money. But I had my cadetship, and so, after I had settled my affairs in Richmond, I went to West Point and entered the Military Academy, where constant occupation left me little or no time to brood over family troubles.'

'You are talking too long for your strength, sir. You are wearying yourself,' interrupted his son.

'Yes. Give me that cordial, and I will drink it and rest for a few moments.'

Tudor Hereward poured out the restorative from the bottle into a glass and gave it to the patient, who immediately after drinking it dropped into the sudden, swoon-like sleep of exhaustion which accompanied his malady.

The son sat patiently watching the sleep of the father until an hour later, when the latter awoke, much rested, and inquired:

'Where was I?—in my reminiscences, I mean.'

'At West Point, sir,' replied Tudor, with a smile.

'Ah, yes! Well, at the close of the academic course I graduated with some credit. Then the memory of my dear father still befriended me at the War Department. I received my lieutenant's commission, and—instead of being sent to some frontier fort in the far West—I was appointed to a regiment then going to fortress Monroe. It was there that I first met Evelyn Tudor.'

'My mother!'

'Yes, your mother. She was the daughter, as you know, and the only surviving child, of Edward Tudor, of Cloud Cliffs, my father's dearest college friend and my own godfather, for whom I was named. She was a guest and relative of our colonel's wife. I met her first at a Christmas ball; and after that at all the social gatherings at the fort and in the neighborhood. We were mutually pleased with each other, and in a short time we became devotedly attached to one another.'

'Oh! I can imagine that, sir; for I remember how perfectly united you were in heart and mind.'

'Yes, ours was the true union that death does not sever. Well, in due time I proposed to her and was accepted. And not until her uncle, our colonel, suggested that marriage settlements should be drawn up securing the whole of her real and personal property to herself and to any children that she might have, did I know or even suspect that she was an heiress, twenty one years of age, with full powers to dispose of herself and her fortune. Heaven knows it was her precious self and not her fortune I coveted. She opposed the settlement upon herself. She would have given me everything; but the colonel was firm, and so was I. I would not take her fortune. The colonel sustained me in my resolution. We carried the point, and every penny of her estate was settled upon herself and her prospective children. That is the reason, Tudor, why I am at this hour a very 'poor,' though I hope a very 'honest' man, with nothing to leave my dear adopted daughter but my blessing and my hopes.'

'I have said, sir, that I will provide for her.'

'And I have said there is but one way in which you can honorably do so. But let that pass for the present. I must go on with my narrative. We were married in the early spring. I obtained leave of absence and went on a lengthened bridal tour. When we returned to the fort at the end of five weeks, which was also the end of my leave, I found our regiment under orders to Fort Protection, in Arizona. I might have resigned from the army and settled on my wife's estate, as many of our friends advised me to do; but I had been educated at the expense of my conutry, and so I felt in honor bound to render some service to the country in return. Or I might have left my wife in her patrimonial home and gone alone with with my regiment to the far southwest; but that plan she would not agree to. She, brought up in luxury as she had been, did not flinch from the prospective hardship of frontier camp life. She thought, as I did, that there could be no evil so great as separation.'

'Ah, yes, even in my time I have heard my mother say that! 'No evil so great as separation.''

'In the autumn we commenced our journey to the frontier, where we at length arrived without calamity. And then commenced for us a life of privation and hardship difficult for any one in the civilized East to believe in.'

'I have often heard my mother speak of those times, yet always as picturesque and rather pleasent memories.'

'Her sunny temper brightened the darkest side of every event. But it was hard on her. You were born at Fort Protection, Arizona. And in the course of the next nine years, which we spent, from fort to fort, on the Western frontier, two other boys and two girls were given us. Their little, lonely graves lie far apart all along the line from Washington Territory to Lower California. Ah, well.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

—The Kingston knitting mill, which was burned on Friday night, will be replaced by a concern four times as large. A company with a capital of from $50,000 to $75,000 has been formed,

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

BRILLIANT SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH.—Thousands cured of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and lung diseases by Dr. M. Souvielle's Spirometer, an instrument which conveys medicinal properties direct to the parts affected. These wonderful instruments are used in all first-class hospitals, and prescribed by leading physicians. Full directions for treatment sent letter, by and instruments expressed to any address. It is only since Souvielle's invention that lung diseases are no longer feared until their very last stage. Write for particulars to M. Souvielle, ex-Aide Surgeon of the French Army, 13 Phillips Square, Montreal. All letters must contain stamp for reply. R. Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Important to Farmers, etc.

If you would keep your kine, cattle, hogs, horses, sheep and poultry in the most perfect health and remunerative condition, mix HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDERS occasionally with their feed. These great specifics are the wealth of the barn yard. See to it! Sold every where.

Fellows' Hypophosphities makes an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent (without medicine) cure of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of Internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation, but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.:

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of these full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have never recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has proved more quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION with IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

Ontario Legislature.

TUESDAY, Jan. 17.

Mr. White (North Essex) continued the debate on the address. He was opposed to new Parliament buildings. He had no doubt that the Opposition would occupy the right hand benches in the new Parliament buildings. As to the Manitoba Act and the Ontario boundary, no Canadian Act could take from Ontario one inch of her territory, and the Act did not do it. He did not care whether Ontario had larger or smaller than Quebec or Manitoba, so long as she got her own. The Government were always using this question for raising a political cry. As to the disallowance of the Rivers and Streams Bill, he did not think that Sir John Macdonald, in laying down the reasons for vetoing Bills, meant to confine vetoes to those cases. When hard times and starvation stared the people in the face, Sir John Macdonald proclaimed his policy, without waiting until he reached the treasury benches, and largely by means of that policy there was now prosperity in the country.

Mr. Sinclair (Bothwell) of North Bruce, said that a great many Reformers had been supporting Sir John Macdonald, it was said there was no difference between Reformers and Conservatives, but this debate showed differently. It seemed as if the basis of responsible Government would have to be fought over again. He protested against the course taken by the Dominion Government and the Opposition in the House. The Dominion Government refused to confirm the arbitration and had not proposed any other means of settlement, and had been despoiling the country by disallowing of the timber limits to their friends. It would be responsible it any blood was shed from the conflict of jurisdiction in the disputed territory.

Mr. French (South Grenville) said that if the present Opposition had had the same support from the Conservative press as the first Opposition, they would have had from the Liberal press, they would not be so weak as they were. He instanced the failure of the Government to carry out the promises which they had made in the speeches from the throne. Sir John Macdonald had acted the part of a statesman in regard to the boundary award.

Mr. Dorcohe (Addington) said the Conservatives had never stood up for the rights of the people but for those of kings and emperors and the privileged classes. The Liberals stood up for the rights of the people and were so to the present case. He would like to know what the policy of the Opposition was. They had not heard much of it lately. Sir John Macdonald was a great man, but he had always subordinated the interests of Ontario to those of other Provinces in order to maintain himself in power. In the boundary award Ontario had been punished because she was a Liberal province.

Mr. Broder, (Dundas,) did not think Ontario had lost so very much, because the boundary award had not been confirmed for the province had only a limited right in it. If the party friends of gentlemen opposite had stood up for the rights of the province at Ottawa, as the Opposition had done here against their party interests, the question would have been settled long since. The Government had grasped a great deal of patronage which had formerly belonged to the people.

Mr. Awrey (South Wentworth) said that if the Ontario Conservatives had gone to Sir John Macdonald and made the same vigorous representations as those from Quebec did when they wanted a Governor dismissed, the award would have been confirmed ere this. Not one of the Opposition had condemned the action of Sir John Macdonald in this matter, but the Liberals from this province had spoken as strongly at Ottawa as those here. He was prepared to vote for a reasonable expenditure on Parliament buildings.

Mr. Madill (North Ontario) alluded to the measures promised in the speech, and made comments on them. A more liberal policy should be pursued towards actual settlers on Provincial lands. Much time had been wasted in previous sessions in discussing measures which had not become law. He was opposed to new Parliament buildings and in favor of the addition of Upper Canada College and the use of its buildings for the Legislature. The number of members in the Legislature should be reduced to one-half.

Mr. Gibson (North Huron) believed that we had reached a pretty grave crisis in our constitutional history. The Dominion Government had made confusion worse confounded by dragging Manitoba into the dispute and making two parties for the Province to deal with instead of one. Britain held her treaties and awards, but the Ottawa Government had broken this award without any reason but to please Quebec. The timber in the country which the Dominion Government sought to despoil Ontario of was worth $10,000,000. It was an act of usurpation for the Dominion Government to vote the Rivers and Streams Act.

Mr. MacMaster (Glengarry) said the debate had developed two main questions, the Boundary Award and the Rivers and Streams bill. He would be one of the first to defend the Province if anything was taken from it. The boundary award of 1859 had been fixed by the Confederation Act, and could not be changed except by consent of the Province. The Manitoba Act only vested the western limits of Manitoba to the western boundary of Ontario. He thought the reference was properly made to arbitrators, as he thought this country should settle its own affairs and should settle this question. But the arbitration was to be confirmed by legislation of both the Province and the Dominion. The friends of gentlemen opposite had remained in power at Ottawa four years after the agreement for arbitration, and had not passed the Act. There never was any binding award, for the legislation necessary had never been enacted. Ontario had allowed the Dominion to make default. The Provincial Government had not been diligent. The Prime Minister of Canada for some reason thought that this award should not be affirmed. It has been referred to a Committee of the House of Commons, which could not be objected to, as it was to be affirmed by legislation. The majority of the Committee reported that the boundary awarded did not agree with any previous one. The Liberal amendment was that there had not been time enough to consider the evidence. As part of the disputed territory had been handed over to Manitoba, it would be well to have the whole matter referred to the Privy Council. As to the Rivers and Streams Act, there was no limit to the veto power of the Dominion Government. Those who said that the Province was supreme within its own jurisdiction did not know what Responsible Government was. If the Federal Government exercised the veto power unwisely, they were subject to the people of the Dominion. He stood up for Provincial rights, but he also stood up for the rights of the Dominion.

Mr. Young (North Brant) moved the adjournment of the debate.

IN 1900.

HOW THE MURDER TRIALS OF THE FUTURE WILL BE CONDUCTED.

The nine hundred and ninety-ninth witness in the great opium case—as long as no one can cook the stand, and the lawyers proceeded to torture him with the assistance of the prisoner at the bar.

Lawyer—I believe you are from Southern China, sir?

Witness—Yes sir, and I wish to get back as soon as possible.

Prisoner—What's the matter with you, you ——— goggle eyed, cadaverous reptile? Haven't you been paid ten thousand dollars travelling expenses? Shut up, Mr. Lawyer. I'm running this case and I mean to put this long eared ass where he belongs at the start. If you don't like our style, you ——— big boned son of the East, you can take your soap and toddle home just as quick as you ——— please.

Judge—If the prisoner will allow the Court to——

Prisoner—Shut up, Judge. I know what I'm about. Who is running this case, you or I?

Judge—Well, if the prisoner please, I should like to——

Prisoner—Now, Judge, how many times during this trial have I got to remind you that we can get along without your advice? Lawyer—I the prisoner is through we will now proceed with the examination of the witness.

Prisoner—Yes, for the present. I will deliver my daily oration at 4 o'clock.

Lawyer—I am about to put the first hypothetical question to the witness. Those wishing to remain throughout the delivery of the question will find excellent board and lodging at the hotel opposite. The question will be delivered in sections, and I think I can manage to get through with it in the course of the month.

Eighteen days after. Witness still on the stand:

Lawyer—And now, having heard this first hypothetical question, what is your opinion?

Prisoner—Oh, never mind his opinion. He is nothing but a ———pimple-headed liar, and he might as well go home and wash his feet. Judge, I think it is about time to adjourn. Suppose we shut up shop for the day.

Judge—But I beg to remind the prisoner that it is only two o'clock, and——

Prisoner—Oh, what's the diff? I've had enough of this racket for to-day, and I don't want to see that ———blasted ass on the witness stand to-morrow, either. We must have up a fresh man, ho's too ancient.

Lawyer—But, begging the prisoner's pardon, I must remind him that the witness has yet to answer our question.

Prisoner—It doesn't make a bit of difference. He's an old fool, and I'm tired of him. Judge, are you or are you not going to adjourn?

Judge—The court is adjourned until—what time shall I say, prisoner?

Prisoner—Oh, well, make it 11.

Judge—Eleven o'clock to-morrow morning.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 19.

Fires in 1881.

The year 1881 was one of great disaster both at sea and on land. In the United States and Canada the value of the property destroyed by fire is estimated at about one hundred millions of dollars. From a list of the great fires, published by the New York Bulletin, including only those in which $50,000 worth of property or over was destroyed, we gather the following information. The losses are of course conjectural rather than accurate, being those reported at the time. In the United States and Canada there were 350 great fires during the year, the aggregate loss by which was over $35,000,000. The alleged loss by 202 of these was $50,000 to $100,000 each; by 53 over $100,000 and under $150,000; by 53, $150,000 to $200,000 inclusive; by 19 over $200,000 and up to $300,000; by 9 over $300,000 and up to $500,000. Philadelphia had a $600,000 fire; Indianapolis, a $750,000 one; Cincinnati, a $1,000,000 one; Ontario, a $1,000,000 bush fire; Chicago, a $1,125,000 one; New York, a $1,250,000 one; Quebec, a $1,500,000 one; New York, a $2,000,000 one, and Michigan, a $2,500,000 bush fire.

Canada's loss by fire amounts to $5,469,000, insured for $1,318,500. The following table shows the losses of each province, together with the amount covered by insurance.

CANADA.	Loss.	Ins.
Ontario	$2,635,000	$310,500
Quebec	1,012,000	85,000
New Brunswick	152,000	50,000
Nova Scotia	130,000	.....
British Columbia	520,000	75,000
Total	$5,469,000	$1,318,500

In the table giving particulars, Belleville is set down for $100,000 by the burning of a woollen mill, which is certainly an error; but the tables are, on the whole, no doubt tolerably accurate.

Editorial Brevities.

In moving the address in the Ontario Legislature, Mr. Hay asserted that the tariff had not benefited the manufacturers. Now it happens that on the previous day the Manufacturers' Association met at Toronto and affirmed that the tariff had benefited them very materially. Perhaps Mr. Hay may know more of the manufacturers' business than they themselves do; but we are inclined to doubt very strongly that such is the case.

Some of our exchanges have of late been urging the Ontario Government to enforce more strictly than heretofore the law providing against bush fires. The settlers, having been placed at the mercy of the lumbermen by the latest Homestead Act, have now but little interest in preserving the timber, so the enforcement of the law will be an expensive job and one difficult of successful accomplishment.

The year 1881 was one of remarkable activity in the ship-building industry of the Clyde. No fewer than 261 vessels, with an aggregate measurement of 341,022 tons, were launched. In 1880, which showed the largest total of any year except 1874, the tonnage reached 248,800. Notwithstanding this large output, the prospects are of the brightest description, as it is understood that shipbuilders have a larger number of contracts on hand than they had at the beginning of 1881. An unprecedentedly large number of the vessels launched during the year were built of steel.

The Ontario Government having neglected to take the necessary steps to have the western boundary of the Province authoritatively defined, and their own friends when in power at Ottawa having refused to act because of the omission, they are now trying to kindle a blaze of public excitement because the Dominion Parliament at its last session refused to act in an improper manner, according to their wishes. The proper mode of procedure is to secure a verdict from the Privy Council, which will certainly do justice in the premises. Our summaries of the speeches in the Legislature make apparent the various features of the question.

Amongst the petitions presented to the Ontario Legislature are the following of local interest: Dr. Boulter—Of Messrs. Gilmour & Co., of Trenton, praying that an Act may pass authorizing them to build certain dams on the River Moira; also, of the Gatling Gold and Silver Mining Company, praying that an Act may pass to confirm the election of directors; also, of the Hawkeye Gold and Silver Mining Company praying that an act may pass to wind up the affairs of the company. Mr. Striker—The petition of the Prince Edward County Railway, praying that an Act may pass enabling them to extend their line. Mr. Ferris—From the Woman's Christian Association of Belleville, praying that an Act may pass authorizing the conveyance of a certain hospital lot in Belleville.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Correspondence.

Whilst correspondents will be accorded space for the expression of their ideas on topics of public interest, it must be in all cases understood that the views so expressed are simply those the correspondents themselves.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—In your report of the re-dedication of Bleecker Street Church you credit a Rev. gentleman with having said:—"It is a grand thing to have a friend at court. There is no doubt that God has taken pity on many wicked persons on account of godly friends, either in this world or in heaven, who plead for them. It is an error to think that those who loved us in this world fail to have sympathy with us after they leave the flesh."

You, I presume, have correctly reported the Rev. gentleman; and if so, I would ask, Did he preach the doctrine of his church on the occasion? If he did, I have been in error as to one at least of her dogmas. I always thought the great shibboleth of Methodists was, no intermediary of intercession between God and man. But if friends either in this world or in heaven plead for us, then we have intermediaries. Then do I stand corrected? The doctrine is truly and indeed Catholic—Roman Catholic if you will; for we say it is a grand thing to have friends at the court of heaven, and we ask them to intercede for us, plead for us, and ask the Divine Master to "take pity" on us.

As a Catholic I would say to the Rev. preacher, Shake hands, brother! and, if the worshippers whom he addressed are in accord with him, I would add: Brothers and sisters, join us in a general shaking of hands. We are one at least on the beautiful and very consoling belief of the ancient church—the efficacy of the prayers of our friends in heaven, the saints. We all, Catholics and Methodists, can now join hands and say: It is an error to think that those who loved us in this world forget and sympathize not with us, now that they are in the enjoyment of heavenly bliss. No, their faith and their hope have passed away, but their charity endures.

Yours respectfully,
A CATHOLIC.

The Wood Question.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—I think the attention of the City Council, whose members are apparently so anxious to protect the poor of the city, should be called to the imposition and fraud practiced upon them by persons bringing cordwood to the market for sale. From the personal observations of the writer, a perfect swindle is practiced upon the innocent poor of the City, who are in the majority of cases practically unacquainted with the measurement of wood as it whose education it is too limited to enable them to measure it. Persons selling wood on the market are as well aware, as are the poor themselves, that they will be obliged to have wood during the winter months, and that they have no means of obtaining it, except by purchase on the market, or by paying the ordinary price of wood and the profit to the wood merchants of the City. Knowing this, persons having wood for sale have a rack manufactured on purpose, of the ordinary width at the bottom, with the stakes so places therein that they are only a few inches (in a great many cases not exceeding a foot) apart at the top, thus causing the wood when loaded therein to have the appearance of being a large quantity. Inexperienced people going on the market and seeing the wood thus loaded cannot judge of the quantity contained and are solely at the mercy of the seller, upon whose representations they are compelled to purchase, not by the cord but by the load, paying therefore sums ranging from three dollars to three dollars and a half and are surprised to learn when it is delivered and snugly piled, that what was represented as a large part of a cord, is in reality a very small part and that they are paying for wood at the rate of $7 or $8 per cord. The writer suggests that the Council take the matter in hand and that some By-law or regulation be made by that body whereby all wood brought to the market will be subject to measurement or inspection by some public officer appointed for that purpose, as for hides, measures &c. By so doing the poor in the city will be guarded against the frauds that are being perpetrated upon them and such protection will be afforded to the expenditure of their scanty means that less frequent will be the calls for aid made upon private individuals and fewer will be the persons whose poverty is relieved by donations from the city.

Yours truly
T. S. C.

Marmora Circuit.

A few days ago the friends of the Methodist Church of Canada worshipping at the Springbrook appointment, held a meeting and unanimously agreed to proceed during the approaching summer to build a church at the said appointment. The site was chosen and in a few minutes $300 was subscribed. It is proposed to build it of brick at a probable cost of $1,500.

May Providence smile on the enterprise.
ONE PRESENT.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied: "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 18.

The debate on the address was resumed by Mr. Young, who applauded the intention of the Government to establish a bureau of statistics. He dealt at length with the subject of the prosperity of the province, contending that the revival of industry was entirely due to natural causes, and that the only effect of the N. P. had been to burden all classes of consumers with heavy taxes for the benefit of a small class of highly protected manufacturers. Speaking on the boundary award, he animadverted on the action of the Dominion Government. The veto power assumed by the Dominion Government was analogous to many of the perogatives of royalty recognized by law, but never acted upon, and opposed to unwritten constitutional principles. The course of the Dominion Government in this matter tended to make the people look to Ottawa instead of to Toronto in local concerns, and was doubtless undertaken with a view of forcing on the legislative union favored by Sir John and his followers.

Mr. Lauder, after alluding to some minor points, entered at some length upon a defence of the N.P., which he claimed to be satisfactory not merely to the manufacturers but to the farmers. He justified the disallowance of the Streams Bill as strictly constitutional, and argued as to the boundary question that it really after all made very little practical difference whether the territory in dispute was assigned to Ontario or Manitoba. Mr. Lauder contended that the question was yet an open one, as not a single foot of territory had been taken from Ontario, the Act merely providing that the eastern boundary of Manitoba should be the western boundary of Ontario, and leaving it otherwise undefined.

—The fancy dress ball at Government House, Toronto, last night was an unqualified success. The attendance was large; the costumes were rich, handsome, and extremely varied; the supper was one to satisfy the most fastidious taste, and all the other arrangements, including music, decorations, and attendance were as perfect a forethought could make them. The ball was the finest of the kind ever given in Toronto.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made by which all who wish to accompany the Histrionic Association to Napanee on Tuesday next, may purchase return tickets for 95 cents.

THE programmes for the Oddfellows' concert on Wednesday evening have been published. It will undoubtedly be one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season.

A. GILLEN has been temporarily engaged as Secretary of the Mechanics' Institute, in place of his brother, Chas. Gillen, who has resigned, with the intention of going to the Northwest.

M'ME GEORGEN left town yesterday for Gananoque, where she will read this evening. She will then go to Ottawa and Montreal, after which she will cross over into New York State.

MR. FEATHERSTON has been appointed organist of Christ Church. It is probable that he will be able to take charge of the fine new organ which has been ordered from Warren (or, more properly, the fine new organ will be ready to be taken charge of) by Easter.

THE death is announced of Mr. Alex McLaren, sen., for a number of years Treasurer of the Township of Tyendinaga, at the advanced age of 79 years. Mr. McLaren was one of the most respected residents of the township, and his death, though not unexpected, will be regretted by many friends.

The sermons in connection with the anniversary of Holloway St. Methodist Church will be preached on the 29th inst., by Rev. Dr. Burwash, of Cobourg. The annual Tea in connection therewith will be held on the evening of the 30th inst. Further and more definite announcements will be made shortly.

A VERY successful tea-meeting was held in the M. E. Tabernacle last evening. The attendance was large, the tea which was served was sumptuous, the addresses were pithy and entertaining, and the music furnished by the choir added greatly to the pleasure of the affair. The financial results were more than satisfactory.

PROF. BELL has handed us a copy of the report of the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario for the year 1881. The volume, which comprises 111 pages, contains much valuable matter, including the reports of the judges on prize farms, two essays on restoring fertility to partially worn-out lands, four essays on forestry, and the report of the Ontario Veterinary College. These are worthy of a wider circulation than can be given in the official document which contains them.

THE membership list of the Mechanics' Institute is growing rapidly. Already over a hundred names have been secured, and a large proportion of these are new members. By the way, the Gymnasium has been reopened, and those of the members who wish to recreate and exercise themselves there may do so without any fear of being disturbed.

THE missionary anniversary of Bridge St. Methodist Church is always looked forward to with interest, as special efforts are made to have them attractive. This year the Rev. John S. Clarke, Chairman of the Lindsay District, is to preach on Sunday and with the Rev. Thomas Crosby, a missionary to the Indians of British Columbia, will address the missionary meeting on Monday evening.

THE "coasters" had fine fun on the hill at the north end of Church Street yesterday for a time. They knocked down a woman, ran into and damaged a cutter, one of them ran under a team of horses, and they otherwise enjoyed themselves hugely until the police appeared and drove them away. On Murney's hill they had a still more enjoyable day, knocking down several children and, with loud shouts of "clear the track!" driving pedestrians from the sidewalks. The police did not interfere. Is it not about time that effective steps were taken to put a stop to this long-standing nuisance?

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE may now be considered fairly started on its way under the new name, and with the February (Midwinter) number, and the adoption of the new cover-design, by Elihu Vedder, the name of Scribner's Monthly will no longer be continued as the sub-title. Since the change of name, there has been a decided increase in the sale of recent numbers of this magazine. The average edition during the last year of Scribner's Monthly was 120,000, while of the first four numbers of The Century it has been more than 132,000. Of December, a new edition of 9,000 was printed, and a new edition of the January issue is now called for. In England, 20,500 copies of November were sold, against an average of 16,230 for the twelve months preceding. The recent growth of St. Nicholas in England has been even greater in proportion; for while 3,000 copies were sufficient there a year ago, 8,000 and 10,000 copies are now needed every month. The publishers are printing 135,000 copies of the Midwinter Century, which will be issued on the 21st instant.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 19.—Lakes, moderate winds, fine weather, and lower temperature to-day, southerly winds and rising temperature to-morrow.

HASTINGS LOAN AND INVESTMENT SOCIETY.—The condition of this institution, as shown by the annual statement of receipts and disbursements, assets and liabilities, which is published in other columns, is eminently satisfactory. The semi-annual dividends of 4 per cent each were paid, whilst the surplus at credit of profits and loss is $2,917.99, and the surplus of profit for the year, after paying all expenses was $2,924.35. Considering the large amount of business done, the expenses of management were very low. Great credit is due to the Directors and to their able manager, Mr. Phillips, for the satisfactory exhibit which they have been enabled to make.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

Sodus Point Murder.

ONE OF THE MURDERERS MAKES A CONFESSION.

OSWEGO, Jan. 17.—Jasper Newport has confessed the murder of Hall, clearing his brother Richard and implicating a colored man named Williams, a strolling banjo player. The following is Jasper Newport's statement of the horrible crime:—"Saml. Williams came here last week, on Thursday night. He slept with Jasper Newport, and after they retired proposed that they murder Hall for his money. Newport objected, but after some considerable urging consented. The next night Williams played and sang in the saloons and hotels until about seven o'clock, and then ran about two miles to meet Newport, as agreed upon before. They went to the saloon, entered and said, 'Good evening, Mr. Hall.' He replied pleasantly. He was engaged in washing his hands, with his back toward them and bent over. Williams struck him one blow. He fell and expired with only a gasp. Newport then searched his pockets and secured what money they contained. They made a hurried search for his satchel, which they could not find. Williams then tipped over a kerosene lamp and set the place on fire. As they were going out the club and slipper lay in the way of Newport. He gave them a kick which sent them out on the ice. These, together with his mittens, which he pulled off as he entered, left the tell-tale marks that have served to clear up the horrible affair. As they went out Williams locked the door and started. After they had left the building Williams noticed he still had the key in his hand, and exclaimed 'Hell, I don't want this,' threw it on the ice. They then went to the carriage and drove here. So quick was it all done that some were willing to swear that Williams had not gone at all. Newport informed Sheriff Glen where he had concealed his part of the money at Sentell's, and the Sheriff now has it. Williams was arrested in Auburn on Saturday with a large sum of money in his possession. The Sheriff will not say how much money he recovered or what they secured.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

Agricultural Societies.

Mr. St. Charles, seconded by Mr. Peck, moved that the report be received and adopted.—Carried.

The Chairman said that in the course of the three years during which he had occupied the position of President of the Society, he had done his best to perform his duty, but he had had many difficulties to contend with. These difficulties had not altogether been done away with though they had been mitigated by good financial management. He thought it would be a standing disgrace to the farmers of West Hastings to allow the Agricultural Grounds to pass out of the control of the Society. The farmers of this riding were, he thought, too indifferent in this matter. Notwithstanding complaints which he had heard, he affirmed that the last exhibition under the auspices of the Society was a creditable one. He spoke in praise of the Directors with whom he had been associated.

The Secretary read a communication from the Secretary of the Agricultural and Arts Association stating that it would be the duty of the Society to elect a delegate to a meeting of delegates of Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the electoral Divisions for the purpose of electing members of the Council.

Also a communication from the Secretary of the Agricultural and Arts Association, asking the co-operation of the Society in the various schemes to be put into operation by the Association, and giving a detailed statement of the terms and conditions of prize competition for farms, essays, &c., to be instituted by the Association.

Also, a copy of the prospectus of the British American Shorthorn Association, giving a list of officers, &c., and defining the object of the Association.

The report of the Horticultural Association was presented.

Mr. R. S. Patterson rose to nominate Mr. Faltis Rose as President of the Society for the ensuing year. He spoke highly of Mr. Rose's services in the interests of the Society during the years in which he had filled that position.

Mr. Jas. Brown, M. P., seconded the nomination.

The Chairman said there were many members of the Board who were quite as deserving of the honor of the Presidency as he, and he thought it was now time for him to retire and allow some good man to take his place. He nominated Mr. John Harry.

Mr. B. Gilbert seconded the nomination.

Mr. Harry refused to allow his name to be brought forward.

Mr. St. Charles nominated Mr. R. S. Patterson as 1st Vice-President. The nomination was seconded by Jas. Brown, M. P.

Mr. R. S. Patterson nominated Mr. John Harry.

Mr. Harry declined the nomination.

Mr. S. P. Knight nominated Mr. A. B. Mallory.

Mr. Ostrom nominated Mr. W. R. Perry for 2nd Vice-President.

The following members were nominated for Directors: D. R. Ketcheson, S. P. Knight, Chas. R. Ostrom, Jas. St. Charles, Jas. Bird, Jas Brown, M.P., John Harry, Francis Peck, Jno. Graham, Geo. Purdy, L. Massey, John McMullen, Albert Thrasher, Jacob Wood, W. Crouter, J. H. Peck, W. Davis, Francis Peck, W. Davis, J. A. Chisholm.

Mr. Mallory declined to run for 1st Vice-President.

Messrs. Jas. Brown and A. Thrasher declined to run for Directors.

Mr. Rose was then declared President, Mr. Patterson 1st Vice-President, and Mr. W. R. Perry 2nd Vice-President.

The Association then proceeded to ballot for Directors.

The ballots having been cast, the scrutineers retired to examine them.

Whilst they were so engaged the President announced his readiness to receive nominations for delegates to the meeting of delegates for No. 4 Division, to elect a delegate to the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association.

Jas. Brown, M.P. nominated Mr. R. S. Patterson.

No other nominations being made, Mr. Patterson was declared elected.

Messrs. Jas. A. Conger and A. B. Mallory were re-appointed Auditors for the ensuing year.

The scrutineers returned and reported the following as the result of the ballot: Those elected Directors were—John Harry, Jas. St. Charles, Jas. Bird, Wm. Davis, J. H. Peck, C. R. Ostrom, Levi Massey, John Graham. A tie between Geo. R. Purdy and Jacob Wood necessitated a fresh ballot between those parties for the ninth Director. It resulted in the election of Mr. Purdy.

The President announced that the first Board meeting would be held on the last Saturday in the month.

The meeting then adjourned.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

MORNING DESPATCHES

EUROPEAN.

TRIAL OF NIHILISTS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 19.—The trial of Sankawski and Melnckaff, for attempting to kill Gen. Tcherevine, commenced on Tuesday with closed doors before the Council of War. The evidence confirms the belief that the accused had no relations with the revolutionary party.

SPANISH PILGRIMAGE TO ROME.

MADRID, Jan. 19.—It is announced that the Pope will not receive the Spanish pilgrimage if it assumes the character of a political demonstration. The pilgrims will number twenty thousand, and will be led by the principal prelates.

AMERICAN.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Tribune says that the proceedings in the House during the last two days have served to convince a great many Republican members that while Robeson is a man of eminent ability in many respects, he will never make a successful parliamentary leader.

Scoville's extraordinary speech yesterday was heard with general surprise. Reed and Dr. McFarland plainly showed dissatisfaction with it. As Guiteau passed out for the noon recess, he said to Reed with a laugh: "I am glad he gave those fellows a rap. Perhaps it will make them show where they stand." There was a general feeling in the court that Scoville had put a powerful weapon in the hands of Porter, which he will not fail to use when he closes the case.

The Times says it is expected that the bill granting Hunt, of the Supreme Court, permission to retire, will be passed in the Senate this week.

The Herald says that the census of 1881 will make the most complete exhibit ever made by any census in any country. It required fifty times the preliminary work of that of 1870. It is the first census ever taken in this country in which the defendant was enabled by law to comply with the revised returns in all census ramifications. It embraced many important enquiries never before touched upon. In 1870 there were only six to seven thousand enumerators, in 1880 about thirty-two thousand. Since October 1880, 272 bulletins have been issued, covering nearly every branch of the census work.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Arrived the Gellert from Hamburg; Grace from London; Wisconsin from Liverpool.

FLOOD AT NASHVILLE.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 19.—The flood reached its height last evening. Nearly all the principal streets were covered with water, the cars on three street railways were stopped, and the city was surrounded by water on three sides. Efforts are being made to succor those driven out of their homes by back water. Many persons are suffering for want of shelter and provisions. It is estimated 1,500 persons were forced to abandon their homes and more than 1,000 houses are under water. Dwelling houses and barns are continually passing down the river. As far as can be ascertained, no one has been drowned. Immense damage has been done to farm crops and lumber further down the river.

RIVALRY AND MURDER.

DOVER, Del., Jan. 19.—Leve Scott, a leading exhorter in the Free Gospel Church, and Ephraim Dill, a married man, have been paying attention to Ann Clymes, separated from her husband, and living near the Maryland line. Dill finding Scott at the woman's house the other night, beat him severely. Scott afterwards fatally shot Dill.

TERRIBLY HURT BY A BLAST.

READING, Pa., Jan. 19.—Three men were terribly injured by a premature blast in a stone quarry yesterday. Two had both eyes blown out

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LAND CASES IN IRELAND.

BELFAST, Jan. 19.—Commissioners O'Hagan, Little and Vernon yesterday delivered judgment in the first appeal from the decisions of the Assistant Commissioners, who reduced a tenant's improved fixed rent case from £36 10s. to £30. The question was whether the rent should be varied. The Commissioners, Vernon dissenting, affirmed the decision of the Assistant Commissioners. Great importance was attached to the judgment, which settles the point in the Land Act known as Healy's clause. The case will be carried to the Court of Appeals.

HOTEL BURNED—ONE LIFE LOST.

MONTCLAIR, N.J., Jan. 19.—Scharferberg's hotel was burned this morning, loss $5,000. All the occupants on the second story escaped by jumping, one man being severely injured. It is thought that one of the servant girls perished in the flames.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Arrived the Utopia.

U.S SCOUTS ARRESTED IN MEXICO.

SANTAFE, Jan. 19.—Lieut. McDonald and 20 men while scouting for Apaches crossed the boundry into Chistutia and were arrested by Mexican authorities. The facts have been reported to the War Department.

FAILURES IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—There were two failures, Lyons and Bourse, yesterday. Aggregate liabilities £160,000.

FATAL DUEL ABOUT A WOMAN.

CORNING, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Robinson and Balfie, negroes, quarrelled about a woman and fought a duel with pistols. Each fired two shots. Balfie was untouched; Robinson was fatally wounded.

MURDERERS LYNCHED.

SEATTLE, Wash'n Ter'y, Jan. 19.—Jas. Sullivan and Wm. Howard, who murdered Geo. Reynolds, were taken from the officers in the court by a committee of safety, and hanged. A crowd then broke into the jail and hanged Benj. Payne, who murdered a policeman.

CIGAR MAKERS FAILED.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 19.—Hassebeirsach & Co., cigar manufacturers, have assigned; liabilities $150,000.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

W. S. MUIR, M. D.,
C. M., L.R.S P. and L.R.C.S., Ed.,
Late House Surgeon P.&C. Hospital.

P. S.—I have been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

W. S. M.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL) An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT. HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease. Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'She has met her children again in their heavenly mansions,' whispered Tudor, gently, to soothe these troubled memories.

'Yes, undoubtedly, as her faith has taught her to hope and expect. It was in the autumn of our ninth year on the frontier, and I had risen by slow promotions to the rank of captain, which I had held about two years, when I was detached from my old regiment and ordered to take command of Fort Refuge, in the northwest part of Washington Territory.'

'My dear father,' interrupted the young man, 'you have now brought your personal history down to a point from which I can remember everything of importance that passed under my own eyes.'

'Very well, Tudor. Do you remember our journey that severe winter?'

'I should think so. It is the first very distinct memory that I have. Our life at Fort Protection was so monotonous that its picture hangs on the walls of my memory, a mere haze of forts, cypress swamps, wigwams, Indians, soldiers, and venomous reptiles. But that long march from California to Washington Territory! I remember that we suffered from cold, and that the waggons were often blockaded by snow. I remember that at last, when we reached Fort Storms, the buildings were half buried in snow. And even to this day my ideas of the Arctic regions are based upon my memory of that winter in Washington Territory.'

'Ah, yes! It was during that terrible winter in that terrible climate your mother's health broke down. Our surgeon declared that unless she should be taken to a warmer climate she must soon and surely die. Then, for the first time in my nine years of hard service, I applied for leave of absence, and obtained it. Do you remember our journey across the Rocky Mountains?'

'Perfectly. We set out in March. It was a harder journey than the one in the autumn. We were more frequently blockaded with snow. We melted some of it to get water for our horses and mules, and for our own tea and coffee as well.'

'Yes, it was a hard journey as well as a long one for her! It was in the latter part of April that we reached this place, her old home, where we received the warmest of warm welcomes from the old servants who had kept the house in order during our long absence, and from old friends and neighbors who flocked to see her. The country was looking beautiful in that last week in April. All the fruit trees and bushes were in full blossom, very refreshing to see after our wintry journey.'

'I remember my delight to be at home, and how much better she grew in her dear native air. She used to take me out with her in her pony carriage. That month of May which followed our arrival was the pleasantest reminisence of my boyhood.'

'But it was short. Her improvement was deceptive. One happy month in her childhood's home and then a fatal relapse, a rapid decline, and an easy departure!'

'I remember! I remember!' murmured the young man, in a broken voice.

'You had been the darling of my soul, her only surviving child. You had shown symptoms of the same hereditary malady which had been so fatal to herself and to both her parents. In her anxiety for your future she made me promise to resign from the army and to turn my whole attention to agricultural life, and to the training and education of our son.'

'And when her love for me thus consigned me to your charge, her love for you, sir, inspired her with many a serious talk to me. She made me promise that my very first consideration, after my duty to our Lord, should always be my duty to you. That your will should always be my law. I hope that I have kept my promise, sir!'

'You have! You have, Tudor! up to this present day. And I have kept mine. Immediately after my wife's funeral, I resigned from the army—thinking, indeed, that my nine years of very hard service and great sacrifice had entitled me to release. Then, to get up your strength, I took you to a small, quiet place on the coast of New Jersey. And there that sacred debt was incurred which you can only cancel by the gift of yourself!'

'Ah! yes! tell me how that was done.'

'We had been at the Look-Out House on the beach for some weeks. It was a blazing hot day near the last of July—the hottest day of the whole season. Everybody was indoors, keeping in the shade. I was lounging in the reading room, the coolest room in the hotel, when I missed you. I do not know how long you had been away; but I remember that I had not seen you for an hour. I always dreaded your attraction to the sea. So as soon as I discovered that you were nowhere about the hotel, I hastened down to the sands, and went to the bathing machine we were in the habit of using and where I expected to find you. And now, Tudor, what I am about to tell you, happened all in a minute.'

'Yes, sir.'

'As I neared the spot, I saw a number of people running wildly in the same direction, and I heard outcries, all to the effect that a boy while he was bathing had been drawn down by the under-current and carried out to sea, and was drowning. And at the same instant I saw a young laborer who was at work near by, under the burning sun, tear off his shirt, and all heated and perspiring as he was, strike right and left, cleaving his way through the panic-stricken crowd, fling himself into the sea and swim lustily for the spot where the last glimpse of the drowning boy had been seen! He dived and rose again, bringing the insensible boy to the surface amid the deafening cheers and huzzas of the crowd on the beach! He swam laboriously towards the shore, bearing the insensible body of the lad. As he neared the sands every one saw his failing condition, and two men waded out to meet him. As with the last effort of failing life, he lifted the boy and flung him into the outstretched arms of the men who dexterously caught him, and then the brave fellow sank—sank never to rise again!'

The major, much affected by this reminiscence, covered his face with his hands.

Tudor sighed in sympathy as he inquired:

'How could this have happened that the strong young swimmer went down to death in this way?'

'The brave fellow had been working all day in the hot sun. He was therefore very much over-heated when he threw himself into the water to rescue a child from drowning. It was supposed that he was seized with cramp at the moment he threw the boy to the two men who came out to meet him. And the instant in which he sank he was sucked in by the under-current and whirled out to sea. All this that I have taken so long to tell you happened in a few seconds, as I came up to the beach.'

'Was no effort made to save him?'

'Yes, every possible effort. You may be sure, for one, that my coat was off in an instant, and I was in the sea, swimming to the rescue of the gallant fellow who had saved the life of my boy, and leaving that half drowned boy to the care of the experienced men who had brought him in. Other men, also, fired to enthusiasm by Wyvil's example, plunged into the sea and swam to his rescue, and boats were taken out to watch for his rising, but all in vain. Even when so much time had passed that all hope of saving his life was gone, we did not, could not leave the spot, but continued on the beach, watching, hoping, and trying to recover his body, until night fell and darkness covered the sea.'

'Was his body never found?'

'Not that night. Indeed, all the 'longshoremen told us that it could not be recovered until the tide should turn, when it might be washed ashore. After leaving the beach, I went back to the hotel to look after my son. I found you comfortably sleeping in your own bed, carefully watched over by Nancy and half a roomful of sympathizing women. You seemed to be doing well then. You were saved.'

'But at what a costly price! A hero's life for a child's!' exclaimed the young man.

'And a husband's and a father's life as well, Tudor.'

'A woeful thought!'

TO BE CONTINUED.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

BRILLIANT SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH.—Thousands cured of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and lung diseases by Dr. M. Souvielle's Spirometer, an instrument which conveys medicinal properties direct to the parts affected. These wonderful instruments are used in all first-class hospitals, and prescribed by leading physicians. Full directions for treatment sent letter, by and instruments expressed to any address. It is only since Souvielle's invention that lung diseases are no longer feared until their very last stage. Write for particulars to M. Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestiible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himsel cheaply, privately and radically.

☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Make-Rooms in Cheese Factories.

Now that cheese factories are not in operation it is a good time to overhaul them generally, and make repairs, if there is any occasion. There are few factories which do not get out of order, more or less, in the course of a season's use. The make-rooms, in particular, generally keep in order but a short time. The constant wetting and drying of the floors soon rots them away and also the timbers that support them. The alternate shrinking and swelling of the flooring opens cracks and crevices into which whey enters and remains till it sours and decays, and fills the room with its vitiating odors. In most factories this becomes a source of constant contamination to the air of the factory. There are but few factories in which a person accustomed to breathe the pure out-of-door air, will not, upon entering the make-room, at once detect the peculiar smell of sour and decaying whey, but which the maker, from being daily in it, fails to appreciate till it becomes extreme.

The development of such odors in a factory are objectionable first, on the score of health, and second, because more or less of them are taken into the cheese to its injury. Milk, before it is made into cheese, is a powerful absorbent of every odor which comes in contact with it, and moist and warm curd is but little inferior to milk in the readiness with which it takes in and retains any offensive or foreign smell.

The cheese, after it has been pressed, and bandaged and greased, is less receptive of odors, so much so that many have denied that cheese, after pressing, takes in any odors at all. But this is a mistake. Cheese only differs from milk and curd in the degree of its absorptive power. I saw a good demonstration of this in Crawford county, Pennsylvania, in the summer of 1879. A factory was built some forty or fifty rods from the site of an old tannery, from the scent of which the factory was protected by a ridge of high ground and the intervention of adjacent buildings. In hot weather, cheese was cured in the second story with the windows open. In one corner of the room the cheese became affected with a peculiar taste and smell, which grew more intense till they were cured and sent off. When they were out of the way others were put in their places, which became affected in the same way as often as the change was made. The fact became a source of annoyance for which neither the maker nor proprietor of the factory could account. When examined by an expert the smell peculiar to the decomposing animal matter about the old tannery was detected in the cheese, and an inspection of the situation showed that one corner of the curing room—the one in which the affected cheese lay—projected enough beyond the other buildings to allow the wind, when in the right direction, to blow obliquely into the extreme window upon one side, and pass out at the nearest window in the adjacent end. By passing over the cheese in that corner of the room they had absorbed the foul odors it was sweeping away from the putrifying debris on the tanyard. Closing the windows abated the annoyance.

Upon closing my factory one fall, I put some cheeses into a room in a cellar to finish curing, and left them in boxes with the covers off. The room was done off for a milk room, but at that season was used for other purposes, and the door was frequently opened. It was not long before the cheese, though nearly cured, tasted distinctly of the cabbage and turnips stored in the other part of the cellar. I have, upon several occasions, found cheese, after being placed in the curing-room, to become sensibly affected by the too near proximity of a hog-yard, or a cess-pool, or other cause of stench, so that I know positively, that odors of a foul atmosphere are quite readily taken up by cheese even when well matured.

No cheese maker need fancy his cheese secure from the effects of foul air in a make-room, though he himself, from being constantly in it, may not be annoyed by its presence. It will, most assuredly, be taken up by the milk while it stands in the room, and by the curd while it is maturing, and afterwards by the cheese if it is within reach. When once taken into a cheese it is there to stay. Time and exposure to pure air will, it is true, gradually reduce the intensity of the effect, but it is never wholly obliterated.

Evidence of the tenacity with which foreign odors hang to the cheese when once imbibed, was well developed at Philadelphia, during the Centennial. While examining cheese upon that occasion, we found several exhibits which had brought with them foreign odors taken in during manufacture and curing, so strong as to injure them materially, and they were marked down several degrees in consequence. In an otherwise very fine exhibit from New York—one of the very best from that State—honors were lost which might have been carried off but for a strong, offensive smell of sour and putrifying whey which it had taken in and brought along with it from a nasty make-room. In every such case, whether the odor came from near-by pig-pen, or from a carrion, or from an unusually sour and filthy factory, the decision of the judges was verified by the personal knowledge of the superintendents who had charge of the respective exhibits.

Thus it is clear that cheese is materially modified by the condition of the atmosphere of the factory in which it was made, and hence it behooves those who would secure fine and clear-flavored cheese to see to it that the air of the factories is pure and sweet.

There is no source of atmospheric contamination so common as defective floors in the make-rooms. Portions of them rot away quickly, or become so soft and spongy as to soak full of whey, which soon decomposes and befouls the air. Often they are, in the first place, made of wood so porous and open-grained as to become whey-soaked while they are sound. The floors of make-rooms should be made of hard or close-grained wood. Maple makes one of the best floors. Spruce and the heart of pine are also good. But whatever the wood, it should be straight-grained, so that there shall be no cross-grained spots to rough up by scrubbing and become receptacles for holding whey.

The trouble with the floors of make-rooms is often aggravated by their being laid on a dead level. They ought to be inclined from two opposite sides toward a line near the end of the vats at which the whey is drawn on, so that whatever liquid falls upon the floor will centre toward that line. Under this line of lowest depression, and beneath the floor, should be a tight gutter to receive the waste through holes in the floor along that line. The part of the flooring covering the gutter should be moveable, so as to be easily taken up to make the gutter accessible for scrubbing and scalding. Otherwise it will be liable to become foul and offensive. With a floor thus arranged and made of good material, and perfectly tight, and well set up from the ground, so that air can circulate freely under it to keep everything about dry and sweet, the whey being conducted to a receptacle at a safe distance—30 or 40 rods—from the factory, there need be no difficulty in keeping the make-room in a good and wholesome condition. If this could be accomplished in every factory it would wipe out some of the most serious obstacles in the way of improving factory cheese. It was long ago written that cleanliness is next to godliness. It is now becoming very apparent that pure air is an essential element in the means of preservation for cheese makers.—PROF. L. B. ARNOLD, in Farmers' Advocate.

Ensilage in Chenango County.

EDS. COUNTRY GENTLEMAN—During last summer I built a silo in the bay of a basement barn, 10½ by 22 feet clear, and 16 feet in depth. One side and the ends were of stone up to the sills of barn 8 feet, plastered with cement inside; the remainder was made of inch pine boards, two thicknesses, nailed to 2 by 10 inches studding, with tarred paper between to make it air tight. The inside course was of planed and matched boards. I should match both courses if building another of wood. I cemented the bottom two courses. I put in three acres of corn on the 2d and 3d of September; the corn being State 8-rowed yellow, Stowell's Evergreen and Western white, mixed when put in, making a very rich fodder. It was about eleven feet in depth when all in. I covered it with inch pine boards, planed and matched, in sections 3½ feet wide, letting cleats extend out so as to stiffen the joints of the sections. I covered this with 2-inch planks, and upward of twenty tons of stone. It settled to 8 feet in depth, and weighs out 50 pounds to the solid foot. I think I did not trample it enough. It was put in quite rapidly, taking two men to handle and feed the corn at the cutter.

It was a poor season for corn, and I had only half to two-thirds of a crop. The seed did not come good. The silo test makes about 15 tons to the acre. I am confident that I can grow 25 to 30 tons in a good season, of large white southern corn, on the same land. Some stalks of western corn were 12½ feet high, measured after cut up in the field. We were two days putting it in,—using a No. 2 Cummings cutter, which is too light for the rapid work necessary to save expense. About a foot in the bottom was cut about 1 inch in length, the remainder one-half inch. Half an acre of the State corn was heavily eared and glazed. We cut by the watch, a load of 1,500 pounds (estimated) in six minutes; 22 loads in the forenoon and 17 in the afternoon of the same day. The cutter troubled us somewhat, and the barn was so situated that we had considerable delay between loads. With silo and barn and machinery properly arranged, I am satisfied that I can, with the same help, put in 40 tons in one day. I used a two-horse railway tread power, and two teams to draw from the field. The corn was in drills, cut up with corn knives, and laid in gavels suitable for handling to advantage. I employed 12 to 13 men, all being done at an expense of about $20 per day.

The cost of the silo and putting in the corn was about $3 per ton, exclusive of cost of raising the corn, counting nothing for land and manure used. It is worth about $3 per ton as it now stands in the silo, as I have satisfied myself by tests in feeding. It came out bright, with strong alcoholic odor and quite acid. It was bright and sound next to the board cover in all parts of the silo. I have been feeding four weeks sixty pounds per day each to the cows at two feeds of 30 pounds morning and night, with two quarts of ground oats and corn meal per day, with dried cornstalks or hay for noon fed. The milk increased about one-fourth in quantity after I commenced feeding with ensilage. It takes 22½ pounds of milk to make one pound of butter as ascertained by churning separately the cream from 54 pounds of milk. The butter is fine in appearance. You can judge as to quality as I send you a small sample.

The cows are eager for this food, and if we have the stable doors open the men have to fight them to keep them out of the stable. They lick out the mangers as though it were salt. I had some doubts at first as to how the cattle would thrive on it. But now their coats shine; they are taking on flesh and kick up their heels and chase each other about the lot as though they feel well. I shall if possible, ensilage 200 tons the following summer. Having in view a winter dairy I intend to ensilage in June next five acres of rye which was sowed last fall for soiling. My calves, six in number, seem to be as fond of it as the cows, eating it greedily from the first, and doing well on it. The ensilage is much more acid than I anticipated. Still, if the cows do well on it where is the harm? The sample of butter sent by express had no coloring other than the food gives.—C. S. L.—Afton, N. Y.

The butter was duly received, and found to be of excellent quality.—EDS.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 19.

"Slow Tories."

Our local contemporary, with that lack of discretion which causes it to discuss subjects as to which its knowledge is imperfect or altogether lacking, in a recent issue made the following slashing attack on the Government, under the above caption:

"Six months have passed since the close of the last fiscal year and still the Trade and Navigation Returns have not been published. This dilatoriness is annoying and injurious to the public interests. There can be no reasonable excuse for it. Departmental work must be in a backward and neglected state when matters of so much interest to the general public are delayed months beyond the time to which their contents apply."

The matter escaped our attention, but the Ottawa Citizen makes the following trenchant reply:—"Will the captious organ kindly inform us when, during the regime of its political friends, the Trade and Navigation Returns were given in detail to the country before they were laid before Parliament? We are afraid our contemporary's zeal in the cause of Grittism sometimes gets the better of its judgment. It is not the practice to publish such returns until Parliament becomes cognizant of them. Therefore the Ontario's effort to make a point against the Customs Department is futile. We can assure the organ, which seems to have a particular weakness for assailing the present Minister of Customs, that the departmental work is neither in a "backward" nor a neglected state. We hope when Parliament meets it will be as ready to commend the Minister of Customs for his promptness in laying his returns on the table of the House of Commons, as it has been in implying that the returns it refers to are incomplete. That, however, is more than we have a right to expect. The Department of Customs was never more efficiently managed than it is at present."

Editorial Brevities.

The Grits who are howling at the suggestion of the Ontario Government, over the alleged outrage perpetrated upon this Province in the matter of the boundary award, may be surprised to learn that the Globe had the following to say on the subject in 1876:

"It is quite probable that when the western boundaries of Ontario shall have been settled, the new territory, or a large portion of it, will be incorporated with Manitoba. That province is ridiculously small, and is unnaturally limited on all three sides."

This means that Mr. Mackenzie's Government—who, be it remembered, had refused to ask Parliament to legislate upon the award—intended to override the award of the Commissioners, and fix the western boundary of Ontario much to the eastward of the Commissioners' line. The present Government, against whose course such an outcry has been raised, have simply referred Ontario and Manitoba to the Privy Council of Great Britain for the determination of their respective claims. As in 1876 no exception was taken by the Grits to the Globe's foreshadowing of Mr. Mackenzie Government's policy, it is easy to determine the character of the present agitation.

The Montreal Star observes that the revenue derived from the public works, including railways, during last December was $182,676.57, as compared with $59,714.84 during the preceding December—an increase of over two hundred per cent.! As the canals, locks, slides, &c., were all closed in December, it is obvious that this enhanced revenue must have been chiefly derived from the Intercolonial Railway, and that it is, in this way, an incontrovertible evidence of the growth of trade—of the golden bond of commerce—between the Upper and Lower Provinces of the Dominion, and one of the very things which the N. P. was intended to promote.

The province of New Brunswick now has within sixteen miles of 1,000 miles of railway in operation, said to be a greater mileage, in proportion to population, than that of any other province, state, or country. New Brunswick has more miles of road than Portugal, Denmark, or Norway, and nearly as many as Holland, and more than either New Hampshire, Connecticut, or Vermont. There are eleven lines of road in the province, the Chatham Branch, nine miles in length, being the shortest, and the Intercolonial, 343 miles, the longest.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied, "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sec; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir; it is really what many have called it the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

Marmora Correspondence.

MARMORA, Jan. 19.

Mr. J. H. Wiley has been re-engaged as Teacher for the present year in the Faraday Union School.

Messrs. McIntyre and Orr have been engaged as Head master and first assistant Teacher, respectively, in the village school.

S. S. No 9 has suffered a great loss by the departure of Mr. Jas. Shannon for Brantford, where he enters upon his studies for the medical profession. It is a fact much to be regretted that so many successful teachers leave the profession for something else.

Messrs. J. Neil & Bros. have obtained a contract from Messrs. H. B. Rathbun & Son to get out a large quantity of ties and cedar, which they are depositing on Beaver Creek. This kind of business seems very popular as well as profitable this winter, as no less than seven different parties are engaged in it in different parts of the Township.

A tea meeting is to be held in the Wiley section on the 27th inst. for the benefit of the Methodist Church circuit fund.

Mr. W. Hilton has been unanimously re-elected as President of the Marmora Cheese Factory.

Mr. Thos. Pearce is this winter carrying on extensive lumbering operations near those two picturesque little lakes lying one on each side of the road leading towards Lake Township.

Barley is still being drawn out to Madoc. Last prices were 75c per bush.

Mr. Jas. Wiggins, long a resident of Beaver Creek section, has purchased, homesteaded and pre-empted 640 acres near Brandon, N. W. T., for which he has already been offered $5 per acre.

Mr. S. C. Johns, also long a resident here, has lately been seriously ill in Nelsonville, Manitoba, but is now recovering.

Mission Work in Japan.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS FROM THE REV. G. M. MEACHAM, FORMERLY OF NAPANEE, WRITING TO FRIENDS HERE.

(From the Whig, Jan 19th.)

Among the untiring workers in Japan in the cause of Canada Methodism is Rev. G. M. Meacham, son of the Postmaster of Belleville, who, previous to his appointment as a missionary, was an acceptable preacher in the Methodist Church at Napanee and Montreal. He is a well known minister, and has many friends in this city, Mr. B. M. Britton being a college mate. Mr. J. E. Clarke has permitted us to cull a few leading points from a letter just received. The letter was dated at Tokio on Dec. 24th, and on the 25th was at Yokohama. Early in January it reached San Francisco, and arrived in Kingston a day or two ago. "We live," says Mr. Meacham, "amidst missionaries. Our home is one of the suburbs of Tokio. The houses are mostly foreign built, servants' houses excepted. You would think, were you approaching it, that it is a nice little watering place, for our cottage is by the sea, the hamlet of 30 or 40 decent and handsome houses. Missionaries of different organizations live together in loving fellowship, having learned what no man learned perfectly at home, the importance of cultivating the love and unity of Christians, despite the human barrier set up between us. We are surrounded by a host of enemies, or rather hosts of them, and lately, through a hitch in the commercial dealings between foreigners and the natives, the feeling against all things foreign has become greatly intensified, and they who fought against us have tried to unite under a common barrier." Mr. Meacham reports that he recently attended a Church opening, at which he was the only foreigner. Six persons addressed the meeting, which lasted from 6.30 p. m. till 10.15 p. m. It was much impressed upon the Japanese that the religion which was presented to them was not a Western religion, that the foreigners did not originate it, but that it was an Asiatic religion. The orator of the evening enlarged upon this subject. One party would drive out the missionaries by force, another party would make it impossible for them to live, and others were indifferent. The native Church members and ministers of all denominations were longing for the full control of their own cause in Japan, removing all foreigners. This will probably develop the feeling of self support, which will generally be hailed with gladness. The Japanese are very jealous of foreign dictation. Last September four men were ordained to the ministry in the Methodist Church of Canada. They are excellent men, and two are powerful. Rev. Mr. Meacham delivered the ordination sermon, which lasted seventy minutes. The writer acknowledged the power of the press for he says: "I am using the press considerably and hope in this way to speak to a great many whom my voice cannot reach. I have issued a pamphlet which is calculated to do much good. I prove scientifically that there is a great Creator and follow up the argument with a number of deductions bringing home Christianity to their heads and hearts. I have faith to believe God will use it widely for this glory." Mr. Meacham's work is of two sorts. He has been placed at the head of a Theological school. Two denominations are engaged in it. The greater part of his time is engaged in preparing young men for ministry. His other work is preaching.

The three preachers, Messrs. Eby, Meacham and Dr. Macdonald, (who is cousin of Mr. J. E. Clarke) must have a new sermon every three weeks. The sermon has first to be written in English, and then translated into Japanese. "Little by little we are laying foundations which some day will appear to the glory of Him who designed the Church of the future." Mrs. Meacham's health was poorly last fall, but in answer to prayer she recovered, and is moderately well now. Mr. Meacham enjoys the mission work and hopes to be spared to be there for many years. On the 24th of December Rev. Mr. Eby's house, next to that of Mr. Meacham, was burned to the ground. This is the third time that Mr. Meacham and family have narrowly escaped from the same calamity.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 19.

The debate on the address was resumed by Mr. Pardee (Lambton), who said that after three days' debate not one charge had been made against the Government. The Opposition and not the Government had been on the defence. It was not contended that the Imperial powers had any such veto power as was claimed by the Opposition for the Dominion authorities, and Sir John Macdonald said the relation of the Dominion to the Provinces were the same as those of Imperial authorities towards the Dominion. He placed more importance on the constitutional rights of Ontario than on the territory sought to be taken away from the Province, valuable as it was. If the Dominion authorities had wished to deal fairly by Ontario, they would have given them the territory on which they had spent so much money. If the members from Ontario stood together, both the boundary and veto questions would be settled satisfactorily for the Province.

Mr. Creighton (North Grey), said that if the veto power was intended to be applied only to illegal or unconstitutional laws, there would be no need for it, as the courts could be applied to and had already decided against provincial acts. The boundary award not having been confirmed was so much waste paper. The Government had not done anything to settle the question. It ought to be settled by the Privy Council. The Government were dealing with this question in order to make political capital in the Dominion elections.

Mr. Ross, (West Huron), said if the final decision in the Mercer escheat case were in favor of the Dominion, the way in which the money had been expended would be recognized as unexceptionable and would be confirmed. The conduct of the Dominion in regard to the boundary award was cowardly and unfair and hostile. Our allegiance here was first due to the province and next to the Dominion.

Mr. Wigle (South Essex) said it was the Conservatives who stood up for the rights of the people. The policy of the Government was to centralize power in themselves. One clause should have been added to the address, directing the assessors to make as many votes as possible, for it was on the lists of this year that the general election would take place.

Mr. Graham, (East Lambton) said the provincial exhibition had outlived its usefulness, towns were refusing it, petitions against it were coming from the County Councils. Farmers using the markets should pay fees, but should be allowed to sell produce where they like. He was in favor of new Parliament buildings, and of disendowing Upper Canada College and building there.

Mr. Metcalf (Kingston) was of the opinion that the veto power had not been exercised improperly. He had confidence in Sir John Macdonald, and was sure that Ontario would get all that rightly belonged to her.

Dr. McLaughlin moved the adjournment of the debate.

The Voters' Lists.

There is a provision in the Assessment Act (Revised Statutes Ontario, chap. 180, secs. 3 and 16) which requires that every owner of unoccupied land, who is not a resident of the municipality where the property lies, and who desires his name to appear on the assessment roll and voters' list, must give notice in writing, setting forth his full name, place of residence and postoffice address, to the clerk of the municipality on or before the 30th of January in each year, that he owns such land, describing it, and requires his name to be entered on the assessment roll therefor. The clerk then makes up a list of such non-resident owners of unoccupied land and delivers it to the assessor to be placed on the roll. Hitherto, we believe, it has been the practice to re-enter the name each year after it has once been put on the roll without a fresh request; but we have heard of an instance where the other course is being taken. Our friends who are non-resident owners of unoccupied lands should see that they give the proper notice in time, and care should be taken not to allow any manufacturer of Grit votes by assessing non-residents who have omitted to give the required notice.—Ex.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST THE BRITISH IN NEPAUL DISCOVERED.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 19.—A conspiracy in Nepaul against British residents has been discovered. Eighty notables have been arrested, and 21 military officers summarily executed.

THE MONTREAL MURDER CASE.—The Witness of the 19th says: "The preliminary examination into the case of the two McKevenues and Livernois, charged with the murder of Emma Hamilton, was to have taken place yesterday afternoon, but was again postponed. It now appears that as far back as April last the woman Hilliard made a statement to the police about this case, in which she implicated three men in the murder—but not one of them was one of the three now accused by her of that crime. The Magistrate was prepared to begin an investigation, and the men in question were to have been arrested, but the whole affair dropped to the ground when it was found that according to the doctors' evidence and the verdict of the jury the woman had not been murdered at all."

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

SEIZURES OF JEWELERY.—The Mail says: "Extensive seizures of imported jewelery have been made within the last few days in this city, as well as at Kingston, Belleville, London, Hamilton, and Guelph. It appears that for some time past a gang of jewelery smugglers have been operating at various points along the frontier, and their operations might have gone on undetected for an indefinite time had it not been for the action of a Boston dealer, some of whose goods, to the value of twelve thousand dollars, were seized several weeks ago in Montreal. This seized several weeks ago in Montreal. This gentleman, being determined not to be alone in misfortune, gave information as to the existence and doings of the gang, and deposited one thousand dollars with the Minister of Customs as a guarantee of good faith to be forfeited in the event of his failing to prove the correctness of his statements."

Mr. Thibodo is a Kingstonian by birth, and during a long and honorable life has served the public in various capacities—as Inspector of Licenses Collector of Inland Revenue, and Alderman and Chief Engineer at Kingston. In 1837 he was leader of the Kingston Radicals and was imprisoned several times, and in latter life he was a leading Reformer. Mrs. Thibodo is a sister of Dr. Hope, of this city.

A FARMER arrived in town this morning with a load of wood. Instead of going to the market, however, and selling his wood at a fair price, he proceeded to put into operation a trick worth two of that. Driving his team into a yard in rear of an uptown saloon, he proceeded to unload his waggon. The wood was originally piled crosswise on the waggon, but when this shrewd farmer reloaded it he piled it lengthwise, and so manipulated the sticks that he made a load out of half the quantity that he had brought into town. He then drove away and sold his wood, and in a short time came back, made a load out of the remainder, and took it away and sold it for a full load—thus realizing the price of two loads of wood out of one load. And yet the farmers are continually complaining of being swindled and over-reached by the townspeople!

The page in question was found yesterday by the City Clerk and kindly sent to this office. The business which was omitted owing to this little accident was as follows: Ald. Diamond moved in amendment to Ald. Dickson's motion for the appointment of a special Ferry Committee, that the special Committee act in conjunction with the standing Ferry Committee. Ald. Dickson consented to have the names of those members of the Ferry Committee who were not already on the special Committee added to it; and, Ald. Diamond withdrawing his amendment, the original motion was carried. Ald. Frost requested to have his name withdrawn from the Committee, as it was, in his estimation, already too unwieldy.

The Attack on a Slave Dhow.

The Press Association has received from the Admiralty a copy of the official report of the attack on a boat's crew by the slave dhow, and the death of Captain Brownrigg and some of the crew of H. M. S. London. The report is made by Acting-Commander Goodridge, H. M. S. London, Zanzibar, December 7th, and states that Captain Brownrigg left the ship on November 27th in a steam pinnance, with seven men, besides his steward, an interpreter, and a writer, to inspect the boats engaged in the suppression of the slave trade at Pemba Island. On Saturday, 3rd December, when passing through Kokata Gap, a dhow was sighted ahead coming towards a boat flying the French colors. Captain Brownrigg went alongside with the evident intention of examining the ship's papers. He had sent the coxswain forward with the boat-hook to make fast, and took the tiller himself. When close alongside the coxswain saw some eight or ten men crouching in a boat with levelled guns. He shouted to the captain, when the men rose and fired. The coxswain closed with one of the enemy and fell overboard with him. Fifteen or twenty Arabs then boarded the pinnace, and as their first fire killed one man and wounded three others they found little difficulty in driving the rest, who were unarmed, overboard. Captain Brownrigg and the steward were left in the after part of the boat. He seized a rifle at the first volley and fired, knocking an Arab over, but before he could reload three or four rushed aft towards him, Clubbing his rifle he kept them at bay, fighting with great determination. The survivors who were in the water, describe him as fighting like a lion. He knocked two of his assailants over, but was at length cut across the forehead and then on the hands by the long swords of the Arabs. He fought thus over twenty minutes, till shot through the heart, and having received twenty other wounds he fell dead. Sam'l Massey, A.B., was severely wounded, and was supported to the shore by Alfred Yates, a leading seaman, and W. Colliston, ordinary. The remaining stoker and the interpreter swam ashore. John G. Aers having been mortally wounded at the first fire, there only remained the steward, who was lying aft feigning death. The Arabs having sailed away in their dhow, the leading stoker got on board the pinnace, he having been in the water all the time. He got up steam and picked up the men on the beech. They then proceeded to find Lieutenant Henry W. Target, senior officer in charge of the boats at Pemba, who, being 25 miles distant, could not get up in time to capture the dhow. Acting-Commander Goodridge, in a postscript dated December 9, adds that the dhow has been captured and fully recognised, and he learns that eight Arabs implicated have been captured and another shot. One was believed to be the captain of the dhow. Subsequent proceedings will be reported by mail. No papers were found in the dhow, nor anything to verify its nationality.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

Post Mortem Examintions have, in some instances, led to the discovery of the scars of completely healed abscesses or sores upon the lung. This of itself shows that the lung tissue when diseased is susceptible of restoration to a sound and healthy condition. Persons afflicted with lung disease may reasonably hope to recover health by the use of well chosen remedies. Foremost among these is Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, a thoroughly tested and highly accredited specific for coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, spitting of blood and other affections of the Pulmonary irritation is promptly arrested by the Cod Liver Oil, and the hypophosphites, which are among the finest renovants used by physicians, reviving the flagging energies of the debilitated system.

MORNING DESPATCHES
AMERICAN.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Times says that the re-committal report of the Committee on Rules overthrows the project for the enlargement of the House Committees, but is not regarded as finally disposing of the proposed establishment of standing committees on the Isthmus canals and Eads' ship railway.

The Pennsylvania representatives on the Tariff Convention Committee say that the President's questions and remarks led them to understand that he is opposed to the creation of a Tariff Committee, and holds that the Ways and Means Committee can handle the subject without the advice of such a body.

The Sun says: In reference to the alleged swamp land frauds in Florida, it is asserted that after heavy rains, swamp or overflowed lands are found nearly everywhere. What may be high or dry lands to-day may to-morrow be reasonably certified as swamp or overflowed lands, and it might be difficult to establish either for permanent sale.

The Tribune says that Guiteau's counsel expect that Cox will allow him to address the jury after all. The prosecution will probably not oppose Guiteau's speaking. It is understood that several judges of the District Supreme Court, if not a majority, are of the opinion that Guiteau has a right to be heard in person as well as by counsel. The trial has seriously affected the health of almost every person obliged to attend it. The chief reason why the prosecution failed to insist at the outset on gagging Guiteau or his removal from the room was the discovery that if either of these things was done the Court in banc would order a new trial of the case. It is expected that a retraction of the decision that Guiteau should not speak will perhaps be made for a like reason. The case may not go to the jury before Wednesday. Letters received indicate an intense feeling against Guiteau among the inmates of the insane asylums throughout the country.

SETTLING THE RAILWAY WAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The Herald says Commissioner Fisk states that the agreement reached by the representatives of the trunk lines yesterday, must yet be signed by the Presidents of the Grand Trunk and the Baltimore and Erie Companies. He did not doubt it would be ratified. Wm. K. Vanderbilt, who represented the New York Central at the meeting, states that it was arranged to make the rate on east bound grain 20c and provisions 25c, and on west bound freight 45c, It was decided to appoint a commission to settle the question of differential rates.

Arrived, the St. Germain, from Havre.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

'Yes, it was. I could not rest for a moment. After looking at you for a few minutes, I left you again in charge of Nancy, and went out to inquire concerning the family or friends of the young hero, or if he had any. I learned that he was an Englishman, lately arrived in the country with his young wife. That they occupied a small cottage, with a garden, at a village about three miles back from the coast. That they had no relations in this country and none in England that any of their neighbors heard them speak of. That they were members of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, at which many of the seaside visitors attended divine service on Sundays. Lastly, that no one had gone to her to break the news of her awful bereavement.'

'It would have required great nerve to perform that sorrowful duty,' said Tudor Hereward, with a deep sigh.

'Yes! more nerve than I could command at that hour. I therefore went to see the Rev. Mr. Kerr, the Rector of St. Luke's, at his rectory, next to the church. I found him in his study. He had heard of the catastrophe. And when I told him that the widow knew nothing of her terrible loss, and that I feared some injudicious person might give her a dangerous or even fatal shock by telling the dreadful news too suddenly; that I myself would go her, but I was a perfect stranger—Mr. Kerr anticipated the favor I was about to beg of him, by saying that he himself would go to her at once, as she was one of his own flock. Then I begged him to assure her of my profound sorrow for her loss, and my earnest desire to comfort and assist her to the very utmost of my power and ask her permission for me to see her in the morning. The rector promised all I wished, and rang and ordered his gig. It was late when I got back to the hotel. I went to bed, but could not sleep at all. With the earliest dawn of day I was up and out on the beach, where the first news that met me was that the body of the young hero had been thrown up by the sea during the night, and now lay on the beach awaiting the arrival of the coroner, who had been summoned. Some one had covered the body over with a piece of sail-cloth, and the bystanders would have uncovered it for my view, but I turned away; I could not look upon the dead face then. I got back to the hotel by sunrise; saw you still sleeping quietly; gave some directions for your treatment to Nancy; drank a single cup of very strong coffee; engaged a carriage and drove to the rectory; found Mr. Kerr at breakfast and waited until he got through. As soon as he came to me in the study, and heard from me that the body of young Wyvil had been recovered, and that the fishermen would bear it home to the widow as soon as the inquest should be over, he again forestalled my request by offering to go with me to the widow to prepare her against the shock. You know, Tudor, that I was most anxious to be useful to her.'

'Oh, yes, sir! yes!'

'Half an hour after we were seated together in the carriage, bowling rapidly on to Seawood, the village where she lived. During the drive the rector told me how he had communicated to the young widow the news of her awful bereavement. He had found her waiting for her husband's return from his day's work, and wondering what had kept him away so late. But she was not alarmed at his absence, nor the least surprised at the rector's visit, for he had once before made a pastoral call in the evening when he knew that her husband would be home. And even then she received her pastor with an apology for 'Joseph's' absence, saying that she expected him every moment, however.'

'O! it was dreadful!'

'Yes, dreadful, Tudor—dreadful for the kind-hearted rector to have to tell that child-wife the tidings that he told her as tenderly as he could—that her husband would return no more alive,' sighed Major Hereward. And then he remained silent so long that his son inquired:

'And how did she bear the terrible stroke?'

'At first, the rector said, she seemed stunned, and stared stupidly in his face. But when she realized the awful truth she fell into the most violent paroxysms of grief. All his efforts to comfort or to control her were utterly fruitless. He then went out and called in her nearest neighbors, and after doing all that he could in the case he left her in their charge and returned home.'

'Did she rally from that stroke?'

'Yes, temporarily. Not then, however. By the time the rector had finished the account he was giving me the carriage drew up before the widow's cottage. I then asked Mr. Kerr if he had delivered my message to her, and if he had prepared her to expect my visit this morning. He assured me that he had done so as well as he could under the circumstances. Then we entered the cottage—a neat, little, white, framed house of one story, surrounded by a pretty garden. We found the young widow in the prim, little front sitting room, which was half filled with condoling neighbors. The first glance at her showed me a fair young creature, who seemed not twenty years of age, and who was shortly to become a mother. Her violent paroxysms of grief had exhausted her, and she sat in her arm chair, white, faint, dazed—in an utter collapse of despair.'

'And all for my little life!'

'It could not be helped! Mr. Kerr took me up to her and introduced me. I could not speak at first. I could only take the pale hand she silently offered me and hold it tenderly between my own, while Mr. Kerr told her all that I myself would have told, could I have commanded my voice—how the body of her husband had been found at dawn, and how the bearers were bringing it home. And how anxious I was to serve her in any and every way to the utmost extent of my power. She did not seem to care, or even to hear, what the minister said, except when he referred to the coming of the body. Then she lifted herself from the chair, and holding by the arms, bent eagerly forward looking through the door at a little procession that was approaching the house. In another minute the bearers bore the body in at the door, and placed it on its bier in the middle of the room. Tudor, even at this distant time I cannot bear to recall the scene that followed! Give me a little more of that cordial.'

The young man filled a wineglass full of the restorative, and gave it to his father. When the latter had drank it and returned the glass he resumed his narrative:

'That poor little child-widow, so awfully bereaved, so soon to be a mother, had no self-control whatever. At the sight of her husband's remains she fell again into the most violent paroxysms of grief and despair that all our endeavors failed to quiet. She had at length to be carried by the women to her bed in the adjoining room. Then I went up to the bier standing in the middle of the room, to look on the face of him who had saved my child, at the cost of his own life. Some good people at the hotel had seen to it that the form was dressed in a neat suit of clothes, and that the dark curling hair and beard were carefully combed and brushed. How handsome was the still face! How peaceful the whole aspect! In his appearance there was no sign of a violent death—no discoloration, no distortion, as is often the case with the drowned; but a most delicate pallor and a most serene repose. I turned away to leave the house. I left a sum of money in the hands of one of the neighbors for the immediate needs of the young widow, and a message to the effect that I should make her future welfare and that of her coming child my own especial care henceforth. And that I should return to see her very soon. All this was no more than my bounden duty, Tudor.'

'Not any more.'

'I re-entered the carriage with my companion and drove back to the rectory, where Mr. Kerr got out, and thence to the hotel, where I dismissed the carriage. But I must cut short these sad details. I took full charge of the funeral arrangements. Two days later the body of the young hero was conveyed to St. Luke's Cemetery, followed by the largest procession that had ever been seen in Seawood, and there laid in its last low resting-place.'

'And—the young widow?'

TO BE CONTINUED.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister]

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

WHAT CAN IT BE?

He never speaks of love, but oft his eyes
With quiet earnest meaning rest on me,
While a chance meeting seems a glad surprise—
Oh! if it be not love, what can it be?

Sometimes he silent sits, when, if I speak,
The quick response comes low and thrillingly;
He reads my thought instinctive on my cheek.
Oh! if it be not love, what can it be?

Searching my soul, he claims it joy to find
Tastes, feelings, hopes, all with his own agree,
And asks what more heart unto heart can bind—
Oh! if it be not love, what can it be?

Last eve when Maud swept by with queenly air,
The jewels flashing on her forehead free,
"Sweeter," he said, "the wild rose in your hair."
Oh! if it be not love, what can it be?

As by a shining gate, at twilight dim,
I sit and wait until he turns the key.
When will he ope? If 'tis not love with him.
Oh! my sick heart, 'tis life or death with me!

ENTERING IN.

The church was dim and silent
With the hush before the prayer;
Only the solemn trembling
Of the organ stirred the air;
Without, the sweet, still sunshine,
Within, the holy calm,
Where priest and people waited
For the swelling of the psalm.

Slowly the door swung open,
And a little baby girl,
Brown-eyed, with brown hair falling
In many a wavy curl,
With soft cheeks flushing hotly,
Shy glances downward thrown,
And small hands clasped before her,
Stood in the aisle alone.

Stood half abashed, half frightened,
Unknowing where to go,
While, like a wind-rocked flower,
The form swayed to and fro;
And the the changing color fluttered
On the little troubled face,
As from side to side she wavered,
With a mute imploring grace.

It was but for a moment;
What wonder that he smiled,
By such a strange, sweet picture
From holy thoughts beguiled!
When up rose some one softly,
And many an eye grew dim,
As, through the tender silence,
He bore the child with him.

And I—I wonder (losing
The sermon and the prayer)
If when sometime I enter
The "many mansions" fair,
And stand, abashed and drooping,
In the portal's golden glow,
Our God will send an angel,
And show me where to go!

MARGUERITE.

BY HESTER A. BENEDICT.

She made on the upland a picture that never an artist could paint,
Sandaled with sheen of a sunset—crowned with the calm of a Saint.

Her face from the face of her lover turned, touched with a breath from the sea;
Her heart held the words of her lover: "The cup is most bitter to me!"

"'The cup is most bitter?'" she echoed: "I know
it, O tenderest friend;
And the way stretches darkly before you; but you will go straight to the end."

"'To the end, and what then?'"—all the doubt of his soul surging into his tone—
"Missing you, though I journey with angels, I journey forever alone!"

"You'll not miss me?" she said, smiling softly,
her eyes on the opal afar,
Their lights burning steadily, clearly, as once burned the Bethlehem Star.

And all her poor, pitiful pallor, that told its own story of strife,
Flushing warmly as if for an instant some seraph
had kissed it to life.

"Dear friend, you'll not miss me—since fetters were fashion'd for only the clay—
Since love is immortal as God is—since we two are wedded for aye.

"You go where the night is, and with you a sorrow more deathful than death:
But you follow the white feet of Duty—your hand in the white hand of Faith.

"And you will bear bravely the tempest of ago-
nies sharper than hail,
Nor shrink from the sands of the desert—nor falter where others would fail.

"For you are my hero, beloved, my king among cowards of men—
And the time is not long to the sunrise; wait, work, and be brave until then."

"You walk with the angels, my darling—you echo their music," he said,
A smile on his lips, such as lingers sometimes on the face of the dead.

And so, on the upland, they parted: dim shadows stole into the skies;
Only the chill of her fingers answered the prayer of her eyes.

TABERNACLE SERMONS.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

Gambling in Stocks.

"As the shepherd taketh out of the mouth of the lion two legs, or a piece of an ear; so shall the children of Israel be taken out that dwell in Samaria."—Amos iii., 12.

A shepherd goes out to look after his flock, and lo! a lion has devoured it. He smites the lion with his crook, and it drops from its mouth the fragments of a sheep's ear and leg. So thoroughly has the lion done his work that these fragments are all that is left. So, says Amos, the children of Israel shall be destroyed by their enemies. But there is a more devouring lion abroad in our day devouring Lord's sheep. It is the lion of stock gambling. It has taken down sometimes body, mind and soul, while in other cases there are only fragments left. It is the business of every shepherd to smite back that cruel and bloodthirsty lion, and if there be nothing more than an ear left, to address that. There has not been during my memory any time when more money and morals were being devoured by stock-gambling than now. There have been wilder freshets and louder explosions, but the very stillness of the present movement makes the greater peril. Satan is on a still hunt for the fortunes and the souls of the people. Never through the mails and through newspaper advertisements have there been so many men willing to take trust funds and swamp them in Wall street, and never have there been so many men in so short space of time entrapped and destroyed. Our cities are swarming with bogus bankers and brokers. Widows and orphans, seamstresses and clerks on small salaries, and even clergymen put in their all and take out nothing. The land is flooded with adroit circulars warning people against infamous schemes, but practically saying: "Now, here is an enterprise conducted on righteous principles. Here is a combination scheme by which you can get the advantage of the banding together of wise men, when if you went in on your own account you might be swindled. Come with us and we will do you good." Accompanying this circular is a printed receipt of men who pretend to have received a thousand dollars for the two hundred dollars they invested. This receipt goes abroad among the people. They say: "If it was safe for that man to invest, then it is safe for me to invest." Forthwith the dupe takes his money out of the savings bank and puts it into the combination scheme, and he gets in return a beautiful certificate of stock, so beautiful and ornate it is looks almost like a marriage certificate. Indeed, the man thinks it is sure evidence that he is married at last to good fortune. It reads:

"For value received, this is to certify that ——is the holder of —— shares in a combination formed to operate in stocks or other securities. Statements of transactions will be mailed to shareholders weekly, and at the expiration of one month from date this combination will be closed and profits divided pro rata among shareholders in the proportion that the number of shares held by each one shall bear to the whole original capital to be withdrawn until the close of the combination."

The dupe waits for the coming of the letter at the postoffice which is to announce his grand success. Meanwhile he goes down to look at more expensive furniture, walks out to see a grand house that he may be called upon to occupy, dreams day and night about the great fortunes of Jerome and Keene, and Vanderbilt, wonders if he will be ruined by sudden success as a great many men have been driven into dissipation. The letter arrives at the postoffice. He takes it. He is so nervous and excited he can hardly open it. Having opened it he tries to read upside down. He adjusts it. At last he reads. "Ah!" he says, "just as I expected: notification that the investment has yielded 1 per cent. the first month." He goes to look at more expensive furniture, takes another walk around that grand house which he may be called upon to occupy. The news is too good to keep. He tells it to his neighbors, and they rush in and make similar investment. Another letter at the postoffice. He is not quite so excited now, for he has something of calmness in assured success. He opens it, and reads:

"By an unfortunate turn of the money market all your investment swept off—capital and profit."

That is what they call in New York a "royal bounce!" I call it an infernal swindle. A widow of a soldier of the last war had two hundred dollars and her husband's pension. She read in the newspaper of the wonderful combination schemes in New York. She thought she would like to have more opportunity to educate her children; sent her two hundred dollars, which, of course, were all lost, and in that same direction is going the livelihood of tens of thousands of people in America and I cry, a plague! a plague! one of the worst of the ten plagues of these great cities. All classes of persons suffer directly or indirectly. What is the matter with the price of grain? Did the Lord destroy all the harvests last summer with the drought? Oh, no; there were great harvests; there ought to have been plenty of food for all the people at very cheap prices; but the grain gamblers got hold of the grain market They did not call it gambling. They called it "option" in grain. One broker pays five hundred dollars for option in ten thousand bushels of grain for February or March. No grain passes. If the grain go up from one-thirty to one-forty, then he pockets a thousand dollars. If it go down from one-thirty to one-twenty, then he must put up a thousand more, and it is all swamped. The gambling with greasy cards in a rum restaurant is not worse than that. What right has a man to sell that which he does not own? What right has a man to buy that which he knows will never be delivered? Let me not be misinterpreted. I deplore the indiscriminate condemnation of those who are engaged in stock operations. A stock broker is engaged in as legitimate business as a man who sells groceries or hardware, and a man may be as honest and pure a Christian in a board of brokers as he can be at a communion table. A broker has as much right to his commission as a hardworking mechanic has a right to his day's wages. A man has just as much right to make money by the going up of stocks as by the going up of sugar, or tea, or rice. It is the work of brokers to facilitate the business, to make transfer of investments, to watch and report the tides of trade, to help merchants in their enterprises. You have no more right to denounce all the stock-brokers because here and there there is a bad man among them, than you have to denounce any class of men, importers, shoe dealers or lumbermen. No men in any honest business want to be held responsible for the deficits of men in their style of business. But you say "Isn't there a risk in dealing in stocks?" Of course, there is a risk in any kind of business. The merchant buys silk at five dollars a yard and expects it to go up to six. It may go down to four. If a man, by straight-forward dealing in stock, meets with disaster and fails, he deserves just as much sympathy as the man who was dealing in spices or calicoes, and by miscalculation was flung bankrupt. You have no right to put restriction on this style of business any more than you have to put restriction on other styles of business. You are not to denounce a man for an operation buyer ten days, or buyer twenty days, when you take a house buyer three hundred and sixty-five days, perhaps the entire payment to be made at the end of the year when you may not have a penny. You must not condemn all the people in one style of business because there happen to be bad men in that style of business. You must not so roughly tear up the weeds that you pull out the marigolds and verbenas. There are men in the Stock Exchange who are examples of morality and conscientiousness and integrity to all commercial circles. We admit that there are especial dangers connected with that style of business; so there are especial dangers connected with the work of an engineer on a rail trian. He does not know what night he will dash into a coal train; but trains must be run, and stocks must be sold, but men of nervous and illy-balanced temperament had better stand clear both of the engine and the Stock Exchange. When I was living in Philadelphia I knew of a young man, twenty-five years of age, who bought ten shares in Pennsylvania Central. The shares went up five dollars a share. He made fifty dollars a share. He came home to his mother and announced it with great glee; but she, seeing farther ahead than he did, and knowing his illy-balanced temperament said: "I wish you had lost it." But having succeeded there, he bought shares in another company and he won two hundred dollars. Then he was fully fired with ambition and he went on, and in three years he failed for forty thousand dollars, ruined his health, broke his wife's heart, and was supported by her father. That man ought never to have gone into that style of business; neither ought he to have become a pilot, or commander of a regiment, or undertaken anything that demanded steady nerve, or cool brain or a well-balanced judgment. But while there is a legitimate dealing in stocks, there is an illegitimate dealing in stocks, and there are transactions every day in these cities which must be characterized as superb villainy and there are members of churches going into styles of transactions in the stock market which will at last blanch their cheek, and in the great day of God's judgment will thunder them away into the everlasting companionship of the lowest gamblers who ever pitched pennies for drinks. Do you want me to draw the line between honest and dishonest speculation? There is no need that I do so. God has drawn the line through every man's conscience. That man who is guilty of "cornering," as it is called "on the street," knows he is sinning against God; he knows it as well as though the flames of Mount Sinai were singeing his eyebrows! He hears of a man who has sold "short." He goes around and says, "That stock is going down—that stock is going down; prepare for it." The operators sell out; he buys in. He ruins the man who sold "short," fills his pockets with the proceeds, and kneels down and thanks the Lord for prosperity in business! You call that "cornering." I call it theft, gambling, highway robbery, villainy accursed. It is astonishing how some men who are kind to the poor, who are genial in their families, who are useful to the church of Jesus Christ, are transformed of the devil as soon as they touch the Stock Exchange. When I was living in Philadelphia there was a man who came into a broker's office and said: "Get me one hundred shares of Reading; carry it; here are five hundred dollars margin." Stocks declined and continued to decline after the purchase and one day the broker asked the man why his extreme excitement. "Well," he replied "to tell you the truth I borrowed that five hundred dollars, and supposing I was going to make a great gain I subscribed very liberally to the missionary society!" For many years the public sentiment was debauched with fancy stocks—with western city enterprises, with New England development. A man found on his farm a piece of something as large as the head of a pin, that under a stroke of sunlight sparkled. He formed a silver or gold mining company, declared a working dividend, opened books. A few men went in on the ground floor. Then the estates of widows and orphans were swamped in the vortex. No great discredit, provided it is done on a large scale. We despise small dishonesties, but we take off our hats and bow almost to the earth in the presence of a man who made a hundred thousand dollars by a stock swindle. People are not punished in this country because they steal, but it is because they do not steal enough. Some years ago, in one of our cities, a woman was arrested for selling molasses candy on Sunday. She was tried, condemned and imprisoned. She served her time out and came forth, went into the same business and sold molasses candy on the Sunday. She was again arrested, tried, condemned, imprisoned and served out her time. To show you the depravity of a woman's soul, she came out and for the third time actually went into the business of selling molasses candy on the Sunday. Then the police and the judiciary and the Mayor and all the high minded Christian sentiment of the community rose up in sublime indignation and declared that though the heavens fell no woman should be allowed to sell molasses candy on the Sunday. O! we are impatient with small crimes, but in front of gigantic villainies the law walks up and down, its hands behind its back and dares not whisper. There are in all our cities men who have costly family wardrobes, and splendid turn-outs, and great mansions which were made out of the distresses of sewing women, or their money went into some stock swindle. There is human sweat in the golden tankards. There is human blood in the crimson plush. There are the bones of unrequited toil in the pearly keys of the piano. There is the indignation of an incensed God hovering over all the magnificence. Some night the man cannot sleep. He gets up on one elbow and says: "Who is there!" Those whom he wronged will put their skinny fingers through the tapestry and touch him on the brow, and blow their sepulchral breath in his face and cry: "Come to judgment!"

For the benefit of these young men between 18 and 25 years of age, I bring an illustration of a time which you do not remember, but I do. It was a large stock gambling affair, and illustrative of gambling undertakings on a smaller scale. I refer to the great gambling in oil stocks some seventeen or eighteen or nineteen years ago. Now, the purchase of oil lands and the transportation of machinery and the forming of companies for the development of the oil—all this is just as honorable and right as the organization of a company for the production of coal or iron or copper or zinc. God poured out a river of oil before the nation, and He intended us to gather it up and transport it and use it, and there were companies formed at that time on righteous principles who have gone on developing and are in existence this day, and fortunes have been made, and lawfully made; but of the twelve hundred petroleum companies then formed, how many do you suppose were honest—of the twelve hundred? Well, you say, perhaps six hundred. You draw largely on our credulity, but we will admit six hundred bought land and issued honest circulars, formed honorable companies and delved in the earth for the bringing forth of its treasures. But what about the other six hundred? Only three or four things were necessary for them. First, a circular—a circular with all the colors of earth and sea and sky—letters flaming with the beauty of gold and jasper and amethyst—a circular telling the people that the subscribers now would get the advantage of the original undertaking—a circular warning the people against wild schemes in oil stocks. The circular must also say that there are some flowing wells of oil already, and that in other wells there was a strong smell of oil. The circular must say also that the books would be open only five days, and that only a few shares were yet to be sold. Connected with the circular there must be a map by the artist of the company. He makes a creek to run through all that land, and it must run this way and that way and the other way, and wind round and round, so as to have a great deal of water front. "Ah!" said one of the company to one of these artists: "there's only one creek on this map." "Well," replied the artist, "you can have as many creeks as you want, if you pay for them." He took up his pencil and said: "there now, there are three creeks." Now, you must have estimable men who will give their names for that circular. You go to a man and ask him to be president. "O!" he says, "I know nothing about it." "Well," you say, "here are five hundred dollars' worth of shares." Then he begins to know something about it. Then there are three or four directors obtained under the same pretense, under the same deception, and after that the way is smooth, for ordinary Christians and sinners will be glad to be associated with such illustrious company. Now, there must be a working capital—four hundred thousand dollars. Put that down. Four hundred thousand working capital, although in one case where they pretended to have that by the sinking of one well which cost five thousand dollars, all the working capital was exhausted! Now, you want three vials of oil—some in the crude state, some in the clarified state, but genuine specimens of Venango county. Now, says someone, 'You want some land.' O! no, you do not. That is superfluous. You say, 'You want some land from which you get oil,' O! no, that is a useless expense. You do not want any land. Have you not got a map and a circular and the three creeks? What more do you want? Now, open the books and let the people come in. Farmers come, mechanics come, dairymen come, people who have earned their money by the sweat of their brow—they come and put in their earnings. Sure enough, the first month, a dividend of one per cent. That induces a large number of other persons to come. The second month, another dividend of one per cent. Others come. The third month, another dividend. Others come. Where did that money come from that is paid to you, or credited to you? Out of the oil wells production? Oh, no. That is part of your money, do you not see? It is so generous in them, you know. Why, you might have lost it all, and think, they pay you back ten dollars! After awhile the dividend stops and there comes, not a flaming advertisement, but a modest circular, saying there will be a meeting of the stockholders on a certain afternoon to transact "important business." The "important business" to be transacted is the assessment of stockholders for a certain amount, in order that they may keep a little land, if there be any. But more probably it is to elect some new officers, for the present officers have suddenly been struck through with a spirit of extreme modesty, and they wish to retire from business. They believe in rotation in office. They cannot always serve the public. They retire to build their mansions at Yonkers, or Hastings-on-the-Hudson, or Germantown, or Chelsea. They served the public so well—now they go back to their flocks and herds. Where is God? Is an iniquity less because it is heaven high and hell deep? That man, I do not care who he is, who allows his name to go on a circular as a president or a director of a company which he knows will result in the sale of twenty thousand shares of an undeveloped nothing, God will yet tear off the cloak of his hypocrisy; and in the presence of the universe will show him up a brazen-faced gambler. There will be a curse on his house. God's wrath ever will flash from his chandelier and rattle in the swift hoof of his silver bitted grays, and in the day of fire he would be glad to leap into a burning oil well to escape the face of the Lamb. O! you infamous stock gamblers of all kinds, to all businesses, disgorge, disgorge! Start out another circular. Say in that circular: "We, the undersigned, apologize to the community for the way we have swindled them, and we ask our victims to come to our office next Saturday, between ten and three o'clock, that we may pay them back. Signed at the office of the company, January 1882." That will give you peace of conscience; that will give you a quiet death-bed. O! I really have not much hope of your reformation. When the devil gets such a firm hold of a man as that, he seldom lets go. O! young men, beware of stock gambling. Let not that awful lion devour you as it has devoured so many. Do you know there are now printing presses going, publishing pamphlets for schemes just as nefarious and hollow and full of swindle as any I have mentioned, and there will be other silver mining companies, and other gold mining companies, and other schemes for Western development, and there will be other mutual coal consuming associations, where the thing consumed is not the coal but the victims—filling the whole community with the question: Who has the money? Young man, beware of all doubtful speculations. It you cannot earn a livelihood in a lawful way, then die an honest death and be buried in an honest sepulchre.

There are two or three reasons why you should stand off from stock gambling. I take the lowest motive first, and tell you that it will ruin you financially. I asked a man who had large experience, and of larger observation, how many of those who went into stock gambling made permanent success. I think, he said, that of those who went into stock gambling and continued in it, not one. It becomes a disease after a while, and this spirit which first won a large fortune, haunts and haunts him, until in the form of disease it touches his brain, and forthwith all the property is gone. You may run around all iniquity, but if you indulge in such practices you put your money in a bag with holes. Moreover, there is no happiness in it, there is no quiet in it, there is no health in it. They do not live out half their days generally. It is very seldom you find an old stock gambler. Once in a while you find such a man. There is no quiet, no peace in such a life. Stand off from it, young man, stand off from it. But, worse than all, it destroys the soul. After a while, the worthless scrip will fall out of the hand of the stock gambler. Now satan will try to play on him the game of 'cornering' as he played it upon his fellow operator in Wall street. Hopelessly he falls back upon his dying pillow. In his delirium his flow of talk is about 'commissions' and 'percentage' and 'buyer sixty days,' and 'stocks up' and 'stocks down.' He thinks that the physician who is trying to feel his pulse is trying to steal his board book. He rouses at midnight crying: 'One thousand shares in Illinois Central, one hundred and twenty-eight and three-quarters. Take it!' and falls back dead. No more dividends. Swindled out of Heaven! Stocks down!

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

That License Business Again.

A whole week has elapsed since we published several grave charges against one at least of the License Commissioners for West Hastings, a near relative of his, and the License Inspector, but as yet not one word has proceeded from the parties interested. Even the local organ of the Ontario Government, which is usually over-zealous in defending its friends when attacked, has, no doubt under instructions, maintained a silence which, if discreet, must be humiliating, as it involves a confession of the truth of our statements. No doubt it is wise on the part of the parties interested to say nothing, and thus to avoid stirring up a subject which they would much rather consign to oblivion. We have purposely refrained from further reference to the matter in order to afford time to the parties to take steps to vindicate their reputation, or to offer some defence of their conduct. They having failed to respond in any manner to the accusation, the public will accept their silence as a proof of the truth of the accusations, which are as follows, viz:

1st. That two of the Commissioners granted one more tavern license for the city of Belleville than, as it proved, the law allowed, and that at least one of them was indemnified against the cost of a possible prosecution, proving thereby that in so doing they were aware that they were violating the law.

2nd. That a near relative of one of the Commissioners blackmailed applicants for licenses.

3rd. That the Inspector was concerned in the issuing of an illegal number of licenses, and that in the recent Mayoralty election contest he canvassed some of the tavern-keepers in the interest of one of the candidates.

These are matters of public importance as the hotel men of the city would like to know if, besides paying their legal licenses, they are to be subject to a system of blackmail and the people wish to learn if the law is to be administered in the same way hereafter.

The Boundary Question.

Those members of the Ontario Legislature who are vaporing about taking possession of the territory in dispute between Ontario and Manitoba with an army of a hundred men can hardly be aware how much food for ridicule they afford. Their proposed expedition forcibly reminds one of that of the Grand Duchess of Gerolstein's forces. Such an army would of course require a leader of exceptional diplomatic as military capacity, and, if the war-path must be taken, we know of no better leader than the great Edgar—hero of a hundred fights in Monck, South Oxford, South Ontario, British Columbia and elsewhere, and Marshal-General of the notorious "black bottle brigade." The famous D. D. Hay would naturally be second in command, as his knowledge of cork-screws, apollinaris water and other supplies would be absolutely indispensable. It would be easy for such great leaders as these to improve upon the plan of General Fritz—which was to leave hundreds of bottles of liquor within reach of the enemy, allow them to drink to excess, and then fall upon and destroy them—for if they would not retreat before the awful "poems" with which Gen. Edgar could bombard them for a month; if necessary, his Lieutenant could certainly talk them to death, and thus would the feat of Samson, in slaying his enemies with the jaw-bone of a well-known quadruped, be paralleled.

Speaking of an expedition of this character, have the parliamentary orators who advocate it counted the cost? Our little army of twenty who passed through the territory a few years ago required several hundred dollars worth of "wet groceries," corckscrews and cigars. This was for but a few days outing, and did not include food or clothing; but to maintain an army of occupation five times as numerous for years, perhaps, at least until the Privy Council decides, would eat up the surplus, knock the scheme for the erection of new parliament buildings on the head, and leave not a shot in the locker for quieting officials who might be disposed to tell tales out of school. That such would be the result cannot admit of a doubt; for if General Fritz Edgar, like the French king, "marched up the hill and then marched down again," in other words withdrew his army, the enemy, having the advantage of being much nearer the land of promise, would of course send another army to replace that which had been beaten, and reoccupy it. Worse, and more of it—the Dominion Government would profit by the heavy increase in Inland revenue and customs duties on the wines, liquors, cigars and corkscrews needed for the support of the army and thus with the enemy would the fruits of victory remain. We leave it to the bellicose bellowers of balderdash in the Legislature to say whether, on second consideration, they are prepared to give effect to their threats at the cost indicated.

Astounding Generosity.

The London Free Press says: "It seems that the amount given by the Mowat Government to the Muskoka relief fund was but $1,000. This divided among the 600 persons who are said to be homeless and without food, gives little enough to each sufferer. No wonder the Little Premier held his tongue about the amount." If this statement be correct, the amount given by the Government to relieve the distress in Muskoka is less than was paid to a recalcitrant official who threatened to disclose matters which the Government desired to have kept quiet!

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

Editorial Brevities.

The Montreal Witness thus fittingly rebukes the bumptiousness of Mr. D. B. Chisholm, President of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance, who in his address at the recent meeting of that body in Toronto, charged the Conservative party with hostility to the temperance cause. The Witness says:—"The action of the President of the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, at its recent meeting in Toronto, in making a sweeping charge against one of the two great political parties of the country, though he qualified it almost immediately, will not secure for him the thanks of even some of the strongest party men on the side held up by implication as the peculiar friends of the temperance cause. To say the least, it was ill advised, and it will be repudiated by true temperance men among the Liberals, who are aware of the pre eminence given to the party over the temperance cause by most of their own political friends, and who have always had earnest allies in temperance work among their political opponents. So long as the existing restrictive liquor laws of the country owe their continuance to a combination of temperance men of both parties in the Commons, and so long as the Liberal party as such will not adopt prohibitation as a plank in its platform, no Liberal has a right to set his side up as the temperance party."

In the debate on the address in the Legislature Mr. Pardee made the untruthful charge that the Conservatives had, after counselling with Sir John A. Macdonald, endeavored to connect Provincial affairs with the National Policy. Mr. Hay, who moved the address, and not the Opposition, sinned in that respect. As a matter of course, the Conservatives could not allow Mr. Hay's attack on the policy of the Dominion Government to pass in silence.

Says the Globe: "They are complaining about the high price of coal in Buffalo. It is offered there "delivered to any part of the city" at the following rates:—

Stove	$5 90 per ton.
Nut	5 90 "
Egg	5 60 "
Average price	5 80 "

In Toronto the price for each of these sizes is $7 per ton, or $1.20 above Buffalo rates, or exactly the sum of the extra freight 70c, and the Canadian duty of 50c. Buffalo grumblers escape abuse from the press, but the Toronto consumer who objects to the tax in addition to the high price is reviled by the Tories as an enemy to his country." In Belleville, then, the duty cannot be paid by the consumer, for the price here is $6.50.

Here's richness! The Picton Times says:—"Sir Leonard Tilley takes great credit to himself for his promise to reduce or abolish the tea and coffee duties. As the duty on each single pound is so small it is only the dealers who handle large quantities who will benefit. The consumer who buys only a pound or two at a time will not be benefitted a single cent." The duty on each pound of say mixed black and green tea costing 60 cents per pound, is 8½ cents, and on each pound of coffee is 2 cents. The utmost that the free traders claim that sugar has been increased in price by the tariff is a quarter of a cent per pound. And yet the Times clamors for the throwing off of that alleged ¼ cent on sugar, whilst declaring that the abolition of the 8½ cents duty on tea and the 2 cents duty on coffee will be of no benefit. Oh, beautiful consistency! The stupid hostility of the free-traders to home industries could not be better exemplified; for whilst the sugar refining industry is of great benefit to the country, the handling and carriage of tea and coffee are the only benefits derived from them in an industrial sense.

The attention of those Grit papers which have of late been deploring, with alligator tears, the decline of the shipbuilding industry in the Maritime Provinces, is called to the extract given herewith from the St John Telegraph—the leading Opposition organ in New Brunswick. The Telegraph publishes a table giving the number and tonnage of vessels owned in New Brunswick in January 1881 and 1882 respectively and says:

> Here we have a decrease during the year for the whole Province of 8 vessels and 3,667 tons, which, considering the very heavy losses of the year and the comparative dulness of shipbuilding, is not so bad a showing as might have been expected.

The "railway barometer," to which the free-traders at one time referred with confidence as showing the state of trade, is no longer regarded by them as a correct indication, for the reason that its readings are unfavorable to their contentions. The latest indications which it furnishes as to Intercolonial Railway traffic are as follows: For the month of October the increase was about $16,000; for November $23,028; and for December $19,092. For the six months ended December the increase has been $117,250, or an average of nearly $20,000 month or, $240,000 per annum. And the Quebec Government Railway shows an equal percentage of increase.

Upon looking into the wood question, after a perusal of "T. S. C.'s" letter, we find that a carefully prepared By-law regulating the measurement and classification of wood, was introduced by our present City Clerk when he was in the Council, and became law on the 24th of June, 1878. Upon application to the lessee of the market a certificate can be obtained of the quantity of wood on the load, and its quality. The price per cord of course is a matter of bargain between the parties concerned. The By-law is numbered 415.

The return of coal imports at Toronto by water for the past three years shows that there has been a considerable decrease in the import of soft coal. Nova Scotia coal is taking the place of the United States article.

The Bobcaygeon Independent is Gritty; but, wiser than the Picton Times, it thus expresses approval of the proposal to abolish the duties on tea and coffee:—"It is a good plan to have free tea and coffee. The duty on spirits might be increased with advantage both to the public and to the revenue, and the duties on such articles as tea and coffee abolished."

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

The three indispensable articles of consumption are so greatly improved in quantity and quality, when HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDERS are mixed with feed of the cows or poultry that no dairy or poultry yard can possibly be remunerative without them. Ask for the

The Sault Branch.

The following statement, made by Mr. McIntyre, in reply to an inquiry by the Mail's correspondent at Montreal, disposes once and for all of the Globe's assertion that the Syndicate had abandoned the Sault branch and had arranged for connection with Chicago via St Paul. Mr. McIntyre said, in reply to the correspondent's question:

"The fact is there is no foundation whatever for either of these statements. The resolution of the company to construct a branch to the Sault remains unchanged, and the operations have been commenced upon it at Algoma Mills and Spanish River, and are proceeding vigorously. The Sault branch will be greatly reduced in length by the location of the main line being nearer the lake than originally intended, but it will not the less certainly be built. The statement as to a connection with Chicago via St. Paul is absurd as well as unfounded. With thirteen hundred miles of road to operate between Winnipeg and Ottawa, it is not likely the company would be making efforts to direct to Chicago the traffic upon which they must rely to maintain the eastern section of their own railway. The connection by water between Algoma mills and Chicago will draw traffic through the Dominion from the Western States, as the Sault branch will also do, and as soon as the line strikes an eastern point on Lake Superior there will be a Canadian through route to Winnipeg and the North-West, which will be of vast importance to the country until the all-rail route by the north shore of the lake is finished, which the company confidently hope may be within five years.

N. P. Notes.

Mr. Albert White is about to establish a Knitting Factory in Stratford on a large scale.

A movement has been started for the establishment of a new woollen mill at St. Johns, Quebec.

The Ottawa Woollen Mills Company, with a capital of $100,000, are making arrangements to commence immediately the erection of a suitable building at Hog's Back. They will employ 200 hands.

The Thomson & Williams Manufacturing Co. of Stratford are about to manufacture a 500 horse power engine at their works for the cotton factory of St. John, N.B. This, it is said, will be the largest engine ever turned out in Canada.

The Envelope Manufactory of Messrs. Mackay & Lockhart, now in Toronto, will probably be removed to Stratford ere long, and the business greatly enlarged. Millions of envelopes of imported make are used every day in Canada which might as well be made at home.

The directors of the Canada Cotton Company, whose mills are at Cornwall, met in Montreal on the 6th inst, and resolved to increase the capital stock by $125,000 to be distributed among present shareholders at twenty per cent. premium. The fresh capital is to be employed in making additions to the mill and machinery.

Application is to be made to the Quebec Legislature for letters patent incorporating the Mount Royal Milling & Manufacturing Company of Montreal, with a capital stock of $90,000 in one hundred dollar shares. The first directors are to be Robert Reford, John Dillon and D. W. Ross, and the business to be carried on is that of rice and oil millers and general manufacturers.

The extensive improvements that have been in progress for a considerable time in the Kingston Locomotive Works are about completed. Messrs. McKechnie & Bertram have supplied the greater portion of the new machinery, of which a consignment of $9,000 worth arrived last week. The new engine of 75 horse power has been completed and set in motion. It is expected that this establishment will be able to turn out fifty locomotives a year. And if the demand should warrant it, the work can be doubled.

The Meriden Britannia Company at Hamilton are reported to have had great success last year. At a recent meeting of the company it was decided to erect buildings this year sufficient to double the capacity. A feature in the work of the enlarged factory will be that all the articles will be made in the building from the raw material. Orders have been sent to Europe for the linings and glassware necessary, and Birmingham and Sheffield workers of both German silver and white metal are to be engaged to work here.

CONNELL, THE IRISH OUTLAW, PLEADS GUILTY—HIS INTENDED VICTIMS.

A Cork despatch says: At the Assizes today the outlaw leader, Connell, pleaded guilty to the various charges against him. He will be a witness in the other cases in which the members of his band are defendants. At the time of his arrest, in the latter part of December, for having arms in a proclaimed district, Connell was already suspected of being the leader of a band which had committed outrages, rendering the district one of the most notorious in Ireland. His arrest took place at Muskrat under exciting circumstances. A large force of police, acting on private information, surrounded the house of Thomas Shea, a farmer living in a lonely district near the Muskrat Mountains. Upon knocking, the police were admitted, and two of them rushed upstairs and found Connell in bed, but dressed. He endeavored to divest himself of his waiscoat, but the police, after a fierce struggle, obtained possession of the garment, and found in one of the pockets a gold watch stolen from a man named Cudmore during the recent moonlight raid. They also found in his possession a list of persons who had committed offences against the unwritten law of the Riband Society, and who were consequently marked for vengeance. The list is signed and countersigned with fictitious names, and concludes thus:

> Examined and approved of as work for the night squad.
> CAPT. MOONLIGHT.

Among the intended victims were James Sullivan and Dennis Cookley, farmers, who were to be shot on suspicion of paying rent, and Sullivan's two daughters, whose hair was to be cut to the bone—one for having spoken to a policeman, and the other for dealing with a proscribed person. Other persons were mentioned whose ears were to be cut off for less offences. In consequence of the documents found on Connell five young men were arrested at Mill Street named Kelleher, Connor, Leahy, Farrell and Hurley. Farrell and Leahy have been identified as belonging to the party implicated in the attack on the house of Mrs. Fitzgerald.

GREAT BARLEY SALE.—The Whig says: "On Saturday last several farmers in the vicinity of Napanee effected a sale of 40,000 bushels of barley to a Chicago dealer at 90 cents per bushel, delivered at the cars at Napanee station. We understand that the farmers are now busy delivering the grain. The same dealer intimated that should the barley prove satisfactory he would be prepared to purchase 100,000 bushels more. The local grain dealers are now making large purchases. Probably not more than one-half of the barley of the country has yet been taken to market."

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

The Ferry.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR.—Too much importance cannot be attached to the ferry question, and knowing that you are fully alive to this, it needs no apology to you or the public for the endeavor to fix attention on the subject through your columns.

Low fares with speedy and prompt transport must be obtained at all hazards. The interests of Belleville and Prince Edward are identical in demanding this.

There is plenty of intelligence and sound judgment in the Council to arrange this satisfactorily, but unfortunately we are all painfully aware by experience, that other considerations than the common weal swaying the minds of some members, have too often blighted the prospects of our fair city.

If the ends which ought to be arrived at alone be sought, why should there be any ill-feeling or even an appearance of unpleasantness between the city and Ameliasburg in arranging for the ferry? It seems the utmost folly to quarrel about it. It is certainly for our interest to consult the interest and wishes of the Prince Edward people, and to act with them in a conciliatory spirit to secure what both want, the lowest rates and the best service possible.

To take into consideration the effect of fares alone, by a very material reduction, say to about one-third the rates sanctioned in the present lease by the town, the traffic will so increase that the receipts will be as much if not more than at present. This will be the immediate result, instances analogous to this will occur to any one on reflection, where by materially reducing the rates the revenue has been increased. These instances will also illustrate the fact that such increase of traffic tends further to augment itself. Development tends to still further development till the utmost extent is reached. Now the practical application of our knowledge of this aspect of the question is to make provision to aid and further this natural tendency, so that however or by whoever the ferry may be run it be so arranged that the fares may be still further reduced from time to time as it may appear in the interest of all parties concerned to reduce them. Otherwise our interest in the future may be at the mercy of the lessee, should he happen to persist in standing in his own light.

To meet this, why not, as has been suggested by many who have given much thought to the matter, have the city, or the city and Ameliasburg jointly, furnish a suitable boat and let out the running of it from year to year by tender? This plan not only recommends itself in point of economy, but leaves changes in matter of detail, such as the fixing of fares, &c., in the hands of those for whose benefit the ferry is designed. The amount that would be tendered for the privilege of running it would more than pay the interest on the investment and provide for wear and tear and sinking fund.

Tweed Circuit.

For the Intelligencer.

The M. E. people at Mount Zion Church had a very successful entertainment on Monday evening, 16th inst., R. Lansing, Esq., in the chair. Instrumental and vocal music were provided by Mrs. M. J. Badgley and others, and readings, recitations and dialogues by W. Empey, J. W. Brill, W. Battams, and others,—all good. A five-story cake, with a silver dollar in it, was disposed of by election. Miss Finkle was the successful candidate, and Miss Lansing got some of the money in cutting the cake. They realized $46.16 from the cake, and $18.84 at the door—total, $65. At the close, Rev. Wm. Service. P. E., made the speech of the evening, and in which he read the following address:—

Address to Rev D. Brill, Pastor of the M. E. Church, Tweed Circuit:

> We, your friends of Mt. Zion appointment, desiring to express in some tangible form our good will toward you as our pastor, wish you to accept this buffalo coat as a token of our appreciation of your services among us. Wishing yourself and family much happiness and many years of usefulness in the good work in which you are engaged.
>
> Signed on behalf of the donors,
> B. CLARK.
> G. WAY.

Messrs. B. Clark and Geo. Way presented Rev. D. Brill with a beautiful buffalo coat.

At the New Year's tree at Tweed the Ladies' Aid Society of Tweed M. E. Church presented Mrs. Brill, the pastor's wife, with a beautiful Astracan coat, hung on the tree as a token of esteem as their President.

Tweed Correspondence.

In the last Tweed correspondence an omission occurred. Mr. James Elliott's name did not appear as being appointed Church Warden in place of the late Joseph Elliott, Esq. The Rector appointed him Church Warden for St. James' Church, Tweed.

The Bride Brigade.

An ambitious poet writes this parody on the request to send eight hundred marriageables ladies to the Northwest:

> Winnipeg, Winnipeg,
> To Winnipeg onward,
> All to the marriage mart,
> Send the eight hundred,
> Forward the bride brigade!
> Charge girls! Who's afraid?
> Into the marriage mart,
> Go it, eight hundred!

To this request made in the Rapid City Standard a spirited young lady replies; "Sir, I believe the bachelors of Manitoba wish you to use your influence in persuading some Ontario girls to get out there and take pity on their forlorn state. Now don't you think it would look a great deal better for them to come out here and hunt up wives instead of having us go out there and hunt up husbands? It is my opinion that they are not very hard up for wives if they don't think it worth their while to leave home to get them."

THE LEGISLATURE'S LIBRARY.—The annual report of the Librarian of the Ontario House states that at the close of 1880 the number of volumes in the Library, exclusive of official documents of the various Provinces, was 11,500. There have in all been added during the past year 1,500 volumes, thus bringing up the number to 13,000.

STILL OPEN.—The News of the 20th says; "Navigation is still open, the ferry boats are running as regularly as clock work, and the chances are that they will run for some time yet—if not longer. The winter of 1874 was somewhat similar to the present one, the ferry boat making her last trip on the 18th of January. On the 31st of January 1880 the Pierrepont was running."

The Toledo manager of the Standard Oil Co., No. 5 Merchants' Bank, Toledo, Ohio, sprained the muscles of his right leg very severely. St. Jacobs Oil was used and quickly cured him, greatly to his pleasure.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says;—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 20.

The debate on the address was resumed by Mr. McLaughlin, on the Government side, who advanced nothing new.

Mr. Robertson (West Hastings) said that hon. gentlemen opposite had complained about reference made to the National Policy, but that subject was introduced by the mover of the address and other speakers on the Government benches. With respect to the important questions referred to in the speech, the arguments addressed to the House by the leader of the Opposition and the hon. member for Glengarry had been refuted, and he was prepared to stand or fall by the position taken by the hon. member for London. Credit was due to the Government for having collected facts which proved interesting and valuable to the farmers, and the collection and publication of further matter of the same nature would prove satisfactory to the Opposition; but if a Bureau of Agriculture was established an unnecessary expenditure would be entered upon and offices created for political friends. Much fault had been found with the Dominion Government in respect to the boundary question and the disallowance of the Rivers and Streams Act, but hon. gentlemen opposite had omitted to speak of the arbitrary and high-handed course pursued by the Provincial Government with regard to the dismissal of certain worthy officials in Hastings. A very worthy gentleman who occupied the position of Inspector of Licenses was removed, and his place was taken by a protege of the Government at Toronto. During the session he would ask the Government why the Deputy Sheriff of Hastings had been dismissed, as there was no more able official in the Province. The people had shown their opinion of the Government's act by electing that gentleman as Alderman of one of the principal wards, and placed him at the head of the polls. The Government proposed to submit a measure for free markets; but after consulting his constituents and many farmers he found that public opinion was not in favor of making markets free. If comfortable places were not established for farmers they would be compelled to sell their products on the streets and to grocers, and they would receive lower prices. At Belleville they had provided an excellent market at a cost of $25,000, and it had proved a very great convenience to the farmers. He approved of the bill respecting ditches and watercourses, for there was a large quantity of redeemable land which might be brought into cultivation. He did not know the intentions of the Government with respect to amending the law of evidence, but it would probably be some modification of the Administration of Justice Act, and that Act was framed on the Imperial Act. In England it had not worked altogether satisfactorily. A great many modifications had been made in the Act, and the same course would necessarily be taken here. There was a public feeling in the Province that the Act was one of centralization so far as Toronto was concerned. With respect to the boundary question, when the hon. member for North Perth (Mr. Hay) had infantry and cavalry ready to advance into the disputed territory, he might rest assured that the Opposition were fully prepared to defend Ontario interests.

Mr. Miller (Muskoka), a Government supporter, spoke on the boundary question, and objected to the Rivers and Streams Bill. He thought the case of Messrs. McLaren and Caldwell should have been excepted from the Bill, and then there would not have been this constitutional question. It was impossible to secure an adequate return for improvements on small streams by collecting tolls. The Government should improve the streams and charge the lumbermen tolls. The Government should restrain settlers from setting out fires without a permit from the stipendiary Magistrate, and Wood Rangers should be appointed, to look after the fires when set. Only unworthy settlers would raise objections.

Mr. Badgerow moved the adjournment of the debate and the House adjourned at 6 o'clock.

A MEETING of the Joint Ferry Committee was called for last evening, but there was no business to transact, and as a natural consequence, no business was transacted.

THE Market Committee met on Thursday evening, and decided to recommend that the Council petition the Ontario Legislature against the abrogation of market fees in this city.

THE Curling Club met last evening. The only important business transacted was the selection of four skips for the year. Those selected are—John Jellett, Thos. Thomson, W. H. Campbell, and Angus McFee. It was decided to make arrangements for a match with the Peterborough Club.

MR. H. ASHLEY is endeavoring to make arrangements to establish in Belleville a factory for the manufacture of the iron farm-waggons, a specimen of which he had in town a few weeks ago, and which was noticed in these columns. The industry, Mr. A. says, will call for an original outlay of $25,000.

SAYS the Madoc Review: "It appears to be generally understood that the Reeve of this village, E. D. O'Flynn, Esq., will be elected Warden of the County of Hastings at the meeting of the County Council on Tuesday next." Let us wait and see how this prediction will tally with the result of the election next Tuesday.

THE Montreal Gazette speaks thus of Miss Amy Lee, the prima donna of the Amy Lee Opera Company, which will perform here on the 27th and 28th:—"This young lady is a bright piquant little actress, who sings prettily and manages to captivate her audience by her vivacious manners. She was several times recalled."

IT would appear that the rightful heirs of James Foy, who was killed in California by Indians last August, have been found. The Napanee Express says that the Asselstine family are the legal inheritors of the fortune (amounting, it is said, to $100,000), and that the money is to be divided among ten members of the family, of which Messrs. Daniel and John Asselstine, of Morven, are members.

THE entertainment by the young ladies of Miss Higinbotham's class in connection with Bridge St. Sunday School, given in the Sunday School room of Bridge Street Church on Thursday evening, was a success and a surprise to many who did not know the capabilities of the class. The class were aided in song by Messrs. Wensley and Featherston, and by Miss Hazard and Rev. Dr. Jeffers in reading.

SHREWD people at a distance from Belleville are not slow to perceive the unparalleled advantages which are offorded by this city for the establishment of smelting-works. The Montreal Journal of Commerce says: "Smelting works are likely to be established in Belleville at no distant day. The city has offered a suitable site and exemption from taxation. These inducements, together with her proximity to the mines, central situation and facilities for procuring fuel, apparently assure the fact."

THE first check to the erection of the new Opera House which Mr. Dafoe has taken in hand was given to-day, when the contractor to whom the plans and specifications were submitted made so high an estimate of the probable cost of the building that he has quite discouraged Mr. Dafoe. Other contractors should and probably will have an opportunity to examine the plans and tender for the work.

THE Inspector of Weights and Measures has been making some "New Year's calls" and instead of finding everything "on the square," has found considerable crookedness, having had to seize and confiscate twenty-six weights, which were from a half to an ounce light, three measures which were not "according to Hoyle," and a platform scale which with a load of 50 lbs. on it indicated 53 lbs. on the beam, and with a load of 150 lbs. indicated 160 lbs. None of the articles were to be seen on previous visits, and the guilty ones had evidently imagined that the Inspector would not call again, or that if he did they would be able to get them out of the way before he saw them.

A HORSE belonging to Mr. R. Emmons, attached to a cutter, ran away yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. Dashing up Church Street, the animal ran into a horse and buggy standing in front of the Shire Hall, overturning both, and threw a boy who was seated in the buggy, into the road. The horse was finally captured near Brown's foundry, little the worse for the desperate run; but the cutter was almost demolished. The horse, the buggy, and the boy that stood in the way of the runaway animal, all escaped without injury. Another runaway team dashed up Front St. about 5 o'clock. They were attached to an empty wood waggon, and belonged to a farmer (name unknown) who had been testing the quality of city whiskey. Before they could do any damage they were captured by R. M. Roy.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 21.—Lakes, cloudy mild weather, with rain or snow to-day, high northwesterly to northerly winds and falling temperature to-morrow. Monday will be cold.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Friday night last, the 13th inst., says the Napanee Beaver, Barbara Pringle, daughter of Joseph Pringle, north of Lime Lake, retired to bed in her usual good health, and in the morning she was found dead in bed. She was about 22 or 23 years of age, strong and healthy, and no reason is assigned for her sudden demise.

EAST NORTHUMBERLAND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The annual meeting of the above named Society was held at Hicks' Hotel, Colborne, on Wednesday afternoon of this week. The following gentlemen were elected officers and directors: Thos. Webb, Esq., President; Donald Douglass, Esq., Warkworth, 1st Vice President; Munroe Morden, Esq., Brighton, 2nd Vice President; and Messrs. C. A. Mallory, R. P. Hurlbut, Percy, David Johnson, Seymour, J. P. Abbott, and Wm. Lovitt, Murray, John Armstrong and John W. Jones, Brighton, E. H. Purdy and S. Hinman, Cramahe, Directors. T. N. Scripture, and M. P. Ketchum, Auditors. At a subsequent meeting of the new board, R. P. Hurlbut was appointed Secretary and Wm. Wade Treasurer. The annual exhibition will be held in the village of Brighton.

METHODIST MISSIONS.—The Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of Canada has in the Dominion, Newfoundland, Bermada and Japan, 300 Domestic, 40 Indian, 11 French, 1 German, and 6 Japanese Missions. It employs 394 Missionaries, 17 native Assistants, 32 Teachers, and 9 Interpreters. It gives as the results of these 452 agents, a Church membership on Domestic Missions 30,409, Indian Missions 3,479, French Missions 379, German Missions 120, and Japanese Missions 669—a total of 35,056. It is in connection with a Society doing such a work as this that sermons are to be preached in Bridge Street Methodist Church to-morrow by the Rev. John S. Clarke, of Lindsay; while the Missionary meeting of Monday evening promises to be peculiarly interesting, owing to the presence of the Rev. Thomas Crosby, who has been for fourteen years a Missionary amongst the Indians of British Columbia, and whose labors have been crowned with marked success.

PETITION FROM THE FIRE BRIGADE.—A meeting of the Fire Brigade was held last night and was largely attended by the members of the three companies. The question of the City's annual grant to the Brigade was discussed, and the universal opinion among the members was found to be that the grant is ridiculously inadequate as a remuneration to the Brigade for the services performed throughout the year. A resolution was unanimously carried to the effect that the Brigade petition the City Council on Monday night, praying for an additional annual grant of $100 to each of the three companies, and an annual grant of $100 to the Assistant Chief Engineer. Each of the companies is now in receipt of $200 a year, which is found to be inadequate to reimburse the members for the actual individual loss entailed upon them on account of attendance at fires. A deputation from the Brigade will wait upon the Council on Monday evening, and press the claim.

THE MAIN FORCE PLAN.—The Toronto Telegram says:—"The plan which is proposed by the organ of the Local Government to follow in regard to the disputed boundary question is for Ontario to assert its rights by taking possession of the territory and turning persons having Dominion land patents off. There is to be a revival of main force. The policy of main force was put in operation once by Mr. McKellar when he was a member of this same Government. He dickered over the purchase of the Model Farm at Guelph, and when he found there was going to be delay in getting it he sent two brawny policemen up to Guelph to take it by main force. The policemen got possession of the farm by getting in through a window. They were collared by the indignant owner and marched off to the police court, whereupon Mr. McKellar came to their rescue. The affair became the laughing-stock of the country."

SCHOOL MATTERS—GILMOUR'S NEW MILL LIT BY THE BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHT.

The majority of our citizens are excited over the recent conduct of several members of the School Board. On Saturday night last, at a special meeting of the Board, a resolution was passed by a member named Cornwall which had for its object the immediate dismissal of Mr. Hicks, the head master of the High School. The motion was passed by a majority of two, and quite a lively discussion ensued. On Monday several members went to the school and endeavored to eject Mr. Hicks, who refused to go. Foiled in this attempt, they then tried to procure a warrant for Mr. Hicks, but the magistrates refused to issue one. On Tuesday morning Mr. Hicks found himself locked out, and as soon as it was known that the school had been closed a good deal of excitement arose, and a requisition was handed in to the Mayor, requesting him to call a public meeting to consider the matter. The meeting will probably be called at an early date, when the whole matter will be laid before the public by those interested.

For several weeks the work at the new Gilmour mill has been done morning and evening by the aid of the Brush electric light, which has proved a great success as well as a large saving to the company, as it only costs about seven cents an hour to light the entire mill. The apparatus consists of what is known as a six light Brush Dynamo Magnetic machine, which is placed in a fireproof apartment at the machine shop and is driven at a speed of 900 revolutions per minute by a special engine of twenty-five horse power. Insulated copper wires conduct the electricity from the machine to the interior of the mill, where connection is made with the lamps, which are six in number each of which consists of two pairs of carbon points, the ends of which are brought within a very short distance of each other, and as soon as the current is turned on, a light of intense brilliancy appears between the points, which consume away slowly under the intense heat, and at the same time are kept at the same distance apart by the peculiar action of the current upon a magnet. As soon as one pair of points are consumed the other pair at once begin to act, so that one lamp will burn for seventeen hours, at the end of which time two pairs of new points have to be put in, which can be done in a few minutes. Three of these lamps are in each of the two stories of the mill, and the effect is well worth a trip from Belleville to witness.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)

An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED TO cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

TOBY TYLER; OR, TEN WEEKS WITH A CIRCUS.

BY JAMES OTIS.

THE FIRST LESSON.

CHAPTER XIV.

MR. CASTLE TEACHES TOBY TO RIDE.

When Toby got within sight of the ring, he was astonished at what he saw. A horse with a broad wooden saddle was being led slowly around the ring; Mr. Castle was standing on one side, with a long whip in his hand, and on the tent pole, which stood in the centre of the ring, was a long arm, from which dangled a lethern belt on a long rope that was carried through the end of the arm, and run down to the base of the pole.

Toby knew well enough why the horse, the whip, and the man were there, but this wooden projection from the tent pole, which looked so much like a gallows, he could not understand at all.

'Come now,' said Mr. Castle, cracking his whip ominously as Toby came in sight, 'why weren't you here before?'

'Mr. Lord has just sent me in,' said Toby, not expecting that his excuse would be received, for they never had been since he had arrived at the height of his ambition by joining the circus.

'Then I'll make Mr. Job understand that I am to have my full hour of your time, and if I don't get it, there'll be trouble between us.'

It would have pleased Toby very well to have had Mr. Castle go out with his long whip just then and make trouble for Mr. Lord; but Mr. Castle had not the time to spare, because of the trouble which he was about to make for Toby, and that he commenced on at once.

'Well, get in here, and don't waste any more time,' he said, sharply.

Toby looked around curiously for a moment, and not understanding exactly what he was expected to get in and do, asked, 'What shall I do?'

'Pull off your boots, coat, and vest.'

Since there was no other course than to ride, Toby wisely concluded that the best thing he could do would be to obey this new master without question; and he began to take his clothes off with as much alacrity as if learning to ride was the one thing upon which he had long set his heart.

Mr. Castle was evidently accustomed to prompt obedience, for he not only took it as a matter of course, but endeavored to hurry Toby in his work of undressing.

With his desire to please, and urged by Mr. Castle's words and ominous shaking of his whip, Toby's preparations were soon made, and he stood before his instructor clad only in his shirt, trousers, and stockings.

The horse was led around to where he stood, and when Mr. Castle held out his hand to help him to mount, Toby jumped up quickly without aid, thereby making a good impression at the start as a willing lad.

'Now,' said his instuctor, as he pulled down the leathern belt which was hung from the rope, and fastened it around Toby's waist, 'stand up in the saddle, and try to stand there. You can't fall, because the rope will keep you up, even if the horse goes out from under you; but it isn't hard work to keep on if you mind what you are about, and if you don't, this whip will help you. Now stand up.'

Toby did as he was bidden, and as the horse was led at a walk, and as he had the long bridle to aid him in keeping his footing, he had no difficulty in standing during the time that the horse went once around the ring; but that was all.

Mr. Castle seemed to think that this was preparation enough for the boy to be able to understand how to ride, and he started the horse into a canter. As might have been expected, Toby lost his balance, the horse went on ahead, and he was left dangling at the end of the rope, very much like a crab that has just been caught by the means of a pole and line.

Toby kicked, waved his hands, and floundered about generally, but all to no purpose, until the horse came round again, and then he made frantic efforts to regain his footing, which efforts were aided—or perhaps it would be more proper to say retarded—by the long lash of Mr. Castle's whip, that played around his legs with merciless severity.

'Stand up! stand up!' cried his instructor, as Toby reeled first to one side and then to the other, now standing erect in the saddle, and now dangling at the end of the rope, with the horse almost out from under him.

This command seemed almost needless, as it was exactly what Toby was trying to do; but as it was given, he struggled all the harder, until it seemed to him that the more he tried, the less did he succeed.

And this first lesson progressed in about the same way until the hour was over, save that now and then Mr. Castle would give him some good advice, but oftener he would twist the long lash of that whip around the boy's legs with such force that Toby believed the skin had been taken entirely off.

It may have been a relief to Mr. Castle when the first lesson was concluded, and it certainly was for Toby, for he had had all the teaching in horsemanship that he wanted, and he thought with deepest sorrow, that this would be of daily occurrence during all the time he remained with the circus.

As he went out of the tent he stopped to speak with his friend the old monkey, and his troubles seemed to have increased when he stood in front of the cage calling 'Mr. Stubbs! Mr. Stubbs!' and the old fellow would not even come down from off the lofty perch where he was engaged in monkey gymnastics with several younger companions. It seemed to him, as he afterwards told Ben, 'as if Mr. Stubbs had gone back on him because he knew that he was in trouble.'

When he went toward the booth, Mr. Lord looked at him around the corner of the canvas—for it seemed to Toby that his employer could look around a square corner with much greater ease than he could straight ahead—with a disagreeable leer in his eye, as though he enjoyed the misery which he knew his little clerk had just undergone.

'Can you ride yet?' he asked, mockingly, as Toby stepped behind the counter to attend to his regular line of business.

Toby made no reply, for he knew that the question was only asked sarcastically, and not through any desire for information. In a few moments Mr. Lord left him to attend to the booth alone, and went into the tent, where Toby rightly conjectured he had gone to question Mr. Castle upon the result of the lesson just given.

That night old Ben asked him how he got on while under the teaching of Mr. Castle, and Toby, knowing that the question was asked because of the real interest which Ben had in his welfare, replied,

'If I was tryin' to learn how to swing round the ring, strapped to a rope, I should say that I got along first-rate; but I don't know much about the horse, for I was only on his back a little while at a time.'

'You'll get over that soon,' said old Ben, patronizingly, as he patted him on the back. 'You remember my words, now; I say that you've got it in you, an' if you've a mind to take hold an' try to learn, you'll come out on the top of the heap yet, an' be one of the smartest riders they've got in this show.'

'I don't want to be a rider,' said Toby, sadly: 'I only want to get back home once more, an' then you'll see how much it'll take to get me away again.'

'Well,' said Ben, quietly, 'be that as it may, while you're here the best thing you can do is to take hold an' get ahead just as fast as you can; it'll make it a mighty sight easier for you while you're with the show, and it won't spoil any of your chances for runnin' away whenever the time comes.'

Toby fully appreciated the truth of that remark, and he assured Ben that he should do all in his power to profit by the instruction given, and to please this new master who had been placed over him.

And with this promise, he lay back on the seat and went to sleep, not to awaken until the preparations were being made for the grand entree into the next town, and Mr. Lord's harsh voice had cried out his name, with no gentle tone, several times.

Toby's first lesson with Mr. Castle was the most pleasant one he had; for after the boy had once been into the ring, his master seemed to expect that he could do everything which he was told to do, and when he failed in any little particular, the long lash of the whip would go curling around his legs or arms, until the little fellow's body and limbs were nearly covered with the blue and black stripes.

For three lessons only was the wooden upright used to support him from falling; after that he was forced to ride standing erect on the broad wooden saddle, or pad, as it is properly called, and whenever he lost his balance and fell, there was no question asked as to whether or not he had hurt himself, but he was mercilessly cut with the whip.

Messrs. Lord and Jacobs gained very much by comparison with Mr. Castle in Toby's mind. He had thought that his lot could not be harder than it was with them; but when he had experienced the pains of two or three of Mr. Castle's lessons in horsemanship, he thought that he would stay with the candy venders all the season cheerfully rather than take fix more lessons of Mr. Castle.

Night after night he fell asleep from the sheer exhaustion of crying, as he had been pouring out his woes in the old monkey's ears, and laying his plans to run away. Now, more than ever, was he anxious to get away, and yet each day was taking him farther from home, and consequently necessitating a larger amount of money with which to start. As old Ben did not give him as much sympathy as Toby thought he ought to give—for the old man, while he would not allow Job Lord to strike the boy if he was near, thought it a necessary portion of the education for Mr. Castle to lash him all he had a mind to—he poured out all his troubles in the old monkey's ears, and kept him with him from the time he ceased work at night until he was obliged to commence again in the morning.

The Skeleton and his wife thought Toby's lot a hard one, and tried by every means in their power to cheer the poor boy. Neither one of them could say to Mr. Castle what they had said to Mr. Lord, for the rider was a far different sort of a person, and one whom they would not be allowed to interfere with in any way. Therefore poor Toby was obliged to bear his troubles and his whipping as best he might, with only the thought to cheer him of the time when he could leave them all by running away.

But despite all his troubles, Toby learned to ride faster than his teacher had expected he would, and in three weeks he found little or no difficulty in standing erect while his horse went around the ring at his fastest gait. After that had been accomplished, his progress was more rapid, and he gave promise of becoming a very good rider—a fact which pleased both Mr. Castle and Mr. Lord very much, as they fancied that in another year Toby would be the source of a very good income to them.

The proprietor of the circus took considerable interest in Toby's instruction, and promised Mr. Castle that Mademoiselle Jeannette and Toby should do an act together in the performance just as soon as the latter was sufficiently advanced. The boy's costume had been changed after he could ride without falling off, and now while he was in the ring he wore the same as that worn by the regular performers.

The little girl had, after it was announced that she and Toby were to perform together, been an attentive observer during the hour that Toby was under Mr. Castle's direction, and she gave him many suggestions that were far more valuable, and quicker to be acted upon, than those given by the teacher himself.

'To-morrow you two will go through the exercise together,' said Mr. Castle to Toby and Ella, at the close of one of Toby's lessons, after he had become so skilful that he could stand with ease on the pad, and even advanced so far that he could jump through a hoop without falling more than twice out of three times.

The little girl appeared highly delighted with this information, and expressed her joy.

'It will be real nice,' she said to Toby, after Mr. Castle had left them alone. 'I can help you lots, and it won't be very long before we can do an act all by ourselves in the performance, and then won't the people clap their hands when we come in!'

'It'll be better for you to-morrow than it will for me,' said Toby, rubbing his legs sorrowfully, still feeling the sting of the whip. 'You see, Mr. Castle won't dare to whip you, an' he'll make it all count on me, 'cause he knows Mr. Lord likes to have him whip me.'

'But I sha'n't make any mistake,' said Ella, confidently, 'and so you won't have to be whipped on my account, and while I am on the horse you can't be whipped, for he couldn't do it without whipping me, so you see you won't get only half as much.'

Toby brightened up a little under the influence of this argument; but his countenance fell again, as he thought that his chances for getting away from the circus were growing less each day.

'You see, I want to get back to Uncle Dan'l an' Guilford,' he said, confidentially; 'I don't want to stay here a single minute.'

Ella opened her eyes wide in astonishment, as she cried: 'Don't want to stay here? Why don't you go home, then?'

''Cause Job Lord won't let me,' said Toby, wondering if it was possible that his little companion did not know exactly what sort of man his master was.

Then he told her, after making her give him all kinds of promises, including the ceremony of crossing her throat, that she would never tell a single soul, that he had had many thoughts, and had formed all kinds of plans for running away. He told her about losing his money, about his friendship for the skeleton and the fat lady, and at last he confided in her that he was intending to take the old monkey with him when he should make the attempt.

She listened with the closest attention, and he told her that his little hoard had now reached the sum of seven dollars and ten cents, almost as much as he had before, she said, eagerly: 'I've got three little gold dollars in my trunk, an' you shall have them all: they're my very own, for mamma gave them to me to do just what I wanted to with them. But I don't see how you can take Mr. Snubbs with you, for that would be stealing.'

'No it wouldn't neither,' said Toby, stoutly. 'Wasn't he give to me to do just as I wanted to with? an' didn't the boss say he was all mine?'

'Oh, I'd forgotten that,' said Ella, thoughtfully; 'I suppose you can take him; but he'll be awfully in the way won't he?'

'No,' said Toby, anxious to say a good word for his pet; 'he always does just as I want him to an' when I tell him what I'm tryin' to do, he'll be as good as anything. But I can't take your dollars.'

'Why not?'

''Cause that wouldn't be right for a boy to let a girl littler than himself help him; I'll wait till I get money emough of my own an' then I'll go.'

'But I want you to take my money too; I want you to have it.'

'No, I can't take it," said Toby, shaking his head resolutely, as he put the golden temptation from him, and then, as a happy thought occured to him, he said, quickly: 'I tell you what to do with your dollars; you keep them till you grow up to be a woman, an' when I'm a man I'll come an' then we'll buy a circus of our own. I think, perhaps, I'd like to be with a circus if I owned one myself. We'll have lots of money an' we can do just what we want to."

The idea seemed to please the little girl, and the two began to lay all sorts of plans for that time when they should be man and woman, have lots of money, and be able to do just as they wanted to.

They had been sitting on the edge of the newly made ring while they were talking, and before they had half finished making plans for the future, one of the attendants came in to put things in order, and they were obliged to leave their seats, she going to the hotel to get ready for the afternoon's performance, and Toby to try to do such work as Mr. Job Lord had laid out for him.

Just ten weeks from the time Toby had first joined the circus, Mr. Castle informed him and Ella that they were to appear in public on the following day. They had been practicing daily, and Toby had become so skilful that both Mr. Castle and Mr. Lord saw that the time had come when he could be made to earn some money from them.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Fellows' Hypophosphities makes an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.

THE AUTUMN OF LIFE.

The old man sits at his cottage door,
In the gleam of the dying day;
His heart is calm as the silent shore,
When the winds have passed away;
His thoughts are still as the fragrant breeze
That whispers of peace to the azure seas.

His is the beauty of earth and air,
The glow of the twilight hours;
He feels that glory everywhere
Is breathing from woodland flowers;
And his heart grows young, though his years are old,
At the wondrous sight of the sunset gold!

For Memory comes with a gentle hand,
And beareth on Fancy's wings
His thoughts to her own immortal land,
Where the Past forever sings
Of joys that brightened the fair days fled,
Ere friendship faded with friends long dead.

And the Past, though sad, for the love that is gone,
Is sweet to the old man's mind;
Like the birds that sang in those years, have flown
The hopes he had left behind:
Yet Memory brings from each bygone day
Some gift of peace for his lonely way!

And the children love that old man dear
As he sits in the twilight there,
Listing a music they cannot hear,
From the sea and voiceful air;
And gather around, like gladsome flowers,
As he tells them tales of the vanquished hours.

And so the Present is made more bright
By the lessons the Past hath taught;
As the East reflects the wondrous light
Of the West, by sunset brought;
And though his vision is growing dim,
God maketh his pathway bright to him.

His age is peace; yet he joys to think
That a deeper than earth can know
Shall be his, when his tranquil soul shall drink
Of a balmier twilight glow.
In that happier Home, where his thoughts at last
Shall yearn no more for the distant Past!

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescrib'ng cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil. R. McKENZIE, M. D.,

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestiible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

BRILLIANT SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH.—Thousands cured of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and lung diseases by Dr. M. These wonderful instruments are used in all first-class hospitals, and prescribed by leading physicians. Full directions for treatment sent letter, by and instruments expressed to any address. It is only since Souvielle's invention that lung diseases are no longer feared until their very last stage. Write for particulars to M. An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)

An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

TRAVELLING UP LAKE MANITOBA IN WINTER—TRADING LIFE IN WINTER—INDIAN DOG TRAINS—EATING AND SLEEPING IN THE OPEN AIR—APPEARANCE AND DANGERS OF THE LAKE—MOOSE AND RED DEER USED AS PRINCIPAL DIET—LOST ON THE LAKE AT NIGHT OUT OF HUMAN REACH—A TRYING EXPERIENCE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

FAIRFORD, Man., Jan'y 11.

I left St. Laurent with Mr. Morrison, of the firm of Morrison & Leroy, trader between Winnipeg and Lakes Manitoba and Winnipegoosis, for the north. We drove to Oak Point, six miles north of St. Laurent, where these gentlemen have a branch store; from there the whole train was made up of forty-three horses, own and single sleighs, manned by ten men, with Paul Chartrand as guide, and Marshall, a good natured old French half-breed, well acquainted with such work, and fully capable of handling a train of almost any size. The sleighs were all engaged to go to Fairford, on Lake Manitoba and Lake St. Martin, to return laden with whitefish for the St. Paul market. Mr. Morrison would like to have had twice that number of teams upon the trip, but they could not be procured—but such as were available he engaged for the round trip. Some were good, and some were not of the most desirable kind; but owing to the scarcity of animals and sleighs, the poorest were acceptable, and hired at the rate of some $2.50 to $3.00 per day, oats, hay, &c., found by the proprietor of the train,—a very good sum to pay for hired help in winter time, considering the quality of the teams. One good team in Ontario would do more in one day than the best team on this train would or could do in four. To see all these rigs together it is rather interesting. The sleighs are all homemade. The work of constructing them requires no mechanical skill whatever. It is all done with a saw, auger and hammer, or rather an axe. The runners of the sleigh are sawn from a natural bend of oak, with a six inch knee made of straight round pegs, and the box is nothing more than a frame of poplar limbs. The horses are rough, small and shaggy, adorned with homemade harness. There were more than one kind of vehicles on the train. They had the flat bottom sled, trained dogs, oxen and horses—a somewhat varied combination. Although not very enticing in its appearance, one could never tire gazing upon it, for when he became fatigued from studying the gait of oxen, he could turn his attention to the dog trains, or amuse himself over the stupid eccentricities of the native ponies. Altogether we had, if not a very stylish outfit, one of quaint peculiarities. Before leaving Oak Point the inhabitants, as it is the practice among them to to their most distinguished citizen and to show their appreciation for his generous and genial manner in dealing among them, they with one accord united in giving two balls in his honor, and as an eye witness I can say that they were both a success and equally enjoyed by both the giver and the receiver, as well as the mis-in-a-ikin-inni, or newspaper man, as they call the stranger from the east.

HALFBREED DANCE.

For a down easter the half-breed dance is one of the most amusing sights that he or she, as the case may be, can witness. Since my arrival in this part of the country, I have been very fortunate. I have seen half-breed life in all its phases, I have seen them when they were doing their shopping. I have seen them worshipping in their churches. I have seen them doing their house work in their own houses. I have seen the female portion of them with skins stretched out upon the parlor floor—or any other name you may give it for the house is generally all one room, it is the Irishman's ideal of a home—

> A parlor, bedroom, hall,
> And duck pond nately done,
> With kitchen, pig-pen, pratey patch,
> And garret all in one.

busily engaged in tanning the dear or moose hide, scraping the bare pelt as hard and as fast as their unyielding muscle will allow them, with sweat oozing from every pore of their bodies, their long shinning black dishevelled hair hanging over their faces and shoulders in the most reckless disorder; they on their hands and knees, with bended back, old and young, working at their very hard task preparing the hide to make moccasins with; a kind of labor that an orninary white man would ask two dollars a day to perform. At the same time while the female portion of them are doing this, the males are lying on their backs, rolling around upon the hides, or huddled in the corners of the room smoking their kini-kinik, believing that as they shot the game they had done their portion of the work. The male is in some instances, a lazy, indolent, sluggish, shiftless, good-for-nothing game hunter; while the female is in every instance a modest, energetic, hard working, but not a very painstaking woman, flinching from nothing in the shape of work, but ready and willing to do all that is required of her, and that is no small portion. In addition to all this heavy class of manual labor that they have to perform, their house work is done very cleanly in every respect, but the cooking. Enter a half-breed house when you will and the woodwork of the place will appear as clean as though the soap-suds had that minute been applied, the stove is shining as if recently polished, no dust or cobwebs noticeable. The little papoose swings in a beaded hammock, swung from the ceiling, and lays as quiet as though instinct taught it that a move one way or the other would be apt to tumple it out of its quiet, but dangerous resting place, and land it in eternity. In contrast to the inward cleanliness of the house, is the indifferent carelessness of the manner in which the women attire themselves. It appears as though their only aim is to have the house as neat as their means and customs will allow them, without any thought of a required neatness upon their part in producing the culminating happiness of a quiet humble home. A taste for pictures is a characteristic of all classes of them. In every house you will see some kind of colored ornaments hanging on the walls. In some instances I have noticed labels off of corn beef cans pasted upon the walls, calenders, attractive advertising circulars, &c.,—and the newspaper, whether they can read it or not, is carefully stowed away by them and never brought to light except when strangers enter—but every family have an unlimited number of religious charts and crucifixes to decorate their benighted homes. They are all very religious and steadfast in their belief, and as a result harmlessness and affability of manner is their peculiarily prominent feature. I have seen them driving out in their own grotesquely made winter sleighs and home manufactured harness. I have seen them and shaken hands with the men in their New Year's calls and as is the custom, I have, I think, kissed every half-breed female, old and young, in the Lake Mountain district. But of all that I have seen among them, the greatest of all sights is the DANCE.

Everybody from the great grandfather to the great grandchild, with all their uncles, aunts and cousins, from the great-relation down to the infant in arms, from the Ogima and Ogimakeve, to the youngest Kwiwisens and Ikwesens all assembled to display their accomplishments in what we call in the east the terpsicorean art. There is in every case five times as many ready dancers as the floor will accommodate, and to witness the eagerness with which each and every one covets the floor would astonish you. The father and mother with their whole family of children will go off to the dance leaving noone home. It was my pleasing privilege to attend one of these gatherings at Oak Point, and did not arrive on the scene until the crowd had all assembled. I found upon entering that the room was dark, dull and dingy in the extreme; I could see the figures of males and females upon the floor making not very graceful movements, and altogether out of time with the music being dispensed by a home made fiddler, it was discord, and collision. The dance was what is considered by all odds the greatest favorite among these people known it is as the "Red River jig" in which the participants put forth always their very best "licks," the action of a young lady in that particular step is rather montonous, a simple jump up and down with both arms dangling at her sides as though they were hung at the shoulder with a wire fastened by an offset as in the case of a "jumping jack" while the preux Chevalier, is all electricity and fire, throwing his face, body, arms and legs, into the most hideous contortions imaginable; the higher he can jump and be in time to the music the smarter he is in the estimation of the by-standers—for there are no seats in the hall except for the violinist. As the excitement increases so does the efforts of the performer to excel. He will double himself up and hop into the air as though shot from a steel trap, place his hand to his mouth and give a yelp; that moment the crowd responds to the noise in a like manner, all set to and shout and in an instant the screeching is deafening; the fiddler beats time upon the floor with his feet, leads the whole crowd in this way and the patter of hard soled moccasins upon the floor reminds one of the racket produced by the slats of a threshing machine going at its best with one hundred and sixty pounds of steam pressure; all this while the children become so excited with the noise that in the corners you will see them at work dancing the jig as though they were being paid for it. With the shouts of applause that ring into the dancer's ears as enthusiastic approval of his masterly attempt to perform with a grace this the favorite dance of the evening, he is goaded on in his exertions until, overcome with exhaustion, he retires amid rounds of howling cheers and covered with perspiration to a seat reserved for him beside the fair one whom he saw fit to accompany to the ball; while the young lady, who has not so difficult a task to perform, continues upon the floor unwilling to step back until completely "done out," and tires from two to three of the gallants, then retires to her seat amid applause, with the eyes of all centred upon her. No sooner does she make the first backward step than there is another ready to take her place, and so this war against flesh and strength continues for an hour or more, when a new dance is called and the scene is changed from this most to something of a tamer character.

EXCITING SCENE

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Daily Intelligencer.
BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, JAN. 23.

His Maiden Speech.

Mr. Alex. Robertson, the able and popular representative of West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature, made his first lengthy speech in that body on the 20th inst. The debate on the address, allowing the discussion a wide range of subjects, affords a good opportunity for young members, and it is apparent, from the summary of the speech furnished by the Mail, that Mr. Robertson's address was an excellent one and will be very satisfactory to his constituents. From the intimations which he gave, it is apparent that the high-handed action of the Government in dismissing the Sheriff and the License Inspector are at length to be ventilated, and, we trust, a full exposure of the trickery and double-dealing of the Government made. We congratulate Mr. Robertson on his successful debut as a Parliamentary speaker.

The Wardenship.

The County Council will meet to-morrow for the purpose of organization, which includes the election of the Warden for the year 1882. There are, so far as we are able to learn, but two candidates, namely Messrs. Robert Gordon and E. D. O'Flynn. Mr. Gordon is not only the abler man of the two, but his claim, as the oldest member of the Council desirous of occupying the position who has not yet done so, cannot very well be passed over, in view of the practice which obtained in the Council until last year, when, owing to a threatened political contest, Mr. Gordon withdrew from the candidature. We hope that, under the circumstances, Mr. Gordon will be elected to the position, for the discharge of the duties of which his ability, his special knowledge of roads and bridges, and his lengthy and successful career as a member of the Township and County Councils especially fit him.

The Ontario Boundary.

We have previously quoted from the Globe of 1876 to show the position of the Grit party at that time with reference to the western boundary of this Province. Mr. Mackenzie, in a speech, made the same year, clearly defined the intention of the Government with regard to the award of the Commissioners. He said:

As soon as the boundary between the Dominion and Ontario is settled in that quarter the probability is Manitoba will have its limits enlarged. The Government of that province has sought to have its boundaries enlarged at the present time, but we felt it would be inconvenient to have this done in the act at the present time without knowing the precise place to where we would go. If the conclusions of the hon. member for Rothwell be correct, Manitoba and most of the North-West Territory will belong to Ontario. As I judge it, a more reasonable conclusion may probably be safely predicted that will send it a considerable distance east of the present boundary.

Strange, is it not, that the argus-eyed guardians of the interests of the Province did not discover in the then Premier's pronunciamento, treason to Ontario! The explanation is easy. They did not want to make a point against their own party. But upon the Grit party must rest the responsibility of having encouraged Manitoba's aspirations for an extension eastward of its boundaries.

Market Fees and Road Tolls.

We have not as yet had the pleasure of reading the Government's bill with regard to market fees, but have seen it stated in several contemporaries that market fees are to be abolished only on condition that the tolls are removed from the roads leading into market towns. This affords some compensation to market towns situated in counties where tolls are still levied on the roads, as it allows the retention of market fees where the roads are not made free. To carry out such a proposition would be to perpetrate an act of monstrous injustice to Belleville. The roads here are free, and although the people of Belleville paid $20,000 for the removal of the tolls, under this proposed Act, as we understand it, market fees must be abolished here. We sincerely hope that such an unjust measure will not pass the Legislature. Its prospects happily seem doubtful, as the representatives of country constituencies do not like the arrangement as to road tolls, and there proves to be very little desire in the country for the abolition of market fees, but if the Government insist their followers will pass it. If the case of Belleville be strongly stated in the Legislature, we should think that, even if the proposed measure should pass, the sense of justice of the members of that body ought to be strong enough to induce them to give to this city a fair amount of compensation for her expenditure on the purchase of gravel roads and the erection of perhaps the best market building in the Province. It is highly desirable that the City Council should, at its meeting to-night, appoint a Committee for the purpose of petitioning the Legislature on the subject, and thus strengthen the hands of our representative in that body.

Otis Hathaway, Esq., 13 Rock street, Fall River, Mass., had a very bad attack of rheumatism, which racked him sorely. Finally he could scarcely move. St. Jacobs Oil was tried, and proved to be the only remedy that did any good. Two weeks' use of it rendered him as chipper and as active as ever.

Editorial Brevities.

It may perhaps please the free-traders to learn that a manufacturing establishment has been closed under the N. P., Mr. Wm. Wilkie, of the Guelph Sewing Machine Company, having made an assignment. It will, however, dampen their joy somewhat to be informed by the Guelph Herald that: "Mr. Wilkie's failure is the result of old troubles incurred previous to the N. P. of 1874 and 1876. A meeting of creditors will be held on the 24th inst., when, as the business has of late years proved a paying one, it is to be hoped an arrangement will be arrived at whereby Mr. Wilkie may resume business."

A contemporary informs us that the "Montreal & Ottawa Forwarding Company has decided to go out of business and liquidate. At the annual meeting, held last week, a resolution to the effect that their fleet of steamers and barges be put up for sale, was carried. The increased competition of late by rail is said to be to prevent the business being continued with any prospect of a fair return upon the capital invested, hence the above action." This does not accord with the anti-N. P. predictions of the Grit press, which were to the effect that the railways would not be able to compete in the grain trade, because of the coal duty.

Of the Pacific Railway land regulations, the Montreal Herald (Opposition), says:—"We see nothing, however, to warrant anxiety on the part of the land buyers, or perplexity on the part of the intending settler. The conditions are so plain that there is no possibility of misunderstanding them, and so easy as to reach all who are likely to prove useful settlers in a new country." Hard on the Globe.

Mr. Drinkwater, Secretary of the Canada Pacific Railway Syndicate, has published a letter explaining the Company's intentions in many important particulars. With a view to commencing the construction of the Rocky Mountain section from both east and west in the opening of 1883, during six months of this year five hundred miles of continuous track will be laid across the prairies. The Thunder Bay Branch will be operated as soon as handed over by the Government; the Pembina Mountain Branch will be open in time to move the coming season's crops, and the Sault Branch will be constructed without delay. As for the Eastern Section, the Company by keeping the line as near the shore of Lake Superior as possible hope to complete speedily several minor sections and open the same for local traffic and obtain through traffic within five years. The Syndicate disclaims any connection with or interest in any railway project east or south of Montreal or west of Perth.

Mr. T. B. Bentley publishes in Saturday's issue of our local contemporary a letter on the subject of the appointment of Auditors by the City Council, which he prefaces by stating that the INTELLIGENCER refused to publish it. This is a misrepresentation, as we offered to publish his letter, provided he excised that portion of it containing a personal attack on an Alderman concerning a matter which took place during the canvass, and not after the election, as Mr. Bentley's letter would make it appear.

Mr. T. W. Casey, Grand Secretary of the I. O. of G. T., has sent to several prominent Reformers here, under cover of his official envelopes, invitations to attend a party demontration to be held in Napanee. This is not the first time that Mr. Casey has used his office for the furtherance of political objects.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly grant me a small space in your valuable paper to contradict the falsehoods contained in an article written by "Hungerford" in the daily Ontario of the 12th inst.? In the first place, there is not one single Reformer less in the employ of the Hungerford Council to-day than there was last year, but one more. In the appointment of Auditors Mr. Patrick Casey was put in the place of Mr. T. McCann, both Roman Catholics and Reformers. In appointing Assessors there were two motions made. Mr. McGowan moved, seconded by Mr. Mouck, that Messrs. J. Finley and J. Thompson be Assessors. It was also moved that Messrs. Samuel Fisher and Michael Lesarge be Assessors. I decided in favor of the former, as I believe every unprejudiced man would have done, as I believe the latter could not have assessed the Township as well. Last year it was Fisher and Thompson (both Conservatives) and no fault was found, so that it was "Hungerford's" own party that wanted to increase their forces; and again, Mr. Lesarge is a defaulter to the Township in nearly one hundred and fifty dollars, which he got in his hands as Collector and never paid over. It would hardly do to employ both again. Then for Road Surveyors it was moved by Mr. McGowan, seconded by Mr. Mouck, that Messrs. J. Brown and M. Lesarge be Road Surveyors—one a Protestant Conservative, the other a Roman Catholic Reformer. It was also moved by Mr. Clare, seconded Mr. F. Murphy, that there be one of each party, which made six. Four of these were Protestant Conservatives and two were Roman Catholic Reformers. I decided in favor of the latter. So you can see what truth there is in "Hungerford's" communication. Against our assessment last year there was not one single appeal, and Mr. Thompson has been Assessor for about ten years, and but two years ago Mr. Murphy moved that Mr. James Finley be one of the Assessors. But, sir, does not "Hungerford's" article sound like the bitter wail of a defeated party, after having made their mightiest efforts? The majority of the people of Hungerford, representing about three-fourths of the assessed value of the Township, have distinctly said at five municipal elections that I was the man of their choice, and some of my warmest friends have been members of the Reform party, Roman Catholics and Protestants. But I think "Hungerford's" object is quite evident. Having failed to keep me out of the Reeveship, after using every means, fair and foul, they are still determined, by the use of wilful misrepresentations and falsehood, to keep me out of the Wardenship, to which position I think I am best entitled, according to the rule which has been observed for some time in the election of Warden. In conclusion let me say the facts I have stated are strictly in accordance with the minutes of the Council, which all who wish can examine for themselves. Apologizing for the length of this communication I remain your obedient servant,

R. GORDON.

Arrival of the Governor-General.

A STORMY VOYAGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 21.—The steamer "Parisian," with the Governor-General and party on board, signalled soon after ten o'clock, reached the dock at the new railway wharf at noon. By that time the news that she was sighted having quickly spread an immense number of people had assembled to witness His Excellency's landing. Those who gathered on the wharf to receive him were General Sir Patrick MacDougall, Lieutenant Governor the Hon. A. G. Archibald, and leading military and civic dignitaries, &c. The gangways had hardly been placed in position when there was a great rush for the steamer's deck. His Excellency, who stood on the harricane deck as the steamer came up the harbor, came forward to receive the greetings of his friends and acquaintances as they stepped on board. The passage of the "Parisian" was an exceedingly stormy one, heavy westerly gales prevailing almost continually. His Excellency, however, suffered very little, spending indeed a considerable part of the time in moving about the ship and making himself agreeable with the other passengers. An hour after arrival at the wharf in company with the Lieutenant-Governor he came on shore and was received by a guard of honor from the 19th Prince of Wales' Own Yorkshire Regiment. As he stepped from the steamer a salute of nineteen guns was fired from the Citadel, the band of the 19th struck up "God Save the Queen," and the crowd around gave him three hearty cheers. His Excellency at once seated himself in the Governor's sleigh, and together, amid great cheering, they drove to Government House and were followed shortly after by the rest of the party.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Double Murder in Nelson Township.

Diabolical Butchery of an Old Man and his Daughter.

Capture and Confession of the Murderer.

(From the Hamilton Times, Jan 21.)

In the misty rain of this morning a Times reporter drove rapidly through Waterdown and right across the country to the little log house where was last night enacted one of those bloody deeds which fortunately are so rare in this fair Province. The house was soon reached. It is a small log cabin, with a frame kitchen at the rear. There is but one story and two rooms in the house. It stands about 200 yards from the road, and is reached by a lane. Across the lane, and not 100 yards from Mahar's house, is the house of Bidwell Sharman, the nearest neighbor. The interior of that little log house presented one of the most terrible scenes of man's depravity that has ever been witnessed. Upon the side floor of the kitchen, it grazed against the head of the old man Edward Mahar, aged 84, who, as one of his neighbors said, never made an enemy in his life.

A TERRIBLE SIGHT.

He lay on the floor on his right side, with both arms upraised and his hands clenched. His head was covered with blood, and behind him was a great pool that had flowed from his wounds. He had all his clothing on, but his feet were bare. His trousers' pockets were turned inside out, but it was found afterwards that this had been done by the coroner, who had arrived early in the morning. The room, a small one, was rather scantily furnished. The bureau, lounge and table were knocked about, and all the drawers of the bureau opened. The floor bore pools of blood in several places, one particularly large one near the lounge. Here it was supposed the girl was struck, and the blood-stained floor showed that she had been dragged into the front room. She lay there on the floor with her hands clenched and her head turned to one side, showin a terrible wound in the neck which had severed the jugular vein, and she must have bled to death almost immediately. The old man had evidently fought hard for his life, as was shown by the disorder in the back room. The body of the girl, who was about 36 years of age, lay over a small trap door in the floor, leading some to believe that she had been dragged into that room from where she had been killed for the purpose of hiding her body. Dr. McGregor, of Waterdown, examined the wounds by the dim light of a coal-oil lamp. Through the windows peered the crowd at the ghastly sight inside. In the front room were two beds, both undisturbed. On one of them lay two blood-stained axes and a table knife. The knife was found close by the body of the girl, as if she had attempted to use it in self-defence. On the same bed was a hand-box containing a bloody pillow-slip and the murderer's hat, which bore the mark of the blow struck by young Mahar. The pillow-slip had been taken from one of the beds, and an attempt had been made with it to staunch the terrible wound in the daughter's neck. All these articles were taken by the police to serve as evidence at the trial of the murderer.

YOUNG MAHAR'S RECITA .

Mahar's story is that he came home last night and saw the lamp burning as he passed along the road. When he reached the side door, the only entrance to the house, the lamp was out. The door was locked, and he called twice to his sister to open it. To this second request the voice of Rourk answered, saying, "I'm here; I'll open it soon enough for you." Rourk opened the door and struck at him with an axe, cutting his hat and the shoulder of his coat, but not wounding him. "My God, Mike, do you mean it?" cried Mahar, striking Rourk with a walking stick of witch-hazel that he had in his hand. He knocked Rourk down and gave him several blows with the stick, taking the axe from him at the same time. The lamp-chimney had fallen off and on to the table, and the light was very dim. Rourk ran off to a house about a mile away, as it was afterwards found. Mahar went to Sharman's and from there to Tuck's. When they returned from Tuck's they got lanterns at Sharman's house and came back to the house of Mahar, finding the terrible work there the party set about tracking the murderer. They followed him as far as the road, tracing the bloody spots on the snow. The stains were visible even to-day. The search was kept up all night without success, Rourk being in a house only about a mile away. He went there directly from Mahar's in his stocking feet and without a hat. At the house to which he went he told this version of the tragedy:

THE MURDERER'S CONTRADICTION.

He said that Patrick Mahar had come home and found his sister on Rourk's knee and that Mahar had struck him and thrown him out. He stayed at the house all night, and was captured there by Detective Gates this morning. The house is occupied by Jerry Howell. Rourk told another story after his arrest. It was that when Patrick Mahar came home and found his sister on Rourk's knee he snatched an axe and struck at him, but, instead of striking Rourk, the old man received the blow. He did not know, he said, whether the old man was killed by that blow, nor did he know anything about the girl. His last story, and the one which is almost undoubtedly true, was a confession of his guilt. He acknowledged to Detective Gates that he had committed the murders, but that he was drunk at the time. About noon to-day the murderer was handed over to County Constable J. W. Henderson, who had a warrant issued by Henry Foster and James Allan, J. P.'s, of Burlington. When his boots were brought he was lifted into another buggy and driven off to Burlington for hearing before the magistrates who had issued the warrant and committal to Milton jail, as the murder took place in Halton County.

Rourk is a man of about 25 years of age, well built, and has red hair and moustache. He is not a vicious looking man, although he does not wear the kindest expression, and as he cowered down on the seat of the constable's buggy one would hardly think that he could have committed such an awful crime.

MOTIVE FOR THE DEED.

His motive for his deed can hardly be explained. It certainly was not money, as the two dollars the old man had were left in his pocket. The daughter is supposed by the doctors to have been criminally outraged, but that point is not definitely settled. Though Rourk was supposed to be a friend of the family and probably would have been admitted if he had rapped at the door, yet from all appearances he selected as one of the windows of the kitchen. The st ins on the door show how he made his exit. He seemed hardly to realize the crime he had committed, as he went only a mile away, and remained there till arrested. He would have been dealt with summarily by the crowd at Mahar's if there had not been a feeling that such a terrible crime would be swiftly punished by the law.

THE INQUEST.

Dr. Richardson, coroner, of Burlington, summoned a jury, who viewed the bodies and the scene of the crime. The inquest was adjourned till Monday at Burlington.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used ROSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to those dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 10c., 600 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day suffering from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in nearly every case. You can have a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of the oil than any other Compound, is so skillfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Cruelty to Animals.

There are scotchies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are dyspeptical. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will engage feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or man? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil in creating down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,
Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.
I am 67 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.
I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been satisfactory, and most beneficial results.
Wishing you a full success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,
P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.:
MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weight has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.
You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

City and Vicinity.

THE City Council will meet this evening.

COUNTY Council meets to-morrow afternoon.

MR. W. F. HALL, Manager of the Napanee Paper Company, passed Sunday in the city.

THREE prisoners and a tramp were sheltered from the cold in the police cells last night.

THE Gas Company intend to expend $6,000 next spring in the purchase of a new purifier.

DR. JAS. MEACHAM, of Dundas, son of J. H. Meacham, Esq., Post-master, is in the city on a visit to his father.

AN entertainment in connection with the Sunday School of Bleecker St. Church will be held to-morrow evening. Gifts are to be distributed to the pupils.

THE Peterboro' Review says that Mr. John Moloney, of that town, has disposed of his grocery business to a gentleman from Belleville, who will open out on Saturday next.

MR. D. PITCEATHLY, who has been confined to his bed by a severe illness for the past three or four weeks, is now pronounced convalescent, and is able to come down stairs.

THE Fire Department of the city will be amply discussed at the meeting of the City Council to-night. And more depends on the result of the discussion than is generally known or supposed.

ON Wednesday night last Mr. Geo. Nutter was stricken with paralysis, and has not since rallied from it. He has been unconscious since Saturday night, and will not probably live through to-night.

SOMETHING was wrong with the heating apparatus of the Central School to-day. The children in some of the rooms had to sit in their cloaks and overcoats this morning, and such as had not cloaks and overcoats had to sit and shiver.

THE Missionary Meeting in Bridge St. Church this evening promises to be very successful. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. Thos. Crosby, returned missionary from British Columbia, and Rev. J. S. Clarke, Chairman of the Lindsay District.

CITY MISSION services this week:—This evening at Mr. J. Hannah's, Moira St. On Tuesday evening at Mrs. Westlake's, Brock St., opposite Mr. W. Reeve's. On Thursday evening at Mr. Covert's store, south Church St. On Friday evening at Mr. Bean's, Station Road, opposite the pottery. All the services at 7:30 o'clock.

THE last Ontario Gazette contains the appointment of Mr. John Williams, of this city, Solicitor of the Supreme Court of Ontario, to be a Notary Public. Also that of Allen D. Steele, of the village of Shannonville, to be Bailiff of the Second Division Court of the County of Hastings, in the room and stead of William B. Lazier, resigned.

ONE of the horses which has been used for drawing No. 1 engine to fires was kicked by another horse last night, and had its left hind leg broken above the hock, thus entirely disabling it. The animal will be taken out and shot this evening. This accident will prove a great loss to Mr. McCoy, the owner of the horse, for it was only last week that he lost another horse, that died of inflammation.

NEXT Thursday is fixed as the date for the curling match between two rinks of the Peterborough Curling Club and two of the Brockville Club for the District Medal of the R. C. C. C. The match will take place in Belleville, and D. Pitceathly, Esq., has been appointed umpire, but it is not probable that he will be able to act, having just risen from a sick-bed. Play will commence at 1 p. m., 25 ends.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 23.—Lakes, northwesterly to northerly winds, fine, very cold weather, with local falls of snow. The temperature will fall lower to-night than last night, and will range from 16° below zero in southern Ontario to nearly 40° below zero in northern Ontario.

PERHAPS some of our citizens imagine that they are not liable under the Snow By-law because the sidewalks in front of their premises are covered with ice instead of snow. Let them not lay the flattering unction to their souls. The policemen take a peculiar delight in laying information against those whose sidewalks are miniature rinks. But somehow these informations are a long time in being acted upon.

A DISAPPOINTMENT awaited those who went to Bridge St. Church yesterday with the expectations of hearing missionary sermons from Rev. John S. Clarke. For some reason yet unexplained the reverend gentleman did not arrive on Saturday night, and the pastor of the church, Rev. Dr. Jeffers, was obliged to occupy the pulpit at both services. He preached two excellent sermons, both touching on the missionary cause.

THERE are conflicting reports as to the state of the temperature last night and this morning. Shortly before 8 o'clock this morning Mr. D. Ackerill's thermometer registered 22° below zero. Hon. L. Wallbridge's thermometer is self-registering, and the lowest point registered by it during the night was 14° below. The official report, given us by Prof. Dawson, is 20° below as the lowest point to which the mercury sank. The mercury has kept about zero all day.

AT the Police Court this morning, Philip Murdoff and H. Swan were charged with vagrancy. The former was discharged and the latter remanded for a week. Wm. McGregor, convicted of the larceny of a woollen scarf, was sent to gaol for a week. Geo. Moffat, a drunk, was sent to gaol for a week. Wm. Francisco, charged with pointing a revolver at M. F. Palmer, was fined $20, and forfeited his deadly weapon—which was much more formidable as a missile than as a fire-arm.

ORONHYATEKHA, that famous descendant of the noble aboriginal denizens of the Canadian forest, has added another handle to his name, and has taken another secret society under his protection. We read in a London paper of "Sir Knight Dr. Oronhyatekha, Deputy Grand Master of the Sovereign Sanctuary of the Ancient and Accepted Egyptain Rite of Memphis, sitting in the Valley of Canada, instituting a chapter of this beautiful rite in Port Rowan." There are those in Belleville who have such a passion for secret societies that they will never rest until they have fathomed the mysteries of this new and most ancient order. Life will be a burden to them until they have become Sir Knights in the S. S. of the A. & A. E. R. of M.

WILLIAM YOUNG, hostler at the Windsor House, while driving into the city from Trenton last evening, fell from his rig and struck his head with such violence as to render him senseless. The horse continued its journey and arrived home safely, but Young lay in the road for about half an hour, when he was found by a man named Holmes, and brought back to the city. When he arrived he presented a horrible appearance. The blood flowed from a ghastly cut in his forehead, and froze almost as soon as it was exposed to the air; and icicles of blood hung from his face, beard and hair, and filled the sockets of his eyes. Young is now doing as well as could be expected, though suffering from the deep cut in his forehead, which has been sewed up and dressed by Dr. Murphy.

THE Globe of the 5th inst., in giving an account of a Missionary meeting in that city says:—"Rev. Thomas Crosby, for twenty years a missionary among the Indians of British Columbia, then spoke at some length. He described the condition of the people while in their heathen state, and the practices of the various kinds of conjurors and doctors, afterwards showing the marked change wrought amongst those who had been converted to Christianity. The degradation of the women and the injury done to the natives by whiskey drinking were particularly referred to. The generosity of the Indians and their zeal in promoting Christianity among their people were also noticed. Mr. Crosby related a number of amusing stories and kept the audience in good humor during the whole of his address. He is a very entertaining speaker. After the collection had been taken up Mr. Crosby appeared in the costume of a native chief." The Rev. Mr. Crosby is to address the Missionary meeting in Bridge St. Church to-night.

QUEEN V. POWERS.—A. H. Meyers, Esq., moved before the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas Division at Toronto on Friday, for a fiat to issue a certiorari and habeas corpus to bring up the conviction and the body of the defendant. Refused.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A correspondent sends the following from Chicago, under date of the 20th inst: A sad accident befell a former resident of Belleville, Mr. William Wilson, to-day, at Pullman, (10 miles from Chicago.) While fixing some machinery he became engaged in one of the belts and was carried around a shaft at about 340 revolutions per minute. He was terribly mutilated when dashed down at the feet of a fellow workman. Another, who tried to rescue him, met the same fate. Mr. Wilson was formerly in the employ of Tickell, the furniture manufacturer. He was highly respected by all.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

No article ever attained such unbounded popularity in so short a time as Burdock Blood Bitters, and that too during the existence of countless numbers of widely advertised bitters and blood purifiers. It is evident that this medicine begins its work at once, and leaves no desirable effect unattained.

Fellows' Hypophosphities makes an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.

ANOTHER HORRIBLE MURDER

AN AMARANTH FARMER SHOT DEAD AND HIS RESIDENCE FIRED.

Plunder the Motive.

SHELBURNE, Jan. 22.—John Smith, a quiet and inoffensive citizen of the township of Amaranth, residing about four miles from here, was foully murdered in his own house about six o'clock last night. The unfortunate victim was a bachelor about or over fifty years of age, and usually lived alone; but it happened that when the murder was committed a nephew named Johnny Smith, about fourteen years of age, was with him.

The boy's story is that his uncle and himself, after taking supper together, seated themselves by an open fireplace, and shortly after he heard a report either of a gun or pistol, and the old man fell. He looked towards the window from whence the report came and saw a tall man with a dark mustache. The boy immediately started for the door, which was opposite the window, when the man fired at him, the ball passing through the top of his cap. He ran for dear life towards a neighbor's house, which is quite a distance. After he had run a short distance he looked back and saw the house on fire. He alarmed the neighbors as soon as possible, and returned with them to the burning buidling, and found the old man at the door dead and one leg burned off below the knee. The old man was reputed to have been quite wealthy, and to have kept a large sum hidden about the house. It is not known whether he had any at this time or not. There is no clue to the assassin except what can be gleaned from the boy's story. The greatest excitement prevails, as the old man was universally respected by all who knew him.

Thos. Norton, M.D., Coroner, will hold an inquest to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

J. P. Macmillan, County Crown Attorney, drove up from Orangeville this morning, and is doing all in his power to secure the arrest of the guilty party. The body is in charge of village constable Henderson.

MORNING DESPATCHES

EUROPEAN.

FRENCH POLITICS

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The quarrel between Gambetta and Chamber has been much, if not greatly embittered by Saturday's events. The French press is almost unanimously hostile to the Cabinet.

AMERICAN.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

The World says that the movement for a reciprocity treaty with Mexico is gathering strength.

There is no longer any doubt in the minds of well informed persons in Washington that a change is imminent in the Treasury Department. It may be considered certain that Folger will be transferred to the Supreme Court.

The Herald says the assassin looks haggard and dejected. There is a perceptible change in his appearance. Porter expects to finish his address on Tuesday, and thereupon the Court will consume an hour and a half in charging the jury.

The Sun says that a new term of the Court begins to-day. Guiteau, if convicted, cannot be hung until thirty days after the end of the next term, which ordinarily would end about June 1st. An experienced lawyer says that Scoville's speech prepared the jury to disbelieve anything that Guiteau might say as to the favorable nature of public opinion.

NEW YORK NOTES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Large quantities of turnips, carrots, onions and celery are expected here from foreign countries during the next few days.

The condition of Clarkson N. Potter was regarded as critical at midnight.

The Times Syracuse special says a life-long friend who spent some time with Folger at Geneva says that the Secretary has no thought of going on the Supreme Court Bench, but is preparing for a thorough reformation of the Treasury Department.

CHICAGO'S POPULATION.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The population of this city, according to the latest statistics, is about 630,000, an increase of 125,000 since the census of 1880.

SUICIDE BY A FEMALE.

NEW COMERSTOWN, Ohio, Jan'y 23.—Mrs. Rebecca Rankin, a wealthy widow, aged 60, fearing she might die in poverty, hanged herself on Saturday night.

FAILURE AT DULUTH.

DULUTH, Minn., January 23.—Campbell & Smith, merchants, have failed on account of a collapse of the Railroad Construction Comp'y, which owed them $36,000.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—The organization of the society of "Blue Anchor" for the benefit and relief of members of the life saving service and American Association of the Red Cross, is attracting much attention here.

The United States is the only great power which has not adopted the articles of the Convention at Geneva, giving free access through their lines in time of war to representatives of the Red Cross, with supplies for the sick and wounded. The early acceptance of these articles by this Government is looked for.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

NORFOLK, Jan. 23.—The str. Palermo, which was rumored lost at Albermarle Sound, arrived this morning, all well.

PUNCH SEIZED IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—The police confiscated the last number of the London Punch, in consequence of a cartoon on the recent Imperial rescript.

MAHOMED JAN EXECUTED.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 23.—It seems certain that the Ameer of Afghanistan has executed Mahomed Jan and several other state prisoners.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Arrived out, the Frisia and the Queen.

THE FRENCH CRISIS.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Gambetta's declaration at Saturday's meeting of the committee on the bill for the revision of the constitution, that should the Congress of the two Houses go beyond the scheme of revision previously adopted by the Senate and Deputies it would place itself in a revolutionary position, requiring the intervention of the President of the Republic, created a great sensation. His opponents construe the matter as conveying a distinct threat.

The Republique Francais seeks to minimize the very bad impression created by explaining that Gambetta, merely meant in the event of the Congress passing an illegal decree, the President would, in accordance with constitutional prerogative, refer it to the Chambers for reconsideration. The Committee on Bills will report to-day. The discussion in the Chambers is expected to begin on Thursday.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Business on the Bourse is almost suspended.

ANOTHER MURDER IN IRELAND.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—A process server was shot dead near Castlereagh, last evening.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. TOUTHWORTH.

'The terrible anguish and excitement she had suffered produced a disastrous effect upon her. She was prematurely confined and became the mother of a very fragile and delicate girl baby. But she never rallied from her illness. She sank surely, though slowly. It was on Monday morning, just one week from the day on which the brave young fellow had lost his life in saving that of my boy, and I was anxiously watching beside your sick-bed, Tudor, when I received a visit from the rector. He had come to ask me to go with him to see the young widow, who was in a dying condition and who had asked to see me. I went with him immediately. When we reached the cottage and entered the sick-room, on the very first glance at the young creature in the bed, I saw death in her pallid face, hollow cheeks and sunken eyes.'

Tudor Hereward moaned.

'Yet she smiled brightly when I approached the bed and bent over her—speechless as upon the first awful occasion of meeting her. I could not speak. She laid her hand upon the babe that was sleeping by her side and looked up into my face with a yearning, pleading, prayerful gaze that was more expressive, more eloquent and overpowering than any words could have been. Then I took her hand. My tongue was loosened, and in a broken voice and with tears that could not be repressed I told her that the child who had been orphaned for my child's sake, should find in me the most devoted father; that I would adopt, rear, and educate, and provide for her, as for my own only daughter—for I had no other. All this I promised Elizabeth Wyvil, and I sealed the promise with the most solemn oath. She was so low that I feared she did not hear me. I stooped and asked her if she understood my promise, to press the hand that I laid in hers. Her pale fingers closed on mine. She looked up, smiled and passed away—so peacefully that I should not have known she was gone had not the old nurse risen and drawn the sheet over the vacant face. I think, that, knowing her babe was well taken care of, she was happy to depart and be with him.'

'Heaven and earth! Two fine lives lost for one frail child! A little family nest broken up in its beginning! The father and the mother gone in their youth! A babe left without a relative in the world to take care of it! Oh, it was a heavy price to pay for one child's life!' exclaimed the young man, with much emotion.

'Yet a life so dear to me that my own life hung on it! So that I could not—Oh, Tudor! how selfish we all are! At least I know how selfish I am. Heaven help me! Yes I did all that I could do. I procured a first-class nurse for the child and brought them both to the hotel to be under Nancy's supervision. I laid the remains of the young wife beside those of her husband in the Cemetery of St. Luke's. I paid all their debts. I distributed the plain furniture among the poor of the village. I had all the letters, papers, photographs, trinkets, and other small personal effects of the young couple, packed into a box and brought away, to be preserved for the future use of the child, thinking that in the years to come, if she should live, she would like to possess these mementoes of the parents she had never known. There were among them a fine double photograph of the young pair, taken, as the endorsement showed, on their wedding-day, presenting the faces of a frank, happy youth and girl. There were other photographs, which, from their resemblance to one or the other of the young couple, must have been family pictures. There were also many packets of letters and clippings from newspapers, neatly tied up together. All these I have carefully preserved up to this day, and shall soon deliver over to their rightful owner. Now, Tudor, my narrative draws to a close. As soon as you were able to travel we returned to Cloud Cliffs, taking the orphan infant with us. I have kept my solemn promise to the dying mother. I have brought up her child as my own daughter. I have had her carefully educated at home. I can do no more for her. When I depart she will be left penniless, homeless, friendless—but for this house and its master, whose shelter and protection she could not accept but upon the conditions I have already named. Come, Tudor, you know what I mean! You know the sacred debt we owe! Now what do you intend to do?" anxiously inquired Major Hereward.

The young man was silent, with his head bowed upon his open hands.

'She is fit to be your wife, Tudor. She is fit to be the wife of any man, of any rank, who is worthy to have her. Come, Tudor!'

Still the young man was silent.

'Then I must tell you her secret. The secret that I surprised from her. The maiden loves you, my son.'

Still no response.

'Lillie loves you, Tudor.'

Dead silence.

'Why do you not answer me, my son?'

'Father,' he said, at length, lifting his handsome head, 'I will marry Lilyth Wyvil if she will accept me. And I will try to make her happy.'

CHAPTER V.

A PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE.

Give thy heart's best treasures;
From fair nature learn;
Give thy love, and ask not,
Wait not a return.
And the more thou spendest
Of thy little store,
With a double bounty
God will give thee more.

A. A. PROCTOR.

When Lilith Wyvil left the sick room, in sore need of food and rest, but still more in need of sleep, she would have gone at once to her bed-chamber, to lie down and dream of the blessedness that she imagined must surely await her as the wife of the one man on earth whom her love and faith had exaggerated into a very king of men.

But as she crossed the hall she was captured by Nancy Skamp, who came out of the front dressing-closet, and stopped her young mistress with blunt words.

'Dar! I jes t'hought how it was gwine to be. Too tired to eat a mouffal. An' gwine to go up sta'rs an' fling yerse'f down on de top o' the bed, wid all yer close on, I dessay. Now I ain't a gwine to pimmit no sich ting. Come right down star's 'long o' me, an' eat some b'eakfas'—b'eakfas' at two o'clock in de arternoon! I call it flyin' in de face of natur.' I do, indeed.'

'I am not the least hungry, Aunt Nancy, but I am very, very sleepy,' gently replied Lilith.

'Wot all dat got to do wid it? All dat makes no deffunce at all. An' I ain't a gwine to listen to no sich dejections. I nussed yer wen yer were nuffin but a little baby. An' I reckon I got de right to have my say inter yer interes'.'

'Indeed, you have, Aunt Nancy,' gratefully responded Lilith.

'Well, den, now listen to me good. Never mine 'bout yer not bein' hunggy. Yer eat, an' yer ap'tite will come to yer. An' yer'll git up yer strent.' But et yer doan eat yer'll get so weak yer can't set up an' nuss de ole marster. An' den wot do ole marster gwine do? Gwine to die for want od popper nussin,' seen people die fo' want of popper nussin.' Deed has I.'

This last argument prevailed with Lilith, and she preceded the servant down stairs to the pleasant sitting-room, where, before the open hickory-wood fire stood a rocking-chair, with a foot-stool below it, and beside it a little round table, covered with a white cloth, and adorned with a silver and china breakfast service for one.

'Now yer set right down dar in dat dar easy-cha'r, and put yer feet to de fire, wile I go an' get yer b'eakfas'—b'eakfas' at two o'clock in de arternoon. I calls it flyin' in de face. I does, indeed,' grumbled Nancy, as she left the room.

Lilith dropped exhausted into the rocking-chair, leaned back, and immediately fell asleep, and dreamed that she stood, dressed in bridal array, beside Tudor Hereward, before the altar of the parish church of St. Joseph's, at Frosthill; that Major Hereward, who had miraculously recovered his health, gave her away, and Tudor was in the act of putting the wedding ring on her finger, when she was rudely awakened—

'Dar now! Wot I tell yer? Let yerse'f run down so low yer can't keep yer eyes open one minute. Wake up, honey, an' eat yer b'eakfas'—b'eakfas' at two o'clock in de arternoon. 'Deed, I calls it Flyin'!'

Lilith started out of her happy dream, to find herself in the rocking-chair before the fire, and Nancy standing beside the table, upon which she had arranged a dainty repast of rich coffee, cream toast, poached eggs, and broiled partridge.

Lilith smiled, thanked her servant, and turned her chair to the table.

She really felt too tired and sleepy to eat but when, to please Nancy, she took a mouthful of the toast, she was surprised to find how very hungry she suddenly became.

And so, to Nancy's great satisfaction, she made a healthy meal. And when she finished it she did not feel nearly so sleepy as she had felt when she had begun it.

And this was well, for her strength was to be further taxed before she was to be permitted to rest.

Nancy took the little breakfast out to the kitchen and returned with an armful of round hickory sticks, which she piled upon the fire, which immediately leaped into a roaring flame.

'It's mighty cold, I tell yer all good, Miss Lilith! An' its a gwine to get a heap colder! Nebber see a colder New Year's Day in all my life!' said the woman, as she stood basking before the blazing fire.

And indeed the aspect of the earth, as seen through the front and side windows of this room, seemed to confirm her words.

For the ground was covered deeply with frozen snow, and all the trees and bushes were sheathed in ice and hung thickly with pendent icicles.

TO BE CONTINUED.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. From St. Laurent to Fairford, Fairford River.

The next dance called was one termed

"DROPS OF BRANDY."

This is considered a second grade step where no such an amount of skill is required to act it off. I could write you a whole sheet of matter describing these dances but I have gone far enough into the subject for this time, and from what I have already said or written, the readers, most of whom I know, will relish this kind of literature from the fact of its being new to them, and slightly in contrast with the description that could be written of a gathering where in the same spirit the art of dancing is entered into, but with more pleasing grace and bewilderingly attractive motion. The art of dancing first originated among the crude savages of the east, but since its origin has been wonderfully improved upon by the more artistic of our fair city to such an extent that its originators, were they living, would not be able to recognize the fruits of their own inventive minds and treacherous feet.

There is to be another assembly to-night of a more pretentious kind than that of last evening, and as I promised the lady who is to give the ball that I would attend, I must keep my word and file an appearance. Great preparations are being made for the reception to be given by Mrs. James Rabby, but I am convinced that it will not vie in grandeur with that given at Brussels by the Duchess of Richmond, where "the beauty and the chivalry of Belgium had with magnetic influence been drawn within the high arches of her palaces to do honor to the Iron Duke on that memorable night before the dawn of that morn when both armies met in open hostility upon the plains of Ligny."—I lived up to my promise and attended the dance, and, to tell the plain truth, I was a little surprised to see upon my arrival such an array of comely dressed women, and a few gentlemen of not a common type. The company was a divided one, that is in caste, there being almost as many whites as half-breeds. A creditable table was spread, to which the company sat down, your correspondent and Mr. Kinniard, Manager of the Hudson Bay Company's post of this place, at the head. During the evening the moinasses, or whites, danced several times in sets at the request of the natives, and all went smoothly on. The most graceful steppers of the evening were Mrs. Alex. McLeod and daughter, who are rare figures upon the floor. The exercises commenced at six o'clock p. m. and lasted until the same hour in the morning. During the night a heavy wind arose, approaching very near to a blizzard. E. Hoard, a young man from Hastings County, and myself took leave of the company four hours before the exercises broke up and walked home to our stopping place, a distance of a mile, through the storm, and to our disappointment found the doors locked with no one at home. After considerable trouble we succeeded in effecting an entrance. Our stopping place was a store. After eating a can of frozen peaches and a few ginger snaps, throwing our buffaloes upon the floor we rolled off to sleep, the wind howling most furiously, penetrating every crack and crevice of the old rickety building, with the snow drifting down the hole in the roof through which the stove pipe projected, the keyholes, worn thresholds bad joints in the doors and windows, and weather-worn apertures in the thatching. So fine was the snow, and so terrifically did the wind blow, that in one hundred and one different directions this unwelcome guest found a way of intruding upon our wonted but disturbed rest. On our way back from the ball my companion, who was some distance behind me, would shout, "Are we on the trail?" My response would be "Yes." "For God's sake don't make a miss or we'll perish." However, we made no miss, but after a hard struggle succeeded in getting under cover, but that is all I can say. Here in this place I met with another illustration of white inhospitality and affected friendliness. In this case the pretending friend was a Dundee Scotchman, whose name I have already mentioned in this letter, and who was, while enjoying the exercises of the evening and at odd times sipping a little of the "crater," very affable. We cracked jokes, quoted poetry, picked flies, and did together what we could to amuse the company as well as ourselves, and finally I asked him a few questions about the country, knowing that he was in a position to favor me in this way, if he felt so disposed. He informed me that he had heard of me being in this part of the country and that he would deem it an exquisite pleasure to sit down and converse for an hour or so with an eastern correspondent, and that such as he possessed in the way of knowledge of this country he would gladly impart to me, and requested me to call upon him in the morning before leaving for the north. This I consented to, and accordingly on the following morning walked a full mile to interview him whom I thought above all would be communicative and whose conversation I could profit by, but to my astonishment, when meeting him according to agreement, I found him as dumb as a mule. Whether it was his nature or whether it was through a reaction of the exhilarating beverage that he had partaken of so freely the night previous, I am at a loss to know. However, this lesson was learned to my satisfaction, never to pay any attention to what a Dundee Scotchman says to you while three sheets in the wind.

THE START.

Everything being in readiness we made a start for Oak Point with our train of forty teams in number, with the expectation of adding to number as we proceeded on our way up the Lake. After traveling for a couple of days we got outside of settlement and had to eat and sleep in the open woods, with but few exceptions, when we would find a deserted half-breed cabin's made vacant by the rise of the water of the Lake. Arriving at Mr. McKay's for dinner, another deserted half-breed shanty, we took possession of it and considered ourselves fortunate in finding a place where we could cook and eat our dinner sheltered from the keen southwest wind which had been blowing hard all morning. Mr. Morrison, who was extremely anxious to reach Fairford that night, made up his mind to take his own horse, and Geo. Monkman, a trader in his employ, and a native of the country, he myself and Monkman would proceed to our destination, a distance of twenty-six miles, over a drifted lake that afternoon, I did not like the move, as I thought, from the experience that I had gained in travelling in this country, that the suggestion was an entirely impracticable one, and that we would find it out to our own discomfort after night would close in upon us, and before morning would dawn; but not wanting to place myself in opposition, and ever ready to see new sights and gain new experience, I donned my overcoat, for the first time in four days and cheerfully, but speculatively set off with my companions for Fairford Our intention was to drive on from where we took dinner to a distance of nearly 13 miles, and then take our supper of "bannock" and tea straight; as soon as this was over with to stand on up the lake without delay, and probably by 12 o'clock midnight, we would be at our journey's end. Of course this was the plan as laid down, but it was not the plan as completed, by any means. Our calculations worked like a charm until we reached Elm Point, the first 13 miles of our travel, and after eating supper we resumed our march just as night set in, and just at this time our difficulties set in also. We found it utterly impossible to drive the horses over the lake after dark—they would wander in spite of our drivers, and to get them off a walk was out of the question. The wind was blowing cold and keen, the thermometer ranging 25° below zero, and drifting the loose snow furiously around the almost smooth surface of the lake. To proceed further seemed the merest folly, and so at five miles north of Elm Point, we put ashore, intending to remain there until the moon should rise, so that by moonlight we would be able to travel on our way, leaving our sleigh out upon the lake. We brought our horses to the edge of the wood, where in the shelter of the wind we tied them. We started a camp fire to keep ourselves warm while remaining idle upon the shore, waiting for the moon to rise. We had neither an almanac or watch among us, and to tell when the moon would rise we were unable to do so, but with patience we awaited its appearance in the east. Whether it rose at 9 or 12 o'clock I am not prepared to say, but this I am fully aware of, that it appeared to me almost a week behind time, and a more tedious ordeal I never underwent, even while waiting upon a wharf for the arrival of a steamboat; and when it did rise it was dull and mellow, old age had written wrinkles on its wasted face and brow, so that the beaming of its countenance was no more radiant than is the pallid face of an uncolored corpse. The sky was very cloudy, and within an hour after we saw the moon rising feebly above the horizon, it had disappeared beneath the clouds; not a star was visible—darkness, obdurate darkness had settled down upon and not even Cynthia itself made the slightest attempt to break its stubborn chain. Sitting around our camp fire with the sparks flying above our heads, our faces almost scorched by its heat, and our backs chilled by the cold frosty air of midnight, anxiously looking for moonlight so that we might pack up and travel without losing the trail, we kept our watchful attention toward the east, peering through the dense forest of massive elm, spruce, and exceptionally large poplar, we saw only for a short time the object of our anxious thought slowly and without any brilliancy whatever rise above the broken fallen timber and pass unconcernedly behind the thick snow clouds never to appear again that night. What was to be done, there we were away from the rest of our party without any preparation for camping out, and with a strange road ahead of us, made dangerous by ice drifts and numerous air holes upon its surface, and not a house or human being within fifteen miles of us, save those of our own train who were far behind us. We had to do one of two things, start out at the risk of losing ourselves upon the broad lake or remain in the wood all night and endeavor to keep warm beside a campfire. We chose the latter, but not until after making a sortie from the shore to see if possibly we could travel with safety, deciding to remain under cover of the trees. We accordingly set ourselves to work fixing the animals for the night, tying our Canadian horse to a tree, and the Shaughnappi to a sleigh containing some hay, a bag of oats and one hundred weight of flour. Returning to the we spread our buffaloes and blankets upon the ground, and in a short time my two companions were fast asleep with their feet turned toward the fire. This slight episode being somewhat new to me, I with the fortitude and resolution becoming a soldier fought valiantly against sleep so long as my nerves held out, but had at last to succumb to the demand of nature.

ELM POINT,

STEEP ROCK POINT,

THE LAKE

CAMP FIRES,

The Halfbreed or the Indian is in point of health the greatest of living conundrums, and how they stand the cold is one of the greatest of all mysteries, as much as I have been among them and seen of them this particular feature of their living is with me a problem as yet. The only clothes they own is what they have upon their back overcoat included. They eat and sleep with all their clothes on. I have never noticed a change, and yet they never grumble about the weather. Our halfbreed companion told me before going to bed not to build much of a fire before retiring, as the heat would be so intense that we could not sleep comfortably. Now his ideas and mine concerning heat differed very materially, so using my own judgement as to what an amount of fire would be necessary to keep us warm in so large a house, before rolling beneath the robes I stacked up a pile of wood that in less than one minute's time disturbed the whole forest with its crackling and illumined the surroundings with its flames so bright that you could, without the aid of spectacles, see to count every rustling leaf and branch for a mile around. As the fire increased in strength so the heat increased in intensity. My companions, awakened by the sudden change in the atmosphere, found themselves enveloped in flames and with such a storm of sparks drifting above their heads that they almost imagined themselves in—I won't say where. Hurriedly picking up their blankets, &c., they, half awake and half asleep, made their way through snow up to their middle to a fallen tree, where they sat down and awaited a change in the atmosphere. While all this sport was being indulged in by my friends I took up a position behind a large tree and listened attentively to the conversation entered into by them; it was not a political discussion, nor did it take a national turn, but more about matters of local interest. I found a very attentive audience for a few minutes, then unable to hold my silence any longer came upon them from a distance and joined them in an agreeable chat which ended in all three of us returning to the fire and falling asleep. We slept with overcoats, caps and mitts on; our feet facing the fire to prevent them from freezing, with buffaloes over our heads so as to prevent the slightest part of ourselves from exposure to the air. During the night my head became uncovered and at a very early hour of the morning I awakened with a shiver, my nose extremely cold, I arose, rebuilt the fire and spread a piece of canvas across a few trees to break the wind, placing a pair of stakes in the deep snow to act as supports I hung my overcoat upon them, taking this as a break-wind and sitting beneath its shelter and by the glare of the burning embers wrote the account of our nights experience in the timber forest of the newly annexed part of Manitoba Province. During the night our Canadian horse had a violent attack of some sort of sickness, which we thought would render him useless, while the Shaughanappi made sad havoc of the oats and flour. Instead of reaching Fairford that night we arrived the following morning after sunrise, after

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JAN. 24.

In a Bad Way.

The Reform party in West Hastings is in a bad way, and not without reason. The trouble commenced in 1878, when the Mackenzie Government, after being defeated at the polls, passed over the party's nominee for the Collectorship of Customs and appointed the nominee of Col. Brown, M. P., who marked his gratitude to his new friends in this manner. Next came the License Inspectorship, the proceedings in connection with which disgusted not a few of the faithful. Finally, the appointment of the present incumbent of the Shrivalty, after a certain "prominent Reformer" had held several midnight seances with an informer in getting up evidence with which to displace the then occupant of the coveted position, and after the success of that labor, successfully packing a meeting of the Reform Association—which was so notoriously packed that the President left the chair and took steps to block the game—to recommend him as the candidate of the Association for the position. Those occurrences, to which may be added the dispute over the promise to Mr. P. O'Brien of the office of Deputy Sheriff—which has not yet been redeemed—and the appointment of Dr. Murphy as Physician to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, have completely disorganised the party in West Hastings. The adherents of the party know not whom to trust. Their member deceived them; Mr. Mackenzie refused to accede to their demands; Mr. Mowat made appointments which were highly unacceptable to a large number of his Belleville supporters; and Mr. Frazer has failed to redeem his promise to Mr. O'Brien. With the object of evolving order out of this chaos, a meeting of the party was held at Col. Brown's house on Thursday evening last, when Mr. Paterson, the thundering orator who sits in the Commons for South Brant, spent two mortal hours in trying to smooth down the bristles of the angered ones.

The unsatisfactory and disorganized condition of the party formed, we understand, the subject of a slashing speech by Mr. S. B. Burdett at the same meeting. Mr. Burdett told his hearers some very unpalatable home-truths and sketched the characteristics of some of the prominent members of his party in Belleville in a manner which was more truthful and forcible than flattering to the objects of his discomfiture. Mr. Burdett is entitled to credit for his courage and candor, and his criticism, as coming from within the party, is more forcible than that of a political opponent could be. There are other Reformers—very many in number—who share Mr. Burdett's opinions, and hence the outlook of the Grit party in West Hastings is of the very bluest kind. When the next test of strength takes place, the effect of the present state of affairs will be made manifest, despite the efforts of "our member" and his long-winded friend from Brantford, who evidently places a very low estimate on the intellectual capabilities of the Reformers here by the length of time which he spent in endeavoring to instruct them in their political duties. The party grievances are too serious to be smoothed over, unless there were a fair prospect of success at the polls, and that is not within the bounds of probability.

Editorial Brevities.

The Whig attempts to discuss the subject of the circulars issued by Mr. Blake and by the Conservative party respectively. The following brief extract affords a fair sample of the profound knowledge and critical and literary ability which our contemporary brings to bear on the matter:—"Mr. Blake's circular is a really harmless document, not sensational and censurable as was that issued by the great party leaders in convention assembled."

The Globe tells the farmers that the N.P. decreases the price of everything that they have to sell, and commiserates the working man, because, owing to the duty on coal, the wood which he has to purchase from the farmer is increased in price. How beautifully these assertions of the organ coincide!

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all sedentary work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rose cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Utica Recorder.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council met last evening, His Worship the Mayor in the chair.

PRESENT.—Aldermen Diamond, Smith, Mason, Dickson, Dunnet, Vandusen, Blair, Brignall, McIntosh, Starling, Tickell, Lingham, Durand, Clarke, Petrie, Larochе, Watson, Taylor.

COMMUNICATIONS, &c,

The following were read:—

From Mary Kenny, asking for remission of her taxes.

From the fire brigade, asking for an increase of $100 in the annual grant to each of the three companies and that the Assistant Chief be granted a salary of $100 per annum.

From Mrs. Pine, asking for remission of her taxes for 1881.

From the stokers of Nos. 1 and 2 steam fire engines, asking for an annual salary of $100 each, instead of $50, as recommended by the Fire Committee.

From the Woman's Christian Association, asking for the annual grant of $30.—Laid on the table.

From the Secretary of the Eastern Dairyman's Association, asking for the use of the City Hall for the Convention to be held in February.—Laid on the table.

From Thos. Cheevers, asking for remission of taxation.

From Jas. Craig, asking further time in which to pay his taxes.

REPORTS.

Ald. Diamond reported briefly on behalf of the Ferry Committee. The other standing Committees reported.

The Solicitor read the correspondence between himself and the Provincial Government with reference to the Ferry question. The letter from the Assistant Provincial Secretary inclosed a copy of a petition from the Ameliasburg Council asking that exclusive license be granted to them to run a ferry between Wilkinsville (Ferry Point) and the city. The Solicitor's reply to that of the Assistant Secretary set forth the expenditure which had been made by the City for ferriage in the past, and stated that the City was willing to put a much larger ferry on the route than those running at present; and also that, if it be considered undesirable to grant the City an exclusive license, the City would not be adverse to take a license to both the Township and City.

The Solicitor also read a communication from the Commissioner of Crown Lands, stating that the Government would refuse to allow the patent for the old Hospital Lot to be issued until the terms of the Act of 1851 are complied with. [The Act in question provides that so soon as the City procures a lot suitable for the erection of a Hospital, the patent for the old lot shall be handed over to the City.]

NOTICES.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion for the appointment of a Committee to meet with the County Council to consider the terms of the amalgamation of the G. J. Railway with other railways, the Committee to consist of Ald. Diamond, Smith, Dunnet, Frost, and the mover.

Ald. Petrie gave notice of a motion providing for the appropriation of $1,000 for the sinking an artesian well.

Ald. Starling gave notice of a By-law for the watering of certain streets.

BY-LAWS

Ald. Dickson introduced a By-law providing for the exemption from taxation of iron and steel works within the limits of the city for a period of ten years.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Dickson moved the resolution with reference to the appointment of a Committee to wait upon the County Council, of which he had given notice—the rule being suspended to allow the motion to be introduced. Ald. Dickson said that he would not say that the amalgamation of the G. J. R. with other railways would be disadvantageous to the city, but he thought that, inasmuch as the terms of the amalgamation were not known, and inasmuch as both the City and the County were largely interested in the railway (having invested large sums of money in it) and their interests were identical,—he thought it desirable that the City and County should know how their interests are to be affected by the proposed amalgamation.

The motion was carried appointing Ald. Diamond, Smith, Dunnet, Frost and the mover.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Solicitor be instructed to proceed against the Collector and his sureties for the amount of the uncollected taxes of 1879—the motion not to take effect for a month.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion providing for the appointment of a special Industrial Committee.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion providing that the Council petition the Ontario Legislature to the effect that municipalities be empowered to pass a By-law providing that no person could be eligible to sit in the municipal Council if there are any taxes standing against him on the day of nomination, also a By-law providing for the compulsory planting of shade trees in public streets; also that municipalities be empowered to have their assessment made between the 1st of February and the 1st of July.

BY-LAWS.

Council went into committee on By-laws, Ald. Diamond in the chair.

The Fire Limits By-law, providing that no wooden building be erected within the fire limits of the city, was considered.

The By-law was passed without opposition and the Committee rose and reported.

The By-law was referred to the By-law Committee.

Ald. Dickson read the opinion of the Solicitor, to effect that Council had no power to directly reduce or remit the taxes of any one. The Court of Revision alone had that power—and even the Court of Revision did not possess the power unless empowered by a By-law passed by the Council.

Ald. Taylor (Chairman of the Court of Revision) gave notice of a By-law providing for the remission and reduction of taxes in accordance with the statute.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means, Ald. Dunnet in the chair.

The report of the Finance Committee was taken up and passed with a slight amendment.

The report of the Market Committee was passed, with the exception of an account which was referred back for the proper voucher.

The remainder of the reports were passed.

The petition of the W. C. Association for the payment of the annual grant of $300 being read,

Ald. Diamond asked whether it was not the understanding that the Association would not ask for the $300 grant if the City purchased a Hospital site?

Ald. Vandusen moved that the prayer of the petition be granted.

Ald. Dickson said it would be irregular at present to make the grant exclusively for the Home of the Friendless, as the estimates were not yet prepared. However, the grant could be made with the understanding that the money should be expended under the ordinary expenditure for poor and sanitary purposes. With reference to Ald. Diamond's question, he said that, though there might be an understanding to the effect mentioned by Ald. Diamond, no definite arrangement was made. Ald. Dickson gave a brief resume of the history of the relations of the City and W. C. Association with regard to a Hospital site. The Association at first asked the city to purchase 3½ acres from Mr. Phillips, which Mr. Langmuir had said was suitable, but he advised them to buy one acre more in front. The 3½ acres could be had for $1,530; the one acre would cost $1,350 more, or $3,000 in all. The Council agreed to buy a suitable site, providing the Government would grant the old Hospital Lot to the city, and he, as Chairman, at once, and more than eight weeks ago, notified the Department, asking them to inspect the proposed sites, and although he and the late Mayor urged such inspection, it was not until the Friday before the organization of this Council that the Government sent an officer, Dr. O'Reilly, to inspect those sites, and he had not yet reported to this Council his opinion in writing. While inspecting, Dr. O'Reilly said he thought the Government intended that the City should not only purchase a site, but also pay the difference between what was paid for it and the value of the old Hospital Lot—in other words, we would have to buy the old Hospital Lot at a valuation. In the presence of many witnesses Dr. O'Reilly said that, irrespective of price, the Kelly lot was the most suitable site of the four which he had inspected; the second one in his estimation was the Phillips lot, and the third was the Flint property. Any one of these three sites, he had pronounced suitable. The Kelly lot could be purchased by the City for $1,500, he stated this on the authority of Ald. Diamond, the Phillips property for $3,000, and the Flint lot (8½ acres) for $2,650, or half the same property for $1,325. The solicitor had written to the Government stating that the City would purchase any of these three sites. He (the speaker) claimed that it would be mere folly for the City to buy the Philips property for $3,000 when the property which the Inspector had pronounced most suitable could be purchased for $1,500. He claimed that so soon as the City purchased this site the terms of the Act of 1851 would be complied with, and the City could with justice demand the patent of the old Hospital Lot. The Government, however, wished to make the provision that the difference in the prices which would be paid for the new lot and the value of the old lot should go towards the erection of a hospital. He declared that this was unjust. The Council was willing to purchase a new Hospital Lot, but he did not think that after the provisions of the Act of 1851 had been fully complied with, the City should have the Hospital Lot forcibly taken out of its possession. This Council he felt would indorse the action of the Council of last year and purchase a suitable site for a hospital if the Ontario Government would convey to the City the old hospital lot but we could not afford to buy that lot at a valuation.

Ald. Diamond moved in amendment that the matter of the annual grant to the W. C. Association be left in abeyance for the present, but that the sum of $300 be placed in the hands of the Association, in conjunction with the Poor and Sanitary Committee, for the poor of the city.

Ald. Vandusen withdrew his motion, and Ald. Diamond's motion was carried.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Solicitor be instructed to communicate with the Government asking what time it will be convenient for the Government to receive a deputation from the City in order to hear matters in which the City is interested.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved his resolution providing that the Ontario Legislature be petitioned with reference to the different matters already mentioned.

The motion was carried clause by clause.

The first clause, providing that power be given to municipalities to pass a By-law disqualifying all who have not paid their taxes up to the day of nomination from sitting in the Municipal Council, was passed.

Ald. Diamond opposed the second clause, asking that municipalities be empowered to compel the placing of shade trees along streets. He claimed that it was not right to compel citizens to plant shade trees, whether they liked it or not.

Ald. Dickson pointed out that the law giving the municipalities power to pass such a By-law, would be permissive, and each municipality would legislate in the interests of its citizens.

The clause was passed.

The third clause, with reference to the assessment of municipalities taking place between the 1st of Feb., and the 1st of July, was passed.

Ald. Dickson moved that the request of the Secretary of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, for the use of the City Hall for the Convention to be held in February, be granted.—Carried.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Ald. Tickell gave notice of a motion providing that the City Solicitor make application to the Dominion Government for a charter for the construction of a bridge across the Bay of Quinte, connecting the city with the Township of Ameliasburg.

Copies of the correspondence between the Solicitor and Provincial Secretary will be given in a subsequent issue.

Council adjourned.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

THE DOUBLE MURDER.

Full Confession by the Accused.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

(From the Hamilton Times, Jan. 23.)

The Times' story of the Nelson murder and the arrest of the murderer closed on Saturday at the taking of Rourk to Burlington to be committed for trial at Milton.

The prisoner was brought before a Bench of magistrates composed of Mgistrates Foster, Allen and Thomas. Patrick Mahar told the story of the murder, as related in Saturday's paper. The evidence of the Chief of Police followed. He described the capture of Rourk and taking him to Burlington. While at Walsh's Hotel there he intimated to Chief Stewart that he would tell the whole truth. He was immediately warned that he was not obliged to make any statement, and that anything he might say would be taken down and probably be used against him. The prisoner persisted, and Chief Stewart got paper, and in presence of witnesses he made a confession, of which the substance is as follows:

PRISONER'S CONFESSION.

I know I will die for what I have done, and being now perfectly cool I am willing to tell the truth and I will tell the whole story. I have been working for Pat. Mahar, and boarding there, but I left on Friday morning. That evening I went back with the intention of picking a quarrel and hitting the old man. I didn't care what happened. I felt I had to do it. When I arrived at the door of the house it was nearly 10 o'clock at night. I met Bridget, who had been out. She approached the door by one side of the house, while I came round by the other. I suppose she was frightened at seeing a man, and she screamed and ran screaming into the house. I followed her, and as I got in at the door I was met by the old man with a stick in his hand. He made a blow at me, which missed. I seized one of the two axes lying near the door, and struck the old man a blow. Bridget still screaming cried out not to hurt the old man, and when she seen him fall she seized the other axe and at the same time fastened her arms around me. For several minutes a death struggle took place. At last I got my arms free, raised the axe and struck her an awful blow on the left side of her face, on the jaw. She fell, covered with blood, almost on the spot where her father was lying. She staggered up again and managed to crawl into the inner room, where I heard her again fall heavily. Once she groaned and said, 'I am killed,' and that is all she said after I struck her. I positively only struck two blows, hitting the old man once and Bridget once. I did not follow Bridget into the inner room, and did not outrage her person before or after she fell, or at any other time. After she fell in the inner room I was about to leave the house, and was just about dropping the axe when Pat Mahar entered the room. To save myself I made a lounge at Pat with the axe, and cut his hat, but did not hurt him. I had been drinking a little, but was not at all drunk.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JAN. 24.

In a Bad Way.

The Reform party in West Hastings is in a bad way, and not without reason. The trouble commenced in 1878, when the Mackenzie Government, after being defeated at the polls, passed over the party's nominee for the Collectorship of Customs and appointed the nominee of Col. Brown, M. P., who marked his gratitude to his new friends in this manner. Next came the License Inspectorship, the proceedings in connection with which disgusted not a few of the faithful. Finally, the appointment of the present incumbent of the Sheriffalty, after a certain "prominent Reformer" had held several midnight seances with an informer in getting up evidence with which to displace the then occupant of the coveted position, and after the success of that labor, successfully packing a meeting of the Reform Association—which was so notoriously packed that the President left the chair and took steps to block the game—to recommend him as the candidate of the Association for that position. These occurrences, to which may be added the dispute over the promise to Mr. P. O'Brien of the office of Deputy Sheriff—which has not yet been redeemed—and the appointment of Dr. Murphy as Physician to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, have completely disorganized the party in West Hastings. The adherents of the party know not whom to trust. Their member deceived them; Mr. Mackenzie refused to accede to their demands; Mr. Mowat made appointments which were highly unacceptable to a large number of his Belleville supporters; and Mr. Fraser has failed to redeem his promise to Mr. O'Brien. With the object of evolving order out of this chaos, a meeting of the party was held at Col. Brown's house on Thursday evening last, when Mr. Paterson, the ex-Reform orator who sits in the Commons for South Brant, spent two mortal hours in trying to smooth down the bristles of the angered ones.

The unsatisfactory and disorganized condition of the party formed, we understand, the subject of a slashing speech by Mr. S. B. Burdett at the same meeting. Mr. Burdett told his hearers some very unpalatable home-truths and sketched the characteristics of some of the prominent members of his party in Belleville in a manner which was more truthful and forcible, than flattering to the objects of his attentions. Mr. Burdett is entitled to credit for his courage and candor, and his criticism, as coming from within the party, is more forcible than that of a political opponent could be. There are other Reformers—very many in number—who share Mr. Burdett's opinions, and hence the outlook of the Grit party in West Hastings is of the very blackest kind. When the next test of strength takes place, the effect of the present state of affairs will be made manifest, despite the efforts of "our member" and his long-winded friend from Brantford, who evidently places a very low estimate on the intellectual capabilities of the Reformers here by the length of time which he spent in endeavoring to instruct them in their political duties. The party grievances are too serious to be smoothed over, unless there were a fair prospect of success at the polls, and that is not within the bounds of probability.

Editorial Brevities.

The Whig attempts to discuss the subject of the circulars issued by Mr. Blake and by the Conservative party respectively. The following brief extract affords a fair sample of the profound knowledge and critical and literary ability which our contemporary brings to bear on the matter:—"Mr. Blake's circular is a really harmless document, not sensational and censurable as was that issued by the great party leaders in convention assembled."

The Globe tells the farmers that the N.P. decreases the price of everything that they have to sell, and commiserates the working man, because, owing to the duty on coal, the wood which he has to purchase from the farmer is increased in price. How beautifully these assertions of the organ coincide!

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them, unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Canadian Recorder.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively restore her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

Rejoice.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. I. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council met last evening, His Worship the Mayor in the chair.

PRESENT.—Aldermen Diamond, Smith, Mascon, Dickson, Dunnet, Vandusen, Blair, Brignall, McIntosh, Starling, Tickell, Lingham, Durand, Clarke, Petrie, Larochе, Watson, Taylor.

COMMUNICATIONS, &c.

The following were read:—

From Mary Kenny, asking for remission of her taxes.

From the hre brigade, asking for an increase of $100 in the annual grant to each of the three companies and that the Assistant Chief be granted a salary of $100 per annum.

From Mrs. Pine, asking for remission of her taxes for 1881.

From the stokers of Nos. 1 and 2 steam fire engines, asking for an annual salary of $100 each, instead of $50, as recommended by the Fire Committee.

From the Woman's Christian Association, asking for the annual grant of $300.—Laid on the table.

From the Secretary of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, asking for the use of the City Hall for the Convention to be held in February—Laid on the table.

From Thos. Cheevers, asking for remission of taxation.

From Jas. Craig, asking further time in which to pay h's taxes.

REPORTS.

Ald. Diamond reported briefly on behalf of the Ferry Committee. The other standing Committees reported.

The Solicitor read the correspondence between himself and the Provincial Government with reference to the Ferry question. The letter from the Assistant Provincial Secretary inclosed a copy of a petition from the Ameliasburg Council asking that exclusive license be granted to them to run a ferry between Wilkinsville (Ferry Point) and the city. The Solicitor's reply to that of the Assistant Secretary set forth the expenditure which had been made by the City for ferriage in the past, and stated that the City was willing to put a much larger ferry on the route than those running at present; and also that, if it be considered undesirable to grant the City an exclusive license, the City would not be adverse to take a license to both the Township and City.

The Solicitor also read a communication from the Commissioner of Crown Lands, stating that the Government would refuse to allow the patent for the old Hospital Lot to be issued until the terms of the Act of 1851 are complied with. [The Act in question provides that so soon as the City procures a lot suitable for the erection of a Hospital, the patent for the old lot shall be handed over to the City.]

NOTICES.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion for the appointment of a Committee to meet with the County Council to consider the terms of the amalgamation of the G. J. Railway with other railways, the Committee to consist of Ald. Diamond, Smith, Dunnet, Frost, and the mover.

Ald. Petrie gave notice of a motion providing for the appropriation of $1,000 for the sinking an artesian well.

Ald. Starling gave notice of a By-law for the watering of certain streets.

BY-LAWS

Ald. Dickson introduced a By-law providing for the exemption from taxation of iron and steel works within the limits of the city for a period of ten years.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Dickson moved the resolution with reference to the appointment of a Committee to wait upon the County Council, of which he had given notice—the rule being suspended to allow the motion to be introduced. Ald. Dickson said that he would not say that the amalgamation of the G. J. R. with other railways would be disadvantageous to the city, but he thought that, inasmuch as the terms of the amalgamation were not known, and inasmuch as both the City and the County were largely interested in the railway (having invested large sums of money in it) and their interests were identical,—he thought it desirable that the City and County should know how their interests are to be affected by the proposed amalgamation.

The motion was carried appointing Ald. Diamond, Smith, Dunnet, Frost and the mover.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Solicitor be instructed to proceed against the Collector and his sureties for the amount of the uncollected taxes of 1879—the motion not to take effect for a month.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion providing for the appointment of a special Industrial Committee.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a motion providing that the Council petition the Ontario Legislature to the effect that municipalities be empowered to pass a By-law providing that no person could be eligible to sit in the municipal Council if there are any taxes standing against him on the day of nomination, also a By-law providing for the compulsory planting of shade trees in public streets; also that municipalities be empowered to have their assessment made between the 1st of February and the 1st of July.

BY-LAWS.

Council went into committee on By-laws, Ald. Diamond in the chair.

The Fire Limits By-law, providing that no wooden building be erected within the fire limits of the city, was considered.

The By-law was passed without opposition and the Committee rose and reported.

The By-law was referred to the By-law Committee.

Ald. Dickson read the opinion of the Solicitor, to effect that Council had no power to directly reduce or remit the taxes of any one. The Court of Revision alone had that power—and even the Court of Revision did not possess the power unless empowered by a By-law passed by the Council.

Ald. Taylor (Chairman of the Court of Revision) gave notice of a By-law providing for the remission and reduction of taxes in accordance with the statute.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means, Ald. Dunnet in the chair.

The report of the Finance Committee was taken up and passed with a slight amendment.

The report of the Market Committee was passed, with the exception of an account which was referred back for the proper voucher.

The remainder of the reports were passed.

The petition of the W. C. Association for the payment of the annual grant of $300 being read,

Ald. Diamond asked whether it was not the understanding that the Association would not ask for the $300 grant if the City purchased a Hospital site?

Ald. Vandusen moved that the prayer of the petition be granted.

Ald. Dickson said it would be irregular at present to make the grant exclusively for the Home of the Friendless, as the estimates were not yet prepared. However, the grant could be made with the understanding that the money should be expended under the ordinary expenditure for poor and sanitary purposes. With reference to Ald. Diamond's question, he said that, though there might be an understanding to the effect mentioned by Ald. Diamond, no definite arrangement was made. Ald. Dickson gave a brief resume of the history of the relations of the City and W. C. Association with regard to a Hospital site. The Association at first asked the city to purchase 3½ acres from Mr. Phillips, which Mr. Langmuir had said was suitable, but he advised them to buy one acre more in front. The 3½ acres could be had for $1,650; the one acre would cost $1,350 more, or $3,000 in all. The Council agreed to buy a suitable site, providing the Government would grant the old Hospital Lot to the city, and he, as Chairman, at once, and more than eight weeks ago, notified the Department, asking them to inspect the proposed sites, and although he and the late Mayor urged such inspection, it was not until the Friday before the organization of this Council that the Government sent an officer, Dr. O'Reilly, to inspect those sites, and he had not yet reported to this Council his opinion in writing. While inspecting, Dr. O'Reilly said he thought the Government intended that the City should not only purchase a site, but also pay the difference between what was paid for it and the value of the old Hospital Lot—in other words, we would have to buy the old Hospital Lot at a valuation. In the presence of many witnesses Dr. O'Reilly said that, irrespective of price, the Kelly lot was the most suitable site of the four which he had inspected; the second one in his estimation was the Phillips lot, and the third was the Flint property. Any one of these three sites, he had pronounced suitable. The Kelly lot could be purchased by the City for $1,500, he stated this on the authority of Ald. Diamond, the Phillips property for $3,000, and the Flint lot (3½ acres) for $2,650, or half the same property for $1,325. The Solicitor had written to the Government stating that the City would purchase any of those three sites. He (the speaker) claimed that it would be mere folly for the City to buy the Phillips property for $3,000 when the property which the Inspector had pronounced most suitable could be purchased for $1,500. He claimed that so soon as the City purchased this site the terms of the Act of 1851 would be complied with, and the City could with justice demand the patent of the old Hospital Lot. The Government, however, wished to make the provision that the difference in the prices which would be paid for the new lot and the value of the old lot should go towards the erection of a hospital. He declared that this was unjust. The Council was willing to purchase a new Hospital Lot, but he did not think that after the provisions of the Act of 1851 had been fully complied with, the City should have the Hospital Lot forcibly taken out of its possession. This Council he felt would indorse the action of the Council of last year and purchase a suitable site for a hospital if the Ontario Government would convey to the City the old hospital lot but we could not afford to buy that lot at a valuation.

Ald. Diamond moved in amendment that the matter of the annual grant to the W. C. Association be left in abeyance for the present, but that the sum of $200 be placed in the hands of the Association, in connection with the Poor and Sanitary Committee, for the poor of the city.

Ald. Vandusen withdrew his motion, and Ald. Diamond's motion was carried.

Ald. Dickson moved that the Solicitor be instructed to communicate with the Government asking what time it will be convenient for the Government to receive a deputation from the City in order to hear matters in which the City is interested.—Carried.

Ald. Dickson moved his resolution providing that the Ontario Legislature be petitioned with reference to the different matters already mentioned.

The motion was carried clause by clause.

The first clause, providing that power be given to municipalities to pass a By-law disqualifying all who have not paid their taxes up to the day of nomination from sitting in the Municipal Council, was passed.

Ald. Diamond opposed the second clause, asking that municipalities be empowered to compel the placing of shade trees along streets. He claimed that it was not right to compel citizens to plant shade trees, whether they liked it or not.

Ald. Dickson pointed out that the law giving the municipalities power to pass such a By-law, would be permissive, and each municipality would legislate in the interests of its citizens.

The clause was passed.

The third clause, with reference to the assessment of municipalities taking place between the 1st of Feb., and the 1st of July, was passed.

Ald. Dickson moved that the request of the Secretary of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, for the use of the City Hall for the Convention to be held in February, be granted.—Carried.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Ald. Tickell gave notice of a motion providing that the City Solicitor make application to the Dominion Government for a charter for the construction of a bridge across the Bay of Quinte, connecting the city with the Township of Ameliasburg.

Copies of the correspondence between the Solicitor and Provincial Secretary will be given in a subsequent issue.

Council adjourned.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, ulcerated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

THE DOUBLE MURDER.

Full Confession by the Accused.

A TERRIBLE STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

(From the Hamilton Times, Jan. 23.)

The Times' story of the Nelson murder and the arrest of the murderer closed on Saturday at the taking of Rourk to Burlington to be committed for trial at Milton.

The prisoner was brought before a Bench of magistrates composed of Magistrates Foster, Allen add Thomas. Patrick Mahar told the story of the murder, as related in Saturday's paper. The evidence of the Chief of Police followed. He described the capture of Rourk and taking him to Burlington. While at Walsh's Hotel there he intimated to Chief Stewart that he would tell the whole truth. He was immediately warned that he was not obliged to make any statement, and that anything he might say would be taken down and probably be used against him. The prisoner persisted, and Chief Stewart got paper, and in presence of witnesses he made a confession, of which the substance is as follows:

PRISONER'S CONFESSION.

I know I will die for what I have done, and being now perfectly cool I am willing to tell the truth and I will tell the whole story. I have been working for Pat. Mahar, and boarding there, but I left on Friday morning. That evening I went back with the intention of picking a quarrel and hitting the old man. I didn't care what happened. I felt I had to do it. When I arrived at the door of the house it was nearly 10 o'clock at night. I met Bridget, who had been out. She approached the door by one side of the house, while I came round by the other. I suppose she was frightened at seeing a man, and she screamed and ran screaming into the house. I followed her, and as I got in at the door I was met by the old man with a stick in his hand. He made a blow at me, which missed. I seized one of the two axes lying near the door, and struck the old man a blow. Bridget still screaming cried out not to hurt the old man, and when she seen him fall she seized the other axe and at the same time fastened her arms around me. For several minutes a death struggle took place. At last I got my arms free, raised the axe and struck her an awful blow on the left side of her face, on the jaw. She fell, covered with blood, almost on the spot where her father was lying. She staggered up again and managed to crawl into the inner room, where I heard her again fall heavily. Once she groaned and said, 'I am killed,' and that is all she said after I struck her. I positively only struck two blows, hitting the old man once and Bridget once. I did not follow Bridget into the inner room, and did not outrage her person before or after she fell, or at any other time. After she fell in the inner room I was about to leave the house, and was just about dropping the axe when Pat Mahar entered the room. To save myself I made a lounge at Pat with the axe, and cut his hat, but did not hurt him. I had been drinking a little, but was not at all drunk.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, JAN. 24.

City and Vicinity.

THE election of a School Trustee for Foster Ward will take place to-morrow.

THE Chairman of the Public Works Committee advertises for tenders for about 100 cords of stone for the paving of Front Street.

THE Histrionic Association left for Napanee by the noon train to-day. They will play "Engaged" in that town this evening.

THE lowest point reached by the mercury last night was 18° below zero, though some thermometers registered as low as 20° and even 25°.

WE are informed that Dr. Allen, having secured a patent for Bushy Island, has seized the old hospital building on the island for rent.

THE new City Council has began well. They adjourned last night—they actually adjourned last night—without having to extend the time.

ONE tramp came in out of the cold last night and enjoyed the genial warmth to be found in the police cells. He had no company. He was a Scotchman.

IT is hardly necessary to remind our readers of the Oddfellows' concert to-morrow evening in the new hall in the Robertson Block. Everybody is going.

ALD. PETRIE has set the water-works question going again by giving notice of a motion providing for an appropriation of $1,000 for the sinking of an artesian well.

THOSE who went to the Council Chamber last night, expecting to hear a long discussion about the Fire Department were disappointed. The petition of the firemen was simply referred to the Fire Committee.

THE horse which was one of those engaged in drawing No. 1 steam fire engine to fires, and which was kicked in the hind leg on Sunday night with such violence as to break it, was killed last night by being bled to death.

WE have received a copy of the Catholic Shield, published in Ottawa. It contains several pieces, both in prose and verse, from the pen of our gifted friend Mr. Thos. O'Hagan, late Head Master of the R. C. Separate school here.

AT the Police Court this morning the wages case of Keating vs. Meagher was again laid over for a week. Robt. Arkles and D. Coyle were charged with selling liquor during prohibited hours. Their cases were also enlarged.

THE anniversary of the City Mission will be celebrated by a sermon by the Rev. D. Mitchell in the City Hall at 3:45 on the afternoon of Sunday, the 29th inst. On the following evening a public meeting will be held, at which the Mayor will preside.

THE annual grant of $300 was not granted the W. C. Association by the City Council last night; but $300 was voted the Association to be expended for the poor of the city. Probably the ladies, not being able to perceive the beautifully fine distinction between the two grants, will be just as well satisfied.

THE diners at the St. George's Restaurant are now regaled with music during meals. A fine large orchestran, playing eight operatic and other tunes, has been placed in a conspicuous position in the bar and discources sweet music in accompaniment to the more practical clatter of plates, knives and forks.

SAYS the London Advertiser: "We have received a copy of a poem from our friend Mr. T. C. Deane, in which he expresses a request to be allowed to die by the azure sea. The request is a reasonable one." Those who have read Mr. T. C. Deane's effusions, either in verse or prose, will only regret that that gushing young author did not perceive the poetry of the situation long ago—and carry it into execution.

THE Bachelors of the city (that is a number of them) held their monthly assembly in the Oddfellow's Hall last evening. The event was one of the most enjoyable of the kind which has been held in the city this season, the company, the music, and the surroundings all but the gas, being all that could be desired. To do the gas justice, it did its best to burn, but the most of the time it was 'flickering,' to say the least.

THE fire-limits of the city, wherein it is nominally unlawful to erect wooden buildings, are briefly defined, as follows:—Bounded on the north by the river, on the south by Dundas St., on the east by Pinnacle St., and on the west by the river.

THE Amy Lee American Comedy Company, which will give two performances in the City Hall on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, is highly spoken of by the press wherever it has appeared. Miss Lee herself is a vivacious and charming actress and a good singer. "The Two Medallions" is a light and sparkling operetta, full of fun, but containing nothing which would offend anyone. The company should receive good audiences.

THE new Presbyterian Church at Roslin is to be dedicated next Sabbath. Rev'd Prof. Gregg, D.D., of Knox College, will preach in the morning, and Rev. D. Mitchell in the afternoon. A tea meeting will be held on Monday evening, 30th, in aid of the building fund. It is expected that Prof. Gregg will be able to occupy his old pulpit in John St. Presbyterian Church in the evening. This announcement will be acceptable to the community generally.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. Geo. C. Nutter, eldest son of Mr. Benj. Nutter, formerly of this city, now of Toronto. The deceased has been ailing for several months, and on Wednesday last he was smitten down by a stroke of paralysis, from which he never rallied. Mr Nutter was a man well liked by his intimate friends; of a singularly gentle and unobtrusive nature, and yet possessing many of the qualities of true manhood. He leaves a wife and two children.

THE scheme of the bridge across the bay has been fairly brought before the public by Ald. Tickell, who moved last night in the City Council for an application for a charter. Ald. Tickell intends circulating a petition among the merchants of the city, praying the Government to grant the charter. He is confident that there will be no difficulty in raising sufficient funds to construct the bridge, provided the charter can be obtained—which he considers is the chief difficulty in the way of the project.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 24.—Lakes, fresh to strong northeasterly to southeasterly winds, increasing cloudiness and rising temperature, followed by snow to-night or to-morrow.

CHRIST CHURCH.—The annual Tea Meeting of Christ Church congregation will take place in the City Hall on Tuesday evening the 31st inst. After tea a choice entertainment will be given. The Ladies are making great effort to make this one of the most successful tea meetings ever held by them. The proceeds are for the building fund of the new church which it is expected to be finished inside by the end of March.

REMENYI—if not the king, certainly one of the princes of living violinists—will make his bow before a Belleville audience again on the 6th of February, in the City Hall. Evidently the great artist has lost none of his power. The N. Y. World of July 31st says: "Mr. Remenyi's success at Koster & Bial's Concert Hall has been beyond precedent. Last Thursday night he created a tremendous sensation by his performance of the Rakoezy March, and after playing several other pieces he was called out no fewer than nineteen times. The audience filled every available inch of the hall and garden, and the excitement that prevailed was positively wild."

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Methodist Missions.

The annual Missionary meeting in connection with Bridge St. Methodist Church was held last evening. The attendance was not large, owing, no doubt, to the severity of the weather, and to the uncertainty that was felt as to whether the deputation would be present. However, the meeting was a highly interesting one.

After devotional exercises, Thos. Holden, Esq., P. M., was called to the chair. Mr. W. Johnson, Secretary of the Committee, read the fifty-seventh annual report, which shows as follows:

The total income of the Society for the past year was $134,842.81—an increase of $3,638 53 over that of 1880. The total expenditure was $133,328 57, an increase of $2,293.48 over 1880. Towards the income of the Society the Toronto Conference contributed $40,131.81; Belleville District $3,190.64; Belleville City $866.34; this Circuit $679.

The number of Missionaries and other agents employed by the Society is 452. Number of Missions 388, of which 330 are domestic, 40 Indian, 11 French, 1 German, 6 foreign. The results of the labors of the Society are a total Church membership on missions of 35,056, of whom 30,409 are on domestic missions, 3,479 on Indian, 379 on French, 120 on German, and 669 on foreign.

Rev. S. J. Shorey moved the following resolution:—

1st. That the cordial thanks of the Belleville Centre Branch Missionary Society are hereby tendered to Mrs. James Nosworthy, Mrs. J. J. B. Flint, Mrs. Wm. Hopkins, Mrs. Joseph Cronk, Mrs. Wm. Johnson, Mrs. M. B. Roblin, Miss Sawyer, Miss Solmes, Miss Gibson, and Miss Foly, for the efficient services rendered by them to this society as collectors for the past year.

2nd. That the same ladies be requested to act as collectors for this year.

3rd. That the Missionary Committee of this circuit for the year consist of, the members of the Quarterly Official Board (ex-officio) Hon. B. Flint, Messrs. J. J. B. Flint, John J. Farley, M. D., B. S. Wilson, M. D., J. E. Eakins, M. D., A. M. Peterson, J. W. Johnson, James Neal, G. S. Tickell, J. L. Biggar, A. E. Fish, R. D. Conger, R. C. Solmes, R. Dick, A Ray, N. Vermilyea, N. Lingham, R. Hodgson, Alex. Thompson, W. J. Thompson, Henry Pringle, W. J. Diamond, J. C. Jamieson, Isaac J. Frost, Daniel Foster, George Flower, H. L. Bottoms, George Allen, P. Temple, C. E. Elliott, A. Shearing, Curtis Bogart, Wm. Owens, S. W. Bradshaw, and J. A. Smith

4th. That the thanks of the Society are also due and are hereby tendered to Mr. M. Sawyer its Treasurer and Mr. Wm. Johnson its Secretary, and that these gentlemen be requested to act in the same capacity for the ensuing year.

Mr. Shorey said if there was any platform on which he felt at home and enthusiastic it was on the missions platform, but, as a good deputation was present he would not trespass on their time, and he resumed his seat after making a few remarks.

Rev. Dr. Jeffers, in seconding the resolution, said that Belleville had a historic name in mission work. It was the home of Rev. Mr. Case, and the congregation had always shown a liberal spirit. He thought that the speakers need not speak only of our own mission work, but of mission work generally. The United States always has demonstrations on the 4th of July, which created great enthusiasm in their country, and these annual missionary meetings must have a most beneficial effect. There is nothing that will make us value more our privileges than to hear of the state of others less favorably situated. It we do our part in the mission fields in this country we help all the Missionary Societies of the world, for we leave them with their hands free to employ their resources in other parts of the world. He illustrated this by referring to the fact that the Church in Canada had relieved the British Society of the burden of supporting missions in this country. He sometimes feared that the Canadian Church was undertaking too much, but some of the circuits which are now paying largely into the mission fund were a short time ago mission fields. So we only help the Northwest Missions in their start and soon they will help to support missions elsewhere. He felt proud of this Missionary Society, when he thought of the foundation which was being laid for a grand and noble edifice. He thought that God was going to bring on the millennium throught the instrumentality of the British nationality.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Rev. Thos. Crosby was delighted to attend this meeting, one reason being that this church had assisted him so much in his mission labors. He had, when he went to British Columbia, paid his own way there, and then was sent to work by the Society. No missionary should go for ten years, but for his whole life. Salmon were very plentiful in the streams in British Columbia, so much so that he could pitch out plenty of them with a pitch-fork. He described briefly different kinds of fish found in the streams there. He delineated graphically the effect of his first preaching to the Indians in their own language. Their heathenism is gross in its character. He gave an account of some of the most revolting characteristics of the man-eaters, dog-eaters and fire-eaters. They were very cruel to their old people, and in other ways. Fourteen mothers in Alaska confessed to having taken their children to the woods and stuffed their mouths and left them there to die. We were too slow in sending the gospel to these people. It should have been there before the so-called civilization. He animadverted on the liquor traffic and denounced it in severe terms. In one village where he lived, there was a strict law against liquor drinking, and it was not practiced. The gospel is sufficient to meet the case of these Indians. He had "paddled his own canoe" for thousands of miles, preaching to the Flathead people. He gave some amusing incidents connected with the mode of travelling, and by describing some of his journeys made in this way, he gave a clear idea of some of the difficulties connected with his work. Despite all his disadvantages among the Flathead people, many of them were truly converted to God. He gave brief and pathetic accounts of some of the meetings held among these people, and gave a sketch of the life of a native missionary, David Sollosaton, which was full of touching incidents. It was a grand thing to preach the gospel, and especially to preach it to those who never heard it before. Indians knew not how to swear; they had to learn that from civilization. In eight years God had, through him and his wife, done wonderful work in the Fort Simpson District. He had to build his own house, and throw off the clerical garb and go to work. The missionary was the carpenter. The Indians used to marry without love; the man that would give the most blankets for a pretty girl would get her. Now they get married like christians. They were great dancers, but now, in place of a great dance at a wedding, they would have a wedding feast. When he went up the Naas River he found the people in a heathen dance, all in paint, and he commenced right there to talk to them, and was, finally, successful. In the Indians there was pure gratitude. When an opening is made for a missionary they always want one to come at once; and if the want is not soon supplied they seem to become more determined in wickedness. He gave an account of how he was greatly troubled about supplying a missionary for the people on the Naas River, when the Society could not send one, but one was providentially supplied, and was kept there now by the Society. He told a very interesting story of a poor blind Indian boy, who, ten days journey from him, tried to lead his own people to God, preaching to them every Sunday. As soon as the people become converted they go to work. Christianity is the greatest civilizer—no new-fangled religion, but the old, old story. There were trying circumstances in the life of a missionary in that country. When his little girl was sick and died there was no doctor to call in, and they had to bury her themselves. But the thought of doing the work of God, and of meeting thousands of those Indians in Heaven, encouraged him in the work. Mr. Crosby's address was very interesting, abounding in amusing, instructive and very pathetic incidents, and was listened to with the closest attention.

After a short interval Mr. Crosby appeared on the platform again in the garb of an Indian chief, and spoke for a few minutes in the Indian language. He explained the significance of the different parts of the outfit, and how they were made. He took occasion to refer to the Girls' Home established by him in British Columbia, and returned thanks to Mrs. Jones' class, who had sent him a box for the Home.

The meeting was brought to an end by Rev. Mr. Burns pronouncing the benediction.

The pleasure of the meeting was enhanced by several musical selections rendered by the choir.

He said he was a lieutenant of the secret band in the Mill St. district, the captain being Jeremiah Riordan. The orders by the captain for clipping certain people and shooting others in the legs were found on Connell The latter asserted that there was no foundation for the statement that he made a prior arrangement with the police to get arrested. The evidence of Connell created a profound sensation.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after excrise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so it mixes with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE IS NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment. You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,
B. F. AUSTIN,
Principal Alma Ladies' College,

tion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Cathartic Pills
Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

From Rev. B. F. Austin, M.A., B.D., Principal Alma Ladies' College, St. Thomas, Ont.:

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment. You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,
B. F. AUSTIN,
Principal Alma Ladies' College, St. Thomas, Ont.

P. S.—The above letter was written after Prof. Austin had used the remedies but one month.

… and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Cathartic Pills
Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

To the President and Directors of the Hastings Loan and Investment Society:

GENTLEMEN,—We the undersigned have Audited the Books and Securities of the Society for the year ending 31st December 1881, and find the balances and items in the accompanying Statements to be true and correct in every particular.

HERBERT GREAVES, J. C. JAMIESON, } AUDITORS

January 1st, 1882.

From the foregoing Statements it will be seen that your Directors have been able to declare two half-yearly dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, and have added, after paying all expenses, the sum of $2,924.35 to Reserve Fund, making the balance at credit of that account $5,842.34.

The Loans and Advances amounting to $207,514.64, have been carefully scrutinized by the Directors and are considered to be in a most satisfactory and sound condition. The appraised cash value of the property on which the above mentioned Loans have been made is $401,700.

Your Directors are of opinion that it would be in the interest of the Society to increase the number of Directors from seven to nine, and would suggest to the Shareholders the advisability of amending Rule 20 for that purpose.

Your Directors report that only one foreclosure was made during the year, and that the property was readily disposed of for the full amount of the Society's claim.

The Savings Bank continues rapidly to increase, the sum of $211,411.77 having been received on Deposit in this department during the past year.

In view of the increasing business of the Society, and the necessity of increasing the Capital Stock, your Directors would recommend that the sum of $75,000 be allotted to the present Shareholders at par, giving them the privilege of taking it up pro-rata, on or before 1st of March, next, after which date a premium of ten per cent. will be charged for all further sales of stock.

Your Directors beg to state that the Books, Accounts, Securities and Vouchers of the Society have been carefully audited (monthly) and found correct and satisfactory, as shewn in the Auditors' Report appended hereto.

In reporting upon the Manager, Mr. J. P. C. Phillips, we have only to repeat our expression of last year, "that he has been unremitting in his attention to the business of the Society, and your Directors feel much pleasure in bearing testimony to his ability as well as to his zeal and application on behalf of the interests of the Society."

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Belleville, 1st January, 1882.

JAS. G. ROBINSON, President.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:
WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881,
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,
Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.
I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.
I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.
Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,
P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Council having been called to order, The Clerk announced himself ready to receive nominations for Warden.

Mr. Wilmot nominated Mr. Robert Gordon, Reeve of Hungerford. Last year Mr. Gordon was a candidate for the Wardenship, but withdrew his candidature before his name was brought forward. He (Mr. Wilmot) had then advised him to withdraw, and he considered that owing to Mr. Gordon's self-sacrifice at that time, he was entitled to support for the position this year. It was for this reason, practically, that he had nominated Mr. Gordon. Another reason was that Hungerford should be represented in the Warden's chair, and should be represented by a local resident. Another reason was that he thought politics should be excluded from the deliberations of the Council, and the fact of his being the nominator would prove that in bringing forward Mr. Gordon as Warden, he was not actuated by political motives. He expressed his certainty that Mr. Gordon would fill the Warden's chair with credit to himself, the County, and the Council.

Mr. Gunter seconded the nomination.

Mr. Aylsworth nominated Mr. O'Flynn. That gentleman, he said, was so well known in this County that it was hardly necessary to speak at any length in praise of him. Though he also deprecated the introduction of politics into the Council's proceedings, yet it should be remembered that when the Conservatives had the reins of power in the Council, no Liberal was elected Warden for 20 years.

Mr. Kavanagh seconded the nomination.

Mr. Bonter nominated Mr. Ostrom, and asserted that Trenton had a claim to be represented in the Warden's chair.

Mr. Anderson thought that new members should not be nominated to the Warden's chair.

Mr. White seconded the last nomination. He did so merely as a mark of courtesy to the Reeve of Trenton, as he was certain that that gentleman had no intention to run for the position. With regard to the remark of Mr. Aylesworth as to the Conservatives electing a Warden for 20 consecutive years, he said he believed Mr. Gordon was a Reformer. We are all Reformers so long as we reformed what we thought it necessary to reform. As for himself, he was a Liberal Conservative. The proof that we were nearly all Reformers, in the best sense, the majority of last year's Council had been elected by acclamation. Whether Mr. Gordon or Mr. O'Flynn were elected, he believed that either of those gentlemen would make a good Warden. He said further that when the late Warden (a Reformer) had first been elected to that position there had been a majority of Conservatives in the Council.

Mr. Ostrom said that Trenton had a very fair claim to be represented in the Warden's chair. It was entirely clear, financially; it was the only Town in the County; it had a territory within its limits which did not properly belong to the County. As for himself, he had considerable knowledge of municipal law, being a lawyer, and had sat one year at the Council Board. However, all he wished to do at present was to press the claim of Trenton. If he were returned to the Council again he would expect that this claim would be honored. At present, he would retire, with thanks to his nominator and seconder.

Mr. Ashley spoke in favor of Mr. O'Flynn's candidature.

The vote was then taken with the following result:—

FOR GORDON—Messrs. White, Anderson, Walker, Haggerty, Duncan, Ostrom, Clare, McGowan, Gordon, Wilmot, Rose, Caskey, Tuttle, Gunter, Pearce.—16.

FOR O'FLYNN.—Messrs. Faulkner, Corrigan, Bonter, Bleecker, Hurley, Vermilyea, Ashley, Hynes, Fitzgerald, Vankleek, Aylesworth, O'Flynn, McGregor, McDavitt, Kavanagh.—15.

The Clerk then announced Mr. Gordon duly elected Warden of the County for the year 1882.

The Warden elect, on taking the chair, returned thanks for the honor which had been conferred upon him. When he thought of the responsibilities of the position he felt rather disheartened; and yet, when he looked round the Chamber and saw the faces of old and tried Councilmen—all of whom would, he was certain, give him all the aid they could to enable him to discharge his duties—he felt encouraged again. He promised to do the very best he could, without favor or partiality, in the interests of the County, and asked the indulgence of the Council if he made any mistakes. Such mistakes would, he assured them, be mistakes of the head, and not of the heart. If he had been defeated by Mr. O'Flynn, there was not another man in the Council whom he would rather be defeated by. He held that gentleman in the highest respect, and would at some future time do his best to elect Mr. O'Flynn to the Warden's chair.

Mr. O'Flynn said that though he had been defeated, he did not bear any hard feelings toward anyone who voted against him. He would not, even if he could, dictate to any members of the Council, how he should vote. He hoped that the same harmonious feelings and kindly feelings and universal desire to work for the best interests of the County, which had characterized past Councils, would characterize the present one. Though he sat down whipped he would not promise "not to do it again," and he hoped to be able to to come forward as a candidate again next year.

COMMUNICATIONS, &C.

The following were read:—

From the Clerk of the Elgin County Council, enclosing a petition to the Provincial Government respecting the selection of jurors.—Laid on the table.

From the same, enclosing a petition to the Provincial Government respecting the readjustment of County accounts.—Laid on the table.

From the same, enclosing a resolution respecting the Annual Provincial Exhibition, petitioning that the annual grant to the Exhibition be stopped and the amount distributed among the County Exhibitions.—Laid on the table.

From Jane A. Wallbridge, asking that certain mineral lands be not sold without public notice of such sale be given.—Referred to Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Mr. Pearce gave notice of a By-law for the appointment of Auditors and High School Trustees.

From certain ratepayers of Trenton, asking for the appointment of Mr. W. Ostrom as High School Trustee for Trenton.—Referred to Committee on By-laws.

Mr. Pearce moved, seconded by Mr. Ashley, that the County Treasurer furnish a statement of the indebtedness of the minor municipalities up to January, 1882.

Mr. White thought this motion unnecessary, for there was already a resolution on the books providing that the Treasurer furnish a similar statement each meeting of the Council.

Mr. Wilmot and Mr. O'Flyn approved of the principle of the resolution. It had a tendency to put the collectors in mind of the arrearages in their municipalities.

Mr. Aylsworth said that though there was a resolution on the books to the same effect as that proposed by Mr. Pearce, still it would be best to pass this as a special resolution. He was glad to be able to say that, for the first time in many years, there was a surplus of $500 or $600 this year. He hoped that, by good management, this County would soon have as low a rate of assessment as adjoining Counties.

Mr. Kavanagh opposed the motion. It would, he thought, be unfair to the northern municipalities, where it was very difficult for the residents to pay their taxes as early as residents of front townships.

Mr. Ashley said that several of the front townships would be found in arrears as well as the back townships. The object of the motion was merely to educate the people into paying their taxes within the year.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Haggerty gave notice of a motion providing for the appointment of a Committee to consult with a Committee from the City Council with reference to the amalgamation of the G. J. Railway with certain other railways.

The Council then adjourned.

THE AMARANTH MYSTERY.

Suspicion Beginning to Rest on Old Smith's Nephew.

Was a Shot Gun Used—Most Likely a Club —Great Excitement Among the Neighbors—The Inquest Unfinished.

SHELBURNE, Ont., Jan. 23.—The excitement occasioned by the murder of John Smith, the old Amaranth farmer, has not by any means abated. No attempts of any importance have been made to hunt up the alleged murderer. Almost immediately upon being informed of the case county crown attorney Macmillan telegraphed for government detective Murray to come and work up the case. Pending his arrival, the case has been left practically as it was found, so far as searching for the culprits is concerned. This is no doubt due partly to an existing suspicion, which at present seems to have but little to back it, that the murdered man's nephew, named John Smith, who is the only one who pretends to relate the story of the murder, himself committed the crime. People here seem to have little hesitation in making this terrible charge against the lad. James Smith, the boy's father, having heard this statement, has engaged the services of a solicitor, Mr. F. E. Galbraith, to watch the case at the coroner's inquest, in case that anything should come of it. The boy is said to be only 14 years old, but he is very large and mature-looking for this age. He seems to be a genuine country boy, fair complexioned, freckled, with blue eyes and brownish sandy hair.

The inquest was begun this morning. Dr. Thomas Norton, coroner, and a jury with Mr. Edward Jessop, of Shelburne, as foreman. The inquest was held in the Orange hall. The remains lay in a room in an adjoining street, and while the afternoon session was in progress. Drs. Barr and Ralston conducted the post mortem examination.

The boy was examined and several other witnesses, but nothing new has been elicited. The post mortem report of Drs. Barr and Ralston did not strengthen the boy's evidence, as they found no indications of wounds made by firearms. The head of the deceased is badly fractured; the wounds appear as if they had been inflicted by a heavy stick.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

The Wardenship.

By electing Mr. Robert Gordon, Reeve of Hungerford, to the Wardenship for 1882, the County Council have fittingly recognized the long service, experience, ability and personal worth of that gentleman. It is a long time since a representative of Hungerford filled the Warden's chair, and Mr. Gordon's constituents, amongst whom his popularity is very great, will be highly gratified by the distinction awarded to their honored Reeve. Mr. Gordon will make an excellent Warden, and we congratulate the Warden elect and the Council alike on the result.

There was but one unpleasant feature in the contest, and that was Mr. Aylsworth's statement that the Conservatives had not, during twenty years in which they had a majority in the Council, elected a Liberal as Warden. Mr. Aylsworth is no doubt a clever man, but he blunders sadly at times, and his statement under notice is just as great a blunder as was his declaration of last year that agriculturists are not as well fitted to discharge the duties of Warden as are business men. As a matter of fact the Conservatives had a majority in the Council when Hon. Mr. Flint and Mr. Walker—both Liberals—were elected, and when Mr. Aylsworth himself was first elected as well. The Reeve of Deseronto has made a poor return to those who first elected him to the Wardenship, and his words to which we have alluded will not, probably, be forgotten in the time to come.

The Ferry.

In order to show the exact position which the Corporation of this city occupies with regard to the ferry question, we publish herewith the correspondence that has taken place on the subject.

First is a petition to the Ontario Government from the Council of Ameliasburg, a copy of which was forwarded to the City Solicitor by the Provincial Secretary, and which reads as follows:

To the Honorable John Beverley Robinson, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario:

The petition of the Municipal Council of the Township of Ameliasburgh, pray that the Lieutenant Governor and Council will be pleased to grant to said corporation a license to run a steam ferry from Wilkinsville (situated on part of Lot 59 and Lot 60 in the first concession of Ameliasburg, and being the present landing) and the Township of Belleville, for such term as provided by Cap. 112 R. S. O., exclusively or jointly, for the following reasons:

1st, Because the people of this Township and the County of Prince Edward have to pay 90 per cent. of the ferry tolls now exacted or to be hereafter exacted. Consequently your petitioners contend that, as they have to pay nine-tenths of the ferry fees, they are justly entitled to an exclusive lease of said ferry.

2nd. Your petitioners claim the right to a joint or exclusive license under the provisions of Sec. 4, Cap. 112 R. S. O.

3rd. Your petitioners further say that the petition from the City of Belleville asking for a renewal of the present license between Belleville and Ameliasburg is misleading, and is in the exact terms of the present lease, which has caused so much litigation, as the present lease claims the exclusive right of ferry for the whole front of Ameliasburgh bordering on the Bay of Quinte, which is twelve miles long, and which is in direct opposition to the provisions of Sec. 3 of Cap. 112 R. S. O. The point of landing should be defined with certainty in Ameliasburgh.

4th. Your petitioners further say that about 24 years since Belleville obtained a license to establish a ferry between Belleville and Ameliasburgh and sub-let said ferry for 25 years without making or providing for any increased traffic during that period, or providing for any increased accommodation and left the ferry tolls nearly double what they should have been, and the consequence has been just what might have been expected. The very people who had to pay nearly the entire ferry fees have had to submit to all manner of inconveniences, insults, and impositions by the lessee of the present ferry; and your petitioners pray that the Lieutenant-Governor and Council will consider the justice and equity of our claim to an exclusive license for said ferry and not grant place the people of Prince Edward in the humiliating position they have been placed in for the last 24 years and in future will not leave us at the mercy of the City of Belleville or their lessee.

And your petitioners as in duty bound will ever pray.

(Signed,) WM. ANDERSON, Reeve.
JAMES BENSON, Township Clerk.

The letter following the petition was as follows:

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE, ONTARIO,
TORONTO, 28th Nov., 1881.

SIR,—With further reference to the petition of the Corporation of the City of Belleville for a renewal of the ferry license between that City and the Township of Ameliasburgh, I have now the honor to inform you that the Township Council has made application to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council for a license to run a steam ferry between Wilkinsville, the present landing in the Township, and the City of Belleville for the term provided by R. S. O. Cap. 112, exclusively or jointly, for the reasons set forth in a petition, a copy of which is herewith enclosed for your information.

I am also to request you to submit, at an early day, any observations you may desire to make upon the questions raised by the Township Council and intimated to you in my letter of the 15th of October ult.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant
GEO. E. LUMSDEN,
Ass't Sec'y.

L. H. HENDERSON, Esq.,
City Solicitor, etc.,
Belleville.

The Solicitor replied, asking whether the Government would hear a deputation representing the City, and this remained unanswered for several weeks, when the following reply was received:

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE, ONTARIO,
TORONTO, 14th Jan. 1882.

SIR,—I am directed to draw your attention to my letter of the 28th November last, addressed to you with reference to the application of the Council of the Township of Ameliasburg for a license to run a steam ferry between Wilkinsville and Belleville, and (as the matter must be decided at once) to request you to submit, without delay, any observations you desire to make upon the questions raised by the Council and communicated to you in my letter of the 15th of October last.

I have the hoarer to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
GEO. E. LUMSDEN,
Ass't Sec'y.

L. H. HENDERSON, Esq.,
Belleville, Ont.

The reply of the Solicitor was as follows:

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 17, 1882.

HON. A. S. HARDY,
Provincial Sec'y, Toronto.

Re Ferry.

SIR,—Your communication of the 14th inst., anent the above matter, was received yesterday—the day on which the City Council was organized—and, that body being composed of many new members, they were not in a position to comprehend the matter sufficiently to act in the premises. Monday next will be the first regular meeting, and I hope then to be able to give you their views more fully on the subject. I may however, state a few facts for your information on the subject of the petition. The ferry, as you are aware, was leased to the City by the Government of the then Province of Canada for the period of twenty-five years, which will expire in the spring of 1883. At that time the requirements for ferry accommodation were comparatively small. The then Town was obliged to sub-let the ferry and to give, by way of subsidy, several hundred dollars to induce parties to build a suitable boat for the service, as required by the said lease or license, and to run it between Ameliasburg and the then Town. The By-law and contract for sub-letting provided that two trips should be made every hour between those points, and the rate of passage and traffic were also fixed, beyond which they could not go. The Town was also obliged to supply landings and slips on both sides of the bay and keep and maintain them in repair, which involved considerable expense; and by the terms of this contract the City has been powerless to effect any change since. But circumstances are now changed and this contract is now drawing to a close, and it is now deemed of the utmost importance to the future of the City that cheap and rapid transit should govern our actions in the matter. The City now propose, if the license is granted to them, to put a new and much larger and more powerful boat on the route, and to reduce the rates of fare to nearly or quite one-half of what they have been and provide the necessary landings and slips on both sides of the bay, with such other accommodations as may be found necessary. The City feel the importance of cultivating the trade of the adjoining County of Prince Edward, and are prepared to do all in their power to that end. The Government about two years ago granted a license to a company in Ameliasburg to ferry about two miles west of the City, and it was out of this the litigation referred to in your former letter arose, and was between the lessee of the Belleville ferry and the company, he alleging an infringement of his rights under the original lease; but the City offered no objections whatever, and they were powerless to interfere, although against their interests.

The Company now asking for a license are the same that this litigation has been had with, and they now pray for an exclusive or joint license to issue to them alone or to them and the City of Belleville, but it is believed that it would be impracticable to work the ferry under a joint license, as the Company from Ameliasburg are the owners of a boat they desire to put on the route, and which the City asserts positively is totally unfit for the service, both as to speed and accommodation, and being a high pressure boat, and it would be next to impossible to reconcile the various opinions on this subject or to effect a compromise of this difficulty. I think if the Government are not prepared to grant an exclusive license to the City, the City would much prefer, and would probably consent, to a license to be issued to each municipality.

The City is interested in several matters coming before Parliament this session, and would like if these several questions could be heard about the same time, when a deputation could go to Toronto and could then more fully explain their views upon this and other matters.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant
L. H. HENDERSON,
City Solicitor.

No reply to the above having been sent up to Monday evening, the Solicitor again wrote, following the meeting of Council:

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 24, 1882.

HON. A. S. HARDY,
Provincial Secretary, Toronto.

Re Ferry.

SIR,—May I call your attention to the last clause of my letter of the 17th inst., and ask if a day could be named on which it would be convenient to hear a deputation from this City in reference to the above and other matters in which the City is interested? The other matters are: Regarding the hospital let to this City, with which the Hon. the Commissioner of Crown Lands is familiar; the Bill abolishing market fees; and possibly the Bill confirming the amalgamation of the Grand Junction Railway with the Midland and other Railways. Kindly let me have your reply as soon as possible.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
L. H. HENDERSON,
City Solicitor.

Hops.

The Commercial Bulletin reports the New York hop market as follows: For the high grades and good brewing hops generally, prices are quite firm and even the poor classes of stock seem to be holding their own. Business is not what may be called brisk, but at the same time there is a very good amount of stock moving here and in the interior markets. We find no indications of "bearish" feeling in any quarter, though it is to be remarked that the generally expressed belief in higher prices is not backed up by extensive purchases. This, however, may be attributed to the fact that liberal purchases would undoubtedly lead to an unwarranted advance in the country markets. Sales to brewers are made at as high as 27@28c. for fine goods, but in business "on the market" over 25c. is seldom paid. The receipts since September 1 reached 57,600 bales; exports, 18,855 bales, and imports, 1,704 bales.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22, 1882.

We are favored last week by a visit from M. H. Gault, M. P. for Montreal, and his brother R. H. Gault, D. Morrice, Esq., and J. J. Brown, Esq., architect for the new factory. The two former gentlemen had never seen our village before and did not expect to find such an apparently little thriving town. They expressed themselves highly pleased with the business like prospects of the place and especially with the admirable structure which they have erected and the great capacity of the water power with which the machinery is driven.

Trenton Correspondence.

(From our own Correspondent.)

TRENTON, Jan. 24th.

Last night a large and influential meeting of citizens was held at the Town Hall to consider the action of certain members of the Board of Education in closing the High School against the teacher. Editor Young presented the case in behalf of the Trustees attacked, speaking for an hour and a half. His charge against the teacher and defence of the trustees were replied to by Messrs. W. H. Austin, H. W. Delaney, P. J. O'Rourke, G. W. Strom, J. A. Porte, T. A. O'Rourke and Dr. Macfellan.

The following resolutions were carried:

Moved by Dr. Macfellan, seconded by R. B. O'Flynn; Resolved, that in the opinion of this meeting the action of the Board of Education in closing the High School, against the Head Master, without sufficient notice, was hasty and prejudicial to the best interests of the school.—Carried.

Moved by W. H. Austin, seconded by Capt. Porte, and resolved: That this meeting views with alarm and indignation the arbitrary action of the School Board in interfering with the duties of the High School Master and summarily driving him from the school after a faithful and honorable service of upwards of ten years, and ejecting the advanced scholars and their school apparatus and books from their departments, and this at the time when the Board is about to be reorganized for the year, and in the face of the earnest protest of a respectable minority of the Board; and from the explanations we have had here to-night, it is the opinion of this meeting that in the interests of our High School, and in justice to Mr. Hicks, he should be permitted to tender his resignation, if he so desires, to take effect at the midsummer holidays.—Carried.

Moved by H. W. Delaney, seconded by T. A. O'Rourke, That in the opinion of this meeting Henry Gill, F. Cornwell and George Young should resign their positions as Trustees at once.—Carried.

Wm. Shea, Esq., ex-Deputy Reeve, presided.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25.

City and Vicinity.

THE ice harvest has now set in.

The noon express was only two hours and a half late to-day.

Two tramps were all that were registered at the police cells last night.

SNOW to the east, west, north and south of us, but none at Belleville, or within several miles of the city.

THE rate of taxation in Belleville is grumbled at by many, but in Chicago the rate is very nearly five cents on the dollar.

LACK of space prevents a reply to Mr. T. B. Bently's letter in the Ontario of yesterday. It will receive attention to morrow.

A GREAT pressure of matter compels the cutting down of local news-letters and the holding over of other correspondence for the time being.

THE programme of Mr. Oldham's organ concert on the 1st prox. has been published. It contains many of the masterpieces of the best masters.

THE anniversary of the City Mission is to be celebrated on February 19th and 20th, nstead of on January 29th and 30th, as stated in yesterday's issue.

ADDITIONS are constantly being made to the membership of the Mechanics' Institute. The list now contains very nearly two hundred names, and the Directors will, by the end of the month, be in a posiition to meet the requirements attaching to Mr. Ritchie's munificent offer of $100 towards the purchase of two billiard tables.

THE contest in Foster Ward over the election of a School Trustee to fill the place in the Board recently vacated by the death of Mr. John I. Wood, has been proceeding vigorously throughout the day. The contest, as already announced, is between Messrs. John Martin and E. Maxon. Mr. Maxon took the lead early in the day and has since held his own, and there is every probability of his being elected. At 2:30 o'clock the vote stood as follows: Maxon, 50; Martin, 32.

AN error occurred in our brief Council report yesterday, caused by an absent-minded compositor, by which Mr. Corrigan's name appeared as Second Deputy Reeve for Thurlow, and the Tyendinaga representation was omitted althogether. Mr. J. M. Hurley's name should have appeared in place of Mr. Courrigan,s, and the Tyendinaga representatives should have been given as follows:—Reeve, John White, M. P.; 1st Deputy, D. Anderson; 2nd Deputy, M. Corrigan.

THE Histrionic Association performed "Engaged" before a large and appreciative audience in Napanee last night. The play took well, and the audience were kept in a good humor throughout. It should be said that a large share of the success of the evening was due to the members of the Napanee Dramatic Club, who work hard in the interests of the local association. After the conclusion of the play, the Belleville party were entertained at supper by their friends at the Huffman House, where a ery enjoyable time was su bequently spent. The Oddfellows' Orchestra accompanied the Association and furnished the orchestral music, which was received by the audience with almost as many marks of approval as the performance itself.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At a meeting of Loyal Orange District Lodge No. 2, North Hastings, held at Flinton, the following officers were elected for 1882:—Bro. Hugh Ketcheson, D. M.; Bro. William Thompson, D. D. M.; Rev. Bro. Smith, Chaplain; Bro W. J. Wiggins, Sec.; Bro. John Caskey, Treas; Bro. Jas. Bryden, D. C.; Bro. W. J. Allen, P. D. M. Before the close of the meeting a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to the Past District Master, Bro. W. J. Allen, for the able manner in which he had filled the Master's chair for the past two years, and also a vote of thanks was given to Bro. John N. Moore for the great interest he had always taken in Orangeism. The meeting was one of the most harmonious ever held in the district. The next meeting will be held at Queensboro.

AN APT RETORT.—A gentleman on meeting the jolly Reeve of Rawdon yesterday, remarked: "How are you Walker? Where is your friend the devil?" To which he replied, in broad Scotch: "Walker is weel, shaking hands with the deil."

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 25.—Lakes, fresh to strong southeasterly to southerly winds, cloudy considerably milder weather, with light snow or rain in some localities, to-morrow will be very mild.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

A FAMILY QUARREL.

Knife, Gun and Revolver in Requisition.

Thomas Perkins, of this city, was on the 24th inst. brought before Geo. E. Bull, Esq., J. P., at Stirling and committed to gaol on a charge of assaulting Charles Kyrle, with intent to take his life. Prisoner arrived on the same night in charge of constable Wright, and was lodged in gaol. He stated this morning to a representative of the INTELLIGENCER—and to understand his story it is necessary to state that his mother, who was a widow, is now the wife of Kyrle, who lives on a farm in Sidney, near Stirling—that on Monday he was hired to take a horse and cutter to Stirling and leave them there. He did so, and whilst waiting for the train fell in with his younger brother Harry, who complained of ill-treatment by his step-father and asked him (prisoner) to go there. Prisoner, who was under the influence of liquor, did so, and after he had been admitted to the house went into a room where his mother was sitting with her baby on her knee. Perkins applied a very foul epithet to the child, which caused her to call to her husband, who rushed into the room and, prisoner thinking Kyrle was about to procure a knife, drew a pocket knife to defend himself. Kyrle, however, got a double barreled gun and presented it at prisoner, who knocked down the muzzle as the trigger was pulled, and the shot entered the floor. Kyrle subsequently got a revolver, with which he drove Perkins from the house.

This is the prisoner's version of the affair, but other parties state that Perkins made several attempts to stab Kyrle. The truth will no doubt be disclosed at the trial.

Curliana.

The great curling events of the season will take place to-morrow, when the Brockville and Peterborough Clubs will meet here, on neutral ice, to play two rinks aside for the Royal Caledonian medal. Both these Clubs play with granite. Mr. John Jellett will umpire the game, having been deputed to do so by Mr. Pitceathly, who was agreed upon as umpire, but will be unable to attend, owing to illness. This game will be commenced at 11 a. m., and twenty-five ends will be played.

In the evening two rinks of the home Club will encounter two rinks of the Peterborough Club, in the first part of a home and home match, the game here being played with iron and that at Peterborough with granite. It will be remembered that Belleville won a similar game last year by a few shots. The players on behalf of Belleville will be:

J. W. Johnson,	John Bonar,
E. Force,	D. B. Robertson,
Jas. Gordon,	S. S. Lazier,
Thos. Thomson, Skip.	Angus McFee, Skip.

A BIG VERDICT.—Counsel in the great case of McLaren vs. the Canada Central Railway addressed the jury at Toronto on the 23rd, occupying several hours. They were followed by Judge Osler, whose charge was clear and able. The jury retired at 4:45. The extent and nature of the evidence were not such as to expect a speedy verdict. It was nearly 11 o'clock when the jury returned a verdict for plaintiff for $100,000—making the locomotive spark that set fire to Mr. McLaren's lumber pile very costly for the railway company. The judgment will not be entered till Hilary term next month. This is the second verdict for $100,000 Mr. McLaren has won, the farmer one having been upset. The defendants will probably appeal again.

—The boy Smith has been placed under arrest on suspicion of being guilty of the horrible murder committed near Shelburne.

Great Fur Sale.

During the last ten days my Sales of Furs have been considerabley in excess of expectations, showing conclusively that bargains are given and appreciated. I am determined to close out my entire stock and although the season is considerably advanced it will pay to buy furs now.

I am closing business in this city and I am willing to sacrifice in order to make sales.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. WHERE ODDFELLOWS MEET.

The Newly-Furnished Suite of Rooms of Belleville Lodge No. 81, I. O. O. F.

A Palatial Lodge Room, Attractive Hall, and Convenient Ante-Rooms.

If any wife given to grumbling because her worse half comes home late on "lodge nights" were to pay a visit to the newly fitted up rooms of Belleville Lodge 81, I.O.O. F., and take note of the surroundings, she would perhaps be a little more lenient with him and abate somewhat the vinegar of her speech which she prepares for him on his return. These rooms will be formally opened this evening by the grand concert which is to be given under the auspices of the Lodge, and it is to be hoped that all who admire rich furniture and fittings, and can appreciate luxury combined with comfort and convenience, will make it a point to be present. Belleville Lodge recently leased the whole upper flat of Robertson's Eastern Block, and have utilized the whole of it. At the northern end is the Lodge Room, with its approaches and anterooms. At the other end is the fine large hall recently used by the St.-Patrick's Society, with its waiting-rooms for ladies, &c, besides a band-room and a gentleman's dressing room. The large hall has been thoroughly overhauled, and is now one of the most attractive concert rooms, and the very best assembly room, in the city. Opening into it are two dressing-rooms for ladies, both nicely carpeted and conveniently and elegantly fitted up. For thorough comfort and convenience there is no suite of rooms in the city at all approaching these for dancing purposes.

But it is the newly-furnished Lodge Room which will claim the attention and arouse the curiosity of the visitor. Though it would perhaps be extravagant to say that it is the most handsomely furnished lodge-room in the Province, as has been said, it is certainly as handsome a room as any body of men (or women either) need possess, in which to hold their weekly meetings. The approach to it is by means of two long narrow passages, which effectually shut off the room from the remainder of the flat, and preclude the possibility of any interruption from outsiders during lodge hours. A neat but unpretending ante-room is first entered. The only attempt at display here is a fine case with a glass-front at one end of the room, used for holding the regalia; there is nothing else to prepare one for the lavish luxury of the lodge-room.

Upon entering the room, one is struck with the richness and artistic arrangements of its furnishings: design, color, completeness, and in short magnificence, have all been considered with cultivated taste. The carpet is of a modern and beautiful Japanese design in pleasantly blended colors, the full soft pile yielding beneath the tread.

If it is at night, the light comes softened through the globes of the fine crystal chandelier, suspended from the centre of the room. Brackets to match the chandelier have recently been procured, and are placed over the desks of the Secretaries and Treasurer and on each side of the Vice-Grand's chair.

On either side of the room are raised platforms extending midway in the form of a square, on which rests the handsome black walnut pedestals, and large chairs used by the Past Grand and Chaplain; these chairs are massive in their proportions, and beautiful in design, upholstered in a rich shade of crimson wool Terry. The style of the frame is Gothic, with a happy combination of modern ornamentation. On the right and left are arranged in graded heights the settees, fourteen in number, each with a seating capacity for six; the upholstering and frame work are, in design, in perfect keeping with the chairs; and so cleverly are the necessarily massive and substantial proportions ornamented with cunningly wrought engraving, and highly polished French walnut panels and oil burnished mouldings in relief, that the observer is convinced at once not only that the execution of the design is the work of no novice, but also that the mechanical construction reveals the practiced hand of expert workmanship.

At the eastern end is the chair of the second officer, made in like manner and beautifully upholstered in blue Terry; at either side are the chairs of the Right and Left Supporters, all on a slightly elevated platform, overhanging which is a canopy of French tapestry descending in graceful folds through relief bands in blue and gold with silk tassels. At the western end of the hall, on an elevated disk—the sides extending in square sections the extreme width and midway reaching out in the form of a semicircle—stands the chair or throne of the chief officer, which, though constructed of the same materials as the rest of the furniture, surpasses it all in beauty of design and richness of decoration. The seat is at the same time firm and elastic—soft and easy in its down-like yield—exhibiting the cunning of an expert in the upholsterer's craft. The back rest or cushioned panel is a finished piece of handicraft. In the middle is a double row of silk tufts in plush. Extending above and below these and meeting in silk-slashed points are the cushioned flutes or pipes. The whole is bordered and surrounded with a roll in sections of silk plush. In front stands the pedestal of honor with the traditional cross-gavels of authority carved in relief on engraved panels; topped with beveled Italian marble, the deep frieze surroundings being relieved with engraved point moulding. On the right and left stand the chairs of the supporters, again to the right and left are situate the elegant and massive pedal desks for the secretaries. These are a study in themselves. Of solid black walnut, double furrowed, sunk base panels, beveled mouldings, polished burl raised panels and semi-circular patries resting at their ends, planted on the frieze; the slope is covered in maroon colored morocco, the rest or top is surrounded on three sides with an elegant design in Japanese fret-work enclosed in a finely beaded Queen Ann railing, closing midway on a half section square or central elevation, on which is planted the emblematic links, over polished burl surmounted above with carved gothic key in keeping with the prevailing design of the other furniture. The whole is finished in hard oil finish in deep dead gloss, except mouldings and ornaments, which are burnished.

Before closing we may be permitted to add that in thus describing the furnishings we are but doing bare justice to the manufacturer, Ald. John G. Frost, under whose supervision and at whose establishment the whole work was executed, which not only reflects credit on his experience--but proves the skill of his workmen, and should convince the most skeptical of our citizens that the time is past for them to seek other and outside markets in which to procure fine class cabinet work.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

The Sun's Albany special says that yesterday the Assembly adjourned with more ill-feeling all around than has yet been evinced.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

The Times' Washington special says that the audiences at the Guiteau trial are composed of many Washington people, and it strikes all strangers as remarkable that there should be manifested by them, and particularly by the women, a strong feeling of sympathy for the prisoner. The entrance of the Attorney-General into court yesterday caused some surprise to Guiteau, who has repeatedly shouted that the Government was taking no interest in the prosecution.

WHEAT TRANSACTIONS IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—The wheat transactions yesterday exceeded Monday's by 10,000,000 bushels.

THE TENNESSEE FLOOD.

JOHNSONVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 25.—The entire place is submerged; every family has been dislodged from its dwelling. The population is 700. A large number of small houses have floated away. There is much suffering. A great quantity of lumber and many dwelling houses, are drifting down from above here. The water has reached the iron rails of the railroad bridge.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

THE FRENCH FINANCIAL CRISIS.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The Bank of France, in consideration of adequate security placed important resources at the disposal of the chief financiers and commercial houses of Lyons.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—In spite of the Government and private aid to Paris the Bourse and all other advices concur representing the difficulties as being far from surmounted.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Arrived, Bolivia.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The prisoner said: "My sister has been doing some silly talk in Chicago. She means well, but she is no lawyer.' Porter said the feeling was that it was imperatively necessary that the case should be concluded as soon as possible. He would simply touch upon a few salient points in the evidence. Porter believed Jno. W. Guiteau was honest. He came here ready to contribute means, evidence and services to save his brother's life and his father's fame, yet truth comes from his lips which must impress upon you the conviction that on the 2nd of July the prisoner was as sane as you or I or the Judge. Commenting on the evidence of J. W., Porter said the prisoner has two faces.

Guiteau—How many faces have you got?

Porter—He has two faces, one showing the sanctity of the Pharisee and the other the hideous grin of the fiend that possesses him. As he continued reading from the testimony he related J. W's. last interview with the prisoner.

Guiteau continually interrupted with "what we say is always true."

Judge Porter—"What you say in generally false." I never said so; that was absolutely false.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH B. INMAN, Station D, New York City. [w6m143eod

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)

An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment. You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. TOUTHWORTH.

'Young Mr.—Mr.—Wot is his name ag'in? - Mr.—Mr.—hal—Hallo—I mean dat young youth wot has come on to old Mr. Rushmore's place.'

'Oh! young Mr. Hilary. Tell him I will be down in a few minutes,' said Lilith, who never refused to see a visitor. And she ran up stairs to change her white wrapper for a home dress.

In a very short time she appeared in the parlor, dressed in a crimson cashmere suit, lace collar and cuffs, and with her curling black hair gathered into a fine black net.

Standing on the rug, with his back to the roaring hickory fire, stood a tall, slight young man, with a thin face, a broad, full forehead, a turned-up nose, a florid complexion—now much exaggerated by the cold—bright red whiskers and mustache, and a shock of bright red hair that thickly covered his head, and all this stood out around his sanguine face like a halo, as his fond mother said; though his frank, merry, good humored countenance certainly did not suggest sanctity.

With full confidence in his welcome, he had laid off his overcoat and fur cap, and left them in the hall, and he now stood before the fire in a morning suit of bottle-green broadcloth, with a large roll of white paper sticking from his pocket, and with a choice bouquet in his hand—a bouquet that filled the whole room with a rich aromatic fragrance.

'Good morning, Miss Wyvil! A Happy New Year to you! This is the first I have made to-day, believe me! I should have been here hours earlier, only I was bound to have these flowers cut fresh this morning, and to make sure of it I rode to the florist's at Frosthill, and selected them myself, and saw them put up myself. See, they have all long stems, and they will keep a long time if you put them in water with a few drops of ammonia. Will you kindly accept them?'

'Thank you very much, Mr. Hilary, they are really beautiful,' replied Lilith, with a slight smile at the quaintness of her visitor's manners. 'I hope your mother and sisters are quite well,' she added.

'Oh, just roaring well! Never were ill in all their lives, and never were so well as now! How's all with you?'

'My father is suffering from an attack of his old malady, I regret to say,' gravely replied Lilith.

'Eh!—I didn't hear about it,' exclaimed Hilary, with awakened interest.

'Oh, it is only since yesterday afternoon.'

'You don't say! Is he very bad?'

'Oh, I trust not! He is much better this morning,' said Lilith, whose hopes had been much strengthened.

'And the Honorable? Did he come down for the holidays?'

'No, but he came this morning to see his father.'

'But you say the major is better?'

'Yes, he is much better.'

'I am glad of that! I wouldn't like anything to happen to the Major! So glad! But I call this morning not only to bring the flowers and wish you a happy New Year, but to ask if you will do me the honor to allow me take you to the theatre to-night.'

'The theatre?' inquired Lilith, wondering what her visitor meant by talking of a theatre in that mountain wilderness and in the depth of winter.

'Yes. You see there has come the 'The Grand Montmorencie and Plantagenet Operatic and Dramatic Combination of Beauty and Talent from London and Paris,' as the show-bills descaibe it, and they are going to perform in the Town Hall at Forsthill. Performance to open with the 'opera of Figaro's Marriage, to be followed by the tragedy of Macbeth, and concluded with the roaring farce of Fortune's Frolic! Just see what a bill!' exclaimed the enthusiast, drawing from his pocket that large roll of paper, unfurling it as a flag and displaying the programme in large letters of all the colors in the rainbow.

Lilith smiled at the excitement of her visitor.

'Now then! Will you go? If you will, I will have the sleigh here on time, with plenty of bear skins and hot stones, and everything to make you comfortable; and I will take first-rate care of you.'

'I do not donbt it, and I am very grateful. But I cannot accept your kind offer, for I must not leave Major Hereward at this time,' gently replied Lilith.

'Oh, but I thought he was so much better!' exclaimed the young man, in a surprised and disapointed tone.

'He is better, thank Heaven, but he is not well, and I must not leave him.'

'What a nuisance! And I thought I should have the delight of taking you to the theatre to-night, and of telling you—but that I can do here!' said Hiliary, as he suddenly left his seat, drew a chair close to the side of Lilith and dropped into it.

Lilith lifted her eyes in surprise and questioning.

'May I tell you here, Miss Wyvil?' he entreated.

'What is it?—Yes—I don't know,' replied the girl, confused and somewhat frightened by his manner.

'I wanted to tell you—Don't be afraid, Miss Wyvil! Please don't be afraid! I wouldn't even lift your hands to my lips without your leave, I have so much respect as well as—as the other for you! Indeed I have.'

'I—do not understand you,' said Lilith, in a little, low timid voice, and speaking truly, for she really did not know what he meant, and she feared her visitor must have lost his wits.

'You—you don't understand me?' uneasily inquired Hilary.

'No, I do not.'

'Well, that's very awkward. You don't know what I want to tell you?'

'No, indeed.'

'This is awful! It makes it so awkward! And I never said it to any young lady before. And I hardly know how to say it now. I thought you would be prepared for it. And you are not?'

'No; I say, I— Hadn't you better compose yourself, Mr. Hilary?' said Lilith, divided between her sense of the duties of hospitality and her fears of her visitor.

Hilary, who had left his seat and was walking nervously up and down the room, shoved his long fingers through his shock of red hair and answered:

'No! I can't compose myself until I get this off my mind. Oh, Miss Wyvil! You are not blind! You see your lovely face in the glass sometimes. You must know how charming you are. And how utterly impossible it is for me, or for any one, to see you and not to—to—to—admire you, to—to—like you, to—love you, in fact!' he stammered, blushing like a school girl.

'Oh, Mr. Hilary, pray, pray, do not,' pleaded the young lady, drawing away the hand that he clasped and tried to hold.

'But, I love you, indeed I do; I want to marry you, indeed I do. It seems to me I never could be happy without you. Why, I know I sha'n't even enjoy the theatre to-night because I couldn't get you to go with me.—But you'll think better of it, won't you? Now that you know I love you and want to marry you, you will come with me, after all, won't you? Say, won't you?'

'I am sorry to disappoint you, but I cannot leave Major Hereward,' pleaded Lilith, making her refusal as kind as possible.

'Well, I suppose I must give that pleasure up. But you will marry me, Miss Lilith, won't you, now? You'd never find any one to love you better than I do, or any one more willing to let you walk right over him than I am. Do now, Miss Lilith. Only consent to have me, and you shall have your own way in every blessed respect in this world,' he pleaded, losing his timidity and his awkwardness in his earnestness.

'Oh! Mr. Hilary, I am so very sorry to hear you say all this! For I cannot respond. But you have known me such a little time that I cannot in any way be necessary for your welfare or—happiness. I hope you will soon forget to think of me in any way but as a good friend,' gently replied the girl.

'Known you such a little time? Oh! Miss Lilith, what has time to do with love? With real, true love, I mean, not with the counterfeit which often goes by its name. Oh, Miss Lilith! the first time I ever saw you, when we first came to the neighborhood last summer, and you and the major and the Honorable called on us at Rushmore's, I felt like the poet says:

'As if my soul that moment caught
A something it through life had sought.'

Thomas Moore, you know! So do not talk of time in regard to love. Yet if you want a few hours to think of this, I will try to wait.'

'I do not want a moment to think of it, Mr. Hilary, if you please. I am quite certain that I should never care for you except as a friend and neighbor. So pray let this subject drop forever. You do not know how it distresses me,' said Lilith gravely.

'I wouldn't distress you for the whole world, Miss Lilith! Perhaps I have been too sudden in my—my—my proposal. If I have you will please excuse me, for I am new to this sort of thing. I never said such words as I have said to you to any other young lady in the world. No, nor never wished to say them to any other. You are my first love, Miss Lilith, as I hope and pray I may be yours.'

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer [illegible] what his condition may be, may [illegible] cheaply, privately and radically.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!
PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

PUTNER'S EMULSION.
I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb, 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.
A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 25th, 1882.

The Council met at 10 o'clock, the Warden in the chair.

The minutes were read and approved.

A communication was read from John Dennis, with reference to repairs to O'Brien's Bridge.

The By-law for the appointment of Auditors was read a first time and referred to the Committee of the whole on By-laws.

A petition was read from the School Trustees of Trenton, protesting against the action of the School Board of that town with regard to the High School, enclosing resolutions passed at a public meeting on Trenton, and asking for the appointment of W. H. Austin as High School Trustee.—Referred to the Committee on By-laws.

Mr. Pearce moved, seconded by Mr. Walker, that Messrs. Aylsworth, O'Flynn, Gunter, Caskey and Vermilyea be the Finance Committee for the present year.

Mr. Wilmot asked that one of the Deputy Reeves of Sidney be represented on the Committee.

Mr. Aylsworth proposed that the name of Dr. Faulkner be placed on the Committee in the place of his own.

Mr. O'Flynn said that it would not be contrary to By-law to appoint seven on the Committee.

The motion was carried

The Warden nominated the Gravel Road Committee, as follows:—Messrs. Wilmot, Ashley, White, Walker, Haggerty, Pearce, Vankleek, Tuttle, and Ostrom.

On motion of Mr. Caskey, Mr. Kavanagh was added to the Committee.

Council went into Committee on By-laws Mr. Haggerty in the chair.

The By-law for the appointment of County Auditors was introduced.

The Warden nominated Mr. Jas. O. Huffman as one of the Auditors.

On motion of Mr. Aylsworth, the other blank in the By-law was filled with the name of Mr. A. F. Wood.

On motion Messrs. Thos. Emo and E. D. O'Flynn were appointed Auditors of Criminal Justice accounts.

Mr. Ostrom moved that W. H. Austin be appointed High School Trustee for Trenton.

Mr. White thought the matter should be deferred till the afternoon, as some parties wished to state their views to the Council.

Mr. Bonter moved in amendment that Mr. Jas Richardson be appointed Trustee.

Mr. Vermilyea thought it would be unwise to allow anyone to come before the Council and address it at length on this delicate question, as they had, probably, already aired their views in print.

Mr. White seconded Mr. Bonter's motion. He thought, contrary to the opinion of Mr. Vermilyea, that the matter should be taken into the most serious consideration of the Council, and that some peaceful arrangement should be made if such were possible. One reason he would support the appointment of Mr. Richardson was, that that gentleman had promised to allow Mr. Hicks, the Head Master, to retire honorably from his position.

Mr. O'Flynn could not understand how it was that the Reeve and Deputy Reeve of Trenton disagreed in this matter. He thought it was unfortunate.

Mr. Ostrom explained that his nominee Mr. Austin, would be in favor of allowing Mr. Hicks, the Head Master, to retire at the mid-summer holidays, whereas Mr. Richardson was committed to the course of dismissing Mr. Hicks at the easter holidays. The appointment of Mr. Austin, he claimed, would be the true method of compromising the matter peacefully, as proposed by Mr. White.

Mr. O'Flynn moved, that the consideration of the question be postponed till to-morrow

Mr. Ashey raised a point of order, that the motions had to be put in the order in which they were moved. [This course, it will be seen, would have decided the whole question at once.]

Mr. White spoke strongly in favor of a postponement

The Warden ruled that Mr. O'Flynn's motion should be put first.

A lengthy discussion ensued on the question of postponement. While it was in progress several gentlemen from Trenton interested in matter entered the Council Chamber, and as it was on account of their absence that the motion of postponement had been made, Mr. O'Flynn withdrew it.

On motion of Mr. Pearce, the Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

It being 12 o'clock, the Warden left the chair.

Concerning Hives.

BY MR. WALLBRIDGE.

This is the season of the year in which the bee-keeper should get ready his hives for next summer's campaign. To those who have not yet decided upon any particular hive, I would say, have only hives of one pattern in your apiary. As to what the proportions of the hive should be, depends very much upon the manner in which you intend to manage your bees, or rather in what way you desire your honey product to go to market. If you desire box honey or honey in sections, I do not know of a better hive than the Langstroth. As this hive left the hands of the inventor, its size was 18⅜ inches long, 14¼ inches wide, and 9¼ inches deep, all inside measurements, and contained ten frames, cubic contents 2,563 inches. Many use this hive with nine frames, 12½ in. wide, and are well satisfied with it. The contents cubic of this hive would be 2,268 inches inside measurement. The Langstroth hive affords more honey surface, and the section frames will contain eight one pound sections each. This is a very convenient form in which to send honey in the comb to market. A section 4¼x4¼, and two inches broad, will contain just one lb. of honey. Very neat sections are made by Mr. Ramer, Cedar Grove P.O., Ont., at a very reasonable price. Much depends on neatness in commanding ready sales. If, however, you intend to extract your honey, and market it in that way, you will find a hive of the following proportions very convenient, both as containing combs well proportioned for the extractor, and the hive itself easy to handle: 16 inches long, 12½ inches wide, 12 inches deep, cubic contents 2,400 inches. The frame adapted to this hive will be found to be nearly square, and very convenient in the extractor. Many bee keepers neglect to get their hives ready until swarming time commences. Such persons, instead of having the bees in one kind of hive (as I strongly recommend) will find at the end of the season their bees will be in boxes, kegs, barrels, and in all conceivable shaped things. You must give up this method, or quit bee keeping. I repeat, you should have but one kind of hive in your apiary. The comb frames of one hive should fit all the others; if not, you cannot strengthen the weak by giving combs filled with brood from the strong. Artificial swarming cannot be practiced, and, in extracting, your comb-basket will have to be adjusted as the comb-frame varies. This is additional trouble, and you have to do it when you are already busy extracting, and can ill afford the time. You will find yourself also hindered when you wish to give comb-frames to your nucleus hives, and in many ways when you may wish to put in practice new methods of which you may read.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

BRILLIANT SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH.—Thousands cured of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and lung diseases by Dr. M. BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 26.

Mr. Bentley and His Letter.

Mr. Bentley takes exception in the Ontario of the 24th to our assertion that the personal reflection referred to in his letter was the result of a conversation preceding the election; but from the report we had of the affair we were led to believe that such was the case and advised Mr. Bentley to erase the personal reflection, leaving the blame of his rejection—if there was any—upon the Council, the majority vote of which appointed his successor. We had no desire to discuss the absurdities of Mr. Bentley's letter, nor did we intend to do so, although the Ontario made a great flourish of trumpets about the alleged dismissal, claiming that it was on political grounds, but the public would have been far more interested had they had the manliness to give us a pen-portrait of the License Commissioners.

Mr. Bentley, in his letter, makes himself a veritable martyr when he says:

"Why I complain is, not that I have been rejected (for other parties have an equal right to the appointment if competent); but because I worked and voted for the defeated candidate. I acted in the matter as an intelligent and independent voter should—vote for the man who is he considered better fitted for the position, irrespective of party."

After reading the above one would suppose that the writer was only moved by the best of reasons—the public good—in voting as he did. But the poetry of the sentiment was dissolved when the same Mr. Bentley, in asking us to publish his assertion that "he voted for the defeated candidate on the ground that he was the better man of the two" gave a verbal explanation of his vote, and said that he voted for Mr. St. Charles because he kept his (St. Charles') books, and in voting for him he was voting for his bread and butter. With such a profession in writing and such a contradiction in words, it was quite natural that we should look with distrust upon the whole letter. Further, Mr. Bentley would have the world believe that he should have great credit as one of the auditors in the year 1875, when it was discovered that there was a large deficiency in the Treasurer's accounts, but he fails to state that he was Auditor the previous year, and, as one of the auditors for the year previous, the public would have been far better pleased had Mr. Bentley the power to say that as Auditor in 1874 he had prevented the deficiency from occurring, instead of certifying that the books were correct at the end of the year when there was actually a deficiency of $23,023.92.

"Guilty."

The protracted trial of the wretch Charles J. Guiteau, who assassinated President Garfield at Washington on the 2nd of July last, came to an end on the 25th inst., when the jury, after a short deliberation, rendered a verdict of "guilty as indicted." No other result could have been satisfactory, as it was plainly apparent, from the evidence, that the prisoner, although possibly to some extent demented, was yet fully aware of the consequences of his act, and so amenable to the punishment prescribed by the law for murder. A fairer trial could not possibly have been had, as the prisoner and his counsel were allowed a degree of latitude greater than was ever before allowed to a criminal. It is probable that an attempt will be made to secure a new trial, and although some delay will thereby be occasioned, there can be little doubt that the application will be refused and the dread sentence of the law carried into effect at an early date.

Bill Stamps.

There is at present, as there usually is when the revenue is buoyant, an agitation going on for the abolition of the bill stamp tax, and the chief argument of those who support the affirmative is the smallness of the amount of revenue derived from the duty, which has been as follows since Confederation:

1867-68....	$119,712 83	1874-75....	$244,180 19
1868-69....	201,664 81	1875-76....	227,089 98
1869-70....	134,947 22	1876-77....	209,038 92
1870-71....	183,319 42	1877-78....	200,442 27
1871-72....	191,918 37	1878-79....	185,104 87
1872-73....	201,708 92	1879-80....	175,806 15
1873-74....	209,088 60

Whilst it is true that the revenue derived from this source is small, yet there are several other sources of revenue probably quite as obnoxious, and it would make a serious drain upon the annual receipts of the country to remit them all. It would, however, be a relief to borrowers of small sums to abolish the stamp duty on notes drawn for amounts under $100. By doing so, those who can least afford to pay the tax would be relieved and a concession would be made to those who advocate the abolition of the duty, whilst the revenue would not be seriously affected. We commend this suggestion to the consideration of the Government.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

The Manitoba South-Eastern.

The Rapid City (Manitoba) Progress takes a sensible view of the disallowance of the Manitoba South-Eastern Bill, it says:—"The absence of through competition would doubtless be a serious cause of complaint, were it not for the fact that the Government possesses the power to supervise the rates charged by the Syndicate, so that the matter is indirectly under the control of the people themselves. But if this liberal spirit does exist, we question very much if the ultimate result of any competition that might be gained through connection with United States roads would be beneficial to the country The length to which our American cousins will go in order to crush out Canadian enterprise is well known to those who will look facts squarely in the face, and it is but reasonable to suppose that if they once get a chance against the road that will render us independent of them, they will do their best to weaken and embarrass the company that has undertaken its construction. It is all very well to talk about the immense wealth and power of the Canadian Syndicate, but we must remember that their wealth and power, large as it is, could not stand long against a combination of the gigantic railroad interests of the United States. We hold that the transfer of the Canadian Pacific Railroad to a company has in no wise lessened its national character, and while we shall be the first to protest against any advantage being conferred upon the Syndicate that is not secured by their contract, we deem it our duty to advocate the complete fulfillment of an agreement solemnly entered into by parliament as we believe, for the best interests of the whole Dominion."

Editorial Brevities.

The Globe follows Mr. Hardy's example in mutilating public documents. All the words in the speech with which the Nova Scotia Legislature was opened, that show any beneficial effect of the N.P. on the trade and industries of the Province, were omitted from the speech, as published in the Globe. A cause which requires the perpetration of such despicable acts must be very bad indeed.

Mr. Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, approves of the disallowance of the Manitoba South-Eastern bill and says the people of the Province are of the same opinion, with the exception of a small minority.

The debate on the address was continued in the Legislature on Tuesday, when Dr. Boulter was one of the speakers. The Mail says of the doctor's speech: "Few things could have been more effective than Dr. Boulter's exposition of the absurd dealing of the Local Government with the doings of the County Councils and the municipal business generally. The 'bulldozing" of the municipalities has been carried to a pitch that causes people to wonder what the 'Liberalism' of this 'Liberal' Government consists of. Dr. Boulter's sensible and moderate exposure of the absurdity of the exaggerated calculations of the value of the timber, &c., in the disputed territory will probably have weight with sensible and moderate people everywhere. The present Government have, we feel sure, overstepped the limits of common sense in every direction."

Our local contemporary acknowledges on behalf of Mr. T. W. Casey, Grand Worthy Secretary of the I. O. of G. T., the offence with which we charged him, namely sending Grit circulars in Temperance envelopes, and pleads that only two circulars were so enclosed. The old excuse: "It's only a little one."

The Governor-General.

WELCOMED HOME BY THE OTTAWA CIVIC AUTHORITIES.

On the 25th inst. the Governor-General was presented by the civic authorities of Ottawa with an address welcoming him back to the seat of Government. His Excellency made a verbal reply returning thanks for the kind wishes expressed in the address for both himself and the Princess Louise. He was delighted to find himself back in Canada. During his visit to England he had observed and noticed that much more attention than formerly was being paid to matters pertaining to Canada and he had every reason to believe that during the next few years there would be a great influx of capital towards our Great North-West, and that it would also rapidly become peopled with a most desirable class of population, and he said that particular attention was also being paid to female emigration to Canada. A ladies' society for the purpose of encouraging it had been formed in Canada of which the Princess Louise would be a patron during his term of office. He advised the formation of branch ladies' societies in Ottawa and all the cities of the Dominion to correspond with the parent societies and second the effort of the Government to bring out young women to act as domestic servants. All the Government could do of course would be to make arrangements regarding the rates of transit for such emigrants, but such branch societies as he spoke of could do much to encourage the immigration to this country of a very desirable class of female immigrants. He concluded by again thanking the Mayor and Corporation for the kind manner in which they had welcomed him back to the Capital.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Gingalene Hair Restorer. Sold by A. L. Goon, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Correspondence.

Whilst correspondents will be accorded space for the expression of their ideas on topics of public interest, it must be in all cases understood that the views so expressed are simply those the correspondents themselves.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—Several days have passed away since I wrote calling attention to certain passages of a sermon preached in Bleecker St. Church on the occasion of its re-dedication. My Christian spirit and brotherly solicitude yearn for a word of explanation and it cometh not, either from the preacher or his hearers.

I have had doubts, grave ones, and I have them still that a Methodist Minister would dare, publicly, say to his congregation "It is an error to think that those who loved us in this world fail to have sympathy with us after they leave the flesh"; and am I now to believe that I have been ignorant of what is taught by that Christian community on the "Communion of Saints"? The Rev. gentleman's silence and the silence of the hearers lead me to believe that I have been, and I am pleased it is so. True, his words are his own, and his congregation is not bound to believe him; for is he not fallible, and being so liable to false exposition of the Sacred record to wrest scripture to their and his own condemnation? True, again, they may tell me that they reject the idea of "friends at Court —in heaven, who plead for them" as a Popish superstition. But, why do they not come forward, denounce him, and explain their own position, if he has been giving them a stone instead of bread?

Gracefully, thankfully, joyously, do I accept the silence. It is a tacit acknowledgement of my Bleecker Street Church brethren that our friends do think of, and plead for us before the Throne of the LAMB—that their intermediary offices are acceptable to the Redeemer. Once more, then, do I say shake hands brothers, we are a unit on the doctrine. I shall most willingly ask any of your Saints who have left the flesh to sympathise with, and pray for me, that I too, may come to enjoy, with them, the bliss of heaven.

Yours respe tfully,
A CATHOLIC

Belleville, Jan. 24, 1882.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—Having frequently read in the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER Hon Bills Flint's accounts of the northern parts of your County and some of the doings there, I felt a desire to add an item regarding the village of Madoc and some parts surrounding it.

The village of Madoc is one of the most thriving in Western Ontario, and it is to be hoped that its energetic business men, of whom there are a great number for a place of its dimensions, will not be so blind to their own interest at the next general election as to oppose the present Government of the Dominion, which has inaugurated and put in force a policy that has stimulated the industries of the county and given an impetus to trade such as they never before experienced.

From this point the mineral land holders are trying to work up the Muncipal Councils of the northern Townships to confirm the present assessment (for a term of years) of their lands mostly held in the township of Tudor, in consideration of receiving the extension of a railroad some thirty-five miles north. Whether those municipalities will concede or not is a question of the future; but the National Policy works wonders. This arrangement of taxation might seriously affect persons owning property adjoining the localities, asking the confirmation of assessment, as regards taxation for schools and other local necessities.

—The adulteration of food appears to prevail to a alarming degree in Montreal. An investigation recently made by the Government analist went to show that in nearly every case the articles subjected to analysis were adultered, and that to a very considerable extent, averaging from twenty-five to fifty per cent.

Great Fur Sale,

During the last ten days my Sales of Furs have been considerabley in excess of expectations, showing conclusively that bargains are given and appreciated. I am determined to close out my entire stock and although the season is considerably advanced it will pay to buy furs now.

I am closing business in this city and I am willing to sacrifice in order to make sales.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in pyrosis or dyspepsia, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

W. S. MUIR, M. D.,

Dr. Muir has been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

WAKEFIELD,
POPLAR POINT, MANITOBA,
Is the Banner Town of Marquette County,

ONE of the oldest settled, richest, and most popular districts in Manitoba. It is situated on the Assiniboine River, being in the direct line of navigation between Winnipeg, Brandon, and Fort Ellice; is distant only 10 miles from Lake Manitoba, one of the finest sheets of water in the Province, 175 miles long by 40 miles wide, on which several steamers are now engaged in regular traffic. On the north of Lake Manitoba there are very extensive Timber Limits, and it is here where are located the famous Salt Springs, where was obtained nearly all the salt used in the country up to 1871. Application has been made for a charter to build a Railway from Wakefield to Clandeboye Harbor, on Lake Manitoba, distant only 10 miles. It is also on the main line of the Canada Pacific Railway, 43 miles west of Winnipeg, and 23 miles east of Portage La Prairie, and will be the only place of importance on the line of Railways between those two cities. Situated in the centre of one of the Finest Agricultural Districts in the Province, having railway and water communication with the East and West, no point in Manitoba presents a more favorable chance for capitalists to invest their money, with the certainty of a rapid increase in price. Arrangements have been made to build a Paper mill, Foundry, Flouring Mill, Cheese factory, and other industrial establishments in the Spring, and several of the wealthiest and most enterprising business men of Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie have already secured Building sites in the Town, with a view of embarking in trade at that point.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, JAN. 26.

City and Vicinity.

A VAGRANT was the sole occupant of the cells last night.

A HORSE belonging to Thos. McGarry, teamster, fell and broke a leg last evening. The injury was so severe that the animal had to be shot.

ON the conclusion of the Oddfellows, Concert last evening, a few ladies and gentlemen remained and spent the rest of the evening in dancing.

MR. MCMURRAY has received a very tempting offer from a concert party to travel for five months, but he refused, preferring to remain in the city.

ATTENTION is directed to the auction sale of lots at Wakefield, Manitoba, on Saturday next. The advertisement in another column gives full particulars.

THE election contest for School Trustee in Foster Ward yesterday resulted in the return of Mr. Maxon by a majority of 21 over his opponent, Mr. Martin.

THE Belleville and Arnprior Curling Clubs have been drawn against each other for the District Medal. The match will probably be played at Brockville.

CAPT. CUTHBERT has nearly completed his preparations for the rebuilding of the sloop Glasgow. Work on the new steamer will also be begun at an early date.

THE County Council yesterday appointed Mr. W. H. Austin as High School Trustee for Trenton. Mr. Austin favors the retention of Mr. Hicks until the close of the school year.

THE clans Clapper and Keeler, who inhabit different parts of that picturesque region generally known as "the Plains," are at present engaged in a deadly feud, and many are the complaints which are lodged at the Police station by the members of one clan against those of the other.

THE Hastings Star says: "The firm of Walsh & Quigley, of Canifton, intend building a large tannery here in the spring. Three lots at the east end of Front street have been purchased for the site, and the main building to be erected will be 50x100, giving, when in operation, employment to twenty hands.

THE Globe gives the following notice o the Amy Lee Company, who are to appea here on Friday and Saturday nights: "The Two Medallions" was presented for the first time in this city yesterday by the Amy Lee Comedy Company. The house, both at the matinee and evening performances, was well filled. The Opera has many pleasing and taking airs, which, judging from the unstinted applause, was not lost upon the audience. As Ilene, Miss Lee made a favorable impression. She possesses a sweet voice, together with a winning way, which could not fail to be attractive. Miss Laura Clarion, as Pinkette, was good, as was Miss Ettie Eiselle, as Clotilde Calebson. Mr. Harry Smith made a decided hit as P. Q. Butts, "The Village Squire." The Spooks of Mr. Charles H. Stanley was excellent, and is seldom equaled.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 26.—Lakes, cloudy mild weather, with rain areas, followed to-morrow by northerly to westerly winds, and colder weather, with local falls of snow.

DESERONTO NOTES.—The Whig supplies the following notes from Deseronto:—"A large number of men are now at work on the str. Beauharnois, thoroughly repairing her, putting in a new frame from stern to stern; the hull will be entirely new, and her upper works will be extended the full length of her. She will be, when completed, the finest side wheel boat on the bay, and will run in connection with the Bay of Quinte Railway at the opening of navigation. The door factory has been shut down for the past three weeks. The old brick building has been torn down and a magnificent two story brick building erected. The lower flat is occupied with planers and matchers, butting and rip saws, stickers, and fine moulding machines; while on the upper flat is located the door machinery with a capacity of two hundred and twenty-five doors per day."

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.—A runaway accident which was at first feared would result fatally, but happily proved to be of a less dangerous character, occurred this morning. Mr. Freeman, market gardner, who lives on the Kingston road near Buck's mill, was driving to town this morning with his wife, when a runaway horse, which was proceeding in the same direction, came up at a furious speed and jumped into Mr. Freeman's sleigh, striking with great force against Mrs. Freeman, who fell from the vehicle, the horse which had done the mischief falling upon her. She was at once released and was driven to the Lorne hotel, where Dr. Murphy was soon in attendance. Examination disclosed the fact that no bones were broken though internal injuries are feared. In the course of an hour Mrs. Freeman had recovered sufficiently to permit of her being taken home.

THE ODDFELLOWS' CONCERT.—In every respect, the concert which was given in the Oddfellows' Hall last evening under the auspices of Belleville Lodge No. 81, I.O.O.F., to celebrate the re opening of the Lodge Room, was the most successful one of the season. The members of that lodge are to be congratulated on the very gratifying success which attended the entertainment. The hall was, unfortunately, too small to accommodate the audience, and after every available foot of room had been utilized quite a number of persons were obliged to leave without being able to get into the hall. At 8 o'clock the chair was taken by W. B. Northrup, Esq., a young but already a prominent member of the lodge, whose services as Chairman of the committee to which was entrusted the duty of furnishing the lodge room, made his appointment as Chairman of the evening just and fitting. After a few happy remarks, in the course of which he gave a very brief history of the Order in Belleville and its present condition in the city, the Chairman announced the first number on the programme. As the programme has already been published in our columns several times, it is unnecessary to give a detailed description of it. It is, however, but just to say that it was faithfully carried out and that there was not a number on it that did not give pleasure and was not well received by the audience. The vocal solos of Miss Ockerman, Miss Dulmage, and Mrs. Riggs were all well selected and as well rendered, and Mr. Fetherston's solo "The Lost Chord," accompanied by the harp, organ and piano, was worthy of special praise. Mr. Oldham and Miss Higinbotham each contributed a piano solo, both solos being well executed. The concerted pieces, both vocal and instrumental, were all received with great applause and gave evidence of careful rehearsal. Special praise is perhaps due the instrumental quartette in which Mr. Fetherston played the piano, Mr. Riggs the violin, Mr. H. Greaves the cornet, while Mrs. H. E. Filliter presided at the harp. The selection was airs from "The Bohemian Girl," and it was received by the audience with many manifestations of appreciation, which it deserved in a high degree. The harp has hitherto been a rare instrument in amateur concerts here, and it is to be hoped that Mrs. Filliter's magnificent instrument, which she plays so skilfully, will be often heard in future. A pleasing feature of the entertainment was the recitations in sign-language by Prof. Greene and Miss Lorenzen, of the Deaf & Dumb Institute. The grace of Miss Lorenzen in "Nearer, my God, to Thee" was as much admired as the vivid delineation of Prof. Greene in his side-splitting story of "The Minister and the Hornets." The orchestral selection performed by the Oddfellows' Orchestra and the fine selection given by the full band at the opening of the entertainment showed how much these splendid organizations are progressing under the leadership and tuition of Mr. Riggs. The Band is, and is likely long to continue, an honor to the Order in Belleville as well as to Belleville Lodge, with which it is more closely connected. On the conclusion of the entertainment the audience proceeded to the Lodge Room, which was brilliantly lighted, and many were the expressions of admiration which were heard at the richness and beauty of the furnishings and fittings.

TWEEDS.—This is a leading department with us, and this Fall we offer for sale an unusually large stock of Scotch, English, German and Canadian Tweeds, worsted diagonals and overcoatings of beautiful new designs and in reliable qualities. The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

Curliana.

The match between the Brockville and Peterborough Clubs for the Royal Caledonian medal was commenced at 2 o'clock this afternoon and play is proceeding as we go to press. The game was to have been begun at 11 a.m., but it was twenty minutes after that time before the Peterborough players arrived, so it was resolved to postpone the commencement of play until after dinner. The rinks were drawn as follows:

PETERBORO.	BROCKVILLE.
Rink No. 1.
G. Hilliard,	Jas. Moore,
A. Hall,	Jno. M. Gill,
Dr. Boucher,	T. W. Dennis,
Geo. Brown, Skip.	Robt. Crawford, Skip
Rink No. 2.
W. H. Budden,	W. J. Simpson,
R. Davidson,	A. L. Riddell,
W. Ferguson,	Capt. Buckman,
A. H. McDougall, Skip	Thos. Wilkinson, Skip.

The ice was in but poor condition, owing to the high temperature and the drip from the leaky roof, but by great exertions on the part of Mr. Jas. Gordon, Chairman of the Rink Committee, aided by several members of the local Club, the rinks were in a better state than might have been expected. If the condition of the ice permits, the Belleville and Peterborough Clubs will play the first part of their match this evening.

The result of the first hour's play was: Peterborough 20; Brockville 16.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

MORNING DESPATCHES

AMERICAN.

DEPUTATION TO WASHINGTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—A deputation from Kalakuaka's Cabinet are en route to Washington to counteract the influence of alleged interested persons against the abrogation of the reciprocity treaty between Hawaii and the United States.

THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—The Sun says that Cox's charge swept away all the cobwebs which the lawyers on each side had constructed. The jury would have been ready to return five minutes after they left, if they had not thought it more seemly to remain out a while longer.

The Tribune says that during Porter's closing remarks yesterday Guiteau looked up from the floor to the bundle of papers, evidently expecting the court to adjourn. As Porter sat down Scoville, evidently not wishing that the jury should go out while still under the influence of the speech, asked for an adjournment until to day, in order to prepare requests to the Judge for charges. After some talk the decision was left to the Jury. They consulted for a moment, then the foreman said they would prefer to hear the charge now. This was to all present a plain indication that the Jury had agreed. Scoville resumed his seat with an air of deep dejection. Just before the assassin was brought down again to the court room, he was told by the guard that the Jury had found a verdict of guilty. He was struck dumb; one of the officers said he could not say anything—"he was scared to death." The Jury took two ballots; on the first, 11 votes were cast for conviction and one blank. This was given by Heinleim, who wanted to be assured that Guiteau had said the notoriety he would gain by killing the President would increase the sale of his book. This was proved to him, and the next ballot showed the twelve votes "guilty." The trial lasted just seven days less than the agony of Garfield. The assassin was guarded from the court room to the van by 20 officers.

The Times say that one of the jurors said last evening that there never was a moment since the evidence was completed when the jury were not ready to render a verdict. He did not believe that the arguments of the Counsel made any impression one way or the other upon the jury. He said they had been absolutely ignorant of the drift of public opinion during the trial. They had not been at all impressed with the belief that Guiteau was insane, the unanimous opinion being that his insanity was shammed.

The Herald says that to-day in court was the stormiest of the whole trial. It is doubtful if the wisdom of allowing the assassin free speech was more completely satisfied on any other day than this. The conduct of the trial by Cox has been approved of by most of the eminent members of the bar, and of District Judges throughout. Marshal Henry says I know Mrs. Garfield lived in hope that the wretch would be pronounced insane by the Jury. When Guiteau was taken to Marshal's office he declared it impossible for the Jury to agree, as there were men on it who knew he was inspired. Why these men are not going to be governed by your Oneda Community dea of inspiration, remarked the Bailiff. This displeased the prisoner, who earnestly replied: You don't know what you are talking about, there are high toned Christian gentlemen on that Jury who understand the New York case.

After the Jury returned to the Court-room Guiteau's face expressed an undisguised desperation of horror, which was intensified as the foreman said, "guilty as indicted." Scoville appeared surprised by the verdict. After the Court adjourned Guiteau said: "Providence has not yet deserted me." A general term was especially contributed to help me out of this trouble. As Guiteau was shipped from the van at the jail he was noticably depressed, but upon reaching the Warden's Office, where his handcuffs were removed, he thanked the mounted policemen and also the drivers, saying, for your sake I am truly glad the trial is over. He stated that the verdict was not a surprise to me. I said that portions of the remarks were having some weight with the Jury. Cox's charge was fair from his standpoint, but he didn't dwell heavy enough on the decision of the New York Court of Appeals, if he had done this I should have been acquitted. I have no complaint, it will all come out right. I have not given up all hopes. I intend to go to the Court in banc; I think there is a good chance there for me. The Court in banc will have to discuss the question of jurisdiction, and on this issue I expect a new trial. In the cell the assassin ate and drank sparingly. Two guards have been assigned to the cell to prevent any attempt at suicide. The prisoner further stated, I have no fault to find with Scoville or Reed, they are both fine gentlemen and did the best they could, but their theory was wrong. The defence was in the wrong line. The inspiration idea should have been pounded into the jury's head. Guiteau said a prominent lawyer in Baltimore, named Atkinson, had volunteered to argue the question of jurisdiction before the Court in banc. In a sad voice Guiteau said: "It is appointed unto all men to die, and no man will die before his time. No man can say to-day that he will be alive to-morrow. Clarkson N. Potter two weeks ago was attending my trial; to-day he is in his grave." The prisoner, when told that it was best to be cheerful, said that was good advice. He said he was obliged to the Warden for assigning guards to his cell, as they would be company and he could talk a good deal with them. The juror who, it was said, had insanity in his family, was counted by the assassin as sure to be on his side. It turns out that he was one of the first to be convinced of Guiteau's sanity. John Guiteau has no expectation or hope of a new trial for the assassin or of delaying the case still further.

Yesterday the President sent for Chief Justice Hunter and John McBride, of Utah, to confer upon the best means for suppressing polygamy. He assured them he was extremely anxious to have effective measures promptly adopted; he was not as particular about the form, as to have some plan devised which would most speedily accomplish the purpose he had in view, to put down this violation of the law. These gentlemen expressed their opinion that either of the House bills providing for a Legislature and Council would best enable the Government to control the evil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so it mixes with the liquid contents of the system and passes immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE in the cure of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

B. F. AUSTIN,
Principal Alma Ladies' College,
St. Thomas, Ont.

P. S.—The above letter was written after Prof. Austin had used the remedies but one month.

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. TOUTHWORTH.

'Oh! please, please say no more, Mr. Hilary. You do me great honor, and I thank you; but please say no more; you do distress me very much,' begged the girl.

'Well, I'll not say any more just at present. Bnt—I know you will think of what I have said to you, and I will wait and hope.'

As the young man uttered these persistent words the door swung slowly open, and Tudor Hereward walked into the room.

'Is Major Hereward awake? Does he want me?' inquired Lilith, rising with a sigh of infinite relief.

'No, Nancy and Stephen are waiting on him. He does not want you yet; but I shall presently. Good morning, Mr. Hilary. I wish you a Happy New Year,' said the young man, advancing to shake hands with the visitor.

'The same to you and many of them, sir,' replied the youth, blushing violently as he returned the greeting.

'How have you managed to live now that the inclemency of the weather has stopped all travelling circuses and wild beast shows?' inquired Tudor Hereward, taking a chair at the fire and inviting the visitor by a polite gesture to resume his own seat.

'Oh! as to that! Havan't you seen the posters? No? Why, they are all over the village, and on every roadside barn, and on every turnpike gate. 'The Grand Montmorencie and Plantagenet Operatic and Dramatic Combination of Beauty and Talent, from London and Paris,'' replied Hilary, hitching up his chair, and launching out into a florid eulogium on the expected entertainment.

'From Paris, eh?' inquired Tudor Hereward, with a dubious smile.

'And London,' emphatically added Hilary.

'Strange they should honor our little out of the way village when the great cities must be awaiting them with breathless impatience.'

'Well, now, isn't it? But, still, it is none of our business, so that we benefit by it, is it?' inquired the unsuspicious boy.

'Not that I am aware of,' laughed Mr. Hereward.

'You'll go to see them to-night, of course?' continued Hilary.

'No; my father is too ill to be left.'

'Why, Miss Wyvil says he is better.'

'He is better, but not well enough to be left.'

'Oh! I'm very sorry. Please give my respects to him, and tell him that I hope he will soon be about again. And now I think I must go,' said the youth, who, seeing that there was not the faintest hope for the renewal of his tete-a-tete with Lilith, arose and took his leave.

CHAPTER VI.

ANOTHER PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE.

'What brought that cub here this morning, Lilith?' inquired Tudor Hereward, as soon as Rufus Hilary had disappeared.

'A New Year's call,' replied the girl, with some embarrassment, between her wish to have no secret from one who might soon be her husband, and her delicate reluctance to betray the confidence of her rejected suitor.

'And that bouquet?" continued Hereward, pointing to the flowers that lay upon her lap.

'A New Year's offering. I shall put them in water, and place them on a stand beside Major Hereward's bed. They will please him, especially at this season when they are so scarce, for he likes flowers.'

'Were they brought for Major Hareward's sick room?'

'Oh, no! Mr. Hilary did not even know that the major was sick. He brought them for me.'

'Let me put them in water, Lilith, and then let me have a little talk with you,' said Hereward, as he took the bouquet from her hands, and placed it temporarily in a water carafe that stood upon a side table.

Then he returned to his seat, drew his chair a little nearer to that of the young girl, took her hand in his, and said, with some abruptness:

'Lilith, my father wishes that you and I should marry. What do you say? Will you take me for your husband?'

She lifted her dark eyes to his eyes with one swift and swiftly withdrawn glance, so full of shy love and joy and delight, that he for the first time recognized the beauty of the girl's spirit, and gazed upon the soft shadow of the downcast lashes on the blushing cheeks with admiration, if not with affection.

'Come, little darling, what do you say? Will you give yourself to me?'

'If—if you want me, Mr. Hereward,' she whispered, in a voice so low and timid that he had to bend his head to hear her words. 'If you want me, Mr. Hereward.'

'That is right,' he said, as he drew her to his bosom, stooped, and pressed his lips to hers, thus bestowing upon the pure heart which adored him one moment of unutterable bliss. 'That is right. Now we will go to the father, and make his heart glad with the news.'

And drawing his betrothed bride's arm within his own, he led her up stairs and into the sick room.

Nancy was sitting by the bed, but she immediately arose and made way for the gentleman and lady.

Tudor Hereward led Lilith Wyvil up to his father's side, and said:

'I have brought you my wife that you may bless us both.'

'May the Lord of Heaven and Earth bless you both now and for evermore, abundantly, my dear ones!' replied the father, with a happy smile, as he laid his hands in benediction on the bowed heads of the young pair.

Then they arose and sat beside him.

'And now, Tudor,' he said, after a pause, 'you must send into Frosthill for the minister and the license. You can write a note to the Rev. Mr. Cave, and ask him to bring the license with him; and we will have the marriage ceremony performed this evening.'

Tudor Hereward, with a slight bow of assent, went to the little writing table that stood in the corner of the room, sat down and wrote the note to the Rector of St. Mark's Church at Frosthill, and then went out to dispatch it by one of the grooms.

Lilith remained seated by the bed, with hand clasped in that of her foster-father, who had suddenly fallen into one of those deep sleeps of exhaustion to which he was so subject.

Lilith sat perfectly still, fearing to withdraw her hand lest she should wake him—sat so still that she also fell, if not into sleep, certainly into a happy dream.

The secret aspiration of her soul was satisfied. She was to be the wife of Tudor Hereward, with the right to devote her whole life to his happiness.

It never once occurred to her to reflect that, when he offered himself as her husband, he had spoken no word of love, or even of liking for her.

Her nature was not suspicious, querulous, or exacting.

He had asked her to give herself to him; therefore, of course, he must love her even as she loved him.

And in deep gratitude to heaven and to him, she resolved that next her duty to her Lord should come her duty to her husband.

'My daughter, dear—'

Her happy reverie was gently dispelled by the low voice of her foster-father.

'Yes, father; you have had a pleasant nap. Shall I bring you anything?' she inquired.

'You may bring my bunch of keys, dear.'

Lilith went and took them from their hook at the corner of the chimney-piece, and brought them to Major Hereward.

He selected one key, detached it from the ring and held it in his hand, while he said:

'Lilith, my darling, do you remember a large, old-fashioned, black hair trunk that stands among other trunks, barrels and boxes in the northeast garret room?'

'And has stood there ever since I remember! Yes, father, I know it.'

'That trunk has not been opened for seventeen years. It is yours, my dear Lilith, as it was your dear father's and mother's before you. It was, in fact, all that they left you. From its contents you will learn more of your family history than even I know; for I have never looked into the packets of letters which I sealed up and locked in that trunk. This, my dear, is the key. I give it to you now, since you may read your parents' past history in the contents of those letters.'

Lilith took the key, and pressed the hand that gave it, to her lips.

At that moment the door opened and Dr. Kerr, the family physician, walked in, followed by Nancy.

Lilith arose and bowed to the doctor, and withdrew from the room, as was her custom when he entered it.

She went to her own chamber and lay down, trying in vain to gain a little of the sleep she so much needed. But the excitements of the day had been too great. She could not compose herself to rest.

At length she arose, re-arranged her dress and went down the hall to the little closet occupied by Nancy, who sat there knitting as usual.

'Who is with Major Hereward?' she inquired of the woman.

'Marse Dr. Kerr is wid him. Ole Marse Major ax Marse Doctor, perticklor to stay long ob him dis ebenin' to witness somefin'.'

'To witness—what?' inquired Lilith, with a conscious blush.

'Oh, I dunno! Somefin'! May be his will!'

'Did the doctor say how Major Hereward is?'

'Yes, honey! He says as how he is better how he may pull t'rough dis time too, same as he allers did.'

It was Lilith's habit to refrain from entering the sick chamber while the doctor was present there. So she went down into the family parlor, where she had eaten her breakfast that morning.

There was no one in the room.

She drew her chair to the fire and sat down.

The cat that was dozing on the rug waked up and jumped into her lap.

While she sat mechanically stroking the furry back of the household pet, the door opened and Tudor Hereward walked in with the village newspaper in his hand.

Lilith's heart beat quickly, and her face flushed and faded, as she bent her head and seemed to be entirely occupied with the creature on her lap.

But Mr. Hereward did not disturb her by even a word.

He seemed quite unconscious of her presence as he drew a chair to the window, sat down, unfolded his paper and began to read.

An hour passed by and the tea bell rang.

Lilith then arose and touched the handbell on the table.

Stephen entered the room.

'Go and tell Nancy to sit beside Major Hereward, and ask Dr. Kerr to come down and join us at tea.'

Stephen went to do his errand.

Lilith passed out of the room; but seeing that Hereward sat still and seemed absorbed in his paper, she paused on the outside and timidly ventured to say:

'The tea is on the table. Will you come now?'

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must add my signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 63 years of age, notwithstanding the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

Puttner, containing as it does, as I do in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Council resumed at 2 p.m., the Warden in the chair.

The Warden stated that he had received a statement of the valuation of the County Roads for the year 1881, and that those members of the Council who chose to examine it could do so.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means, Mr. O'Flynn in the chair.

Aldermen Dochstader, Smith, Dunset, Diamond and the City Solicitor, a deputation from the City Council, and a number of gentlemen from Trenton were invited to take seats within the bar.

After a number of accounts were passed, the Committee, on motion of Mr. Ashley, rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

The Committee on By-laws resumed. Mr. Haggerty in the chair.

The By-law to appoint Auditors and High School Trustees was taken up.

THE TRENTON SCHOOL SQUABBLE.

On motion, it was decided to hear those who wished to address the Council with reference to the appointment of a High School Trustee for Trenton.

Mr. W. H. Austin said he would desire, so far as he was concerned, that the Council should act on the information which had already been laid before them. He did not wish to take up the time of the Council by delivering an address.

Mr. Richardson said he intended to address the Council with regard to the matter under consideration, but he would ask Mr. Austin to speak first, as he had the priority in nomination.

Mr. Austin said he was a candidate for the position of Trustee for the Trenton High School. He had occupied a position in the first Grammar School Board that was ever in Trenton, and had always taken a deep interest in the growth of the High School. During this past 10 or 12 years it had steadily grown in efficiency under the management of Mr. Hicks, the present Master. The action of the Board of Trustees—especially of one member—had been most unmanly and most unjust to Mr. Hicks, and it was on account of this action that he had consented to allow himself to be brought forward as a candidate. He felt that the high-handed action of the Board in closing the School and removing the advanced scholars, was not justifiable. He deeply sympathized with Mr. Hicks, who was a man of great ability and of unblemished character, as well as a most successful teacher, as was proved by the excellent results of the School. He followed teaching as a profession, not as a stepping-stone to some other profession. He (the speaker) felt that he should be retained in his present position. A feeling had been created against Mr. Hicks by a certain individual who was actuated by malicious motives, and it had gradually spread until a large number of the citizens had become inoculated with it. The question of this feeling, he (the speaker) had advised Mr. Hicks to resign at the midsummer holidays, and Mr. Hicks had consented to do so. He was here to speak not only in the interests of a worthy man, but in the future interests of the schools of Trenton, and he did not believe that it would be in the interests of education in Trenton to summarily dismiss Mr. Hicks. He believed that the majority of the members of the School Board of Trustees had the utmost hearty approve of the course which they had been parties to. They had allowed themselves to be influenced against their better judgment by a man not of stronger mind, but with more malicious motives. He had learned to-day that Mr. Richardson had declared that, if elected, he would compel Mr. Hicks to retain Mr. Hicks in his position until the midsummer holidays. This was a great conversion, and he was glad to hear of it.

Mr. Murphy, of Trenton, being invited to take a seat inside the bar, said he did not want to take part in the discussion.

Mr. Aylesworth—We don't want you to! (Laughter.)

Mr. Richardson began by affirming his belief that the County Council was the palladium of the liberties of the Anglo-Saxon race. After a few eloquent remarks of a similar nature, he said he did not come to say anything against Mr. Hicks either as a teacher (of a certain grade) or as a man, but as a representative of a large and respectable class of ratepayers of Trenton. He did not approve of the high-handed proceedings of the Trenton School Board. Mr. Austin had acknowledged that he was a personal friend of Mr. Hicks; doubtless this fact was blinded him as to the true state of affairs. He himself knew that there was great dissatisfaction in Trenton as to the condition of the High School of Trenton, and many parents refused to send their children there. If elected, he would he was sure place educational matters on a better footing in Trenton. He announced his intention of advocating retaining Mr. Hicks in his position until the midsummer holidays.

Mr. O'Rourke, a member of the Trenton School Board, said in reply to Mr. Richardson, that Mr. Hicks was a teacher of a first-class grade, as was proved by his diploma from Toronto University, and it must be acknowledged that he was an efficient teacher, as many of the pupils whom he had taught had taken high positions and achieved great honors, one of them having won Lord Dufferin's gold medal. The speaker described the recent action of the Trenton School Board in forcibly closing the High School—which, as a matter of course, had impeded the progress of the pupils—by the result of the midsummer examinations. He was delighted to know that, whether Mr. Austin or Mr. Richardson was elected, justice would be done Mr. Hicks. Personally, Mr. Austin was first to take that position, and he should get credit for it.

Mr. H. Gill, Chairman of the Trenton School Board, entreated the Council, in the interests of peace and quietness, to vote for Mr. Richardson. Mr. Austin, he said, had never showed any willingness to extend the hand of peace to the School Board.

The motion for the appointment of Mr. Austin as Trustee was then put and carried.

On motion of Dr. Faulkner, seconded by Mr. Walker, Mr. G. G. Ballard was appointed Trustee for Stirling High School.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again—Granted.

Mr. Haggerty moved, seconded by Mr. White, that the Warden and five other members of the Council be appointed as a Committee to confer with the Committee of the Council of the City of Belleville, with reference to the amalgamation of the G. J. R. with other railways. So go, if necessary to Toronto to interview the Government, and to obtain the advice of the County Solicitor; and in case the same cannot be obtained, to take legal advice from any counsel whom the joint Committee may employ.

Mr. Haggerty said that there might be something in the bill now before the House prejudicial to the interests of the City and County, as if so it should be known.

Ald. Dickson was invited to speak on behalf of the deputation from the City Council with regard to the matter in question. He said the interests of the City and the County in the G. J. Railway were identical. The terms of the amalgamation had not yet been made known, and seeing that the City had given $100,000 and the County had given, in all, $80,000 to the road, it could not be denied that the two municipalities should be consulted as to the terms of the amalgamation in order to prevent their interests from being legislated away, if possible. The resolution which had just been read anticipated the object for which the deputation had been appointed by the City Council.

Mr. Wilmot advocated the appointment of a committee for the purpose mentioned, as did also Mr. Walker.

Mr. Ostrom said the fact that the terms of the bill were not made public was proof to him that there was something in it which would interfere with vested rights. He also endorsed the appointment of a committee.

Mr. White thought it very strange that the terms of the bill were not made known. It was possible that neither the promoters of the bill nor the Government were to blame: it might be the fault of the printers.

The City Solicitor stated that he had applied to the Clerk of the House for a copy of the bill, but had been informed that a copy could not be obtained until it had been laid before the House.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Haggerty moved that a committee consisting of Messrs. Walker, Faulkner, Wilmot, Ashley and White, be appointed to confer with the committee appointed by the Council of the City of Belleville with regard to the railway amalgamation scheme.

Mr. Ashley thought it would be wise to place on the deputation to interview the Government in regard to the railway amalgamation gentlemen of the same stripe of politics as the Government.

Mr. White said this was a mistake. The Government would court political opponents more graciously than political friends: they were sure of the latter, while they might possibly catch the former.

Mr. Haggerty's motion was carried.

Mr. Aylsworth moved, seconded by Mr. Bouter, that a committee consisting of Messrs. Larkin, Wilmot, Ashley, White, Pearce, Haggerty and the mover, be appointed to complete the Trenton swing bridge and meet all necessary expenditure for that purpose.—Carried.

Mr. Aylsworth read a correspondence between himself and Mr. Blackwell, engineer of the Midland Railway, concerning a proposed alteration in the course of the County Road running under the railway bridge at Mofra Lake.—It was referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

Council went into Committee on Roads and Bridges, Mr. Wilmot in the chair.

The report of the County Surveyor was considered. It was as follows:

Expenditure on Bridges since the last report: Two bridges at Marlbank, $215.02; bridge over Tantery Creek in Marmora, $12.28; bridge near Richmond boundary, $5.75; bridge at Frankford east of swing bridge, $44.77; bridge near canal at Chisholm's Rapids, $375.66; approaches to Trenton bridge, $2.81. The report also gave a statement of work which had been done on different county bridges.

Mr. Pearce moved that the west span of the bridge over Deer River be repaired, provided as a profession, not as a stepping-stone to some the County of Peterborough bear half the expense.—Carried.

Mr. Vermilyea moved, seconded by Mr. Richardson, that the County Surveyor be instructed to make such repairs to O'Brien's Bridge as to make it self-supporting.

The motion was carried with the addition that the Surveyor be instructed to employ Mr. Dennis, the original builder of the bridge, to assist in its repair.

Committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

The Council then adjourned.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BRECHER'S CELEBRATED SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try and sell at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The results of these diseases upon the vital organs of the most valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existence. Enjoyment and usefulness are sought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it where, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their wonderful and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other compound, is so pleasantly prepared that it does not produce the least nausea rueulty to animals.

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are disordered. They feast upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they have miserable dyspepsia. They will make large feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every home should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

The Power of Disallowance.

It is at present contended by the Ontario Government that the Dominion Government has not the power of disallowing such Acts of the Provincial Legislature as they may think proper. In this contention they are opposed to the views of Mr. Blake, whose eminence as a lawyer and as a constitutional authority they value very highly. Mr. Blake, when in office in 1874, gave notice of a motion to the effect that the power of disallowance should be vested in the Dominion Parliament, and a copy of this document was sent to Lord Carnarvon as the opinion of the Dominion Government. He further drew up an elaborate statement of the position taken by the Dominion Government and urging in favor of it that the power of disallowance should be left in the hands of those who are directly responsible to the people of Canada. In making his motion he declared his belief that when the people of Ontario understood this question they would come to the conclusion that there was no justice in the claims of hon. gentlemen opposite.

Mr. Mowat and his colleagues will not, we opine, find many to believe in their good faith in agitating this subject, with these views of Mr. Blake's on record.

Good Counsel.

Whilst the prosperity of the country is undoubted, there is a danger that business men, whose operations during the recent depression were of necessity much curtailed, may, in their anxiety to retrieve their losses, discount the future to a dangerous extent. The Montreal Sharcholder gives the following sensible caution to all interested: "The question is arising among importers whether we may not possibly be going a little too fast in the direction of importing from abroad. In dry goods matters, if anywhere, this is noticeable. Each English steamer that arrives brings heavy additions to what many shrewd minds believe to be already perhaps an over-ample stock. The retail stores are gorged with dry goods, Forced auction sales are reported in many of our exchanges, near and remote. It is desirable to speak a word of warning in time. It is all very well to have the Treasury full, derived from import duties. But we all have to be careful, nevertheless, to do nothing to anticipate the inevitable periodical revulsion. It is sure to come quite soon enough of itself, and we have not this time had such a protracted period of national prosperity that we can afford to look upon the probability of a change without grave apprehensions."

Market Fees and Road Tolls.

Our information as to the nature of the Ontario Government's Bill relating to market fees and road tolls proves to have been correct, the provisions of the measure being as follows:

Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

1. No municipal council shall have power to compel persons selling farm produce of any description, or other articles, within the municipality, to offer their produce for sale at any market established within the municipality, or to otherwise restrict the place or places at which sales may be made, so long as market fees are charged for the use of the established market or markets, nor shall any such council have power to impose market fees on persons who do not make use of the established market or markets, but market fees may be imposed, as heretofore, on all persons actually using any such market for the purpose of selling farm produce and other articles thereat.

2. The council of any municipality, having an established market, which does not impose market fees on persons resorting to and using the market may, as heretofore, regulate the place and manner of selling farm produce of any description, and all other articles, and may prohibit the sale before o'clock in the forenoon, of such produce or other articles elsewhere than at the established market.

3. Nothing herein contained shall prevent any municipal council from imposing fees or regularity, as heretofore, the sale within the municipality of farm produce of every description, and other articles, if and so long as tolls are levied and collected by or under the authority of any county or township council on the roads of any county or counties adjacent to such municipality, for a distance of miles therefrom.

To carry out such a measure without compensating Belleville for her expenditure in freeing the roads will be an outrage of the most flagrant character. We therefore expect that the Corporation will act with vigor in the matter, and that every possible effort will be made to secure justice for the City.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. DEAR SIR,—I cannot but deprecate the action of Catholic in his Quixotic endeavors to find somebody to fight with.

The position of Christianity does not depend upon squabbling over a point of doctrine in the public papers, but even if we wished to take up the gauntlet thrown down, we have no desire to discuss the question with an unknown person, but if Catholic will write once his own name we will then consider whether it will be worth our while to do so or not.

The Influence of Woman.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—There is no question that the world has been much affected by the influence of women, and they possess a power either for weal or woe in the affairs of men little dreamed of by the common herd. Disraeli rapturously says: "To describe woman the pen should be dipped in the humid colors of the rainbow, and the paper dried with the dust gathered from the wings of the butterfly." A beautiful and clever woman of 25 or 30, if she escapes an overweening vanity from the daily incense offered before her shrine by admiring men, represents an incredible amount of bottled force, the judicious expenditure of which might enable her, all things being equal, to become a queen of society, a politician in whose drawing-room the affairs of state might be manipulated with wonderful dexterity, or a theatrical success. We have only to point to Mrs. Langtry as a recent instance. It has been ever so. If the nose of Cleopatra had been shorter, we have been told, the face of the whole world would have been different. There is a peculiar susceptibility that great men have, remarkably elderly great men, for grace and loveliness in women: Lord Beaconsfield, it is well known, was disposed in this way. What women can accomplish the reign of Louis Quatorze is sufficiently illustrative. It may be said that they lived in exceptional times and possessed exceptional opportunities which have made them historical characters and women of renown. All soldiers cannot be Napoleons or Alexanders, nor can all women expect to shine as stars in the firmament of the De Maintenons and De Staels, yet every clever woman in her particular sphere possesses a power, which, if wielded with that consummate tact she is supposed to have inherited from God, would be the means of aiding the advancement of her sex in the world. Napoleon often paraded his insusceptibility to the influence of women, but we know that he was in a degree amenable to their charms, and Josephine, the wife of his youth, and probably the only woman he really regarded, exerted unquestionably a most salubrious effect upon his tyrannical disposition, toning down his despotic nature in many instances. Queen Louise, a beautiful and clever women, was not successful with him on behalf of Prussia, but her object was too palpable to him and he had so trained himself that every passion had become subservient to his thirst for glory. All men have their weak moments, and during their transitory states of inaptitude the full play of the loving and lovable tells with wondrous power. It is then that we trace the gentle force of woman. When is eloquence more bewitching than when coming from a well formed mouth? When the happy combination of beauty, brains and a disposition capable of sympathetic love can be found, how much more precious is it than the mere possession of the adventitious aids of birth and fortune to a woman? Verily her price then would be far above rubies. Then again, how melancholy it is to think that a being whom poets have idealized as the crowning act of nature should so often be the bane of man's existence, and how often she has been "the author of such a book of follies in a man that it would take the tears of all the angels to blot the record out." Yet is so, and we see instances of it every day. To them much is given and much will be required, Although in justice it cannot but be said that men do often try their sweet tempers greatly, they may take comfort in the fact that the millennium is approaching, slowly, it is true, but surely, when the account will be squared and "woman's kingdom" recognized and established.

Regarding the ordinary life of people who form what is known as good society, in which, as a general rule, culture has not much place, the women are responsible for its tone. Religion has nothing to do with what we understand by the term whatever, but philosophy has. The devil may come in if he has his boots polished. There is an undescribable something which is understood by those of it, but not always by those in it, which constitutes it and is easily recognizable. There are plenty of the Mrs. Swedenborgs in society, who have good figures, golden hair, blue, bewitching eyes, plenty of impudence, and friends to cry them up, who go in for the Beauty Stake, and whose whole desire is to be noticed by an illustrious personage. Thus accomplished they graduate into the ranks of professional beautydom, have their photographs displayed in shop windows, and attain the enviable or unenviable notoriety when the article "the" is heard commonly prefixed to their surnames as a mark of distinction. And so they blaze as a comet for a season, having succeeded in either startling, defying or pleasing society—for society is ever partial to eccentricity (witness Oscar Wilde), and forgives any vagaries as long as characteristic of the part you play.

Your obedient servant,
S.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 26.

Previous to the introduction of Opposition amendments Mr. Pardee claimed the floor to reply to some of Mr. Morrick's statements concerning the granting of timber licenses. He quoted from the resolutions adopted in 1873, to show that the House expressed its approval of the position of the Government that timber sales should be regulated by the Governor in Council, instead of being submitted to the House. Every member on the Reform side of the House, as well as many Conservatives, spoke and voted in favor of those resolutions. Passing to another phase of the subject, he contended that the sales were in the best interests of the country and the revenue, and adduced figures to show how profitable the timber policy of the present Government had proved as compared with that of their predecessors.

Mr. Merrick (North Leeds), contended for the principle that the Government should consult the House before selling the timber limits.

Mr. Meredith (London), said the principles which were taken in connection with this matter were not those contended for by Liberals formerly on other questions. As to the disallowance, the Confederation Act interpreted by the speeches made at the time, showed that the Dominion Government were intended not only to have the power but the right of disallowance. He quoted Mr. Blake to show that other reasons than those set down by Sir John Macdonald were given by him as grounds for disallowance. But the Rivers and Streams Bill was within both the first and last of the reasons given in the memorandum of Sir John, for although legal, it was not constitutional, and it would have injuriously affected the rights of property in the whole Dominion. As to the boundary award it was the intention of both Governments that the award should be ratified by the Dominion Parliament. He did not believe that Ontario had been awarded any more territory than she should have, but the Parliament at Ottawa had to deal with this from the stand point of the whole Dominion, and the people of Ontario would not view the matter in a narrow light. Ministerialists had been dealing with the boundary award in a manner that was almost treasonable, in suggesting the use of force. He was serious. After cross-firing, he accused ministerialists of treason and trying to create civil war. The Liberals were bankrupt in principle and policy, and were now trying to decide whether they would steal the policy of their opponents. He concluded by moving an amendment to the third paragraph of the address respecting the boundary award—striking it out, regretting the delay which had taken place in confirming it, favoring all lawful and constitutional means of obtaining its confirmation, but opposing any which would be a breach of the peace of the Dominion, and regretting the delay on the part of the Ontario Government in taking the course open to them of obtaining a settlement of the question.

Mr. Sinclair (North Bruce) moved in amendment to the amendment to restore the original paragraph in the address struck out by the amendment, approving the course which the Government had taken in the matter, expressing confidence in them in regard to it, and promising to uphold them in any steps which they might take to uphold and enforce the award.

Hon. Mr. Mowat had heard the noisest speech from the Opposition leader that he had ever heard from him and it was because there was nothing for it but noise. He was deep in the confidence of his friends at Ottawa, and he gave notice that if Ontario tried to enforce her rights to the territory civil war would be the result, that is that the Dominion would make war on Ontario. That was the notice he gave. He admitted that the territory rightfully belonged to Ontario. Sir John Macdonald from 1857 on claimed much more, prima facie it belonged to Ontario. The Government intended to assume authority and administer justice in the territory. For three years they had been calling on the Dominion to make some provisional arrangement but Sir John Macdonald had always refused. The territory was now without government. He was in favor of Confederation, but if Confederation meant that Ontario was to be deprived of one hundred thousand square miles, half her territory, and of her constitutional rights of legislation, then he was done with Confederation. The Opposition leader talked of loyalty but loyalty to the Dominion only meant loyalty when rights were respected.

At 6 o'clock both the debate and the House adjourned, Hon. Mr. Mowat still having the floor.

"By reason of a severely sprained ankle, one of my horses began to go very lame," writes Mr. R. Arnold, 219 Metting street, Charleston, S. C. "A thorough application of St. Jacobs Oil entirely cured the horse. I heartily endorse it as an excellent remedy for stock." Every one should use it.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Family Reunion.

One of the pleasantest gatherings of this nature that it has been our privilege to witness took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will am Emerson, of Thurlow, on the 23rd inst. They are both in mature years, the former 85 and the latter 77. As the 60th anniversary of their marriage day approached, their sons and daughters, settled in different parts of the Dominion, agreed to meet that day and give the aged and respected pair an agreeable surprise. Distance prevented Judge Emerson, of Missouri, and Dr. Emerson, of Michigan, from attending; but all the others, with many of their children, some 35 persons, in all, were enabled to attend. Having met by agreement a mile from the place, they, accompanied by some other friends, drove up "en masse" to the old homestead, to the surprise and delight of the worthy couple. As they came provided with every imagined good, a table was soon spread and loaded till it literally groaned with delicacies. The numerous party sat down to this feast and as many had come from a distance in air 20° below zero did, as may be supposed, ample justice to it, while sentiment, music and wit refined and crowned the whole. Choice music by Misses Boyce and Dempsey added much to the pleasure of the party during the day. As time wore on but before any one left the Rev. J. Kilgour was requested to read a chapter from the Sacred Book and ask a divine blessing on the whole. Hearty responses attested how earnestly the company desired those blessings for the aged parents. After prayer they were complimented by the Minister on the fragrant memories they had implanted in the breasts of their children as soon by the fruits they bore that day. Two beautiful and comfortable chairs were then presented them. The reply of Mr. Emerson, expressing sentiments human and divine was very impressive. Like a Patriarch he plead with them to allow the earthly love to pass onward till it met the love of heaven—repeating the lines,

Then let our bodies part
To different climes repair,
Inseparably joined in heart
The friends of Jesus are.

As a fitting conclusion the Doxology was then sung—all standing.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, JAN. 27.

City and Vicinity.

No telegraphic despatches were received this morning.

ALL our snow-storms have come in the form of rain this winter.

A DRUNK was the only one who enjoyed the hospitality of the police last night.

THE gross receipts from the Oddfellows' Concert on Wednesday evening were about $130.

APHORISM for our local contemporary: "He that followeth vain persons is void of understanding."

IT is probable that a new Mehotdist Church, to cost $7,000, will be erected in Campbellford next spring.

THE Campbelford Herald announces that a Belleville firm is about to open a dry goods establishment in that village.

A GRAND military ball was held at Kingston on Wednesday night. Amongst the invited were a number of ladies and gentlemen from Belleville.

THE Campbellford Herald says:—"Several extra trains have passed over the road during the week. The Junction's business is now something of importance."

MR. HUNTER has sold his interest in the Prince Edward House to Messrs. Weese & Babcock, of Prince Edward County. The new owners will come into possession on Monday.

THE Amy Lee company will make their first appearance in the "Two Medallions" at the Metropolitan Hall this evening. They will also give a performance to-morrow night.

WM. JOHNSTON, whose disappearance from Campbellford was first noted in these columns several weeks ago, has not been heard of, and it is now generally believed that he has been drowned.

THE Winnipeg Times says: "John J. B. Flint, barrister, W. E. Holton, J. A. Campion, N. Davenport, B. Wolever and John Henderson, from Belleville, Ont., arrived on Saturday night.

ONE hundred operatives are at present employed in the woollen mill at Campbellford; the number, however, will be considerably augmented in a month or two, when the work is fairly under way. Mr. Turner is manager.

THE sale of lots in Wakefield, Manitoba, will take place at Mr. Purdy's auction rooms, Robertson Block, to-morrow as advertised. Wakefield is situated in a fine agricultural district, and has many other natural advantages, which are detailed in the advertisement.

THE Globe publishes to-day a letter from the Police Magistrate of this city to the County Attorney of York, on the question of the social evil, which is the subject of an animated discussion in Toronto at present. Mr. Holden states that he has found imprisonment the best form of punishment, as fines were easily raised by blackmail, and that by this means the evil had been greatly diminished here. To the police force he gives credit for their activity and earnestness in the discharge of their duty.

AT about 2 o'clock this morning, during the prevalence of the fierce gale which howled during the night, the inmates of Mr. James W. Ponton's residence, which stands a short distance beyond the city's limits in Sidney, were awakened by a strong smell of smoke, evidently proceeding from a fire within the house. After a good deal of difficulty, involving the tearing up of portions of the flooring and bases, the location of the fire was at length discovered and the flames quenched, but not before damage to the extent of about $400 was done. Happily the loss is covered by insurance. The cause of the fire was the blowing of a cinder from the grate, and had not the partition been of stone the house would, almost to a certainty, have been destroyed. As it was the escape was a narrow one.

HERNDON'S dramatic company, who are to appear here at an early date, made a very successful first appearance at Kingston on Wednesday night in "Out of the Fire," one of the sensational dramas which hit the popular fancy years ago and is still a favorite with theatre-goers.

ONE of the heaviest gales that has visited this part of the country for years prevailed for several hours last night and this morning. The results are to be seen to-day in the shape of prostrate fences, damaged roofs, &c. The only serious result of the storm that we have heard of is the unroofing of the large stone building on Mill St. occupied by John L. Bean as a warehouse. Nearly the whole roof was blown off the building and fell into the yard in rear of it. The damage will probably amount to about $300. The temporary shed which was erected near Christ Church for the accommodation of the stone-cutters at work on the building was also blown down.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 27.—Lakes, north westerly to southwesterly winds, fine, slightly colder weather, SHIPMENT OF GRAIN.—The Herald says:—"The following is the amount of grain shipped from the Campbellford railway station from the 1st of October to the 23rd of January 1882:—Peas, 4,050 bus; Barley, 60,500 bus; Rye, 23,000 bus; Wheat, 14,000; Oats 3,200 bus.—Total, 104,750.

RAWDON AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The following are the officers for the present year:—President, W. Vandervoort; Vice-President, Nathan Clark; Directors, James Duncan, Walter Martin, James Cook, James McComb, D. Wootten, Joseph Doak, John Wilson, Wm. J. Spry, John McCaw, Jr; Secretary, C. A. Jordison; Treasurer, James Milne; Auditors, F. B. Parker and Thomas McKee.

A BEAUTIFUL PRIZE.—Chief McKinnon has received from the Thistle Society of Montreal, the special prize which he won at that Society's meeting on the 27th of August last, when he threw the light hammer 121 ft. 10 in. and the heavy hammer 98 ft. 3 in. The prize is an oval medal, bordered with a raised wreath of thistle flowers and leaves, forming a border, within which is a second plain border, bearing the name of the Society, and in the centre is the figure, in relief, of an athlete swinging a hammer, the whole surmounted by crossed hammers. On the reverse side is the inscription "Exhibition throwing heavy and light hammer, presented by Thistle Society to Hugh McKinnon, of Belleville, August 27th, 1881." This latest addition to the Chief's collection of trophies is one of the most beautiful, and is a credit to the Society, as well as to the great athlete whose magnificent hammer throwing won it.

PETERBOROUGH VS. BROCKVILLE.

The result of the first hour's play in this game, as given yesterday, foreshadowed the final result, which was in favor of Peterborough. On rink No. 1 the play was very keen, Brockville getting a good lead at the start, but the last end resulted in Peterborough scoring one shot, leaving the score a tie, so far as this rink was concerned. On rink No. 2 Peterborough started off with the lead and kept steadily increasing it, although Brockville scored a 4 and a 2 in succession. The score was as follows:

PETERBORO.	BROCKVILLE.

On account of the very bad state of the ice, the proposed game between Belleville and Peterborough was postponed until a more favorable opportunity offers.

The visitors were entertained to an oyster supper at Hambly's, where a couple of very pleasant hours were spent.

NEW YACHTS.—The News says:—"At present Mr. Osborne, of the K. & P., and Mr. T. Robertson are constructing two yachts, of which great things are expected next season. It is said that Mr. Osborne's boat will be fashioned after the Madge on a larger scale. Time will tell what both will be able to accomplish. Mr. Robertson's new yacht will be twelve tons, while that of Mr. Osborne will be twenty tons. The former has sold the Laura to Robertson Bros., the builders of the new boat."

THE RAILWAY POOL AND THE G. T. R.—The Witness of the 26th says: "Mr. Wainwright returned from the West yesterday afternoon, after a brief absence. Referring to the extract from a New York newspaper, in effect that the G. T. Railway could not find ready money to post as penalty under the pool agreement, he remarked that the Grand Trunk Railway was in the pool at all events, and it was safe to allow the American newspapers to say what they pleased in that connection. The railway war, he believed, was over, and it was a good thing for the railways."

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

Immense quantities of brick are being drawn from the G. J. R. station, Madoc, to the Canada Consolidated mine to be used next spring for building purposes. Some fine houses have already been built there and Deloro presents an imposing appearance.

Ten men are kept steadily employed now in the Dufferin mine, and about 3,000 tons of iron ore are piled up ready for drawing and shipping on the railway.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)

An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. TOUTHWORTH.

He threw aside his paper, arose without a word, and followed her to the dining-room.

She stood behind her own chair at the head of the table, and waited for the entrance of the doctor, who soon came in.

He bowed to the young lady of the house, whom he had previously met at the door of the sick room, and then he went and shook hands with Mr. Hereward, welcomed him back to his home and then, as they all sat down at the table, he pushed his fingers through his gray hair, smiled and inquired:

'Is it too early to congratulate my young friends upon their happiness, in their approaching union? Of which the major just informed me, and for which he has invited me to stay and become a witness,' he added.

Naturally, Lilith's eyes fell and her color rose. She did not reply.

Mr. Hereward, who was perfectly cool, answered for both:

'I thank you, Doctor, in behalf of my promised wife and myself. Yes, we are to be married this evening at the bedside of my father, for such is his wish.'

'And a more suitable match I have never heard of! You will allow me, your old physician, who has knows and treated you from your childhood, Tudor, and you from your infancy, Lilith, to say as much as this—that you are altogether worthy of each other, and that I do not know any one else in the world who is worthy of either of you. Again let me congratulate you, my very dear young friends.'

'I thank you, in the name of my fair bethrothed and self, for your good opinion dear Doctor; but pardon me for adding that I fear your social experience must be limited, or your partiality blind! But let that pass. We shall be much pleased and flattered by your presence at and approval of the ceremony to be performed this evening,' concluded Mr. Hereward.

When tea was over, the two gentlemen went into the parlor for a tete-a-tete, and Lilith returned to the bedside of her dear friend and foster-father.

Nancy had just given him his tea and cream toast.

'I am glad to see you looking so much better, my dear father,' she said, as she seated herself beside him.

'Yes, my darling! The near prospect of my dear children's happiness has almost restored me to health! Nancy!' he said, turning his head towards the colored nurse, who was leaving the room with the little tea tray in her hands—'Nancy, as soon as you have taken that down stairs come back here; I want you.'

'Yes, sir,' respectfully assented the woman, as she passed out.

'Now, my darling Lilith, as soon as Nancy returns to take your place here I wish you to go to your room and put on a white dress, to be married in. The minister, with the license, may be here now at any moment, and you must be ready. Perhaps it is not really necessary that you should change your dress for so very quiet a wedding, especially as you look so pretty in that crimson cashmere; but still I think I would rather have you married in bridal white. You have such a dress I think.'

'Oh, yes sir.'

'Then as soon as Nancy comes back go and put it on.'

'Yes, sir.'

'Lilith, my darling!'

'Yes, father! What is it?'

'Give me your hand, dear.'

Lilith placed her hand in his.

'Look me straight in the eyes, my own.'

Lilith raised her dark eyes and met those of her best friend fixed on hers with a gaze of unutterable love, of infinite tenderness.

'Lilith, darling, you really love Tudor?' he said, with yearning solicitude.

Her dark eyes fell before his fixed gaze, and her cheeks crimsoned like fire; yet she conquered herself, she forced herself to reply to him, to satisfy him, to delight him by telling him the yerp truth from her heart.

'With all my heart and soul I love him,' she whispered very low.

'I thank Heaven! I thought so! Lilith!'

'Yes, father.'

'You are very happy dear, are you not?'

'If you were only well and strong, dear father, I should be very, very happy—the happiest one in the whole world, my father!'

'You must be happy, dear child, in the will of the Lord. Not only resigned, Lilith, but happy, whether He calls me to Himself, or leaves me here.'

'I hope and pray that He will leave you here dear father. And now let me tell you—I know that, under Divine Providence, I owe all the happiness I have to you. And I want you to hear me while I promise never, never to forget your love, never to cease to be grateful for your goodness, and always to devote myself with all the power of my heart and soul to the service of your son, to the promotion of his happiness, seeking it before my own or rather always finding mine in his,' said Lilith, in a low, timid, yet thrilling tone.

'I know it, my precious one! I knew it. The most priceless legacy I could leave my son will be the wife I shall give him tonight! But here comes Nancy. Go now and dress yourself in the white robes that best express the spotless purity of your soul, my darling,' said Major Hereward, as the colored nurse re-entered.

Lilith stooped and pressed her lips to his forehead and then glided from the room.

Lilith crossed the hall and entered her own chamber, which was on the opposite side.

Here a housemaid had replenished the fire that blazed brightly in the open chimney place, and next lighted the wax candles on the mantel piece and on the dressing bureau.

Lilith went to her wardrobe to select her dress.

She had one evening dress noticeable only for its simple elegance.

It was of pure white silk, with an overskirt of white tulle, looped with white moss rosebuds. This, with the white gaiters, and white kid gloves, white fan, wreath, and pearl jewelry that belonged to her toilet, had been prepared for a party which was to come off on Old Christmas Day, and to which the girl had been invited. It was extremely unlikely, under present prospects, that she would attend this party; but the dress came in now very conveniently for the marriage ceremony.

Lilith had never worn a ball dress in all her life before, and as she took this one from its box in her wardrobe, unwrapped it from its tissue paper, and laid it out on the bed, she was half afraid to put it on, even for her wedding, but she had no other white dress except her morning "gabrielles," which would be clearly unsuitable for the occasion.

So she took heart of grace, and after gathering her black curls into a little silver-threaded net, and putting her pretty feet into silken hose and white kid gaiters, she dressed herself in the simple but elegant costume of white tulle, looped with white moss-roses over white silk. She placed a bunch of white moss rosebuds on her bosom, and a necklace and bracelets of pearls around her pretty throat and wrists. She had two yards of white tulle left from her over dress. This she arranged gracefully as a bridal veil, securing it with a white moss rose to her, and letting it flow down over her dress.

Finally she drew on her white kid gloves, picked up her white lace handkerchief, and took a last survey of her toilet in the glass.

She had always been very pretty, but had never seemed beautiful in her own eyes before.

She smiled as she gazed, and then, as she turned away, blushed for this girlish vanity.

With a silent prayer for the Lord's help and blessing in this crisis of her life, she opened the door and went out. In the hall she was met by the gray-haired doctor, who surveyed her with surprise and admiration for a moment as he said:

'Come, my pretty little lady-love. The major sent me out here to wait for you and bring you in.'

And he drew Lilith's arm within his own and led her into the sick room.

The minister, the Rev. Mr. Cave, a half-brother of Dr. Kerr, and bearing a very striking resemblance to the physician, even to the red face and gray hair, dressed in his full canonicals, stood near the fire.

Mr. Hereward was also there, in full evening dress, and white kid gloves.

As Lilith, led in by the doctor, entered the room, Tudor, with a sudden radiance of surprise and pleasure in his eyes, went to meet her.

But Lilith, with downcast looks and flushed cheeks, passed directly to the bedside, to place her hand in the outstretched palm of her dear foster-father.

'How pretty you are, my darling! Kiss me, my precious one, my pearl of pearls! Give me your last girl's kiss!' he said drawing her towards him.

She would have clasped her arms around his neck but that his head lay prone upon the pillow. But she took his face between her white-gloved hands, and stooping kissed his lips again and again, with growing emotion, until she felt her arm gently clasped and she heard the low-toned voice of her betrothed saying:

Come, Lilith; come, my dear. You are agitating yourself and my father. Come, the minister waits.'

Then she raised her head and showed a lovely face that suggested a rose sprinkled with rain and sparkling in the sun, so bright it was with blushes, smiles and tears.

She quickly dried her eyes and let her betrothed lead her where he would.

The officiating minister stood on the rug, with his back to the fire.

The young pair bowed and stood before him.

Dr. Kerr was near him.

The book was opened, and the solemn marriage service of the church was commenced and carried on amid the deep silence of all except the reader's voice.

'Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?' read the minister,—and he looked up from the book for the answer.

'I do,' responded the earnest voice of the father from his sick bed.

And Dr. Kerr, acting proxy for Major Hereward, took the hand of Lilith and placed it in that of Tudor.

And the impressive ceremony proceeded to its conclusion.

After the benediction had been pronounced the two gray-haired half-brothers, the parson and the doctor, shook hands with bride and bridegroom and wished them every joy.

Then Tudor led Lilith up to the bedside, and she stooped and kissed the father, giving him the first bride's as she had given him the last girl's kiss. He smiled up in her eyes, reached his hand out and clasped the hand of his son for a few moments, and then his fingers relaxed and he instantly fell into one of thosesudden sleeps of profound exhaustion which were so frequent with him now.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Address

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

WILD WEATHER OUTSIDE.

Wild weather outside where the brave ships go,
And fierce from all quarters the four winds blow.
Wild weather and cold, and the great waves swell
With chasms beneath them as black as hell.
The waters frolic in Titan play,
They dash the decks with an icy spray.
The spent sails shiver, the lithe masts reel,
And the sheeted ropes are as smooth as steel.
And oh that the sailor were safe once more
Where the sweet wife smiles in the cottage door.

The little cottage it shines afar
O'er the lurid seas, like a polar star.
The mariner tossed in the jaws of death
Hurls at the storm a defiant breath;
Shouts to his mates through the writhing foam,
'Courage! please God, we shall yet win home!'
Frozen and haggard and wan and gray,
But resolute still; 'tis the sailor's way.
And perhaps—at the fancy the stern eyes dim—
Somebody's praying to-night for him.

Ah me, through the drench of the bitter rain,
How bright the picture that rises plain!
Sure he can see, with a merry look,
His little maid crooning her spelling-book.
The baby crows from the cradle fair;
The grandam nods in her easy-chair;
While hither and you, with a quiet grace,
A woman flits, with an earnest face.
The kitten purrs, and the kettle sings,
And a nameless comfort the picture brings.

Rough weather outside, but the winds of balm
Forever float o'er that isle of calm.
O friends who read over tea and toast
Of the wild night's work on the storm-swept coast
Think, when the vessels are overdue,
Of the perilous voyage, the baffled crew,
Of stout hearts battling for love and home
'Mid the cruel blasts and the curding foam,
And breathe a prayer from your happy lips
For those who must go "to the sea in ships;"
Ask that the sailor may stand once more
Where the sweet wife smiles in the cottage door.

THE CHILDREN WE KEEP.

The children kept coming one by one,
'Till the boys were five and the girls were three
And the big brown house was alive with fun.
From the basement floor to the old roof tree,
Like garden flowers the little ones grew,
Nurtured and trained with tenderest care;
Warmed by love's sunshine, bathed in dew,
They bloomed in beauty rare.

But one of the boys grew weary one day,
And leaning his head on his mother's breast,
He said, "I am tired and cannot play;
Let me sit awhile on your knee and rest."
She cradled him close to her fond embrace,
She hushed him to sleep with her sweetest song
And rapturous love still lightened his face
When his spirit had joined the heavenly throng.

Then the eldest girl with her thoughtful eyes,
Who stood where the brook and the river meet,
Stole softly away into Paradise
Ere the river had reached her slender feet,
While the father's eyes on the grave were bent,
The mother looked upward beyond the skies;
'Our treasures,' she whispered 'were only lent;
Our darlings were angels in earth's disguise.'

The years flew by, and the children began
With longings to think of the world outside;
And as each in turn became a man,
The boys proudly went from the father's side.
The girls were women proud and fair
That lovers were speedy to woo and to win,
And with orange blooms in braided hair,
The old home they left, new homes to begin.

So one by one the children have gone—
The boys were five and the girls were three;
And the big brown house is gloomy and lone,
With but two old folks for its company.
They talk to each other about the past,
As they sit together at eventide,
And say, 'All the children we keep at last
Are the boy and girl who in childhood died.'

TABERNACLE SERMONS.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

Mr. Ingersol, the Champion Blasphemer of America, Answered.

"Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them."—Ephesians, iv. 18.

It seems from what we have recently heard that the Christian religion is a huge blunder; that the Mosaic account of the creation is an absurdity large enough to throw all nations into rollicking guffaw; that Adam and Eve never existed; that the ancient flood and Noah's Ark were impossibilities; that there never was a miracle; that the Bible is the friend of cruelty, of murder, of polygamy, of obscenity, of adultery, of all forms of base crime; that the Christian religion is woman's tyrant and man's stultification; that the Bible from lid to lid is a fable, an obscenity, a cruelty, a humbug, a sham, a lie: that the martyrs who died for its truth were miserable dupes; that the Church of Jesus Christ is properly gazetted as a fool; that when Thomas Carlyle, the skeptic, said "the Bible is a noble book," he was dropping into imbecility; that when Theodore Parker, the infidel, declared in Music Hall, Boston, "never a boy or girl in all Christendom but was profited by that great book," he was becoming very weak minded; that it is something to bring a blush to the cheek of every patriot, that John Adams, the father of American independence, declared "the Bible is the best book in all the world," and that lion-hearted Andrew Jackson turned into a snivelling coward when he said, "that book, sir, is the rock on which our republic rests;" and that Daniel Webster abdicated the throne of his intellectual power and resigned his logic, and from being the great expounder of the Constitution and the great lawyer of his age, turned into an idiot when he said, "my heart assures and reassures me that the Gospel of Jesus Christ must be a divine reality; from the time that at my mother's feet or on my father's knee I first learned to lisp verses from the sacred writings, they have been my daily study and vigilant contemplation, and if there is anything in my style or thought to be commended the credit is due to my kind parents in instilling into my mind an early love of the Scriptures;" and that William H. Seward, the diplomatist of the century, only showed his puerility when he declared, "the whole hope of human progress is suspended on the overgrowing influence of the Bible," and that it is wisest for us to take that book from the throne in the affections of uncounted multitudes, and put it under our feet to be trampled upon by hatred and hissing contempt, and that your old father was hoodwinked and cajoled and cheated and befooled when he leaned on this as a staff after his hair grew gray and his hands were tremulous, and his steps shortened as he came up to the verge of the grave; and that your mother sat with a pack of lies on her lap while reading of the better country, and of the ending of all her aches and pains, and reunion not only with those of you who stand around her, but with the children she had buried with infinite heart ache so that she could read no more until she took off her spectacles and wiped from them the thick mist of many tears. Alas! that for forty or fifty years they should have walked under the delusion and had it under their pillow when they lay a dying in the back-room, and asked that some words from the vile page might be cut upon the tombstone under the shadow of the old country meeting-house where they sleep this morning waiting for a resurrection that will never come. This book having deceived them, and having deceived the mighty intellects of the past, must not be allowed to deceive our larger, mightier, vaster, more stupendous intellects. And so out with the book from the courtroom where it is used in the solemnization of testimony. Out with it from under the foundation of church and asylum. Out with it from the domestic circle. Gather together all the Bibles—the children's Bibles family Bibles, those newly bound, and those with lid nearly worn out and pages almost obliterated by fingers long ago turned to dust —bring them all together and let us make a bonfire of them, and by its warm our cold criticism, and after that turn under with the ploughshare of public indignation the polluted ashes of that loathsome, adulterous, obscene, cruel and deathful book which is so antagonistic to man's liberty, and woman's honor, and the world's happiness

"Stop!" says some silly old man. "Stop!" says some weak minded woman. "Stop!" says some small brained child. "Perhaps you had better give the Bible a trial before you condemn it." Well, we will give it a trial. I empanel this whole audience as a jury to render their verdict in this case—Infidelity, the plaintiff, versus Christianity, the defendant. Twelve jurors are ordinarily enough in a case, but in this case, vaster in importance than any other, I this morning empanel all the thousands of people here gathered as a jury, and I ask them silently to affirm that they will well and truly try this issue of traverse joined between Infidelity, the plaintiff, and Christianity, the defendant, so help you God. The jury empaneled, call your first witness. Robert G. Ingersol! "Here!" Swear the witness. But how are you to swear the witness? I know of only two ways of taking an oath in a court room. The one is by kissing the Bible, and the other is by lifting the hand. I cannot ask him to swear by the Bible, because he considers that a pack of lies, and therefore it could give no solemnity to his oath. I cannot ask him to lift the hand, for that seems to imply the existence of a God and that is a fact in dispute. So I swear him by the rings of Saturn, and the spots on the sun, and the caverns in the moon, and the milky way, and the nebular hypotheses, that he will tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth in this case between Infidelity, the plaintiff, and Christianity, the defendant. Let me say that I know nothing of the private character of that person, neither do I want to know. I have no taste for exploring private character. I shall deal with him as a public teacher. I shall not be diverted from this by the fact that he has again and again in lectures and in interviews assailed my name. I have no personal animosity. I invite him the Sabbath after he has changed his views in regard to the Christian religion to stand here where I stand and preach his first sermon. I deal with him only as a public teacher. You say why preach these three or four sermons which I intend to preach in answering the champion blasphemer of America? Am I afraid that Christianity will be overborne by this scoffing harlequinade? Oh, no. Do you know how near he has come to stopping Christianity? I will tell you how near he has come to impeding the progress of Christianity in the world. About as much as one snowflake on the track will impede the 3.30 o'clock Chicago lightning express train. Perhaps not so much as that. It is more like a Switzerland insect floating through the air impeding an Alpine avalanche. The Sabbath after Mr. Ingersol in this region extinguished Christianity we received in this church over 400 souls in public and beautiful consecration of themselves to Christ, and that only a small illustration of the universal advance. Within ten years Mr. Ingersol has done his most conspicuous stopping of Christianity, and he has stopped it at the following rate: In the first fifty years of this century there were 3,000,000 people who professed the faith of Christ. In the last ten years there have been three million people connecting themselves by profession with the Church of Christ. In other words, the last ten years have accomplished as much as the first fifty years of this century. My fear is not that he will arrest Christianity. I preach these sermons for the benefit of individuals. There are young men who through his teachings have given up their religion and soon after gave up their morals. Ingersol's teachings triumphant would fill all the penitentiaries and the gambling hells and houses of shame on the continent—on the planet. No divine system of morals, and in twenty years we would have a hell on earth eclipsing in abomination the hell that Mr. Ingersol has so much laughed at. My fear is not that Christianity in general shall be impeded, but I want to persuade these young men to get aboard the train instead of throwing themselves across the track, God is going to save this world anyhow, and the only question is whether you and I will refuse to get into the lifeboat. Besides that, I want to put into the mouths of these young men arguments by which they can defend themselves in the profession of their faith in Christ when they are bombarded.

But that trial comes on; the jury has been empanelled; the first witness has been called. In the opening sentences of my sermon I gave to you Mr. Ingersol's charges against Christianity. Now, my friends, it is a principle settled in all court-rooms and among all intelligent people, "false in part, false in all." If a witness is found to be making a misrepresentation on the stand, it does not make any difference what he testifies to after, it all goes overboard. The judge, the jury, every common-sense man says, "false in part false in all." Now, if I can show you, and I will show you, the Lord helping me, that Mr. Ingersoll makes misrepresentations in one respect, or two respects, or three respects, I will demand that, as intelligent men and as fair minded women, you throw overboard his entire testimony. If he will misrepresent in one thing he will misrepresent all the way through. "False in one, false in all."

In the first place he raises a roystering laugh against the Bible by saying: "Is this book true? The gentleman who wrote it said that the world was made out of nothing; I cannot imagine nothing being made into something." In nearly all his lectures he begins with that gigantic misrepresentation. I offer a thousand dollars reward to any man who will show me any passage in the Bible that tells me that the world was made out of nothing. The very first passage says it was made out of God's omnipotence. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." I do not ask you to refer to your Bible. Refer to your memory that you may see it is an Ingersolian misstatement—a misstatement from stem to stern and from cutwater to taffrail, and from the top of the mainmast down to the barnacles on the bottom. If he had taken some obscure passage he would not have been so soon found out; but he has taken the most conspicuous, the most memorable, the most magnificent passage—all geological and astronomical discovery only adding to its grandeur. "In the beginning." There you can roll in ten million years if you want to. There is no particular date given—no contest between science and revelation. You may roll in there ten million years if you want to. Though the world may have been in process of creation for millions of years, suddenly and quickly and in one week it may have been fitted up for man's residence—just as a great mansion may be many years in building, and yet in one week it may be curtained, and chandeliered, and cushioned and upholstered for a bride and groom. You are not compelled to believe that the world was made in our six days; you are not compelled to believe that. It may not have been a day of twenty-four hours, the day spoken of in the first chapter; it may have been God's day, and a thousand years with him are as one day. "And the evening and the morning were the first day"—God's day. "And the evening and the morning were the second day"—God's day. "And the evening and the morning were the sixth day"—God's day. You and I living in the seventh day, the Sabbath of the world, the day of Gospel redemption, the grandest day of all the week, in which each day may have been made up of thousands of years, Can you tell me how a man can get his mind and soul into such blasphemous twist as to scoff at the first chapter of Genesis, its verses billows of light surging up from sapphire seas of glory! Come now, and let Mr. Ingersol, laugh at the fact that the world is made out of "nothing." He has gone all through the cites telling what every man, woman and child of common sense knows is a misrepresentation. There is as much difference between Mr. Ingersol's statement and the truth as between nothing and omnipotence. Now, I will take Mr. Ingersol's first misrepresentation, and I nail it so high that North, South, East and West may see it and remember it. I repeat, there is as much difference between his statement and the Bible statement as between nothing and omnipotence. Now, I demand, gentlemen of the jury, you throw overboard his entire testimony. False in part, false in all—all that he has testified to in the past, all that he will testify to in the future—all overboard, by the common rules of evidence.

I take a step futher in the impeachment of this witness. One would have thought that after misrepresenting the first passage he would have rested from his labors and given us some honest exposition. Oh, no! He rolls from side to side with laughter. He runs up and down the whole gamut of cachinnation. He can hardly contain his mirthfulness. He swoops upon the third and fourth verses of the same chapter in caricature and says: "Ha! ha! the Bible represents that light was created on Monday and the sun was not created until Thursday. Just think of it! a book declaring that light was created three days before the sun shone!" Here Mr. Ingersol shows his geological and chemical and astronomical ignorance. If Mr. Ingersol had asked any schoolboy on his way home from one of our high schools: "My lad, can there be any light without the shining of the sun?" the lad would have said: "Yes, sir; heat and electricity emit light independent of the sun. Besides that, when the earth was in process of condensation, it was surrounded by thick vapors and the discharges of many volcanoes in the primary period, and all this obscuration may have hindered the light of the sun from falling on the earth until that Thursday morning." Beside that, he would say: "Mr. Ingersol, don't you know that David Brewster and Herschel, the astronomer, and all the modern men of their class agree in the fact that the sun is not light, that it is an opaque mass, that it is only the candlestick that holds the light, a phosphorescent atmosphere floating around it, changing and changing so it is not to be all wondered at that not until that Thursday morning its light fell on the earth. Beside that, Mr. Ingersol," the lad of the high school would say, "the rocks in crystallization emit light. There is light from a thousand surfaces, the alkalies, for instance." The lad would have gone on to say "the metallic bases emit light." The lad would have gone still further to say: "Mr. Ingersol, don't you know that there was a time in the history of the world when there were thousands of miles of liquid granite flaming with light?" The lad would have gone on and told Mr. Ingersol that by observation it has been found that there are burned out volcanoes in other worlds which when they were in explosion and activity must have cast forth an insufferable light, throwing a glare all over the earth. And the boy would have asked him also if he had ever heard of the aurora borealis or the aurora ancholis. And then the boy would have unbuckled the strap from his bundle of books and read from one entiled "Connection of the Physical Sciences" this paragraph:

"Captain Bonnycastle, coming up the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the 17th of September, 1826, was aroused by the mate of the vessel, in great alarm from an unusual appearance. It was a starlight night, when suddenly the sky became overcast. In the direction of the high land of Cornwallis county an instantaneous and intensely vivid light, resembling the aurora, shot out on the hitherto gloomy and dark sea, on the lee bow, that was so brilliant it lighted everything distinctly, even to the masthead. The light spread over the whole sea between the two shores, and the waves, which before had been tranquil, now began to be agitated. Capt. Bonnycastle describes the scene as that of a blazing sheet of awful and most brilliant light—a long and vivid line of light that showed the face of the high, frowning land abreast. The sky became lowering and more intensely obscure. Long, tortuous lines of light showed immense numbers of large fish darting about as if in consternation. The topsail yard and mizzen boom were lighted by the glare as if gaslights had been burning directly below them, and until just before daybreak, at 4 o'clock, the most minute objects were distinctly visible."

Mr. Ingersol has only to go to one of our high schools to learn there are ten thousand sources of light beside the light of the sun. But if he had been in one of the classes in our high schools—a class in astronomy, or geology, or chemistry, the impatient teacher would have said to him: "Robert, go down to the foot and be in disgrace—be in disgrace for your stupidity." This is not wilful misrepresentation in this case on the part of Mr. Ingersol. He does not know any better. It is the most profound and distinguishing ignorance ever exhibited on a lecturer's platform in America, when he says there cannot be any light, or implies there cannot be any light, except that which comes from the sun. In the first case which I showed you it was wilful misrepresentation. in this case it is ignorance, geological and astronomical and chemical. But whether wilful or ignorant misrepresentation, either and both will impeach Robert G. Ingersol as incompetent to give testimony in this case between Infidelity, the plaintiff, and Christianity, the defendant. I nail on the top of the temple of skepticism this misrepresentation by the champion blasphemer of America. He misrepresented in the first case. He has misrepresented in the second case. Now I demand, gentlemen of the jury, that you throw overboard his testimony. "False in part, false in all."

I take a step in further in impeaching this witness against Christianity. He sharpens all his witticisms to destroy our belief in the ancient deluge and Noah's ark. He says that from the account there, it must have rained 800 feet of water each day in order that it might be fifteen cubits over the hills. He says that the ark could not have been large enough to contain 'two of every sort,' for there would have been hundreds of thousands and hundreds of thousands of creatures. He says that these creatures would have come from all lands and all zones. He says there was only one small window in the ark and that would not have given enough fresh air to keep the animals inside the ark from suffocation. Then he winds up that part of the story by saying that the ark finally landed on a mountain 17,000 feet high. He says he does not believe the story. Neither do I! There is no such story in the Bible. I will tell you what the Bible story is. I must say that I have changed my mind in regard to some matters which once were to me very mysterious. This is the way to the facts. This is the story of an eye-witness, Noah, his story incorporated afterwards by Moses in the account. Noah described the scene just as it appeared to him. He saw the flood and he fathomed its depth. As far as eye could reach everything was covered up, from horizon to horizon, or, as it says, "under the whole heaven." He did not refer to the Sierra Nevadas, or to Mount Washington, for America had not been discovered, or, if it had been discovered, he could not have seen so far off. He is giving the testimony of an eye witness. God speaks after the manner of men, when he says everything would go under, and Noah speaks after the manner of men when he says everything did go under, for he was an eye witness. There is no need of thinking that the kangaroo leaped the ocean, or that the polar bear came down from the ice. Why did the deluge come? It came for the purpose of destroying the outrageous inhabitants of the then thinly populated earth, nearly all the population probably very near the ark before it was launched. What would have been the use of submerging North and South America, or Europe or Africa, when they were not inhabited? Mr. Ingersol most grossly misrepresents when he says that in order to have that depth of water it must have rained eight hundred feet every day. The Bible distinctly declares that the most of the flood rose instead of falling. Before the account where it says "the windows of heaven were opened," it says, "All the fountains of the great deep were broken up." All geologists agree in saying that there are caverns in the earth filled with water, and they rushed forth and all the lakes and rivers forsook their bed. What am I to think, and what are you to think of a man who, ignoring this earthquake spoken of in the Bible as preceding the falling of the rain, and for the purpose of making a laugh at the Bible, will say it must have rained over eight hundred feet every day?—taking the last half instead of the first half. The fountains of the great deep were broken up, and then the windows of heaven were opened. It is a strange thing that we should be asked to believe in the flood of the Bible when geologists tell us that again, and again, the dry earth has been drowned out. Just open your geology and you will read of twenty floods. Is it not a strange thing that the infidel scientist, wanting us to believe in the twenty floods of geological discovery, should as soon as we believe in the one flood of the Bible, pronounce us asinine and non compos mentis? Well then, another thing, in regard to the size of the ark. Instead of being a mudscow, as some of these infidels would have us understand. It was a magnificent ship, nearly as large as our Great Eastern, three times the size of an ordinary man-of-war. At the time in the world when shipbuilding was unknown, God had this vessel constructed which turned out to be almost in the same proportion as our staunchest modern vessels. After thousands of years of experimenting in naval architecture and in ship carpentry, we have at last got up to Noah's ark, that ship leading all the fleets of the world on all the oceans. Well, Noah saw the animal creation going into the ark. He gave the account of an eye-witness. They were the animals from the region where he lived; for the most part they were animals useful to man, and if noxious insects or poisonous reptiles went in, it was only to discipline the patience and to keep alert the generation after the flood. He saw them going to in. There were great number of them, and he gives the account of an eye-witness. They went in two and two of all flesh.

Two or three years ago I was on a steamer on the river Tay and I came to Perth, Scotland. I got off and saw the most wonderful agricultural show that I had ever witnessed. There were horses and cattle such as Rosa Bonheur never sketched, and there were dogs such as the long pencil of Edwin Landseer never portrayed, and there were sheep and fowl and creatures of all sorts. Suppose that "two and two" of all the creatures of that agricultural show were put upon the Tay steamer to be transported to Dundee, and the next day I should be writing home to America and giving an account of the occurrence. I would have used the same general phraseology that Noah used in regard to the embarkation of the brute creation in the ark—I would have said that they went in two and two of every sort. I would not have meant six hundred thousand. A common sense man myself, I would suppose that the people who read the letter would be common sense people. "But how could you get them into the ark," says Mr. Ingersol, with a great sneer. "How could they be induced to go into the ark? He would have to pick them out and drive them in, and coax them in." Could not the same God who gave instinct to the animal inspire that instinct to seek for shelter from the storm. However, nothing more than ordinary animal instinct was necessary. Have you never been in the country when an August thunder-storm was coming up, and heard the cattle moan at the bars to get in? and even seen the affrighted fowl go upon the perch at noonday, and heard the affrighted dog and cat clawing at the door, supplicating entrance? And are you surprised that in that age of the world when there were fewer places of shelter for dumb beasts, at the muttering and rumbling and flashing and quaking and darkening of an approaching deluge, the animal creation come moaning and bleating to the sloping embankment reaching up into the ancient Great Eastern, and passed in? I have owned horses and cattle and sheep and dogs, but I never had a horse, or a cow, or a sheep, or a dog that was so stupid it did not know enough to come in when it rained. Yet Mr. Ingersol cannot understand how they could get in. It is amazing to him. And then that one window in the ark which afforded such poor ventilation to the creatures there assembled; that small window in the ark which excites so much mirthfulness on the part of the great infidel. If he had known as much Hebrew as you could put on your little finger nail, he would have known that that word translated window there means window course, a whole range of lights. This ignorant infidel does not know a window pane from twenty windows. So, if there is any criticism of the ark, there seems to be too much window for such a long storm, If he had studied Hebrew two weeks, he would have been saved the display of that appalling ignorance, that most disgraceful ignorance, when he scoffs and scoffs and scoffs, and chuckles and chuckles and chuckles over the small window in the ark. This infidel says that during the long storm the window must have been kept shut and hence no air. There are people in this house to-day who went all the way from Liverpool to Barnegat lighthouse and for two weeks were kept under deck, the hatches battened down because of the storm. Some of you in the old time sailing vessels were kept nearly a month with the hatches down. For the tenth or the fifteenth misrepresentation by Mr. Ingersol he says that the ark landed on a mountain seventeen thousand feet high and that, of course, as soon as the animals came forth they would all be frozen in the ice! Here comes in Mr. Ingersol's geographical ignorance. He does not seem to know that Ararat is not merely the name for a mountain, but for a hill district, and that it may have been a hill twenty feet high, or a hundred feet, or two hundred feet high on which the ark alighted Noah measures the depth of the water above the hill and it is fifteen cubits or twenty-seven feet. But in order to raise a laugh against the Holy Scriptures, Mr. Ingersol lifts the ark seventeen thousand feet high, showing an ignorance of just that altitude!

Ah! my friends, this story of the ark is no more incredible than if you should say to me "Last summer I was among the hills of New England, and there came on the most terrific storm I ever saw, and the whole country was flooded. The waters came up over the hills, and to save our lives we got in a boat on the river, and even the dumb creatures were so affrighted they came moaning and bleating until we let them in the same boat." The flood that Ingersol describes is not Noah's flood, it is Ingersol's flood of hatred against God. It is not Noah's ark that Ingersol describes, it is Ingersol's ark with a whole flock of hooting owls of the midnight of Infidelity, whole nests of viperine and adderine venom against God, whole lairs of panthers which with spotted claw, if they could, would maul the Eternal God to pieces. And there is only one small window in that ark, and it opens into the blackness of darkness described by the text, "Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them."

The first misrepresentation of Mr. Ingersoll was wilful, the second was geological and astronomical ignorance, the third was geographical ignorance. We are not dependent on the Bible for the story of the flood entirely. All ages and all literatures have traditions, broken traditions, indistinct traditions, but still traditions. The old books of the Persians tell about the flood at the time of Ahriman, who so polluted the earth that it had to be washed by a great storm. The traditions of the Chaldeans say that in the time when Yisuthrus was king there was a great flood and he put his family and his friends in a large vessel, and all outside of them were destroyed, and after a while the birds went forth and the came back and their claws were tinged with mud. Lucian and Ovid, celebrated writers, who had never seen the Bible, described a flood in the time of Duncahon. He took his friends into a boat, and the animals came running to him in pairs. So, all lands and all ages and all literatures seem to have a broken and indistinct tradion of a calamity which Moses here, incorporating Noah's account, so grandly, so beautifully, so accurately, so solemnly records.

But I must halt in this argument, as in a great trial sometimes an attorney will stop for lack of time to finish, and I must on other Sabbath mornings take up this subject. I have only opened the door of a subject it will take me other Sabbath mornings to explore. I have impeached Robert Ingersoll for having misrepresented once, twice, thrice. I demand that you put into execution the principle of every court-room gentlemen of the jury, and throw overboard his entire testimony. "False in part, false in all" I have this morning only discussed the cleanest part of Mr. Ingersoll's infidelity—the best part of Mr. Ingersoll's infidelity. There are depths below depths, and I shall go on and say all I have to say on this subject. My prayer is that the the God who created the world—not out of nothing but out of His own omnipotence—may create us anew in Christ Jesus, and that the God who made light three days before the sun shone, may kindle in our souls a light that will burn on long after the sun has expired, and that the God who ordered the ark built and kept it open more than one hundred years that the antediluvians might enter for shelter, may graciously incline us to accept the invitation which this morning rolls in music from the throne, saying "Come thou and all thy house into the ark."

Fellows' Hypophosphites makes an old person look years younger. "This witness is true." Would that I could more widely make it known for its many virtues. Long may its inventor live to see the happy fruits of his invention.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

EMBROIDERIES.

WE received this week (through a mistake in shipping to Belleville) our Spring Stock of Embroideries. As many of our customers here enquired for that class of goods, we have decided to place them in stock on Monday next, 30th inst., and will sell them at a slight advance on cost. Among them are a lot seven inches wide, suitable for skirts, &c., at 30 and 35 cents per yard.

The License Officials Again.

Two weeks have now passed since we formulated grave charges against one of the License Commissioners, a near relative of his, and the Inspector, but as yet these parties have taken no steps in vindication of their injured reputations. Neither have we been able to draw from the usually impetuous local organ of the Mowat Government, nor from any other of the Grit newspapers, an expression of opinion on the subject. This the public will take, and correctly, as conclusive proof of the truth of our charges. This policy of silence will no longer avail, however, as Conservative journals, assured by the muteness of the parties incriminated that the accusation is true, have begun to comment on the matter, which will soon attain to such a degree of notoriety that the Ontario Government, who are doubtless seized of the facts of the case, will find it necessary to take some action. The Ottawa Citizen devotes an article, in its issue of the 12th inst. to the subject, in which it says:

When the Ontario Government took the management of regulating tavern licenses out of the hands of the local authorities in the cities of the Province, there is little doubt that the object was to strengthen their own position politically, just as they have managed by a bold policy of centralization to get into their own hands the appointment of almost every man who has anything to do connected with the numerous provincial offices. In many cases the Grit License Commissioners have made use of their power for the purpose of aiding the cause of the party in the localities where they reside, and more than one of them have been known to exert directly coercive influence during municipal and parliamentary elections. In some places a Conservative has been placed on the Board of Commissioners, but, as a rule, good, sound Grits have been deemed best qualified by Mr. Mowat and his colleagues for controlling the license interest. The latest case of which complaint is made comes from Belleville. Some time ago the Local Inspector there was summarily dismissed. There was no charge against him, except that he did not suit the "party," who were desirous of having one of their own partizans appointed to the position. After the change in the system one Conservative was appointed on the Board, but he was soon supplanted by a Reformer. From the INTELLIGENCER we gather the following facts of what followed:—

The Citizen then quotes our charges in full and adds:

Up to the present time no defence has been made in reply to the INTELLIGENCER's charges, which were formulated about ten days ago, a fact which justifies the conclusion that a defence cannot be made, the charges being true. If the truth were only known, we have no doubt the same disgraceful practices have been carried on from time to time in other places by the political partizans appointed by the Ontario Government to control the license system of the Province.

We commend the matter to the attention of our representative in the Legislature.

A School Law Difficulty.

A curious and unexpected difficulty has arisen in connection with the election of a School Trustee for Foster Ward. Subsections 6 and 7 of the law passed in 1879 amending the school law, provide as follows:

6. The returning officer or person presiding shall, on the day after the close of the election, return the poll book to the Public School Board, with his solemn declaration thereto annexed, that the poll book has been correctly kept, and contains a true record of the votes given at the polling place for which he was returning officer;

7. The Public School Board shall add up the number of votes for each candidate for any office, as appears from the poll book so returned, and shall declare elected the candidate or candidates having the highest number of votes, and shall at noon, on the day following the return of the poll book, put up in some conspicuous places in the Municipality, and at one or more of the school houses therein, a statement showing the number of votes for each candidate; and a majority in number of the Trustees remaining in office shall be a quorum for the foregoing purposes.

One of the Trustees representing Foster Ward died recently; a new election was ordered by the Board, the Returning officer was appointed, the election was held on Wednesday last, after the requisite six days' notice had been given, a majority of 21 was recorded for Mr. E. Maxon, and the poll-book returned with the necessary declaration. It only remained, therefore, for the Board to meet on Thursday night, count the votes, and declare the result of the election, as provided by subsection 7. But herein the difficulty arose, as although a meeting of the Board was appointed a quorum of members did not assemble, and no meeting could be held. The law does not provide that this duty may be performed on a subsequent day, hence the question arises, Does the failure of the Board to count the votes and to declare the result of the polling in the manner and by the time required by the statute, invalidate the election? It will be observed that the requirement is imperative and that no provision is made for supplying the omission at a future meeting, and thus the neglect of a mere formality may render a new election necessary.

Doubtless the authorities of the Education office will be consulted, and the Board will no doubt act on their advice, but whatever the result may be, one thing is apparent, namely that section No. 7 is one of the most useless, stupid and mischievous pieces of legislation that was ever invented. It is useless, as compelling the Board to meet and count the votes recorded, which work has previously been done by an officer who has made a solemn declaration that the poll-book had been correctly kept. It is stupid in failing to provide that the formality of declaring the result of the election—if the School Boards must declare it—may be gone through within a reasonable time. And finally it is mischievous, if the election can be invalidated as in the case under notice—for a Board might, by refusing to declare elected a person who was objectionable, defeat the will of the people. Otherwise, the provision is of no effect whatever, and ought to be expunged from the statute book. There has been much tinkering of the School law during many years past, but Mr Crooks has achieved the distinction of rendering it much more difficult and unsatisfactory than any other legislator who ever meddled with and attempted to improve it.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

AN ONTARIO MINISTER MUTILATING AN OFFICIAL REPORT.

The practices to which members of the so-called Liberal party will descend, in order to further the ends of their party are manifold. One of the meanest and most despicable of such devices has been brought to light by Mr. Lauder, M.P.P., the guilty party being Mr. A. S. Hardy, Provincial Secretary. In the Legislature on Thursday, 19th inst., Mr. Lauder accused Mr. Hardy of having mutilated a report, which led to the following discussion, as reported by the Globe:

"Mr. Hardy said that what he did he did advisedly. He was not bound to publish the agent's report at all. He published what was of use to the country, and he was not going to expend public moneys in publishing improper matters. (Hear, hear.)

"Mr. Lauder, in attempting to speak, was met with calls of 'Order.' He said the Provincial Secretary had no right to use the language he did. He not only mutilated the agent's report, but changed facts and printed them to suit his own purposes.

"Mr. Hardy said he did not know what his hon. friend meant. The report came to him in manuscript form, and he cut out what was irrelevant. If he called that mutilation he was quite at liberty to use the term. As for making or changing to give a different sense, he denied it.

The report in question was that of Mr. Smith, the Emigration Agent at Hamilton (who, by the way, is a life-long Reformer), which was published in the Dominion and Ontario blue books for 1881. By comparing the two versions of the report, it is easy to see what has been taken from it by Mr. Hardy, in the exercise of that discretion which he claimed for himself. We are indebted to the Mail for the extracts.

The first elision, then, is of the following words as to the prospects of immigration:

"And the interest that has been created in regard to the prairie lands of the North-West Territories must largely aid emigration."

This matter was not improper or irrelevent, but as it would have shown that the land regulations were not so bad as the Grit party had painted them and that land could be procured despite their allegations as to the baneful effects of the Syndicate, Mr. Hardy cut it out. Again Mr. Smith wrote:

"During the past year great improvements have taken place in this district in all branches of manufacture. Public confidence being restored, with a succession of good crops, has had a tendency to develop a general feeling of activity in all branches of industry, causing works that have been closed for years to be reopened, capital being furnished by joint stock companies, private individuals, and firms. New manufactories have been built and old ones enlarged to meet the growing demands made upon the manufacturers, and the increased purchasing power of the consumers. Two new cotton mills have been erected and put into operation during the current year, and others are being projected. Woollen mills and hosiery factories are also being established, those already in operation not being able to keep pace with the growing demand made upon them. All classes of manufactures are participating in the general prosperity, thereby giving increased and steady employment to all classes of mechanics, artisans, operatives, and laborers at remunerative and increasing wages."

This, certainly, cannot be said to be of no use to the country, or improper, or irrelevant; nevertheless the Provincial Secretary clipped it out with a ready hand, because although it showed that Hamilton and district were prosperous and an excellent field for emigration, it would tend against the argument that the N. P. is ruining the country.

The further statement that in Hamilton "more buildings were erected than in any previous year, and those of a public character are the most extensive and expensive that have been built for the past twenty years," was also stricken out, as showing too great a degree of prosperty to suit Mr. Hardy's views.

Mr. Arthur Sturgis Hardy is certainly entitled to the distinction of showing that there is a lower depth of meanness to which an active and unscrupulous Grit partizan can descend than we had supposed was possible How long will the people consent to be ruled by men of such a stamp—men who regard their party as above all other considerations, and who are ready to use their positions in the Provincial Administration to assist their friends in Dominion politics, by any means, no matter how base?

Editorial Brevities.

Tho Hamilton Times says Mr. Hardy did quite right in cutting out portions of the report of Mr. Smith the Hamilton Emigration Agent, because therein he glorified the N. P. Now Mr. Smith is and has been all his life a Reformer, and if in stating facts as to the recent progress of manufacturing indurtries in Hamilton, his report incidentally bore testimony to the beneficial effects of the N. P., so much the worse for those who oppose it. Had Mr. Smith chosen to speak untruthfully and to say that the country was being ruined by the N. P., we venture to say that Mr. Hardy would not have elided such a statement as irrelevant or not being in the interest of the Province.

The St. John (N. B.) Daily News thinks it quite evident that the agitation of the boundary question has been undertaken by the Ontario Government after consultation with the Dominion Opposition, as an election cry for 1883, but that the attempt to create an agitation will result in a fiasco.

Mr. Hardy, the Provincial Secretary, is a very able editor. He not only "edits" the reports of the emigration agents, but we should judge, from a recent article in that journal, that he also finds time to contribute occasional editorials to the Brantford Expositor. Industrious man!

The Montreal Gazette publishes the following very satisfactory item:—"We are glad to learn that it is probable that the correspondence which the Minister of Agriculture has had with the Veterinary Department of the Imperial Privy Council will lead to permission being given within a few days for the importation of cattle for breeding purposes from the United States upon the same terms as to quarantine as cattle from Great Britain, without the necessity of Canada's being placed on the schedule list in the United Kingdom."

Says the Citizen: "A Chicago journal publishes a statement showing the export of grain from the principal ports on this continent during the years 1880 and 1881. There was a large diminution last year. Here are the figures, representing bushels:

	1880	1881
New York	122,597,913	90,571,683
Baltimore	45,146,811	33,775,675
Philadelphia	30,470,733	18,153,103
Boston	18,760,267	16,142,150
New Orleans	14,860,111	12,483,736
Montreal	25,846,310	17,586,233

Evidently it was not the National Policy of Canada which caused the diminution in the number of bushels exported at the above-mentioned ports, although that has been alleged by Free Trade journals in the case of Montreal."

Why don't our Grit exchanges which defend Mr. Hardy's mutilation of an official document, publish those portions of the report which Mr. Hardy eliminated as irrelevant and not in the interests of the country, and allow their readers an opportunity of judging for themselves?

Mr. Bartlett-Burdett-Coutts says that he has received requests from twelve separate Conservative Associations to become a candidate at the next general election for the boroughs that they represent. The English electors are particularly fond of a "fat goose" to pluck.

The Montreal journal Canada First, which is certainly not a supporter of the administration of Sir John Macdonald, says:—"The London Advertiser asserts that the N. P. is a failure and that its most ardent supporters, cannot avoid admitting it. If the London Advertiser owned property in Montreal where three years ago 2,000 houses were vacant, it would realize the fact that the N. P., far from being a failure, is a grand success, and were it not for the numerous manufactories springing up in our midst, landlords would suffer terrible in this city. The refineries alone give work to 800 employees."

N. P. Notes.

Kingston people have subscribed $35,000 towards the capital stock of $50,000 required for the establishment of car works in that city.

A new industry is being started on the Esplanade, Toronto where wheels are to be tired without bolts or screws, and hubs are to be made which will permit of a broken spoke being replaced without removing the tire.

A new coal mining company has been organized in Cape Breton with a capital of $500,000, of which $400,000 is to be expended in the development and opening of the mines. The directors are: Senator Archibald, Cape Breton; A. Gunn, M. P., Kingston; and John MacLean, Halifax. The property of the company adjoins that of the General Mining Company at Sydney. It comprises an area of ten square miles.

The Company recently formed in Montreal for importing and grinding rice—another industry—have, says the Journal of Commerce, purchased the Parker Mills at Cote St. Paul, a suburb of Montreal, and the necessary machinery has already been ordered in England. It is stated that the Company also intend to manufacture oil from cotton seed.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 27.

Mr. Mowat resumed the debate, and after brief references to the questions of the timber policy of the Ministry and the appointment of license inspectors, passed on to the subject of disallowance. He contended that retroactive legislation was frequently necessary in the interests of justice, and, coming to the practical phase of the subject, urged that streams were practical highways, and that it was unfair that they should be closed against those who desired to use them. The concluding portion of the Attorney-General's remarks was devoted to the boundary question, and was of a general character.

Mr. Pardee spoke for a few minutes defending himself from the charge of garbling Mr. Blake's letter to Lord Carnarvon.

Mr. Meredith accused the Government of foreshadowing a line of action in connection with the disputed territory which, if not treasonable, came to the very verge of treason.

Mr. Sinclair's amendment to the amendment was then put, and carried by a vote of 54 to 25.

YEAS.—Messrs. Appleby, Awrey, Badgerow, Ballantyne, Baskerville, Baxter, Bishop, Blezard, Bonfield, Caldwell, Cascaden, Chisholm, Crooks, Deroche, Dryden, Ferris, Field, Fraser, Freeman, Gibson (Hamilton), Gibson (Huron), Graham, Hagar, Harcourt, Hardy, Hawley, Hay, Hunter, Laidlaw, Livingston, Lyon, McCrancy, McKim, McLaughlin, McMahon, Mack, Miller, Mowat, Murray, Nairn, Neelon, Pardee, Peck, Robinson, (Cardwell), Robinson (Kent), Robertson (Halton), Sinclair, Snider, Striker, Waters, Watterworth, Wells, Widdifield, Wood, Young, —54.

NAYS.—Messrs. Baker, Baskerville, Bell, Boulter, Brereton, Broder, Creighton, French, Jelly, Kerr, Lander, Lees, Long, Macmaster, Madill, Meredith, Merrick, Metcalfe, Monk, Morgan, Morris, Near, Richardson, Robertson (Hastings), Tooley, White—26.

The amendment was declared lost on the same division.

The following members paired off;—Mr. Ross for, and Mr. Wigle against, the first amendment: Mr. Blezard for, and Mr. Metcalf against the second amendment; and Mr. Hagar for, and Mr. Macmaster against the second amendment. The last two of these pairs hold good till Tuesday. Dr. Kincaid was absent from the city, and therefore, curiosity as to how he would vote was not gratified.

Mr. Morris followed in a brief speech, at the conclusion of which he moved an amendment to the Address, proclaiming the disallowance of the Streams Act to be no invasion of the independence of the Province.

Mr. Harcourt, in a brief speech, took the opposite ground, and moved an amendment to the amendment, declaring that the Constitution "could not survive the wrench" which would be given to it by the assumption on the part of the Dominion Government of the right to interfere with Provincial legislation on questions comprised with Provincial jurisdiction.

This amendment was carried on the same division as the former, and after the remaining paragraphs of the address had been passed and some routine business transacted, the House adjourned before half past eight.

MRS. LANGTRY'S SUCCESS.—The London correspondent of the New York Tribune telegraphs that Mrs. Langtry's debut on Thursday in Roberston's "Ours" as a regular member of the Haymarket theatre company confirmed the general belief in her possession of rare natural aptitude for the stage. The critics unite in praising her voice, bearing and rapid acquisition of the elements of technical knowledge, as well as her capacity for expressing emotion. The latter is so marked that it is now considered probable that she will excel in romantic drama, more than in pure comedy.

—During 1881 there went in twelve trains from Ottawa to Manitoba, 3,671 passengers and 319 carloads of freight.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

The Causes of Colds

are getting overheated in hot rooms or crowded assemblies, sitting in a draught, or cooling too rapidly after exercise, muffling up warm and changing to lighter wrappings, cold and damp feet. No matter what is the cause Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the cure for all throat and lung diseases that induce consumption.

Deserving of Praise.

Too much cannot be expressed in favor that unsurpassed remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, croup, sore throat, and all lung complaints. If you suffer from neglected cold, try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The cost is trifling, only 25 cents.

Truro, N. S., Sept. 8, 1881.

MY DEAR PUTTNER,

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

P. S.—I have been giving your Compound to a great many children after Scarlet Fever, and find it just the thing. They can take when almost everything else will be refused.

ONTARIO BUSINESS COLLEGE.

WHAT A VISITOR MAY SEE—160 DAY STUDENTS IN ATTENDANCE—THE SECOND LARGEST COMMERCIAL COLLEGE ON THE CONTINENT—ONE OF THE MOST WIDELY PATRONIZED AND ABLY CONDUCTED PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS IN CANADA.

Any of our readers, or strangers in the city, having a spare hour would employ it very profitably in visiting Ontario Business College, as a representative of this journal did yesterday. To witness the College in session just now is a sight worth going a long distance to see.

THE COLLEGE PREMISES.

As one enters the College premises their admirable arrangement is at once apparent. Directly opposite the stairway on entering is the office, which is one of the most complete business offices we have ever seen. On the walls hang Specimens of Penmanship of such rare excellence that it would be difficult to distinguish them from steel engravings. On many of them are attached First Prize cards obtained in competition at Dominion and Provincial Exhibitions.

From the landing on the left two large class rooms open, and on the right, on a massive iron door, are the words, "Entrance to College," through which we pass into a large, well furnished and lighted and thoroughly ventilated room, than which no better could be devised for its purpose. The character of the work done is indicated by the mottoes, "Industry," "Energy," "Perseverance," which meet the eye on entering.

THE COLLEGE IN SESSION.

In response to the roll call this morning one hundred and sixty students, representing such distant points as Bermuda, West Indies, and the United States, and nearly all parts of the Dominion, answer "here."

At once the most perfect order is assumed. The Principals and assistants are passing from desk to desk giving instructions, or are being continually consulted on knotty points. The students on our left, the Principals inform us, are working in the Junior work in book-keeping; those in the centre in the Senior work; and those on the right, near the College bank, and wholesale house of Jones & Brown, are working in

THE ACTUAL BUSINESS DEPARTMENT.

Presently we observe one of the Principals going into THE BANK, and immediately a number of actual business students present themselves to get checks cashed, notes discounted, drafts collected, or make deposits, the bank teller paying out its own currency, and the ledger-keeper referring to the customer's account for his balance before "marking" his check.

THE WHOLESALE DEPARTMENT

is a model business office where goods are sold to the students on account, for note, draft or cash, and the books of which are well worth examination. The students learn here practically the manner of making out and checking invoices, account sales &c., and how to mark the cost and retail price on goods. Each student must spend a portion of time in the Bank and wholesale house after completing the actual business work on his own account. The whole work of the Actual Business Department is under the direct superintendence of one of the principals, whose experience as a practical accountant, and whose high reputation throughout the Dominion as an author, are a guarantee of first class work.

We hear Mr. Robinson call

"FIRST ARITHMETIC CLASS," and immediately about forty students retire with him to the class room. In about three-quarters of an hour these return and the Second Arithmetic Class take their place. After they have returned, Mr. Johnson calls and presently the seats of the seniors and actual business students are vacant, they having retired to the class room to hear business papers, banking and business practice discussed and illustrated by one of the foremost accountants in Canada. On the return of this class, the writing hour begins, instruction being given by Mr. Robinson, whose ability as a penman is well known.

"BUSINESS PAPER CLASS,"

The noon hour has now arrived, and at the sound of the bell the students retire.

THE AFTERNOON

is occupied, besides book-keeping, in the work of the advanced arithmetic class under Mr. Robinson's able instruction; in correspondence and composition, and with the various examinations.

The above is but a sketch of what we witnessed. We came away more than ever convinced of the value to Canada of this Institution, which has long been the leading Business College in the Dominion, and equal to the best in the United States, and the Principals of which have done so much for business education, both by their teaching and by their well-known works on book-keeping and penmanship. The "Canadian Accountant," now going into the fifth edition, and "Johnson's Joint Stock Company Book-Keeping," now in the second edition, and "Beatty's Guide to Elegant Writing,"—these works are reference books in counting-houses, text books in several other colleges, and in nearly all the high schools.

It is the thoroughness of the work done, the absence of all humbug and deception and the great success of the young men trained in it, many of whom we see in our own city filling the best positions, that attract to it so many students. From our intimate knowledge of the Principals we know that nothing will be left undone to maintain the position which merit and ability have secured for Ontario Business College. The attendance is yearly increasing, the number of students and the teaching staff are this year larger than at any previous period.

THE GARFIELD ASSASSINATION.—President Garfield was shot on the 2nd July last, and died eleven weeks and two days afterwards, on the 19th of September. The trial of Guiteau began on the 14th of November, or eight weeks after the President's death, and the verdict was given ten weeks and two days after the opening of the trial. It was twenty-nine weeks and four days from the day of shooting to the day of conviction, and it was eighteen weeks and two days after Gen. Garfield's death that Guiteau was found guilty.

NEARLY READY FOR WORK.—The Montreal Star of the 27th says: "The Canada Mutual Telegraph Company completed its lines to New York last night, which are now in working order to that city. The lines from Buffalo to Toronto are also completed, and the section from Montreal to Ottawa, it is expected, will be in operation for the opening of the Dominion Parliament, on the 9th prox. The Canada Mutual through the National Union of New York, will have communciation with points as far east as Bangor, Me., and as far West as St. Paul, Minnesota, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, and all intermediate points."

Mr. S. S. Mason, Atlantic City, N. J., after a full experience says: "St. Jacobs Oil is the best thing I know of to use for sprains, sores, bruises, and similar troubles among horses.

Keep the Feet Dry.

This is the season of sloppy weather so productive of colds, and lung troubles; neglected cold or damp feet is a great source of these difficulties. Cure your cough with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Pleasant to take and always reliable.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH B. INMAN, Station D, New York City. [w6m143eod

ATTEMPTED MATRICIDE NEAR STIRLING.

Mrs. Chas. Keirl Attacked by Her Sons.

The Stirling News-Argus gives the following particulars of the Perkins-Keirl imbroglio, the statement of Thomas Perkins in regard to which appeared in these columns some days ago:

On Tuesday morning Chas. Keirl, living on a farm of Mr. C. Armstrong, near Chisholm's Rapids, about two miles and a-half from Stirling, appeared before Mr. Geo. E. Bull, J. P., and laid information against his three step-sons, Thomas, Henry and William Perkins, for assault with intent to kill upon the persons of himself and wife. The warrant was put into the hands of constable Wright, who found his men at Jacob Rosebush's, near Keirl's. The investigation took place at the Stirling house on Tuesday, and the following are the facts of the case, as gathered from the various sources: On Monday Thomas drove a cutter from Belleville to Stirling, intending to return by train. While waiting here he fell in with a younger brother, Henry, and together they started for Keirl's. They stopped at Anthony Murphy's, where another brother, William, was living, and asked him to go with them. On the way Thomas communicated to William their intention to kill "Charley and the old woman,"—the latter being their mother and Keirl her second husband—and also to burn the house. William objected to the plan, when they threatened him also, and he finally concluded to continue with them, with the hope of saving the intended victims. On arriving at the house Thomas, who acted as ringleader and spokesman, knocked, and was admitted by Keirl. This much was told to parties in the village by William.

Keirl's evidence was in substance as follows: On entering Thomas asked in a brutal manner if he had "any G—d d—n good stuff to drink," and was told yes, there is lots of good stuff in the house, meaning water. Thomas asked "Where is the old woman?" and was told she was in the other room. Passing on into the other room, he repeated the first question to his mother; then, noticing a child on the bed, asked, "Whose G—d d—m b——d is that?" (The child belonged to a Mrs. Stinson, of Sarnia, sister of the prisoners, who was visting at the house). The old lady checked him for speaking so in the house, when he produced a knife and made a lunge at her, saying: "Do you see that?" She sprang aside, he made another lurge, but she gained the opposite of the table. Mrs. Stinson screamed, and ran for help to Keirl, who came in from the other room and seized Thomas by both wrists, when a terrific struggle ensued. Henry here joined in and also William, who claims that he intended to help his stepfather but caught his leg while he thought he had Thomas'. Keirl was thus struggling with the three, but managed to edge out into the kitchen again, being a powerfully built man, and got hold of a shotgun which was there, being anxious to fire it off lest they turn it upon him. All but William got hold of the gun, and Keirl fired one barrel, the shot passing through the door, over the pillows of the bed, and lodging in the wall behind. The child had a moment before been lying there, but had been picked up by its mother, in her alarm, thus undoubtedly saving its life. The wad being loose in the other barrel, the shot ran out on the floor in the tussle, and the charge was afterwards fired off by one of the boys. Keirl then broke loose from the ruffians and darted into his bed-room, where he had a six shooter revolver, which had been loaded since last spring. He presented it at his assailants, and ordered them to leave. They, seeing he was armed and meant business, left.

Mrs. Stinson was called, and corroborated the statements of Keirl.

Mrs. Keirl was not sworn, but in answer to a question from Thomas, stated distinctly that he made two attempts at her with the knife, and that Mr. Keirl's evidence was correct.

William was discharged with costs $4.20.

Henry was fined $5 and costs, in all $9.20, and was ordered to find $400 bail, himself $200 and two others for $100 each, to keep the peace for one year. He was given twenty-four hours to produce the bail. In less than an hour he was on the road to the shanties, leaving fine, costs and bail to be collected the best way possible.

Thomas was committed to gaol at Belleville, to stand his trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

THE SUN

LIFE ASSURANCE CO'Y OF MONTREAL.

Unconditional, Incontestable Life Policies.

THE objection is very often made to Life Assurance that the Companies may take advantage of some of the numerous and complicated conditions on the policies, and thus either avoid entirely the payment of claims, or compromise with the widow for a small sum. There is considerable force in this argument, but it cannot be urged indiscriminately against all Companies. The SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY of Montreal issues absolutely unconditional policies. There is not one restriction of any kind on them. The assured may reside in any part of the world without giving notice or paying one cent of extra premium. He may change his occupation at will; he may travel, hunt, or do anything else without any extras of any kind. The contrast is remarkable with other policies. Ask an agent to show you one. It speaks for itself.

☞ Remember, THE SUN is the only Company in America which issues an unconditional Policy.

Clement of Trenton, and City ministers. Music will be furnished by the excellent choir of the church. Tickets 30c.

IN the County Council this morning Mr. White moved a resolution to the effect that, in view of the proposed legislation for the abolition of market dues, the Council petition the Ontario Government to insert in the proposed Bill a clause giving Belleville the privilege of charging market dues the same as at present, in consideration of the expense to which the City has been put in assisting to make free the County gravel roads and in furnishing very ample market accommodations. This, however, was thought by the Council to be too radical a motion, and an amendment moved by Mr. Ashley was carried, to the effect that it was, in the opinion of the Council, desirable that the Government should favorably consider the petition of Belleville in reference to free roads and make such concessions as may seem just in the matter.

THE Committee of the County Council which was appointed to interview John Bell, Esq., County Solicitor, in order to learn the terms of the amalgamation of the Grand Junction Railway with the Midland and other railways, waited upon that gentleman last evening at his office. Mr. Bell read and explained the deed of the amalgamation to the Committee, who were so well satisfied with it that they reported to the Council this morning to the effect that they believed the rights which the County and minor municipalities held in the Grand Junction were fully respected and guarded by the deed, and the interests of the County in the railway would be enhanced by the amalgamation. This result will probably do away with the necessity of a deputation from the Council to Toronto to interview the Government relative to the matter.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 28.—Lakes, cloudy, mild weather to day with light rain in some localities followed this evening or to-night by high westerly to northwesterly winds, and decidedly colder weather with local falls of snow. To-morrow will be very cold and at night the temperature will fall considerably below zero.

REMENYI.—This great violinist will, supported by an excellent company, give a concert in the City Hall on the night of the 6th inst. The Montreal Herald expresses the following opinion of Remenyi's abilities: "Combined with a most perfect and, in fact, wonderful mastery over the technique of his instrument, Remenyi displays an immense amount of soul and poetic feeling. Every one should hear the Great Hungarian. His style is such that he cannot fail to please. He appeals at once to the sympathy of his audience; his variety is such that he never tires, and his delicacy and refined treatment are at once manifest." The plan of the hall will be opened at Reynolds' on Monday at 10 a. m.

MIDLAND RAILWAY STAFF CHANGES.—The Lindsay Post says:—"Some important changes in the staff of the Midland and amalgamating railways will take place as the result of the consolidation. Mr. A. White continues general traffic agent, but as his duties will be greatly increased he may have a deputy or general passenger agent.... Mr. W. B. Ferguson continues superintendent—the right man in the right place.... Mr. J. J. Ross, the popular secretary of the Whitby line, becomes superintendent of the Grand Junction or Belleville division. His removal from Whitby will be greatly regretted.... Mr. A. Burton, for many years agent at Lindsay, becomes superintendent of the Whitby and Victoria division, from Whitby to Haliburton.... The Nipissing section will remain under the superintendency of Mr. W. B. Duncan.... Some other changes will be made in a short time.... It is expected that the new time-table will go into force about the fifteenth of February."

THE MIDWINTER (FEBRUARY) CENTURY.—After the new cover, the first "midwinter issue" of THE CENTURY is chiefly distinguished by its unusual range of popular contributors, whose names of themselves awaken in the reader a desire to see their contributions. Of these are Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry W. Longfellow, the late Dean Stanley, Mrs. Burnet, Mr. Howells, Frank R. Stockton, "H. H.," E. C. Stedman, H. C. Bunner, each of whom has his special audience. Add to these attractive names the other features: a fine frontispiece portrait of George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days" and the "Grandissimes," engraved by Cole, with a sketch by Col. Waring; another of unique and amusing "Tile Club" papers, illustrated by ten of the members of the Club; the text 'somewhat abridged" of Mrs. Burnet's play of "Esmeralda," now running successfully at a New York theatre; an illustrated account of the growing sport of Lawn Tennis, with full directions; a review of "Significant Features of the Atlanta Exposition," by Edward Atkinson, Esq., who, we believe, was the prime mover in that enterprise; and a beautifully illustrated paper on "The Phidian Age of Sculpture"—and it will be seen that the number contains rare elements of popularity.

THE TWO MEDALLIONS.—The production of this so called "Comedy romanza" by the Amy Lee American Comedy Company, attracted a large audience to the Metropolitan Hall last night. The piece is an extravaganza, with the very faintest outlines of a plot, and is a mere vehicle for introducing the specialities of Miss Lee and her company, and to this extent it is satisfactory. Amy Lee is a pretty little girl, of 15 years of age, or thereabouts. Her acting is full of archness and piquancy, and with a vivacious manner and possessing a sweet though childish voice, her performance was highly satisfactory. Misses Clairon, Eiselle and Watson, though not remarkably clever either as actresses or singers, were yet acceptable. The chief burden of the performance rested on Mr. C. H. Stanly, who played the part of "Spooks," a negro servant, and although there was by far too much of Spooks, the antics, witticisms and musical eccentricities of the actor were so laughable that his obtrusiveness was rather welcomed than otherwise by the audience, and especially by the gallery. Mr. H. A. Smith, as "P.Q Butts," the village squire, and Mr. R. P. Gale as "Prof. J. Phiniss Billings," filled their parts very acceptably. The company is on the whole a good one, and those who wish to enjoy a hearty laugh should attend. To-night they will repeat the "Two Medallions," with a considerable change in the musical portion of the entertainment.

MARRYING IN HASTE.—One day this week a well-to-do farmer from Tyendinaga—a bachelor of middle age—came into town on his ordinary business, little aware of the fate that was awaiting him. He probably imbibed a considerable quantity of spirituous or malt liquors while in town; at any rate he fell into such a condition of mind that he at once acquiesced in any proposition that was made to him, apparently lacking the power to refuse—even so much as the trivial offer of a drink. In this condition of mind he entered an up-town grocery shop. Now there was living with the worthy couple who kept the shop, in the capacity of household assistant, a lady of uncertain age, to whom the Tyendinaga farmer was introduced. They had never seen each other before, and yet the farmer, who had never experienced any amorous thrills, felt his heart strangely warmed at the appearance, manners and conversation of the lady. The liking appeared to be mutual, and the flame of love suddenly burst forth in both hearts at a proposition from the worthy host that they should make themselves happy for life by joining their hands as well as their hearts. The farmer received the proposition with delight; the coy maiden, after a few blushes, yielded without a murmur; a collection was taken up on the spot, and the lover hastened with the cash to an issuer of marriage licenses in order to procure the necessary document. When asked the name of the bride he was unable to give that necessary piece of information, and had to walk all the way back to the shop to learn it. The document was finally procured and pocketed, the services of a clergyman were secured and the pair were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. After the ceremony the happy bridegroom went home, leaving his bride in the house where she was married. He promised faithfully that he would return either the next day or the day after and take his wife to her new home; but he has not since made his appearance or sent any message. The bride is spending the honeymoon alone, and, like Mariana in the moated grange, she spends the time in watching for her truant spouse.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR FEBRUARY opens with a story of the adventures of a Mexican prince, illustrated with a beautiful frontispiece by F. H. Lungren. Other short stories are: "The Man in the Moon," a tale full of humor, by Sophie Sweet, with pictures by George D. Brush,—"The Round Stone," a Hungarian Folk-Story,—"Cornwallis's Buckles," an incident of Revolutionary times, the illustrations being by G. W. Edwards,—and "Lady Ann's Valentine," a tale full of interest. "Men and Animal Shows, and How they are Moved About" is the title of an entertaining article by William O. Stoddard. Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the editor, relates in this month's instalment of her serial, "Donald and Dorothy," a gallant rescue by the hero; and Edward Eggleston, in his serial, "The Hoosier School-boy," carries the young people of the story through stirring scenes of frontier school-life, as it was in his own boyhood; a fine picture, by George D. Brush, adorns the present instalment. Dr. Eggleston also describes, in a short article, "A Curious Drama" which he saw in London, and in which Dr. George McDonald and his family represented scenes from the second part of the "Pilgrim's Progress" of John Bunyan. Mr. Harry M. Kieffer, in "Recollections of a Drummer-boy," gives graphic accounts of camp-life in winter during the late war, and of the terrible scenes on the field after the battle; the illustrations are by Allen C. Redwood. Several poems and humorous verses, besides comical single pictures, help to enliven the pages of this number.

LAST NIGHT'S BLAZE.—A spark from the north chimney of Arkles' Hotel lodged among the shingles yesterday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock, and in a few minutes the roof in the vicinity was in a blaze. Even before the alarm was given the fire had run along the roof and extended to the frame shop occupied by J. B. Patterson's jewelry store. Both engines were on the spot a few minutes after the alarm was rung, but before a stream could be got on the flames they had burned through the roof of the whole building. For a time C. F. Smith's hardware store was in imminent danger, but it was only for a short time: when the engines once got down to their work it did not take long to get the fire under control. Owing to the rapid speed of the flames it was impossible to save all the furniture and effects of those who occupied the buildings. In Arkles' Hotel a great deal of wanton destruction of property took place by excited individuals. A large portion of Mr. Arkles' furniture was destroyed in this way, and a considerable quantity of it had to be left to its fate. Mr. A. Symons occupied a small shop next door south of the hotel as a harness shop, and lived over it. He contrived to save the greater part of his stock, though in a damaged condition, a quantity of tools and a large part of his furniture were destroyed. The stock of Mr. M. Y. Legate, who occupied a small grocery store next to Symons, was only partially saved. The flames spread with such rapidity that it was with great difficulty that Mrs. Patterson, who was ill in bed, could be got out of the building. She and her two children were carried to Mrs. Kennedy's, Hotel St. The more valuable portion of the stock of jewelry in the store was saved, having been locked up in the safe; but the greater part of Mr. Patterson's furniture and household effects was destroyed, either by fire, smoke and water or by removal. The buildings were part of the McCurdy estate. The north half of the stone building and the wooden shop were owned by Jos. McCurdy. He was insured for $1,000 on both. The south half of the stone building was owned by Russell McCurdy, who is now in California. It was insured for $2,000. The total loss on the buildings will probably amount to about $4,000. Mr. Arkles was uninsured; his loss will be considerable—probably as much as $1,200 to $1,500. Mr. Symons was insured for $100 on his furniture, but nothing on his stock; his total loss will be about $300. Mr. Patterson had the following insurance: $400 on his stock in the Imperial and $500 on his furniture, namely $200 in the Royal and $300 in the Lancashire Company. Mr. Legate was uninsured. Ald. Smith, Chairman of the Fire Committee, states that the firemen worked with great energy, in fact they never did better, and they are entitled to a large amount of credit for their well-directed exertions. The engines also did splendid service. The new suction hose for No. 1 was used for the first time and proved entirely satisfactory.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

Great Fur Sale.

During the last ten days my Sales of Furs have been considerably in excess of expectations, showing conclusively that bargains are given and appreciated. I am determined to close out my entire stock and although the season is considerably advanced it will pay to buy furs now.

I am closing business in this city and I am willing to sacrifice in order to make sales.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Dr. A. B. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

WASHINGTON SPECIALS.

This can be done at a moderate expense.

The Tribune says that the correspondence respecting Peru and Chili attracted marked attention. The dates of the correspondence alone show the charges that Blaine presumed to inaugurate a radical foreign policy of his own during the illness of Garfield to be without foundation. It can also be stated that every paper in the Peru-Chili correspondence sent out by the State Department under Blaine and dealing with any question of national policy, had the personal knowledge, personal inspection and personal approval of Garfield or Arthur.

This of itself shows that the lung tissue when diseased is susceptible of restoration to a sound and healthy condition. Persons afflicted with lung disease may reasonably hope to recover health by the use of well chosen remedies. Foremost among these is Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, a thoroughly tested and highly accredited specific for coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, spitting of blood and other affections of the Pulmonary irritation is promptly arrested by the Cod Liver Oil, and the hypophosphites, which are among the finest renovants used by physicians, reviving the flagging energies of the debilitated system.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

We have sold the above remedy for several months and find it spoken of very favorably by both the medical profession and the public.

We can safely recommend it to parties needing such a remedy.

TOBY TYLER; OR, TEN WEEKS WITH A CIRCUS.

BY JAMES OTIS.

CHAPTER XV.

TOBY'S FRIENDS PRESENT HIM WITH A COSTUME.

ELLA AND TOBY.

During this time Toby's funds had accumulated rather slower than on the first few days he was in the business, but he had saved eleven dollars, and Mr. Lord had paid him five dollars of his salary, so that he had, to him, the enormous sum of sixteen dollars, and he had about made up his mind to make one effort for liberty, when the news came that he was to ride in public.

He had, in fact, been ready to run away any time within the past week; but, as if they had divined his intentions, both Mr. Castle and Mr. Lord had kept a very strict watch over him, one or the other keeping him in sight from the time he got through with his labors at night until they saw him on the cart with old Ben.

'I was just gettin' ready to run away,' said Toby to Ella, on the day Mr. Castle gave his decision as to their taking part in the performance, and while they were walking out of the tent, 'an' I shouldn't wonder now if I got away to-night.'

'Oh, Toby!' exclaimed the girl, as she looked reproachfully at him, 'after all the work we've had to get ready, you won't go off and leave me before we've had a chance to see what the folks will say when they see us to-gether.'

It was impossible for Toby to feel any delight at the idea of riding in public, and he would have been willing to have taken one of Mr. Lord's most severe whippings if he could have escaped from it; but he and Ella had become such firm friends, and he had conceived such a boyish admiration for her, that he felt as if he were willing to bear almost anything for the sake of giving her pleasure. Therefore he said, after a few moments' reflection: 'Well, I won't go to-night, anyway, even if I have the best chance that ever was. I'll stay one day more, anyhow, an' perhaps I'll have to stay a good many.'

'That's a nice boy,' said Ella, positively, as Toby thus gave his decision, 'and I'll kiss you for it.'

Before Toby fully realized what she was about, almost before he had understood what she said, she had put her arms around his neck, and given him a good sound kiss right on his freckled face.

Toby was surprised, astonished, and just a little bit ashamed. He had never been kissed by a girl before, very seldom by any one, save the fat lady, and he hardly knew what to do or say. He blushed until his face was almost as red as his hair, and this color had the effect of making his freckles stand out with startling distinctness. Then he looked carefully around to see if any one had seen them.

'I never had a girl kiss me before,' said Toby, hesitatingly, 'an' you see it made me feel kinder queer to have you do it out here where everybody could see.'

'Well, I kissed you because I like you very much, and because you are going to stay and ride with me to morrow,' she said, positively; and then she added, slyly, 'I may kiss you again if you don't get a chance to run away very soon.'

'I wish it wasn't for Uncle Dan'l an' the rest of the folks at home, an' there wasn't any such men as Mr. Lord an' Mr. Castle, an' then I don't know but I might want to stay with the circus, 'cause I like you awful much.'

And as he spoke Toby's heart grew very tender toward the only girl friend he had ever known.

By this time they had reached the door of the tent, and as they stepped outside, one of the drivers told them that Mr. Treat and his wife were very anxious to see both of them in their tent.

'I don't believe I can go,' said Toby, doubtfully, as he glanced toward the booth, where Mr. Lord was busy in attending to customers, and evidently waiting for Toby to relieve him, so that he could go to his dinner; 'I don't believe Mr. Lord will let me.'

'Go and ask him,' said Ella, eagerly. 'We won't be gone but a minute.'

Toby approached his employer with fear and trembling. He had never before asked leave to be away from his work, even for a moment, and he had no doubt but that his request would be refused with blows.

'Mr. Treat wants me to come in his tent for a minute; can I go?' he asked, in a timid voice, and in such a low tone as to render it almost inaudible.

Mr. Lord looked at him for an instant, and Toby was sure that he was making up his mind whether to kick him, or catch him by the collar and use the rubber cane on him. But he had no such intention, evidently, for he said, in a voice unusually mild, 'Yes, an' you needn't come to work again until it's time to go into the tent.'

Toby was almost alarmed at this unusual kindness, and it puzzled him so much that he would have forgotten he had permission to go away if Ella had not pulled him gently by the coat.

If he had heard a conversation between Mr. Lord and Mr. Castle that very morning, he would have understood why it was that Mr. Lord had so suddenly become kind. Mr. Castle had told Job that the boy had really shown himself to be a good rider, and that in order to make him more contented with his lot, and to keep him from running away, he must be used more kindly, and perhaps be taken from the candy business altogether, which latter advice Mr. Lord did not look upon with favor, because of the large sales the boy made.

When they reached the skeleton's tent, they found to their surprise that no exhibition was being given at that hour, and Ella said, with some concern, 'How queer it is that the doors are not open. I do hope that they are not sick.'

Toby felt a queer sinking at his heart as the possibility suggested itself that one or both of his kind friends might be ill; for they had both been so kind and attentive to him that he had learned to love them very dearly.

But the fears of both the children were dispelled when they tried to get in at the door, and were met by the smiling skeleton himself, who said, as he threw the canvas aside as far as if he were admitting his own enormous Lilly:

'Come in, my friends, come in. I have had the exhibition closed for one hour, in order that I may show my appreciation of my friend Mr. Tyler.'

Toby looked around in some alarm, fearing that Mr. Treat's friendship was about to be displayed in one of his state dinners, which he had learned to fear rather than enjoy. But as he saw no preprations for dinner, he breathed more freely, and wondered what all this ceremony could possibly mean.

Neither he nor Ella was long left in doubt, for as soon as they had entered, Mrs. Treat waddled from behind the screen which served them as a dressing-room, with a bundle in her arms, which she handed to her husband.

He took it, and quickly mounting the platform, leaving Ella and Toby below, he commenced to speak, with very many flourishes of his thin arms:

'My friends,' he began, as he looked down upon his audience of three, who were listening in the following attitudes: Ella and Toby were standing on the ground at the foot of the platform, looking up with wide-open, staring eyes, and his fleshy wife was seated on a bench, which had evidently been placed in such a position below the speaker's stand that she could hear and see all that was going on without the fatigue of standing up, which, for one of her size, was very hard work—'my friends,' repeated the skeleton, as he held his bundle in front of him with one hand and gesticulated with the other, 'we all of us know that to-morrow our esteemed and worthy friend Mr. Toby Tyler makes his first appearance in any ring, and we all of us believe that he will soon become a bright and shining light in the profession which he is so soon to enter.'

The speaker was here interrupted by loud applause from his wife, and he profited by the opportunity to wipe a stray drop of perspiration from his fleshless face. Then, as the fat lady ceased the exertion of clapping her hands, he continued:

'Knowing that our friend Mr. Tyler was being instructed, preparatory to dazzling the public with his talents, my wife and I began to prepare for him some slight testimonial of our esteem, and being informed by Mr. Castle some days ago of the day on which he was to make his first appearance before the public, we were enabled to complete our little gift in time for the great and important event.'

Here the skeleton paused to take a breath and Toby began to grow most uncomfortably red in the face. Such praise made him feel very awkard.

'I hold in this bundle,' continued Mr. Treat, as he waved the package on high, 'a costume for our bold and worthy equestrian, and a sash to match for his beautiful and accomplished companion. In presenting these little tokens, my wife (who has embroidered every inch of the velvet herself) and I feel proud to know that when the great and auspicious occassion occurs to-morrow, the worthy Mr. Tyler will step into the ring in a costume which we have prepared expressly for him, and thus, when he does himself honor by his performance, and earns the applause of the multitude, he will be doing honor and earning applause for the work of our hands—my wife Lilly and myself. Take them, my boy, and when you array yourself in them to-morrow you will remember that the only Living Skeleton and the wonder of the nineteenth century, in the shape of the Mammoth Lady, are present in their works if not in their persons.'

As he finished speaking, Mr. Treat handed the bundle to Toby, and then joined in the applause which was being given by Mrs. Treat and Ella.

Toby unrolled the package, and found that it contained a circus rider's costume of pink tights and blue velvet trunks, collar and cuffs embroidered in white, and plentifully spangled with silver. In addition was a wide blue sash for Ella, embroidered to correspond with Toby's costume.

The little fellow was both delighted with the gift and at a loss to know what to say in response. He looked at the costume over and over again, and the tears of gratitude, that these friends have been so good to him, came into his eyes. He saw, however that they were expecting him to say something in reply, and laying the gift on the platform, he said to the skeleton and his wife: 'You've been so good to me ever since I've been with the circus that I wish I was big enough to say something more than that I'm much obliged, but I can't. One of these days, when I'm a man, I'll show you how much I like you, an' then you won't be sorry that you was good to such a poor little runaway boy as I am.'

Here the skeleton broke in with such loud applause, and so many cries of 'Hear! hear!' that Toby grew still more confused, and forgot entirely what he was intending to say next.

'I want you to know how much obliged I am,' he said after some hesitation, 'an' I'll ride just the best I know how, even if I don't want to, an' you sha'n't be sorry that you gave them to me.'

As Toby concluded, he made a funny little awkard bow, and then seemed to be trying to hide himself behind a chair from the applause which was given so generously.

'Bless your dear little heart!' said the fat lady, after the confusion had somewhat subsided. 'I know you will do your best, anyway, and I am glad to know that you're going to make your first appearance in something that Samuel and I made for you.'

Ella was quite as well pleased with her sash as Toby was with his costume, and thanked Mr. and Mrs. Treat in a pretty little way that made Toby wish he could say anything half so nicely.

The hour which the skeleton had devoted for the purpose of the presentation and accompanying speeches having elapsed, it was necessary that Ella and Toby should go, and that the doors of the exibition be opened at once, in order to give any of the public an opportunity of seeing what the placards announced as two of the greatest curiosities on the face of the globe.

That day, while Toby performed his arduous labors, his heart was very light, for the evidences which the skeleton and his wife had given of their regard for him were very gratifying. He determined that he would do his very best to please so long as he was with the circus, and then when he got a chance to run away, he would do so, but not until he had said good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Treat, and thanked them for their interest in him.

When he had finished his work in the tent that night, Mr. Lord said to him, as he patted him on the back in the most fatherly fashion, and as if he had never spoken a harsh word to him, 'You can't come here to sell candy now that you are one of the performers, my boy; an' if I can find another boy to-morrow, you won't have to work in the booth any longer, an' your salary of a dollar a week will go on just the same, even if you don't have anything to do but to ride.'

This was a bit of news that was as welcome to Toby as it was unexpected, and he felt more happy then than he had for the ten weeks that he had been travelling under Mr. Lord's cruel mastership.

But there was one thing that night that rather dampened his joy, and that was that he noticed that Mr. Lord was unusually careful to watch him, not even allowing him to go outside the tent without following. He saw at once that if he was to have a more easy time, his chances for running away were greatly diminished, and no number of beautiful costumes would have made him content to stay with the circus one moment longer than was absolutely necessary.

That night he told Ben of the events of the day, and expressed the hope that he might acquit himself creditably when he made his first appearance on the following day.

Ben sat thoughtfully for some time, and then, making all the preparations which Toby knew so well signified a long bit of advice, he said, 'Toby, my boy, I've been with the circus, man an' boy, nigh to forty years, an' I've seen lots of youngsters start in just as you're goin' to start in to-morrow; but the most of them petered out because they got to knowin' more'n them that learned 'em did. Now you remember what I say, an' you'll find it good advice: Whatever business you get into, don't think you know all about it before you've begun. Remember that you can always learn somethin', no matter how old you are, an' keep your eyes an' ears open, an' your tongue between your teeth, an' you'll amount to somethin', or my name hain't Ben.'

DEAR LITTLE ALICE.

Dear Little Alice—may her joys increase—
Awoke one night, and near the mantlepiece
Beheld Old Santa Claus, with bag and box,
Quite busily engaged in filling socks.
Delightedly she lifted up her voice—
That childish treble made his heart rejoice—
And said: "Dear Santa, I have waited long
To talk to you; and have I then done wrong?"
"Not so," the saint of Christmas said and smiled.
While a soft radiance fell upon the child.
"Not so: for those alone my face may see
Who very good and noble strive to be.
Speak then my child; what is thy quest with me?"
Then answered Alice; "I cannot forget,
Dear Santa Claus, a little girl I met,
Ragged and homeless and with eyes so sad
That my poor heart has never since been glad.
Take them to her dear Santa Claus I pray,
All the rare things you brought for me to-day;
Take them to her, brighten her eyes of blue,
And say these presents came from me and you."
Then sleep quite overcame the little maid;
Back on the pillow her round cheek was laid.
Old Santa vanished; but an angel fair
Bent softly down and kissed her golden hair.

An Astonishing Fact.
A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Pains and Griping in Children.
HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.
Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.
The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea.
I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Why Incur Torture?
By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

LABOR OMNIA VINCIT!

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:
WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,
Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.
I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.
I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.
Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,
P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.
HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.
MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.
My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,
MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.
C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.
Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

(This Engraving represents the Lungs in a healthy state.)

THE WAY IT WILL AFFECT YOU.

It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucous; changes the secretions and purifies the blood; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. SUCH IS THE IMMEDIATE AND SATISFACTORY EFFECT that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours time, if not of too long standing. It is warranted TO GIVE ENTIRE SATISFACTION, EVEN IN THE most confirmed cases of Consumption! It is warranted not to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies), or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. It is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by Consumption, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time. Physicians having consumptive patients, and who, having failed to cure them with their own medicine, we would recommend to give ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM a trial. Sold by all Druggists.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

THIRD DAY.

THURSDAY, Jan. 26, 1882.

Council met at 10 o'clock, the Warden in the chair.

The minutes were read and approved.

The following communications were read:

From the publisher of the Stirling News-Argus, offering to publish County advertisements at reduced rates.

From L. A. Appleby, Gaoler, asking that his salary be increased to $600 per annum.

Mr. Gunter moved, seconded by Mr. Kavanagh, that power be given to the united townships of Tudor, Cashel and Limerick to locate a road 40 feet wide across lots 4 and 5, in the 1st concession of Limerick.—Carried.

The Committee of the Whole on Ways and Means resumed, Mr. O'Flynn in the chair.

Mr. Ashley moved that the prayer of the Gaoler's petition be granted. He spoke at length in favor of the motion.

Mr. White seconded the motion.

Mr. Wilmot said that the salary of the Gaoler was raised to $500 last year, and it would hardly be wise to raise it again this year.

Mr. White explained that the reason he seconded the motion for the increase was that the Gaoler of this County was more poorly paid than the Gaoler of any other County in the Province. He believed in paying the servants of the County in proportion to the services performed by them.

Mr. Clare thought that if the Gaoler was not satisfied with his salary, he should resign his position.

A lengthy discussion took place on the question.

Mr. Wilmot moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Haggerty, that in the opinion of the Council it would not be expedient to grant the increase of salary asked for by the Gaoler.

Mr. Haggerty said it would be time enough to advance the Gaoler's salary when the Government compelled them. It was evidently the desire of Mr. Vermilyea to relieve the Government of the responsibility of having the Council take action in the matter.

After further lengthy discussion the motion for the increase of the Gaoler's salary was carried.

Mr. Pearce moved that an additional grant of $75 per annum be made to Mr. Macintosh, I. P. S. North Hasting, and $30 to Mr. Johnston, I. P. S. for South Hastings, for travelling expenses.—Carried.

Committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

It being 12 o'clock, the Warden left the chair.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council resumed at 2 p. m., the Warden in the chair.

Council went into special Committee of the whole in order to consider certain communications.—Mr. Walker in the chair.

The communication from the County Treasurer of Huron, asking the co-operation of the Council in petitioning the Government in favor of the abolition of the second selection of Jurors, was considered. Also, from the County Clerk of Elgin to the same effect.

Mr. Aylsworth thought the second selection of jurors was an expense to the County without a benefit. The first selection, he believed, was the best one, and, in fact, the only one that was necessary. The second selection was a tedious process, and each of the officials to whom the duty devolved of making the second selection was entitled to $4 per day. Then the majority of these officials were permanent ones, and they were too often inclined to go in a groove. The Reeves and assessors of the different municipalities were the best qualified persons to select jurors, as they were better acquainted with the the residents of the municipalities. He moved that the Warden and Clerk petition the Ontario Legislature to abolish the second selection of jurors.

Mr. Ashley approved of the motion. The second selection of jurors was an expense without being accompanied by beneficial results.

The motion was carried.

The communication from the County Clerk of Elgin, asking for the co-operation of the Council in petitioning the Provincial Legislature in favor of the readjustment of criminal accounts was considered.

Mr Aylsworth said that there was no doubt that there was injustice done to such counties as Hastings. The majority of the criminals in this county were sent to the county gaol by the Police Magistrate of Belleville, and the County was not allowed any percentage by the Government for those criminals, whereas in such counties as Prince Edward, where there was no Police Magistrate, and nearly all criminals were tried by the County Judge at interim sessions, the County received a large percentage in return for the trial of criminals. He moved that a deputation, consisting of the Warden, the County Treasurer and the mover, be appointed to proceed to Toronto for the purpose of interviewing the Government in regard to the motion in question.—Carried.

The communication from the County Council asking that the Council co-operate in petitioning the Provincial Government to withdraw the grant to the annual Provincial Exhibition and distribute it among the different Agricultural Associations of the Province was considered.

Mr. Aylesworth said he believed the days of the Agricultural and Arts Association were numbered. The Government had now under consideration the matter referred to in the communication, and he did not think that a petition from the Council would have much weight, as, it was probable the members of the Government had made up their minds what to do in the matter.

Prof. Bell, the County Clerk (who was a delegate to the Agricultural & Arts Association) was, on motion, heard in regard to the matter under consideration. He explained the course which he had taken at the last meeting, and gave other valuable information, which has already been published. He was also of opinion that the Government had already determined on the course which they would take in regard to the subject.

The offer of the publisher of the Stirling News-Argus to publish County advertisements at reduced rates was laid over for further consideration.

The Committee rose and reported—Adopted.

The Committee of the whole on Roads and Brides resumed, Mr. Wilmot in the chair.

The petition of Mrs. Jane A. Wallbridge, asking that mining lands on certain lots in the 5th and 6th concession of Madoc be not sold with previous notice having been given in order to allow petitioner to compete for the purchase of the lands, was laid over for further consideration.

The petition asking for a grant of $150 towards the repair of the bridge over York River in Herschel Township was considered.

Mr. Kavanagh moved, seconded by Mr. White, that $100 be granted for the purpose petitioned for.—Carried.

Mr. Vankleek moved, seconded by Mr. Caskey, that $150 be expended on the County Roads in Madoc, to be expended as follows: $100 on the Allan Settlement Road, and $50 on the Queensboro Road.

Mr. Vankleek supported the motion on the ground that the work could be done for one-half the amount in the winter that it could be done if it was deferred till the June session. Gravel could, he said, be procured much more cheaply at present.

Mr. White opposed the motion on the ground that it was possible that no money would be granted at the June session for roads outside gravel roads. The municipality of Madoc should buy its gravel now, if necessary, and rely on the Council to do what was fair at the June session. If this motion passed, then all the front minor municipalities would be justified in coming forward for grants at this session.

Mr. Aylsworth said he believed that such grants as these should be made at the present session. He suggested prolonging the session for a day or two longer than usual and considering the appropriations to be made to minor municipalities.

Mr. Vankleek withdrew his motion.

Mr. Caskey moved that the County Surveyor replank the bridge over Cooper's Creek, near Queensboro.—Carried.

The petition, presented by Mr. McDavitt, from a number of ratepayers of the 13th concession of Bangor asking that the road be repaired, was considered.

Mr. Gunter moved, seconded by Mr. Aylsworth, that the matter of the petition be laid over till the June session.

Mr. Vankleek urged that the prayer of the petition be granted, as it was a case of necessity.

Mr. White moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Vankleek, that $100 be granted to each of the six northern municipalities, to be expended on roads, to be paid on the certificate of the Reeve and Clerk that the amount has been expended.

Mr. Gunter withdrew his motion and the motion of Mr. White was carried.

Committee rose and reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

Council adjourned.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.
The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea
I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.

Mr. Bently Again.

Mr. T. B. Bently asks was there ever such nonsense as to suppose that he, as Auditor, should have discovered errors in the books and accounts that he was appointed to audit. Nonsense or not, it certainly was his duty to do so, and he did not perform that duty—that is, if the report of the Royal Commission is correct. That report states that there was a deficiency of $913,33 in the accounts of 1873, which Mr. Bently audited and declared correct in 1874.

A Manly Avowal.

Mr. Sylvester Neelon, M. P. P. for Lincoln, is a Grit of the Grits. He has for many years fought the battles of his party in the county which he represents and has spent a great deal of money in keeping the standard elevated, but, being a shrewd and successful man of business, he does not join in the nonsensical tirades of his party against the N. P. On the contrary, he sees that protection has already been of immense benefit to the country, and like a man of sound practical sense acknowledges the fact and, despite his strong party leanings, supports the policy which his experience teaches him is for the benefit of the country. Mr. Neelon spoke during the debate on the address in the Legislature, and as he is a man of great wealth and influence, his opinions are of importance. We therefore give herewith the Globe's report of his remarks on the N. P. :

Mr. Neelon said he had been a protectionist for twenty years, and he believed that every man in this country had derived benefit from the National Policy. (Opposition applause.) Wherever there was a manufacturing establishment they had derived benefit from the tariff. During the seasons of 1876-77-78-79 mechanics had to seek employment in the United States, and delegation after delegation had gone to Ottawa and tried to get the tariff increased. After the present tariff had been imposed the mechanics who had formerly left the country through lack of employment returned, as they were glad to do, when they found that they could get employment at home. It might be said that higher prices had to be paid for goods, but his answer was that higher wages were being paid to workmen than two years ago. Another reason of higher prices was that raw material was somewhat higher. This was not because of the increased tariff, but because of the increased value of raw material and the increased value of labor. He held that the N. P. benefitted the farmer because, wherever there was a manufacturing establishment located, the agriculturist had a ready market for the products of his farm, and received fifteen per cent. more for his products than if he had to export them, and that thus the N. P. was not a hardship upon him. He held that when the imports exceeded the exports the country was getting poorer, and accumulating debt, the interest upon which we had to pay every year. The exports, if the country was to be in a proper position, should exceed the imports, and that was the true principle of the country's success. The Minister of Finance, in his opinion, deserved a great deal of credit for the part he had acted in inaugurating the National Policy. This question should not have come up in the House, but when it did come up he wanted his constituents to know where he stood. If this policy, which had been carried out for so many years, was a benefit to other countries, then why should it not be a benefit to this country.

There are very many Reformers who hold the same views as Mr. Neelon does, and if the free-traders think that, by denouncing the N. P. or even promising a slight change in the details of the tariff, they will obtain the support of such men, they will find themselves wofully mistaken.

Editorial Brevities.

The evident intention of the Grits to carry out Mr. Blake's patent process for stuffing the voters' list, render it necessary that Conservatives should closely follow the advice given in the Conservative instructions, "If the assessor is a Grit, watch him."

Although the motion proposed by Mr. White, M. P., in the County Council regarding the City's position with reference to market fees and road tolls was not passed, it yet shows a spirit of fairness which will be remembered to the credit of that gentleman in the future. Mr. Ashley's amendment, which was carried, was not so satisfactory.

The English free-traders have lately been congratulating themselves that the fair trade movement had been consigned to oblivion; but the question turned up again in the North York election, when the Conservative candidate, who advocated fair trade, was elected by a large majority.

Concerning the oyster fisheries in Canadian waters the Montreal Herald says :—"As to what steps should be taken by the Department to preserve and develop this important industry we are not in a position to advise, but we trust that, since there is likely to be a falling off in the American production, our Government will leave nothing undone which might tend to revive interest in the too long neglected oyster fisheries of the Lower Provinces." It may surprise the Herald to learn that last year the Hon. J. C. Pope, Minister of Marine, and Mr. Whitcher, the Commissioner, visited Baltimore with that object in view and was roundly abused by the Grit press for doing so.

Says the Ottawa Herald :—"Another nut for our Grit friends to crack is the formation of the new Mining Company at Cape Breton with a capital of half a million dollars. Among the directors are the following good Grits, Senator Archibald and A. Gunn, M. P., for Kingston. It is gratifying to find our Grit friends taking advantage of the fostering care of the N. P. by taking stock in Cape Breton coal mines, while the Globe and other journals are beating the air in their denunciations of the outrageous coal duties.

Mr. Paterson, the blatant orator from South Brant, who recently wasted two hours in a vain attempt to heal the difficulties existing amongst the adherents of the Grit party here, got caught lately in a dead fall of his own setting. The Brantford Courier makes the following trenchant exposure of his inconsistency :

"Mr. Paterson said at the Grit meeting on Saturday : 'I am a manufacturer of candy. I operate under a protective duty of thirty-five per cent. Foreign manufacturers cannot compete against me, but they can bring their men here and manufacture. Is this fair to my employees? Where is the protection to their labor which is their capital?' Yet this same Mr. Paterson said (vide Hansard of 1876) with regard to the cigar manufacture, in which he is also engaged), when the Mackenzie Government imposed forty per cent. duty on foreign cigars:—'This protection will transfer the labor of a thousand men out of Germany into Canada.'"

The Murray Canal.

The Brighton Ensign says:—"The presence of a Government surveyor in Brighton, charged with the work of further explorations on the proposed route of the Murray Canal, has excited new attention to this important work. Mr. Dodderidge is the name of the gentleman who now has the work in hand. He is engaged in running the lines on what is known as the Rubridge route, and testing the depth of earth before reaching the rock. This route commences at twelve o'clock point on the Bay of Quinte and runs in almost, if not quite, a straight line to Hemlock bridge where it then follows the old reserve to Presqu 'Isle bay. The indications are now that the route will shortly be decided upon, and advertisments issued asking for tenders for the construction of this long talked canal. The final decision regarding the route will be anxiously looked for by the people in this district, and doubtless whichever is finally determined upon someone will be disappointed, yet a feeling of relief will be experienced when the matter is once settled. The large surplus in the hands of the Government will enable them to push forward the work of construction with all possible speed, so that in the course of two or three years we may reasonably hope to see the waters of Lake Ontario flowing into the Bay of Quinte —we trust through Presqu'Isle harbor."

WILL MURDER OUT?

DISCOVERY OF THE BOY THAT IS SUPPOSED TO HAVE HELD A FATAL PISTOL—IS JOHNNY SMITH GUILTY ?

SHELBOURNE, Jan. 27.—An important link in the Amaranth murder was discovered to-day in the finding of the box, near the ruins, belonging to the pistol which young Johnny Smith is alleged to have puchased in Hannah's store two days betore the murder. The box is of ordinary pasteboard and bears the brand "Robin Hood" in large letters, the name of the pistol which the boy is said to have purchased. It will be remembered that Mr. Hannah and another witness named Foster swore that the prisoner came into the store on Thursday the 19th, the murder being on the Saturday following, and purchased a cheap revolver and a box of cartridges, and that he was accompanied by another boy. Young Smith however denies this and swears positively that he waanever in the store in his life. However this may be, it is unfortunate for him that the box has been found where it was. The cartridge bullet found by Dr. Kelatin in the interior of the murdered man's throat corresponds exactly with those belonging to the cartridges sold to the prisoner. All these coincidences point to the boy as being the criminal, or at least one of them. On the other hand it is urged by many who are slow to believe in the prisoner's guilt that it is too revolting to conceive of one so young, (he being only 14) as guilty of such a horrid crime. The incredulous ones ask further how could such a green and innocent looking lad nerve himself up to the point of doing such revolting work. In further support of their theory they say signs of a dreadful struggle were apparent on the snow some distance from the door, blood having flown from the murdered man most profusely, and there were evidences of free bleeding along the line which he was apparently dragged to the door step where he was found partially roasted. And yet not a trace of blood could be found on the body or clothes of the boy.

MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes :—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. Anniversary Sermon.

Eliquent Discourse by Rev. Prof. Burwash.

The anniversary sermons of Holloway St. Methodist Church were preached yesterday by Rev. Prof. Burwash, D.D., of Victoria University. The subject of the morning's discourse was the Bible, its importance, power, and value. Dr. Burwash chose as his text 2 Timothy, iii. 16, 17 : "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness ; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

The following is a condensation of a very thoughtful and eloquent discourse :

There are three degrees of unbelief that trouble the world. The most dangerous is that form which denies everything. It denies the existence of a God ; it denies the spiritual nature of man—making man a mere animal, like the beasts of the field. It destroys all distinction between right and wrong, or destroys personal responsibility;—that is, the higher spiritual responsibility. There is another form of unbelief—that which admits the existence of a God, finding the evidence in nature and in man's own conscience and intentions. This class of unbelievers have a certain kind of religion of their own ; but they deny the divine character and mission of Christ. Then there is a third class of unbelievers ; those who acknowledge God, and even the divinity and mission of Jesus ; but they deny the divine inspiration of the Bible —affirming that certain portions of scripture were not inspired, and that the writings of all great and good teachers since the apostles' times have just as much weight so far as inspiration is concerned, as the works of some of the Biblical writers The text covers the objection of this last class—making the sweeping assertion that 'all scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable," &c. All language, however, is limited ; it expresses things merely as we see or conceive them, and all our faculties are limited, as well as are our capabilities of expression. The inspiration, therefore, is not in the language itself, but in the truth which the language conveys. The first great truth which the language of the Bible conveys to us is the mind of God. The Bible is a book of varied character—containing histories, poems, disquisitions, philosophy, epistles. All the lights and shadows, joys and sorrows, of human life, all the work which it is given man to do, all the trials he has to endure, are pictured in the divine word. But everything that is treated of in the Bible is presented to us from the standpoint of the Divine mind. Every page is irradiated with the light of the Divine attributes. Of all ancient books which have come down to us, the Bible is the only one which will stand the severest moral test. From one cover to the other there is nothing in it that is not right. He who is imbued with the spirit cans t have any sympathy with a crime. The fullness of the Divine attributes are revealed to us in the sacred pages and there only. But the Bible is not only inspired of God, but speaks with the power of God. "The word of the Lord is quick and powerful—sharper than a two-edged sword," says the inspired writer. All truth has a natural power to move man and influence his life and conduct ; but the truth revealed in the Bible has a much greater power. How far do any of the scientific truths of the day influence man's life and conduct ? But God's truth has a power over the human heart greater than all other truths put together. Socrates, Plato, Seneca and the other heathen philosophers influenced the minds of a few educated and cultured men ; but when the divine Word came on earth and was followed by Paul and the other divinely-inspired men, the hearts and minds of a world were moved to their depths. The divine truth is universally applicable. No matter in what language it is read or spoken, it proves itself a transforming power which has no parallel. But what proof have we that the scriptures reveal to us the truths of God, and speak to us with the power of God ? In the first place, individual experience; then, practical influence. How many instances have we seen of men whose hearts were steeped in wickedness suddenly transformed to devout, believing, humble Christians. In the face of death the most stubborn and obdurate infidel has been known to shrink, and finally come to repeat the prayers he learned long ago at his mother's knee. What is the cause of this strange power working in such a man's nature if not the Divine truth ? The apostles, through the divine power of the Gospel, undermined the power of the Roman empire, overturned the ancient philosophies and mythologies, and laid the foundation of modern civilization, and the power of the gospel is almost as greatly displayed in the great modern revivals of religion and learning. The Scriptures, says the text, are profitable for instruction. The Bible is the best instructor for the young. What is it that lies at the foundation of all preparation for life. It is not knowledge, but character; for what is the use of knowledge without the possession of character in order to make a proper use of knowledge ? There is a moral as well as an intellectual side to a man's education, and no education is successful which is one-sided. The strengthening of a man's moral nature is just as essential—much more essential—to education than the mere communication of facts. In the Bible will be found all the requisites for a liberal education Where will be find grander poetry than that of David and Isaiah, logic more cogent and powerful than that of Paul ? Even from an intellectual standpoint, the Bible is the best teacher. But it is infinitely greater as a moral instructor. The moral truths it contains are so grand, so profound, that the loftiest archangel cannot reach their heights or fathom their depths, and yet so simple that the mind of a child can grasp and assimilate them. If we would have a generation to rise up and do the work they should do on earth we must have men with keen consciences, deep and tender sympathies, with a hatred of wrong and a love of right—and that can only be done by instructing the minds of our children with Scripture truths. The Scriptures, again, are profitable for doctrine. It is on account of the firm adherence of our ancestors to the doctrines of Scripture that we owe our civil and religious liberties ; and we should endeavor to cling to and transmit to posterity the doctrines which we have inherited. Then, God's word is profitable for reproof, and for instruction in righteousness. "Instruction in righteousness" means practical training. The choir could not sing together so sweetly if they understood merely the theory of music ; they have to practice. The divine truth is intended as a guide and instructor in all practical callings of life, so that, in the words of the text, "the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." There are two kinds of perfection. A child is imperfect in one sense—not having yet attained the full stature and attributes of manhood ; but it is perfect in another sense, being in full possession of its physical functions. It is the latter sense that is meant in the text—not the perfection of growth and development, but an all-sided perfection. How many Christians we know who have some points in their character developed and others neglected ! The Bible is the only book which will shed an influence all round the Christian character and bring out all its varying points. If we study certain religious works they will develop certain traits of the Christian character ; but no work but the Bible can develop a many-sided Christian.

The preacher concluded with an earnest exhortation to his hearers to cherish the sacred word of God as they would a priceless treasure—to make it the "man of their counsel," to guide them through this life, and the light to guide them to the better life beyond.

In the evening Dr. Burwash preached a fine sermon the subject of the power of prayer.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

DR. BOULTER'S SPEECH ON THE ADDRESS.

(From the Mail.)

Dr. Boulter defied hon. gentlemen opposite to produce authority for their oft-repeated assertions that the Opposition had connived at Ontario being deprived of half its territory. When put to the test, it appeared that all their argument rested on the statement made by Hon. Alex. Campbell, when introducing the Manitoba boundaries bill into the Senate, in which he pointed to a dotted line on a map as a probable boundary between Manitoba and Ontario. If the Government had no better claim than that to put forward to show what the western boundary was, they had no case, and it was hardly worth while to reply to the assertion that the Opposition and the Dominion Government had deprived this province of a portion of its territory. If authority was asked for, all the Government could produce was the Manitoba Boundaries Act. But that in no manner changed the boundary of Ontario. The Opposition had so far assisted the Government in attempting to ascertain the true boundaries of the province ; but unless they made more progress they would withdraw their support. Both the Mackenzie and the present Dominion Governments had found difficulties in the way of giving effect to the award. Owing to this fact a committee of the House of Commons considered the question, its chairman being a former member of this House, who received his political education from hon. gentlemen opposite. He, however, was understood to hold the opinion that the boundary line should be a considerable distance west of the northwest angle. With respect to the disallowance of Acts of the Legislature, it was not denied that the power of revision rested with the Dominion Government. The decision of the Privy Council on the Church of Scotland case showed that the Quebec Legislature exceeded its powers. He complimented the Government on its agricultural report, and said the farmers would support any action in the direction of obtaining agricultural statistics. The Market Fee Bill of last session had proved to be very unpopular, and any settlement must be a compromise between agricultural representatives and those of cities and towns. The timber sales had been satisfactory, but the interests involved were so important that the Commissioner of Crown Lands should consult the House before sales were made. Experience showed that as much timber was destroyed by fires and insects as was cut by the axe; and in view of the expansion of the United States, where only four States furnished more timber than they required, it behoved the province to economize its supply. An Act for the more thorough inspection of boilers was necessary, especially with a view to prevent accidents with steam threshing machines. He warmly approved of any measure for the promotion of the public health. He denounced the Government for their policy of centralizing power in their hands. The Local Inspectors in Belleville was dismissed, and was succeeded by a gentleman who, in the first year of his office-holding, granted more licenses than the law allowed. The case had run through the courts, and a decision had been given against the commissioners and Inspector. The Inspector was sent down to enquire into irregularities at Belleville gaol. Gross irregularities were found to have been committed, and several persons were dismissed. This did not, however, satisfy hon. gentlemen opposite, and the Sheriff was removed, although no charge was made against him. Only two weeks after the new Sheriff and Gaoler were appointed two prisoners escaped on the same day on which they were brought to gaol, having been left in the yard without a guard. On another occasion three more prisoners escaped in broad daylight, and were only captured by the aid of the old Deputy Sheriff. Well, the Sheriff was notified that his resignation would be accepted, and a new appointment was made. He had nothing to say against the new incumbent of the office. There seemed to be some understanding that he must take a certain gentleman in Belleville at his Deputy at a salary of $1,000 a year. After the new Sheriff was appointed he did not see why he should take an unsuitable person for his Deputy, at the will of the Government, when he would have to be responsible for his subordinate's conduct. This was how the matter stood now. The Sheriff, however, had got the appointment, and the Attorney General did not see his way clear to remove him out of office because he would not accept the nominee of the Commissioner of Public Works. The Inspector of Prisons had notified the County Council that the salary of the Gaoler must be raised from $400 to $600. The County Council acceded to the request, but the action of the Inspector showed what power the Government assumed. He considered that the Government were controlling too much patronage already, and were still further endeavoring to centralize power in themselves. He believed the appointment of License Inspectors under the old system was much preferable to the present mode of appointment. In his constituency there were 20 townships and two villages. What could one large tor do in controlling the unlicensed houses in such a district ? But under the old system each municipality would have appointed an officer of its own. (Applause.)

—The coal production of the United States for 1880 amounted to 71,000,000 tons.

—Mr. Aquila Walsh, of Simcoe, has been appointed Dominion Lands Commissioner at Winnipeg.

—The estate of J. Lorn McDougall and Duncan Campbell, lumbermen, who became insolvent four years ago, has been so well managed by the assignee, Mr. Bell, of Carleton Place, that it has paid 100 cents on the dollar of all claims, and leaves a balance of $20,000 for the benefit of the insolvents.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system ; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family." A lady in Providence, R. I.—Journal.

Women's True Friend.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. This none can deny, especially when assistance is rendered when one is sorely afflicted with disease, more particularly those complaints and and weaknesses so common to our female population. Every woman should know that Electric Bitters are woman's true friend, and will positively relieve her to health, even when all other remedies fail. A single trial always proves our assertion. They are pleasant to the taste and only fifty cents a bottle. Sold by Jas. Clarke & Co.

MR. JAMES H. IRISH, representing the Puttner Emulsion Company, is in town.

FOUR persons were in the cells on Saturday night, and two last night.

THE aunnal Anniversary tea-meeting in Holloway St. Methodist Church is to be held this evening.

TEA, and literary and musical entertainment, in the City Hall to-morrow evening in aid of Christ Church.

JUNIOR Judge Fraleck has received the patent appointing him to the office of Junior Judge of the County of Hastings.

THE Herndons have been doing a very successful business in Kingston, where they have been playing since Wednesday last.

THE 15th Battalion Band hold their regular weekly assembly in Ontario Hall to morrow evening. Full quadrille band in attendance.

THE Amy Lee Company performed before a small audience on Saturday night. The performance was almost the same as on the previous evening.

THE use of the City Hall has been granted the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario for the holding of their convention on the 7th, 8th and 9th prox.

THE largest wood train that ever came over the Grand Junction Railway was brought down on Saturday night. It consisted of fifteen cars of hard wood for Mr. Hanwell.

THE Tony Denier's Humpty-Dumpty Company are booked at the Metropolitan Hall for Thursday, April 6th, and Gus Williams has bespoken the hall for Tuesday, April 25th.

MR. T. G. HALL, President of the Canadian Steel Association, and Mr. H. H. Stowe, Secretary of the same organization, are in town. The stock books are now open at the Dafoe House.

MESSRS. WEESE & BABCOCK, of Prince Edward County, took possession of the Prince Edward House to-day. We believe it is their intention to go to considerable expense in altering and improving the house throughout.

AT the meeting of the Board of Education on Thursday evening last, called for the purpose of counting the votes in the school election in Foster Ward, the following members were present: The Chairman, Mr. Thos. Wills, and Messrs. Tennant, Richards and Johnson.

MESSRS. W. A. Shepard & Co.'s sale of Wakefield, Manitoba, town lots on Saturday afternoon and evening, was fairly successful. A number of lots were sold at the auction sale in the afternoon and evening and several were sold at private sale. The purchases footed up to $1,200.

THE Peterborough Review says:—"We are pleased to state on first class authority that Mr. G. A. Cox, President of the Midland Railway, has completed the purchas of 8,000 tons of steel rails, a quantity sufficient to equip the remaining portions of the Midland and the Toronto and Ottawa division. We can also state further that Mr. Cox expects to have the T. and O. division running by December of the present year."

MR. M. R. CANNIFF, of Winnipeg, brought with him the horn of a full-grown buffalo, which he has had mounted in silver at Mr. McFee's establishment, and will present to a friend. The horn is black, and is about twelve inches in length, and is consequently not so formidable a looking weapon as are the horns in general of the cattle hereabouts; but those who have hunted the buffalo have a marked respect for its horns.

A NEW project will be put into execution by Rev. Mr. Schuster in connection with the City Mission. This is nothing less than an industrial school, on a small scale, for poor girls. The girls will be taught general housework, in order to enable them to earn an honest livelihood, and will, if possible, be maintained during their attendance at the school by the work which is given them to do. The site of the new school has not yet been selected, but will probably be somewhere near Dundas St. An institution of this kind cannot but be productive of a great deal of good.

MR. H. ASHLEY submitted one of the iron farm waggons which he proposes to manufacture here to a very practical test, which could not have been more satisfactory. The waggon was loaded with over five tons of iron and driven down Front Street to the market. The actual weight of the load was 10,080 lbs., and the vehicle, which weighs only 1,050, carried it with ease.

THE Chicago Times says of Remenyi:—"The series of three grand concerts at the Central Music Hall, by the great Remenyi and the excellent concert company sustaining him, has proved a delightful feature of the week, and the entertainments have ranked among the choicest musical affairs of the season. Once again the wonderful Remenyi has deeply impressed the musical community of Chicago with the power of his genius, and long will those who have had the privilege of listening to him remember the rare fascination of his playing. Upon his reappearance last Friday evening, the celebrated virtuoso was received with enthusiastic applause, and the charm of his playing held his immense audience spellbound with delight."

THE police cells have recently been visited with a plague of lice. On Saturday night a tramp applied for protection and was placed in one of the cells. In the morning the cell was alive with vermin. Thousands of the small deer were crawling in the iron grating and in the walls, and one could not step without killing scores of them. The man himself was "a sight to dream of not to tell." The vermin were so thick on him that they could be scraped off in handfuls; he looked as if he had been sprinkled from top to toe with oatmeal. This is we know a disgusting story—shocking to sensitive nerves; but we have an object in relating it. Anyone who might have committed a trivial offence against the law—nay, any innocent person who might be under suspicion of having committed an offence, was liable to have been thrust into this same cell with the loathsome specimen of degraded humanity which we have here described. A respectable man of cleanly habits, who finds himself without enough money to pay for a bed is travelling on foot from one place to another (as is often the case), in applying for protection over night at the police station, would probably have been placed in the same cell. The police accommodations are shamefully inadequate to the demands upon them. A special Committee was appointed by last year's Council for the purpose of considering the question of ample police accommodation. They did nothing; it remains to be seen whether the present Council will evince any more energy in the matter.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 30.—Lakes, fresh to strong southeasterly to southerly winds, fine weather, stationary or higher temperature.

CITY MISSION SERVICES THIS WEEK.—This evening at Mr. J. Hannah's, Moira St. On Tuesday at Mrs. Westlake's, Brock St., opposite Mr. W. Reeves'. On Thursday, in the City Mission School room, Mr. Covert's store, Church St. south. On Friday, at Mr. Bean's, Station road, opposite the Pottery. All the services at 7½ o'clock.

'TWAS EVER THUS.—To-day's Mail says: "There was trouble on the Grand Trunk train coming west Saturday morning. A married woman of Belleville who had taken a liege lord for better or worse, and determined to leave him a little the latter, eloped with a rather juvenile-looking specimen of the male sex. At Port Hope, however, they were overtaken by the husband, who was willing to overlook everything if the erring wife would only return—him the balance of some money that rightly belonged to him. Everything was apparently settled satisfactorily, and the train again started, but the victim of conjugal infidelity wasn't half sharp enough, as it bore away the delinquents and left him sad and alone at the station. For his benefit it may be stated that the pair disembarked at Whitby station, where no doubt, any letters addressed to either will be left till called for."

CASE OF FORGERY.—On the 21st inst., two men named Hiram Hughes and John W. Durkin, from Sugar Island, Stoco, came to the city and went to Mr. E. G. Ponton, Barrister, for the purpose of raising money on five notes which they held against certain parties living in the vicinity of Stoco. The story they told was as follows: Durkin had held a credit sale, and in payment of a portion of the goods which had been sold he had received these five notes, amounting in all to about $106. He owed Hughes a sum of money, and as Hughes was about to start for Michigan he wished to settle up with him. In order to do so he required $35, and this sum he asked Mr. Ponton to advance on the security of the five notes. One of the notes was a joint one, having the signatures of Jas. Rush and Jas. Rush, jr., and as Mr. Ponton knew them to be excellent security, he advanced the money and kept the notes. A day or two afterwards he notified the parties whose names appeared on the notes, that he held the paper against them. Mr. Rush and his son came to town shortly after receiving Mr. Ponton's note, and informed that gentleman that they had never given their note to Durkin, and, further, that as Durkin had never held a credit sale, the whole matter was a forgery. On learning this, Mr. Ponton informed Chief McKinnon of the affair, and on Saturday night the Chief, with Officer Cook, went out to Stoco, arrested Durkin and Hughes, and brought them to the city yesterday. The preliminary examination of the prisoners was held before the Police Magistrate this morning, and the case was adjourned till Thursday.

The special facilities we possess of buying these cheaply in the cheapest markets in the world secure them to our customers at the very lowest price they are to be had in Canada.—JAMES HENNESSY.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

Funeral Sermon.

The Late Jonas Canniff, Sr.

Ten months ago the late Jonas Canniff, Sr., who died on the 15th inst. in Toronto, expressed the wish that his funeral sermon should be preached by Rev. Dr. Jeffers. He chose the text from which he wished the sermon to be preached. It was peculiarly appropriate to his patriarchal age, and his extreme bodily weakness during the last months of his life. The text was Psalm xc., 10: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away." From this passage Rev. Dr. Jeffers preached a vigorous and appropriate sermon last night, in the Bridge St. Methodist Church. His remarks, as condensed, are as follows:

The remembrance of the just when they pass away, is a duty to the surviving generations. It is necessary to the preservation of a wholesome moral sentiment. It has an important share in moulding national character, and erecting a bulwark against foreign encroachments of vice and weakness. It makes people cherish national virtues. It is a sad thing when people have become so secularized and weakened by money-making as to be incapable of cherishing affection and reverence for their great and good dead. The subject of this discourse was born in 1789—thus being 93 years of age when he died. He came with his father to Adolphustown when only four years of age—his father being a U. E. Loyalist. In 1815 he came to Thurlow and settled there, and soon became one of the most influential residents of the township. A man of singularly retiring disposition, he was offered various positions of public trust, but in every instance declined the proffered honor. He was converted in 1820 and with his wife joined the Church in 1823, and was a class-leader for 20 years. He helped to build the old Pinnacle St. Church—the first Methodist Church in Canada that had a bell. For many years he continued to be the mainstay of the Church. He always contributed money cheerfully, and never grudgingly. He helped to organize the first missionary society in Canada—and took an active interest in the mission on Grape Island, being acquainted with the famous Indian missionary, John Sunday, and others, before they were civilized and converted. Mr. Canniff always conducted family prayer in his early days, and continued the custom as long as he was able. Perhaps the most conspicuous trait of his character was his thorough integrity, not a trace of dishonesty, even of cunning, being displayed in his disposition. His late years were spent with his son, Dr. Canniff, in Toronto. His end was peaceful, and he died the death of a good man, looking forward with hope to the life that awaited him beyond the grave.

Passing to a consideration of the text, the preacher remarked that the psalm from which the words were taken was composed by Moses during the wanderings of Israel in the desert, and expressed his resignation to the will of God, and his confidence in the Divine wisdom and mercy. The history of the Israelites in travelling from Egypt to Canaan was very similar to the history of the U. E. Loyalists in coming over from the old colonies to this country. Both peoples sacrificed their temporal interests for a principle, and both were actuated by a sublime faith. The U. E. Loyalists came to this country, facing great dangers and difficulties and leaving behind them nearly all they possessed,—because they refused to sever their connection with the mother country: they saw her faults; but with all her faults they loved her still, and felt (and they were right) that after all she was the noblest and best nation on earth. So they expatriated themselves and came into a howling wilderness, actuated by a noble principle. They were a grand people: their action was nobler and more deserving of historic remembrance than that of the early Puritans who came out in the Mayflower in order to escape persecution. The speaker said he knew many of these grand men when he was a boy. They would have considered it an insult for anyone to have asked them for their note-of-hand, and they never thought of doubting the word of any man who gave them his promise to pay. Most of them loved the Bible, and would devote hours during the day in the study of the sacred page. They laid broad and deep the foundations of a great state, and we are even now reaping the goodly harvest from the seed which they then sowed.

We should not take the words of the text as a true picture of life. It is no doubt a picture of a life which is without God. We have faculties which are not bounded by this world. They reach out after something beyond the grave. Why do not the dumb animals grieve because they only live a few years? They are content with this life because they know of no other, nor feel that there is another life. Why should man be the only living creature who has his yearnings and instincts which reach out after something beyond this life, unless there is another life beyond this which is intended to meet these yearnings and instincts?

The preacher concluded by an exhortation to his hearers, especially the young, to cherish the memory of the great and good among their ancestors; to emulate their careers; to copy their virtues and take warning, if necessary, from their failings, so that the country in which they lived, might be blessed by their residence in it, and their own characters grow nobler and better with advancing years; and finally when the trials and joys of this life are all over, they might leave behind them the record of lives which will serve as patterns for future generations.

The hymns that were sung and the lessons read during the service were chosen by the late Mr. Canniff. The hymns were the 369th, 90th and 643rd (new collection), and the lesson was the 5th chapter of 2nd Corinthians. The choir sang an appropriate anthem, and at the conclusion of the service the organist, Miss Jones, played Mendelssohn's Funeral March.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention—in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

—A petition was filed at Osgoode hall on Saturday against the return of Mr. George Guillet, of Cobourg, as M.P. for West Northumberland. The petition is filed by three electors of the riding, and alleges that the respondent was guilty, by himself and agents, of acts of bribery.

Get out Doors.

The close confinement of all factory work, gives the operatives pallid faces, poor appetite, languid, miserable feelings, poor blood, inactive liver, kidneys and urinary troubles, and all the physicians and medicine in the world cannot help them unless they get out of doors or use Hop Bitters, the purest and best remedy, especially for such cases, having abundance of health, sunshine and rosy cheeks in them. They cost but a trifle.—Christian Recorder.

All our Druggists now heartly endorse the amazing success of MACK'S MAGNETIC MIDICINE, and recommend it for both sexes in all cases of sexual weakness. See advertisement in another column.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away by James Clark & Co., Druggists.

Great Fur Sale.

During the last ten days my Sales of Furs have been considerabley in excess of expectations, showing conclusively that bargains are given and appreciated. I am determined to close out my entire stock and although the season is considerably advanced it will pay to buy furs now.

I am closing business in this city and I am willing to sacrifice in order to make sales.

BRONCHITIS.—Unless arrested, will terminate in consumption. An almost never failing cure for this complaint is found in Allen's Lung Balsam, which can be had of any Druggist, price one dollar per bottle.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL.)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weigth has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

CHAPTER VII.

LILITH'S DISCOVERY.

Do not crouch to-day and worship
The old Past, whose life is fled;
Hush your voice to tender reverence;
Crowned he lies, but cold and dead;
For the Present reigns our monarch,
With an added weight of hours;
Honor her, for she mighty!
Honor her, for she is ours.
A. A. PROCTOR.

'He sleeps,' whispered Tudor Hereward, bending lowly to look closely into his father's face. 'He sleeps, and he breathes very easily. I think he will do well now. How say you, doctor?'

'I think so, too, Hereward,' replied the physician, who had come up to the bedside, and whose 'wish was father to his thought.' 'And now, as the major is doing so well, I must really get into the saddle, for I have yet some patients to see, late as it is. Will you kindly order my horse?'

'If you must go, certainly; but not until you have joined Mr. Cave and myself in a glass of wine below stairs. Will you come, sir?' inquired the young man, addressing the minister.

The latter bowed, and smiled acquiescence.

And the three gentlemen turned to leave the room.

The rector and the doctor, however, paused for a moment beside Lilith, and each, with renewed congratulations and hearty good wishes, whispered lowly to avoid disturbing the sound sleeper, took their leave of her.

She smiled, and thanked them softly, returning their adieux.

As soon as they had left the room Lilith went silently to the dressing-closet where Nancy usually sat, knitting or sewing.

She opened the door suddenly, and surprised the woman, not at work at all, but standing near the door, with a startled and half laughing look, as if she had been caught in the act of peeping through.

Crowded behind her were all the female servants of the house.

'Yer nebber wited us to de weddin', Miss Lilith—' she began.

'O, indeed, Nancy—I—I did not think of it, in the hurry and surprise,' interrupted Lilith.

'I knows! Yer nebber was marri'd so sudden befo' in all yer life, honey, an' it sort o' flurried yer like, an' made yer forget wot was jew to us colored people. We forgibs yer, honey. We forgibs yer. An' we wishes ob yer all de happiness in dis wurl.'

'Yes, Miss Lilith. Yes, young mist'ess, dat we does. Hearty, too,' responded all the rest.

'I thank you all; and indeed, I am very sorry that you did not see the ceremony,' said Lilith, gently.

'Didn' see de cer'mony, didn' we? Hi, honey, yer tink we dem is a pack ob fools! We seed eberyting an' heerd ebery word, good.'

Lilith looked so surprised that Nancy and all her companions giggled, and then the elder woman explained:

'Me an' Cely looked in t'rough dis open door, an' Cassy an' Peggy t'rough de passage door, an' Ca'line an' Mandy t'rough de oder room door; an' we all seed an' heerd ebery single ting. An' w'en de t'ree ge'men come out dey all run in here, fo' fear ob bein' caught peepin'.'

'There was no objection at all to your seeing all that passed,' said Lilith.

'Come in 'dout any inwitation? We got too much se'f-'spect for dat,' replied Nancy, who never seemed to suspect that her self-respect was in any degree compromised by listening and peeping.

'And now—had you not better all go about your own duties? The master is asleep and you might awake him,' gently suggested Lilith.

'Le's look at yer good fira', Miss Lilith. Please le's look at yer good. Oh yer does look too lubbly. Hush, honey!' exclaimed old Cassy, the cook, as she took a pinch of the young lady's dress between her thumb and finger, and turned her around for inspection.

'Jus' like an angel!' exclaimed Mandy.

'Jus' as putty as dat lubbly young w'ite gal as rode de hosses at de circus las' summer,' exclaimed Peggy.

'G'way f'om here, chile. 'Pare Miss Lilith to dat dere fing? I's 'shame ob yer,' said Nancy.

'I on'y meant, 'bout de dress, an' dat was putty, wid spangles all ober it. An' I nebber seed nuffin half so putty in all my life till I seed young mist'ess's weddin' dress. 'Deed it's de trufe.'

More close inspection, and more admiration, and then the simple 'darkies' consented to withdraw.

All, except Nancy, whose post of duty was there.

'Now, Nancy, I wish you to go and sit by my father, and watch him carefully, while I change my dress,' said Lilith.

'Yer aint gwine to take off dat boot'ful dress till bedtime, I hopes, Miss Lilith,' objected the woman.

'Oh, yes, I must. I wish to resume my place at father's side, and so must change it,' Lilith explained.

The woman said no more, but passed into the sick room.

Lilith went to her own chamber, and quickly made the change.

Then she reappeared in Major Hereward's room, dressed in her home costume of soft crimson cashmere.

Nancy vacated her seat and retired to the sewing closet.

Lilith sat down and looked at the invalid.

He seemed to be sleeping quietly, and the watcher leaned back in her chair and closed her tired eyes; but presently her attention was attracted by the sound of heavy breathing, and she arose and looked at the invalid again.

His face had changed, His eyes were wide open and fixed. He was breathing laboriously.

'Father—father,' she said, taking his hand and bending over him.

He neither answered nor in any way noticed her.

She had had no experience with death. She had never seen any one die. Yet now her breath was suspended, and her own life seemed going from her, as she recognized these sure signs of dissolution.

Swiftly and silently she passed to the closet where the woman in attendance sat sewing.

'Nancy? Oh, Nancy! Go and call Mr. Hereward! And if the doctor and the rector have not left the house, ask them to come up,' in a tone scarcely intelligible from excessive agitation.

'Is the ole marse worse?' exclaimed the woman, as she hastily threw aside her work and started up, alarmed at the young lady's words and looks.

'I fear so. Hurry, Nancy, hurry!'

The woman ran down stars.

Lilith hastened back to the bedside.

Mr. Hereward, Dr. Kerr and the Rev. Mr. Cave came quickly into the room.

Lilith sat by the bed, holding the hand of the dying man.

She laid it down and left her place to the doctor, who came up and felt the pulse. Mr. Cave stood beside him.

Tudor and Lilith, nearly overcome with emotion, yet keeping their feelings under outward control, stood at the opposite side.

Nancy stood at the foot of the bed.

'Can nothing be done?' inquired the son in a voice of deep pain.

'Nothing,' gravely replied the doctor.

'Could you not try stimulents?—Electricity?' persistently inquired the son, in a low voice,

'Useless torture! He is dying fast. Be strong, my friend, and—Look to your wife,' whispered the doctor.

Lilith needed support. Pale as death, trembling and almost fainting, she stood leaning against the foot-board.

Tudor passed his arm around her waist, whispered some words of encouragement, and so sustained her in her weakness.

It was soon over. One long, shuddering sigh and the struggling heart was still.

Dr. Kerr closed the sightless eyes, and drew the sheet smoothly over the dead face.

'Let us pray,' whispered the rector.

And the little group knelt around that death-bed, and led by the minister, prayed that this sorrow might be sanctified to their souls' good.

When they arose. Tudor Hereward put his arm around the waist of his weeping young wife, and led her from the death chamber to her room, and after speaking such words of comfort as his grief-stricken heart could suggest, he left her to take care of the sympathizing colored women who had crowded about the doors at the sign of death.

Then Tudor Hereward went to his own room and locked himself in, to struggle alone with his great sorrow.

Few children have loved their parents as Tudor Hereward loved his father. From the time of his mother's early death the father and son had been all in all to each other, until the advent of the little adopted daughter, who was destined to win an equal share of love with the son of the house.

And there was a time in his boyhood when Tudor Hereward had been bitterly jealous of the love bestowed upon the little alien girl.

As the boy grew towards manhood, however, his bitter spirit strove to overcome this inward jealousy, and succeeded at least in preventing it from breaking forth in any overt word or act.

TO BE CONTINUED.

People have no right to become dyspeptic and remain gloomy and miserable, than they have to take poison and commit suicide. If the stomach becomes weak and fails to perform its functions, Burdock Blood Bitters will speedily remedy the trouble.

A General Stampede.

Never was such a rush made for any Drug Store as is now at James Clark & Co., for a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. All persons afflicted with Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can get a Trial Bottle of this great remedy free, by calling at above Drug Store.

Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cruelty to animals.

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

THE SUN
LIFE ASSURANCE CO'Y OF MONTREAL.

Unconditional, Incontestable Life Policies.

THE objection is very often made to Life Assurance that the Companies may take advantage of some of the numerous and complicated conditions on the policies, and thus either avoid entirely the payment of claims, or compromise with the widow for a small sum. There is considerable force in this argument, but it cannot be urged indiscriminately against all Companies. The SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY of Montreal issues absolutely unconditional policies. There is not one restriction of any kind on them. The assured may reside in any part of the world without giving notice or paying one cent of extra premium. He may change his occupation at will; he may travel, hunt, or do anything else without any extras of any kind. The contrast is remarkable with other policies. Ask an agent to show you one. It speaks for itself

☞ Remember, THE SUN is the only Company in America which issues an unconditional Policy.

"SUN" Accident Policies

They are the most liberal in existence, having days of grace and other privileges which are given by no other Company.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

PUTTNER'S EMULSION!

Has obtained the highest medical reputation of any other preparation known, and soon after taking it one is sensible that it is not a bogus preparation but performs all that it claims.

Read what the Rev. P. J. Filleul says:

WEYMOUTH, N. S., May 6, 1881.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.,

Dear Sir,—I have used your Emulsion myself, and so have members of my family, and must say with signal benefit. Soon after taking it one is sensible that the article is not a "bogus" preparation, but all that it claims to be.

I am 62 years of age, undertaking the performance of three full services each Lord's day, besides week-day duties, and I am occasionally greatly indebted to your Emulsion for the tone and vigor in which I am able to go through the physically oppressive duty.

I have recommended it to parties suffering from coughs, colds, debility, &c., and I am thankful to add that the results have, in every instance, been attended with most beneficial results.

Wishing you all success, and with every good wish I am, Dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

P. J. FILLEUL, Episcopal Minister

PUTNER'S EMULSION.

I ESTEEM IT A SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 7, 1881.

MR. C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

My Dear Sir:—My physician having recommended me your Emulsion, and having used it for some time, I esteem it as a sovereign remedy. It has cured me quicker than anything I ever used, and I have no trouble in taking it, as it digests so easily. Yours truly,

MRS. A. GLASS, 97 Cornwallis St.

A GREAT DESIDERATUM.

C. E. PUTTNER, PH. M.

Dear Sir:—I have much pleasure in stating that, having had occasion to use the COD LIVER OIL EMULSION WITH IRON AND HYPOPHOSPHITES prepared by Mr. C. E. Puttner, containing as it does Iron in combination, I find it everything that could be desired where such a compound is required. It is also quite palatable, which is a great desideratum in all preparations of Cod Liver Oil.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

FOURTH DAY.

TUESDAY, January 27th, 1881.

Council resumed at 10:50 o'clock, the Warden in the chair.

The minutes were read and approved.

A communication was read from John S, Marsh, turnkey, asking for an increase of salary.

A petition was presented by Mr. Ashley, from certain ratepayers of Thurlow, asking the Council to remunerate those on whom the expenditure for the repair of O'Brien's Bridge and the cutting of a channel above the structure, chiefly fell.

The petition was, on motion, received and laid over for consideration until the June session.

Mr. White made an explanation to the effect that he had yesterday stated that he was certain the County Solicitor would be willing to give information respecting the railway amalgamation scheme. In order to make certain of this, however, he (Mr. White) had called on the County Solicitor, and that official had expressed his willingness to show to the Warden and any deputation from the Council all the documents relative to the amalgamation which were in his possession.

It was decided that the Committee on the railway amalgamation should meet Mr. Bell at his office at 7:30 p.m.

The Gravel Roads Committee reported as follows:—

The sum of $328 42 unexpended at the last session of the Council has been expended in accordance with the recommendation submitted by the Gravel Roads Committee to the Council at its last session. The sum of $784.08 has been expended in banking gravel and stone and repairing gravel roads, to be provided for out of the appropriations for the year 1882. The Committee recommended that, upon the Midland Railway Co. putting the gravel road north of Perry's, near Hog Lake, in a proper state of repair, according to an understanding between the B. & N. H. Railway Co. and the County of Hastings several years ago, and making the road where the proposed change is requested by said Midland Railway Co. at Hog Lake, and putting the same in a first class state of repair; the Warden, and the Chairman and Superintendent of Gravel Roads, the Reeve of Madoc and the Reeve of Huntingdon be a committee authorized, under the advice of the County Solicitor, to grant permission to said Midland Railway Co. to make the change in the gravel road at Hog Lake, as requested by said Co. That the Warden and Superintendent of Gravel Roads be authorized to take such action in the matter in reference to the Stirling gravel pit as they may think best. That any moneys granted in the future by this Council on the road leading south from Lonsdale to the 6th concession of Tyendinaga between lots 30 and 31, and from Madoc village to O'Connor's Corners, be expended under the supervision of the Gravel Road Superintendent. That the Gravel Road Superintendent be instructed to continue the banking of gravel and stone at certain points on the different lines of the County gravel roads, where in his judgment it would be in the interests of the County to do so. That the Treasurer be authorized to pay the orders of the Chairman of Gravel Roads for work and material on account of the County gravel roads until the next session. That in case any Railway Company applies to change the locations of County roads in any part of the County, the Committee appointed to act in reference to the proposed change at Hog Lake, with the Reeve of Elzevir added, be empowered to deal with such change.

The report was adopted.

The Committee of the whole on Roads and Bridges resumed.

Mr. Aylsworth introduced a By-law extending the provisions of By-law 354—to the effect that Mr. Vankleek be appointed the County's agent with regard to the disposal of certain mineral lands under the County Road in Madoc.

The By law was read a first time and referred to the Committee of the whole on Bylaws.

Mr. Walker moved that $1,00 be granted to the Township of Rawdow for the purpose of rebuilding the bridge over the Guernsey River, between the 3rd and 4th concessions, used in lieu of a boundary line between Seymour and Rawdon, the work to be done under the superintendence of the County Suveyor and the Reeves of Rawdon,

Mr. White would not only support the granting of this amount, but would be in favor of assuming the bridge in question as a County bridge.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Vankleek moved, seconded by Mr. Walker, that $150 be granted to each of the following municipalities to place stone, gravel, or other material on the County roads outside of gravel roads, where it can be done cheaper this winter than any other season of the year (the sum to be a part of the June appropriations):—Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, Hungerford, Huntingdon Rawdon, Marmora, Madoc and Elzevir,—and the following municipalities be granted $100 each: Trenton, Madoo Village and Deseronto,

Mr. Rose opposed the motion.

Mr. White pointed out that if the grants were made it would create jealousy among the different municipalities.

Mr. Walker seconded the motion. He said it was certainly to the advantage of his municipality that the appropriation should be made now, as gravel could be banked much more cheaply now than it could be further on in the season.

Mr. Rose said that he know if the grant was made to Sidney and the money expended it would cause jealousy in his township.

Mr. O'Flynn pointed out that no township need except the grant unless it wished to do so.

Mr. Pearce spoke in favor of the motion. He thought it in the interests of economy that the grants should be made early in the season.

A lengthy discussion took place, in the course of which Mr. White spoke at length in favor of making all the appropriations to municipalities, for roads outside of gravel roads, at the present session. Mr. Aylesworth also advocated this plan, and Mr. Vankleek spoke in opposition to it.

It was agreed to extend the session until to-morrow.

It being 12 o'clock the Warden left the chair,

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council resumed at 2:30 p. m., the Warden in the chair.

Council went into Committee on Ways and Means.

The petition of John Marsh, turnkey, asking for an increase of salary, was considered.

Mr. Rose moved, seconded by Mr. McGowan, that the turnkey's salary be increased $100 from date.

Mr. Vermilyea opposed the motion on principle. If the turnkey performed extra work he should be paid for that work.

Mr. Rose said that Mr Marsh was not only an efficient official, but was also a good mechanic, and by doing carpentering and other work, he saved a considerable sum to the County. The salary he received at present was only a bare living salary. He had to use the strictest economy in order to live comfortably. The speaker described some of the disagreeable duties which the turnkey was obliged to perform. If Mr. Marsh worked at his trade he could make far more than he received at present.

Mr. Haggerty compared the duties of the turnkey and gaoler—those of the former being much more onerous than those of the latter. And yet Mr. Vermilyea had supported the increase of salary to the gaoler, while he opposed the increase in the turnkey's salary. He claimed that the cause of Mr. Vermilyea was inconsistent.

Mr. Vermilyea explained that he voted for the increase of salary to the gaoler, not because he was in favor of such an increase, but because the County's hands were tied in the matter, the increase being compulsory, and to refuse the increase would only be postponing the consideration of the question. He opposed the increase in the turnkey's salary because he did not believe the salary of any official of the County whose salary was controllable by the Council should be increased.

Mr. Haggerty pointed out that Mr. Vermilyea, by taking the course he did relative to the gaoler's salary, was merely relieving the Government of responsibility in the matter.

The Warden did not believe the Government would interfere in the matter at all, having accepted the action which the Council took at the last session as a compromise.

Mr. Aylsworth praised Mr. Marsh in his position as turnkey, and also as caretaker. He was an efficient and painstaking officer. However, he did not believe in raising his salary as much as proposed by Mr. Rose. He moved in amendment that the turnkey's salary be increased $50—making it, in all $600.

Mr. White favored the amendment, and further, he thought that the County officials whose salaries had recently been increased should be made to understand that their salaries so raised, should remain permanent.

Mr. Rose finally withdrew his motion.

Mr. White urged that the consideration of the matter be postponed until the June session. A change in the mode of appointing turnkeys might then be made.

Mr. Wilmot also favored this course.

Mr. Aylsworth favored the immediate settlement of the question.

Mr. White moved, seconded by Mr. Haggerty, that the petition be laid over for consideration till the June session.

The motion in favor of the rise of $50 was carried.

A large number of accounts were then presented and considered.

The question of appropriations to County roads was then taken up.

Mr. Wilmot moved, seconded by Mr. Haggerty, that in order to improve the roads in the minor municipalities outside of the county gravel roads, the sum of $4,500 be appropriated to the municipalities, the amounts granted to be taken in lieu of all petitions for moneys to be asked for on outside roads during the present year, unless in case of bridges where it is a special necessity; and that these sums be expended under the supervision of the Reeve and Council and paid on the certificate of the Reeve and Clerk under the corporate seal,—the amounts to be appropriated as follows:—Sidney, $450; Thurlow, $450; Tyendinaga, $450; Rawdon, $250; Hungerford $250; Huntingdon, $200; Marmora, $175; Madoc $225; Elzevir, $125; Trenton, $125; Deseronto, $125; Stirling, $100; Tudor, et. al., $250; Dungannon, et al., $225; Carlow, et al., $225; Wollaston, et al., $225; Bangor, et al., $225; Monteagle, et al., $225; Madoc Village, $100 to be expended on a road from the village to O'Connor's Corners, and $100 to be expended on the road from Tweed to Crookston station.

The motion, after a lengthy discussion, occupying a large part of the afternoon, was carried.

Committe rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again.—Granted.

Council adjourned.

The Hospital Question.

At length we have a declaration from the Ontario Government on the subject of the Hospital lot. This declaration of their policy is contained in a letter from the Crown Lands Department to the City Solicitor, by whom it was received yesterday. The correspondence is as follows:

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 17, 1882.

HON. T. B. PARDEE,
Com. Crown Lands, Toronto.

SIR,—I am instructed by the Council of this municipality to inform the Government of Ontario that on the 13th inst. Dr. O'Reilly, on behalf of the Government, inspected several proposed sites in this city for hospital purposes, and also to inform you that the City now offers the Government, and are prepared to purchase, one of the said sites, which he (Dr. O'Reilly) pronounced suitable for the purpose, and convey or have the same conveyed as may be required, to Trustees for hospital purposes, upon the Government expressing their willingness to issue to the City of Belleville a patent, or grant it the property known as the Hospital lot in the said city.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
L. H. HENDERSON,
City Solicitor.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,
TORONTO, Jany. 21, 1882.

L. H. HENDERSON, Esq.,
Belleville.

SIR,—In reply to your letter of the 17th inst., I have to say that the Commissioner has already, on previous applications by the Belleville Corporation for the hospital lot, refused to allow the patent to issue until the terms of the Act of 1851 are fully complied with.

Your obedient servant,
THOS. H. JOHNSON,
Assistant Commissioner.

DEPARTMENT OF CROWN LANDS,
TORONTO, 28th January, 1882.

L. H. HENDERSON, Esq., Belleville:

SIR,—Referring to the letter of the 21st inst., addressed to you from this Department regarding the Hospital lots in Belleville, I have to say that the Commissioner's construction of the words "suitable provision" in the Act of 1851, is that the Hospital should be actually built and put in operation as an Hospital. He is not prepared to recommend the issue of patent for the lots in question until this has been done.

Your obedient servant,
THOS. H. JOHNSON,
Assistant Commissioner.

That the construction placed upon the Act of 1851 by the Commissioners of Crown Lands is forced and does not carry out the intention of that Act is strongly contended on behalf of the City, and the circumstances seem to sustain the argument on behalf of the Corporation. The lots known as the old hospital lot were granted to the then village of Belleville in 1816, for hospital purposes; but as the place grew and its boundaries extended, the site became unsuitable for the purpose for which it was granted, and this being represented to the Government of united Canada, the Act of 1851 was passed, under which the patent for the original hospital site was to be issued to the Corporation on "suitable provision" being made. The interpretation which the Commissioner places upon these words appears above. The Corporation interprets the Act—and with every show of reason—to mean that they should secure a suitable site for the erection of a hospital, and this they are ready to do and have formally notified the Government to that effect.

If the Commissioner's interpretation be sustained, it is safe to say that the City will not purchase the old Hospital lot at the very large price which the Government have seen fit to demand. The matter may quite possibly form the subject of litigation, as it is not at all probable that the Corporation will tamely surrender the rights which they contend they have in this valuable piece of property.

Particulars Wanted.

At length the local organ of the Grit party has been forced to abandon the policy of silence which it has pursued for three long weeks with regard to the maladministration of the Crooks Act in West Hastings. It refers to the subject in its issue of January 30th, though in a very gingerly way; and lest the benefit of so valuable a production should be lost to the great majority of the people of the County, we reproduce it, with such comments as are necessary. Says the organ:

The local Tory organ is greatly disappointed because we have not noticed its periodical charges against the License Commissioners for West Hastings. It is more than disappointed because its fulminations have been treated with silent contempt by the accused and their friends.

"Silent contempt" is good, but that ground is no longer tenable. The accused have been so patient under serious accusations which innocent men would at once have resented by legal process, that the public mind has been pretty well made up as to the truth of the charges. Lamb-like meekness from such a quarter is justly looked upon with strong suspicion in these stirring times.

The Ottawa Citizen, unacquainted with the motive actuating the organ, has given it another chance to air its malignity and pose as a purist. Insinuations have been properly called "the coward's lie."

The Ottawa Citizen does not need to consult our contemporary as to how many times two make four. Our motives are plain and above-board. We have not made an insinuation in connection with this matter, but stated our charges openly and fearlessly, and have offered to prove them if called upon to do so. One at least of the charges was proved in the Police Court, again in the County Court, and still again, in one or more of the higher Courts.

We know not the nature and degree of the crime or crimes charged against "one of the License Commissioners, a near relative and the Inspector." We did not even take the trouble to enquire which one of the Commissioners was referred to. Mr. W. D. Fuller has been informed that he is the "criminal."

For an innocent, unsuspicious don't-want-to-know organ, commend us to our contemporary; but after all, it is an organ shrewd at guessing as to the personality of the Commissioner indicated. If the coat fits Mr. Fuller, he is welcome to wear it.

The organ is now asked for specific charges, with names, dates and circumstances. If satisfactorily formulated we will not shield a political friend.

This last declaration is satisfactory, but we doubt its sincerity. If the organ will consult the DAILY INTELLIGENCER of Jan'y 14th or 21st, or the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER of January 19th or 26th, it will there find clearly stated the charges, as to the nature of which it professes ignorance, but as to which it is no doubt fully informed.

Mr. Fuller, we understand, also makes a demand for specific charges, and announces his determination to deal with them in the proper way. The organ can insinuate no longer. We demand the particulars, with an assurance that they will not be ignored.

Mr. Fuller has made no demand upon us for particulars, but he knows how they can be obtained. When he applies, in the only way in which such an application can be made, we shall be ready to furnish all the particulars that he can possibly desire—probably more. The "near relative of one of the Commissioners," whom we have charged with levying blackmail on applicants for licenses, might with propriety join in the application. He, too, can be accommodated with full information.

Under these circumstances, we decline to accede to our contemporary's demand for names, dates and particulars. We are prepared to furnish evidence to prove our charges, if called upon to do so. We deal with the principals in this matter, not with any self-constituted champion of their cause. The extent of our information on the subject will not be shown until the proper time arrives.

The Boundary Award.

The Globe, in reviewing the debate on the address in the Ontario Legislature, says:

The Government have avowed their determination to take all necessary steps not to get but to keep the awarded territory, and prevent it from being filched away from this Province, and in this determination they are carrying the Assembly and the country with them.

This is a gross mistatement of the case. The disputed territory never legally came into possession of Ontario, and in order to show the true position of the question, we give the following statement of Sir Francis Hincks, who was one of the Arbitrators, to the Canadian Spectator:

The question was: what is the western boundary of Ontario? For many years it has been left undecided, and there were not wanting people in Ontario who claimed that their province was only bounded by the Rocky Mountains. But the Dominion Government stepped in and carved the province of Manitoba out of the Great North-West. This done, there was a tract of land lying between Manitoba and Ontario to which both Ontario and the Dominion Government laid claim. Finally arbitration was agreed upon, the Ontario Government binding itself by an Act of the Legislative Assembly to abide by the decision of the Arbitrators; but the Dominion Government made no such law for itself, although Mr. Mackenzie was in power. The arbitrators were Sir William MacDougall for the Dominion Government, Governor Wilmot for the Province of Ontario, and Sir Francis Hicks, as third, by choice of both. After much and careful balancing of claims, and pros and cons, the arbitration was given in favor of Ontario. But the Dominion Government refused to act upon it.

As the Globe has several times quoted Sir Francis on the subject of the award, it cannot question his eminence as an authority. It is, then, apparent, on the authority of one of the Commissioners, who is beyond doubt thoroughly acquainted with all the facts, that the Mackenzie Government assumed on this question an attitude precisely similar to that which the present Government holds. The duty of the Ontario Government is therefore to endeavor to have the boundaries of the Province definitely adjusted, rather than to seize and keep territory to which it may be proved Ontario has no title. The proper course is to ascertain what our rights really are. It will be time enough to stand up for them, when they are attacked.

Official Appointments.

We learn that Mr. W. L. Hamilton, Collector of Inland Revenue for this district, has been appointed Inspector for the Kingston district, and that Mr. A. McAlister, Deputy Collector here, has been appointed to the office vacated by Mr. Hamilton. The course of the Government in promoting these gentlemen is the correct one, as they are first-class officers, and the action of the Administration will be heartily endorsed by the public.

Mr. Hamilton, whose headquarters will be at Ottawa, has had fourteen years experience in the service, which he entered at the bottom of the ladder as a third-class officer, and rose step by step to his present position, and Mr. McAllister has also served in the various grades of the service.

The appointments are excellent ones, and we congratulate Inspector Hamilton and Collecter McAllister on their well-deserved promotion.

H. E. MacCarthy, Wholesale and Retail Druggist, Ottawa, writes:—"I was afflicted with Chronic Bronchitis for some years, but have been completely cured by the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in doses of five drops on sugar. I have also pleasure in recommending it as an embrocation for external use.

The great benefit I have received from your Cod Liver Oil Emulsion with Iron and Hypophosphites in private practice, induced me to give my testimony in its favor. I consider it the best and most palatable compound of the kind in the market. Truly yours,

Editorial Brevities.

The London Advertiser says:

Sir John in his disallowance of the Manitoba & South-Eastern R. ilway ill had to choose between serving the Syndicate and the people. He chose to be against the people.

Against what people? Certainly not against the people of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, whose interest it is to have all the traffic of the North-west pass through Canada instead of being partially diverted to the United States, as would have been the case had the construction of the Manitoba South-Eastern been permitted. And, we have the word of Mr. Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, whose Government has the full confidence of the people of that Province, that public sentiment in the Province strongly favored the disallowance. It therefore follows that "the people" for whom the Advertiser professes to speak, must be the fanatical few in the Grit party who supported Mr. Mackenzie in his proposal to contine the traffic of the North-West to the Pacific Railway but who gird at Sir John A. Macdonald for giving effect to the same wise and patriotic attention.

The Globe says:

The Belleville INTELLIGENCER published on Friday what purported to be the coming Government Bill regulating market fees. It is needless to say that the INTELLIGENCER'S draft bill is a "fraud, a delusion, and a snare." The Government measure on the subject is not yet completed.

The copy of the alleged Bill was extracted from the Kingston News, and as it came from so respectable a source and moreover was in strict accordance with the foreshadowings of the Government measure as given by the Globe and other papers supporting the Government, we as a matter of course published what there was every reason to believe was an authentic copy of the Bill.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.—The committee appointed to investigate the charges of cruelty against the matron of the Hervey Institute in Montreal have presented their report. They find that the charge of applying mustard plasters to refractory children is sustained; but they acquit the matron of intentional cruelty. They find that the charge of confining unruly children in a dark furnace and basement room is also sustained.

Ontario Legislature.

THIRD SESSION—FOURTH LEGISLATURE.

MONDAY, Jan. 30.

The committee on striking select committees reported the names of the members of the various committees.

The following bills were read a first time:

Mr. Pardee, to protect the public interest in rivers, streams and creeks.

Mr. Fraser, to amend the law of newspaper libel.

Mr. Fraser, to provide for streets and drains crossing railways.

Mr. Wood, respecting the agricultural and arts association.

Mr. Mowat, to provide waterworks for towns and villages.

Mr. Creighton moved for further papers in reference to the settlement of financial matters between Ontario and Quebec and the Dominion of Canada. He complained of the delay which had taken place in this matter, which had especially affected some parts of the province, which were entitled to share in the land improvement fund. The Ontario Government ought to pay the whole fund to the municipalities at once and not merely part of it, as promised.

Mr. Wood said Ontario was not at fault, but circumstances had prevented a settlement. Both he and the Finance Minister of the Dominion were ready and anxious to settle the matter, but they had never been able to obtain a meeting with the Finance Minister of Quebec at Ottawa. Whenever the Quebec Government would meet them at Ottawa, both Ontario and he believed the Dominion would be ready to meet them. The amount had been fixed by the award, confirmed by the Privy Council, but he was afraid that they would not get the whole of the matters settled up to the present time.

Mr. Morris moved for a return of correspondence between the Ontario and Ottawa authorities in reference to the boundary award, and after some discussion between Mr. Meredith and the Premier, in which Mr. Mowat would promise nothing further, the motion stood over.

Mr. Bell (West Toronto), moved for a full return in detail in regard to the broom manufactory of the Central Prison, and for a copy of the contract with H. A. Nelson & Sons.

Mr. Lauder moved for returns in reference to plans for new parliament buildings with especial view to the amounts paid to the various newspapers for advertising.

Mr. Fraser said that the independent opinion of experts was that none of the plans could have been proceeded on within the half milion.

Almost young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. THE amorous farmer from Tyendinaga who wooed and wed so suddenly one day last week, as described in Saturday's INTELLIGENCER, came on Saturday night and took his wife home.

THE County Council, by prolonging the session one day, saved an extra session in March, which would have been necessary in order to make the appropriations for roads to the minor municipalities.

SOME ice boats were out on the bay yesterday afternoon and attained a high rate of speed in the strong wind which prevailed. One of them sustained severe damage by one of its skates getting into a crack.

THE Oswego Palladium says that Mr. E. W. Rathbun has bought the Island dock of Hon. Willard Johnson, for 10,000. Mr. Rathbun is expected in Oswego this week, as it is probable that repairs and improvements will be made to the property.

THE tea and entertainment in the City Hall this evening in aid of Christ Church should and doubtless will be well patronized. The literary and musical programme is one which is worthy to stand alone, without the support of the grosser part of the evening's entertainment.

THE last rehearsal for Mr. Oldham's grand concert in St. Thomas' Church to-morrow evening, was held last night. The result was very encouraging, nearly all the performers being "well up" in their respective parts. The grand chorus from "Nazareth" will be particularly fine—something to look forward to.

Two drunks, Sylvester Harman and John Hannah, were brought before the P. M. this morning and remanded for a week. W. J. Gibson, charged with the same offence, was fined $20 and costs, or, in default, two months in gaol, and W. J. McGregor was fined $10 or two months in gaol. The wages case of Keating against Meagher was dismissed without costs.

A WELL-KNOWN citizen got implicated in a little family altercation yesterday and made up his mind to leave his family and his business, to sever all connection with Belleville, and go west. He arrived at the railway station this morning with his trunk, intending to go by the mixed train for the west; but a friend got him into Docter's and kept him there until the train was nearly out of the station yard—and then let him run for it. It is needless to add that he did not overtake the train. He will probably be restored to the bosom of his family after he enjoys a long and refreshing sleep.

THE Winnipeg Times of the 26th say: "Thomas Hambly, of this city, has just returned from a trip through the section of country lying north and east of Lake Winnipeg. He followed the course of the Fairford River, Lake St. Martin and the Little Saskatchewan River to Lake Winnipeg, performing the journey by snow shoes and dog trains. The distance travelled was about 500 miles. The district abounds in furs and fish and is bound to be important from these as yet undeveloped resources." Mr. Hambly is the regular correspondent of the INTELLIGENCER in the North-West. One letter from him, descriptive of the first part of his journey into this comparatively unknown region, has already been published, and two others, which arrived this morning, will be given in due season.

WE have pleasure in directing the attention of our readers to the "Card of Thanks" of Mr. Symons in another column, whose loss by the late fire was adjusted and paid within twenty hours after the occurrence of the loss, which is another proof of the interest taken in his patrons' welfare by Mr. Clarke, who informs us that he has never had a contested claim.

THE anniversary tea-meeting at Holloway St. Methodist Church, held last evening, was quite as successful as the tea-meetings of that church usually are—that is to say, successful in a high degree. The attendance was very large; the tea furnished by the ladies of the congregation was rich and varied enough to satisfy even the almost insatiable demands of the small boy's stomach, aided by his imagination; the addresses delivered by Revs. Dr. Burwash, Dr. Badgley, and Messrs Burns and Clement were models of brief platform addresses, and the music furnished by the choir was of course excellent. No tea-meeting ever got up by the ladies of this church has yet proven a failure.

A YOUNG man was observed by Sergt. McCrudden this morning, trying to sell a horse and buggy, and as he was willing and anxious to dispose of them as soon as possible—even for a sum far below their actual value—the officer's suspicions were aroused and he arrested the young man, together with another youth who was with him. The story told by the prisoner is a plausible one, and may be true. His name is Cornelius O'Brien, and he comes from Campbellford. His companion's name is John Kelly, and he lives in Trenton. O'Brien says he has been teaming at one of Rathbun's shanties. One of his horses, however, died of "pink-eye" recently, and as he was not able to team with one nor able to purchase another, he determined to come to Belleville and sell his remaining animal. When he arrived at Foxboro he left his large lumber sleigh with Mr. Chas. Ashley and borrowed a buggy from him to come to town in. He denies that he had any intention of selling the buggy; he merely wanted to dispose of the horse and harness. Mr. Ashley was in town to-day, and corroborated O Brien's story so far as it related to O'Brien's dealings with him.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES—Toronto, Jan. 31.—Lakes, moderate to fresh winds, fair to cloudy weather with areas of snow towards evening or to-night, not much change in temperature.

REMENYI.—This Prince of violinists will give one grand concert at the City Hall on Monday evening next. Those who wish good seats had better secure them early at Reynold's, where the plan is now open.

THE HERNDONS.—After an absence of seven or eight years, Mr. T. J. Herndon, one of the greatest popular favorites in the dramatic line that ever visited Belleville, is to make his reappearance on Thursday evening next, in the Metropolitan Hall, and will play here for a short season of three nights, with a matinee. Since we last saw Mr. Herndon he has experienced many vicissitudes and troubles which often beset the path of members of his profession, and has besides suffered family bereavement. Notwithstanding this, the old veteran is said to be as fresh and vigorous in his acting as ever, and, having an excellent company with him, he is winning success wherever he appears. He opens here on Thursday evening in "Divorced," and it is to be hoped he will be greeted with an overflowing house.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The number of The Living Age for the week ending January 28 contains Peasant Proprietors,—Jottings in France in September and October, Contemporary Review; The Boers at home,—Jottings from the Transvaal, Blackwood; The Freres, by Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't" etc., Temple Bar; More Diversions of a Pedagogue, Macmillan; Robin, by Mrs. Parr, author of "Adam and Eve," etc., Temple Bar; Juliet, by Helen Fancit Martin, Blackwood; A Sheep Eating Parrot, Chambers Journal; together with the usual amount of choice poetry and miscellany. This is the fourth weekly number of the new volume. New subscribers can begin with the volume. For fifty-two numbers of sixty four large pages each (or more than 3 300 gages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10 50 the publisher offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publihers.

A short road to health was opened to those suffering from chronic coughs, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, lumbago, tumors, rheumatism, excoriated nipples or inflamed breast, and kidney complaints, by the introduction of the inexpensive and effective remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

RESPECT.—The Grey Hairs of old age demand and should receive respect—but the Grey Hairs of young people require attention —in the way of using Cingalese Hair Renewer. Sold by A. L. Geen, Druggist, at 50 cents per bottle.

Bishop Beveridge!

A gentleman meeting the celebrated and excellent Bishop Beveridge, asked him how he was. Beveridge replied; "If I answer in Latin, I am sic, sic; if in English, so, so."

There are many, who, if they spoke truly would give the same answer as the excellent Bishop. They have contracted lung disease, or it may be suffering from asthma, and in great danger of that fatal malady consumption. Take warning in time, use N. H. Downs' Vegetable Balsamic Elixir, it is really what many have called it, the "king" of remedies. Sold by all druggists throughout the Dominion.

Dr. A. R. Scovill, of Cincinnati, says:—"For Coughs and all the early stages of Lung complaints, I believe it to be a certain cure; and if every family would keep it by them, ready to administer upon the first appearance of disease about the Lungs, there would be very few cases of fatal consumption."

For the Intelligencer.

MR EDITOR,—Knowing that you take a very great interest in the matter of a House of Refuge and an Hospital for our City's poor, and all manner of prices have been asked for a mere site to put said buildings on, the undersigned beg to offer to the City Council about 34 acres of good land on which is erected a good two story brick house about 40 feet square with a very large kitchen also of brick, together with good outbuildings, situated about half a mile from the City limits, for the sum of $3,000, a sum which the buildings alone are worth. The premises must soon be sold at some price to satisfy the requirements of the will of the late Mrs. Mary O'Keefe.

Belleville, Jan. 30, 1882.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR.—It was somewhat amusing for a spectator, at the organization of the County Council to see the course pursued by Mr. E. D. O'Flynn.

Indeed I should think that the whole County should feel indebted to him for his manliness in withdrawing from the contest for the Warden's chair after Mr. Robert Gordon was declared elected by the County Clerk. A spectator who has but little knowledge of municipal matters could not imagine that the County has saved by his withdrawal, as it costs the County ninety-three dollars a day to pay expenses, and had Mr. O'Flynn kept up the contest for three months it certainly would have placed the County in a very bad position to meet the liabilities this present year.

Hoping all aspirants to office may be as considerate as Mr. O'Flynn,

I remain yours truly,
January 30th, 1882. X

Methodist and Catholic Theology.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—I desire to make a correction of the misapprehensions of our anonymous Catholic brother who has lately been trying to assimilate the teachings of a Methodist Minister's sermon recently delivered in the Bleecker St. Church, to the peculiar dogmas of his quasi-infallible church.

The general tenor of the two letters of "Catholic" is quite amusing. They seem like the over-strained efforts of a testy advocate trying to lay hold of any seeming arguments from any source to prop up a belief that is being looked upon as obsolete and unreasonable. Had our Catholic friend been present at the delivery of the sermon referred to, he would have heard how guardedly the statement was made which he quotes triumphantly in support of his belief. Those who were present will remember that the Rev. gentleman, immediately before making the statement quoted in your paper by "Catholic," said these words—"There is a practice in the Roman Catholic Church of praying to the Saints That is an error, but in shunning that we are apt to ignore the opposite truth that the saints pray for and sympathize with us." The Rev. gentleman at no time during the delivery of his interesting sermon made any statement that might be construed into teaching that we should pray to the departed spirits of our christian friends, or that they have any different relationship as intermediaries between God and man from that which they occupied in their bodily existance. As I understood the reasoning of the preacher's statement, it was that it seems most natural and reasonable to suppose that if one christian has an interest in another fellow being, that sympathy will not be extinguished at death, as the essential powers of his spirit are unchanged, but will find natural expression in prayers to his God for his friend.

I am sure that the speaker expressed his unqualified belief in the fact that there is only one mediator between God and man—the God-man Jesus Christ, and as that mediator teaches us in this world to pray for friends, He does not consider it an usurpation of His intermediary position that we should continue such prayers to Him for our friends on earth after we leave this world and enter into His immediate presence. I am sure all Methodists have been delighted to read the wonderful outgushings of brotherly regard that have flowed so freely from "Catholic's" heart.

For once his largehearted welcome to a general handshaking as a sign of common brotherhood is broader than the usual exclusiveness of his church.

Sincerely do I wish that our Catholic brother may meet with us in the happy home of the sainted, where the shibboleth of church sects will be no guarantee for admission.

Yours &c,
A BLEECKER ST. METHODIST.

The North-West.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.—WINNIPEG.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 24.

DEAR SIR:—After the usual fatiguing journey we arrived at St. Paul. It seems only yesterday that we spoke of St. Paul as that strange, wild frontier town whose streets were daily filled with the painted Indian and the swarthy trapper and into whose business marts the rich furs of the great North West were daily poured. How changed; the rudeness and primitive simplicity of frontier life entirely disappeared and instead an active, populous city with streets well filled with well dressed citizens peaceable and orderly and engrossed by the pursuit of the almighty dollar. The city is beautifully situated in a valley surrounded by hills which almost attain the dignity of mountains. The grand old Mississippi river, with its high banks and broad water course, pursuing its circuitous route through the city, spanned by an iron bridge, which is one of the most beautiful structures of the West. What a magnificent panorama is presented as you stand upon this bridge and with a comprehensive glance take in the entire city and its surroundings. It is a lovely city, most romantically situated. The buildings are chiefly of stone, light and graceful in their structure. The volume of business transacted is very great. Minneapolis, however, has quite thrown St. Paul in the shade. Situated in a charming country surrounded by many small lakes, nature has done her utmost to make her one of the loveliest cities of the Union.

Minneapolis is situated upon the Mississippi, which divides the city. The falls of St. Anthony, most beautiful to look upon, either with the eyes of a lover of all that is grand and glorious in Nature or with those of a cool calculating mercenary man who is only eager to take the beautiful foaming rippling water and chain it to the busy noisy wheels of his manufactory.

The river is very broad, the falls 82 feet high—furnishing 125,000 horse power—the banks lined with the finest grist mills and factories of the world. The grist mills are most imposing structures, 8 and 9 stories, immense breadth, furnished with the most costly machinery ever patented—all of the most perfect description—belts 4 feet in width, turning out 28,500 barrels of flour per diem—consuming 37 million bushels of wheat, exporting immense quantities of flour to Liverpool—grinding out seven millions and a half barrels of flour annually. Cutting 230 millions of feet of lumber, and 150 millions of shingles, 60 millions of lath yearly. Doing a trade of 83 millions in 1881, increasing her wholesale trade 158 per cent in four years, sending out her seventy-five passenger trains daily and 200,000 car loads of freight annually, building 1,675 houses between February and September 1881, increasing her population last year by 16,000, with a larger population, larger assessment, larger wholesale trade than any city in the Union North and West of Chicago and Milwaukee. Such is the position of this smart, irrepressible city. The taxation of the railroads in Minnesota produces sufficient revenue to pay the interest on the debt of the State and its current expenses, having only to be raised by direct taxation a fund for Education, Charity and penal institutions. From Minneapolis to your journey's end you are on the boundless prairie The grand old prairie one vast level kissing the sky at the extremest point of vision, here and there broken by the small houses of the settler and the clumps of trees which occasionally are to be seen. All along the road you meet with incipient cities all growing with startling rapidity—not an old house visible. Booming everywhere, places where you cannot conceive a reason why there should be a village containing an active thriving population Everywhere you feel borne in upon you the great truth that in this western land wheat is king. Rents and provisions are high, labor high, and a mechanic can do better at home with fair wages than in this new country with larger wages and much additional expense. On Saturday night we arrived at Winnipeg on the coldest night of the year when the thermometer travelled among the fifties. I am, however, delighted with the climate, which seems to me to have received unfair treatment at the hands of some of your contributors.

Yours, F.

HYDROLEINE

(HYDRATED OIL)
An artificially digested Cod Liver Oil.

For Consumption, Winter Cough, Affections of the Chest and all Wasting Diseases.

Prescribed by the leading physicians of England, the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

A WONDERFUL FACT.

HYDROLEINE mixes perfectly with water, showing a complete artificial digestion of the oil, and just as the HYDROLEINE mixes with the water, so does it mix with the liquid contents of the stomach, and enters immediately into the system to nourish and build it up. The efficacy of HYDROLEINE is NOT CONFINED to cases of Consumption, as from its valuable tonic effect on the nervous system in addition to its special stimulating action on the organs concerned in the production of Fat in the body, it causes marked increase in weight in persons of naturally thin habit, who do not present any evidence of disease.

Unlike ordinary preparations of Cod Liver Oil, it produces no unpleasant eructation or sense of nausea, and should be taken in such very much smaller doses, according to the directions, as will ensure its complete assimilation; this, at the same time, renders its use economical in the highest degree.

For sale by all Druggists.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 3rd, 1882.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M. D.:

MY DEAR SIR,—In September last I contracted a severe cold which settled upon my lungs quite seriously, affecting the left one. I had a very bad cough, accompanied by expectoration indicative of Pulmonary Phthisis. My strength decreased and spirits sank very low, and when I called upon you I was in doubt whether any medical treatment would avail in my case. Under your treatment I have already recovered my wonted strength and health. My weight has increased, my cough has ceased, and in every way I feel very much benefitted by your treatment.

You are at perfect liberty to use these statements as you please.

Very sincerely yours,

THE UNLOVED WIFE

BY MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH.

Even now there were times when the evil spirit suggested to him that Lilith Wyvil, the interloper, had stolen the best part of his father's heart from him. Yet still so greatly did he love his father that it was less in acknowledgement of "the sacred debt" than in deference to the dying father's wish that he determined to marry the girl of whom he had been so jealous.

Now that his father was gone he did not regret the sacrifice which had given peace to his last hours; on the contrary, with that self-reproach which fine natures feel as the sharpest element in their sorrow for the loved and lost, he bitterly accused himself in letting his ambition interfere so much with his filial love and duty, and take him so much from his father's side. And in his mood his jealously of Lilith disappeared and was replaced by a feeling of warm gratitude to the girl, who had taken his place and performed his duty.

Five days later the mortal remans of the elder Tudor Hereward were laid in the family vault of St. Mark's church, Frosthill, in the presence of a large congregation of friends and neighbors.

And the next day Tudor Hereward, the younger, announced his intention of returning to Washington by the evening train.

'I shall leave you in charge here, Lilith,' he said, 'with full powers to act during my absence. I cannot take you with me to subject you to the discomforts of hotel life or the distractions of Washington society, Perhaps by the next winter a year hence I may be able to take a house and fit it up for you; but in the mean time you are better off here. Shall you mind being left here for the present?'

She hesitated; for she did mind very much.

'Shall you be afraid to stay here alone?' he inquired, varying the question.

'Oh, no, not at all afraid!' promptly replied Lilith, glad that she could answer truthfully, as well as satisfactorily.

'That is well! You are a brave little woman; I know! And in fact there is nothing to fear, You will be perfectly safe here with so many servants in the house.'

'Yes,' said Lilith.

'This is the long session, as you are aware, and Congress will not adjourn before the first of June, and may not do so even then; but I shall try to run down and see you in the interim, if only to spend a Sunday. You will be glad to see me as an occasional visitor, mistress?' he inquired, with a grave smile, putting his fingers under her chin and lifting her sweet, downcast face. 'Look at me and answer, Lilith!'

'I shall be very, very glad to see you,' she murmured, in a low tone, with a swift, shy glance of her dark eyes and a deepening blush.

'And—I shall be glad to come whenever I may do so, Lilith,' he said, stooping and leaving a kiss upon her budding red lips.

'Must you really go by this evening's train?' she inquired.

'Yes, dear, for I must be in my seat when the house meets at noon to-morrow. There is business before the house in which I am deeply interested, and for which I have been working very hard.'

'It is so sudden. I did not think you were going away so very soon,' she said, regretfully.

'Did you not? But you surely knew, dear, that duty calls me to Washington.'

'I ought to have known; but I did not reflect. I see now, of course.'

'I have been absent from my seat five days. I must not stay away longer.'

'I see—I know; it is very sudden, but it cannot be helped. Can I assist you in getting ready?'

'No, dear; there is nothing with which you need trouble yourself.'

'Your valise?'

'It is packed, dear.'

'Luncheon put up?'

'I shall not want any. Leaving Frosthill by the 6 p. m. express, I shall reach Washington by 9 a. m., time enough for breakfast. So, dear, all that I shall require will be a substantial tea before I leave home. Now I must go and speak to Felding, and give him some instructions in regard to the management of the place during my absence,' said Mr. Hereward, leaving the sitting room to join the overseer, who was waiting for him in the office, at the end of the hall.

Lilith sent one of the young housemaids to call Nancy to her presence—Nancy, to whose duties of permanent seamstress and occasional nurse were added those of general housekeeper.

The woman came in, wearing, as mourning for her late master, what she called a "solio" black calico dress, black shawl, apron, and turban.

'Nancy, Mr, Hereward is to start for Washington by the evening train,' said Lilith.

'An' take you 'long ob him?' inquired the woman.

'Oh, no, it would not be expedient under the circumstances.'

'Wot saccumstanches?' demanded the woman, with the bluntness of an old and esteemed family servant.

'It would not be seemly that I, just married and in deep mourning for the death of our father, should go to a hotel in Washinton, at the height of the gay season, where, as the wife of a prominent public man, I should be subjected to remark, whether I should go into company, or should rigorously seclude myself. You understand these things, Nancy.'

'Fack, honey, I tell yer! Yer's right! Dis worl' is wery wicious! But ef yer can't go, wot he go for? Dat wot I want to know.'

'Of course, Mr. Hereward must return to his official duties. He cannot absent himself from them. And they will occupy him. He need not, and will not, enter into society, or be criticised for keeping out of it.'

''Pears to me as ge'men can do jes as dey pleases an' ladies can't. 'Deed it's de truf!'

'Well, Nancy, I did not call you to discuss this point, but to tell you that Mr. Hereward will leave here at five to catch the six o'clock train; so I wish you to see that the nicest and most substantial tea be ready for him at half-past four. I know I may trust it to you. Remember that he will travel all night.'

'I'll 'member, Miss Lilith! I get young marse a staff ob life wot will prop him up till breakfas' time to-morrow mornin'; eben ef he had to walk all de way f'om Cloud Claps to Washin'ton! Le's see,' she said, beginning to count on her fingers; 'beefsteak—dat de bes' stan'-by of all!—brile pattridge, poach eggs, rice cakes—'

And so muttering and counting she passout of the room.

Lilith sat down and waited for the return of her husband, meditating whether she might ask him to let her go with him as far as the station and see him off.

She wished to be with him to the latest moment, if possible. but she was not sure that she could bring herself to ask this privilege.

She had always been very shy and even half afraid of the man she loved; and her marriage of five days had not cured her of this weakness.

If he had really loved her and made her feel that he loved her, he must have won her confidence and conquered her fears.

But ah! for the unloved wife!

And yet she did not know that she was not loved. Tudor Hereward had asked her to give herself to him; therefore, of course, he must have loved her. This, without a thought or a question, she had taken for granted.

Now, that there was something wanting to the happiness of her married life, she felt rather than understood or believed. So she was still shy and still a little afraid of Tudor Hereward.

She sat waiting for him and wishing there were some way in which she could render herself useful or agreeable to him; but there seemed none.

There was nothing that she could do for him, from the getting of his tea to the packing of his valise, that the well trained servants of the house could not do a great deal better. And she could not be so "officious" in her anxiety to be useful as to spoil work.

She had been useful, agreeable, and even indispensable to the dear foster-father who had passed away. She had been the constant companion of his secluded life. She had walked, driven and ridden with him on fine days; and had read to him or played and sung his favorite songs, or talked with him over their favorite books, or music, on inclement days or in the evenings.

TO BE CONTINUED.

RACKED BY INNUMERABLE PANGS, restless by day, sleepless at night, rising unrefreshed in the morning, without appetite and pestered by varying and perplexing symptoms, the dyspeptic takes indeed a gloomy view of human existence. For him the zest of life seems gone. Heartburn, oppression at the pit of the stomach, and the attendent annoyances of of constipation and biliousness, combine to render him utterly wretched. But there is, if he will but take advantage of it, a reliable source of reliable relief from all misery. NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY and DYSPEPTIC CURE is, as its name imports, a botanic preparation, free from mineral poison, and an all-sufficient remedy for indigestion in its most obstinate form. It not only enriches the blood by enabling the digestive organs to convert the food received into nutriment, but depurates it by increasing the action of the bowels and kidneys, the natural outlets for its impurities. But while it relaxes the bowels, it never does so violently and with pain, like a drastic cathartic. It aids, but never forces, Nature, invigorating as well as purifying and regulating the system. It thoroughly removes those diseased humors which tend to vitiate the blood, purifies the urinary secretion, and promotes a flow of healthy bile into the natural channel, besides expelling it from the circulation. Experience has proved that this standard medicine is a thorough remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, costiveness, kidney complaints, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, lumbago and all impurities of the blood. Price $1.00. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Ask for NORTHROP & LYMAN'S Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. The wrapper bears a fac-simile of their signature. Sold by all medicine dealers

It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Pains and Griping in Children.

HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED VEGETABLE PILLS are a sovereign remedy for this ailment which is not alone confined to children. Nothing can withstand their subtle action and purifying influences. They are purely vegetable, and never inconvenience the patient. They are sold everywhere.

Why Incur Torture?

By disregarding cleanliness of the teeth, and thus encouraging their decay, when SOZODONT, which is delightful to use, prevents the possibility of toothache, by keeping the teeth in health. No one who has not used this popular article, can form an adequate idea of how much improvement defective teeth are susceptible. SOZODONT is infinitely to be preferred to abrading tooth powders. It preserves, not scratches the enamel.

A General Stampede.

Never was such a rush made for any Drug Store as is now at James Clark & Co., for a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. All persons afflicted with Asthma, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Severe Coughs, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can get a Trial Bottle of this great remedy free, by calling at above Drug Store.

Astonishing Success.

It is the duty of every person who has used BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, at 100,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the GERMAN SYRUP cannot be to widely known. Ask your Druggist about it. Sample Bottles to try sold at 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

Cruelty to animals

There are societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. But men and women grow pig-headed when their stomachs are demoralized. They insist upon eating at all hours of the day and night whatever their perverted and normal appetites crave, until they become incurable dyspeptics. They will enlarge feelingly on the theme of "cruelty to animals" and then retire to the dining-room and gorge huge masses of indigestible food. Which is worse cruelty to animals or men? Every house should keep as a life blessing a quantity of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which will remedy this evil of cramming down indigestiible food until we feel light headed from the table or suffer from paralysis. They carry away the offal and renovate the system. Sold by all druggists.

AHA!—Dentists who have tried "TEABERRY," pronounce it the finest thing on the face of this earth for the teeth and breath. 5 cent samples.

An Astonishing Fact.

A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasant existance of enjoyment and usefulness as it ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to try it virtues, with satisfactory results in every case. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents to try. Three doses will relieve the worst case. Positively sold by all Druggists on the Western Continent.

Betts' Cove, Newfoundland.
July 4, 1881.

Having used at the Provincial and City Hospital, Halifax, for two and a half years the Compound Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, prepared by Mr. C. F. Puttner, I can certify that it has been found very valuable in all cases in which the pure oil could not be taken. The efficacy of the oil is undoubtedly increased by the iron and hypophosphites which are combined with it.

The difficulty of prescribing cod liver oil is overcome by Mr. Puttner, whose Emulsion, although containing a larger per centage of pure oil than any other Compound, is so skilfully prepared that it does not produce the least nausea

I have therefore no hesitation in recommending it to those who require cod liver oil.
